In past years the SAC has erroneously pressed for greater control of student discipline. Arguing principally that such control would imply recognition of undergraduate independence, the council achieved a minor victory when the president and the vice-president became ex officio non-voting members of the university's supreme disciplinary body, the Caput.

One does not have to go very far back in this university's history to find examples of ineptness and misunderstanding by student disciplinary bodies which could and have led to tragic consequences.

The present disciplinary system is perhaps as fair as any system could be within this university's structure. It could be a great deal more efficient if the SAC put theory into practice and assumed their constitutional duties as a police force, but the difficulties presented and animosity generated by student politicians turning themselves into guardians of the peace is obvious.

We sincerely believe student discipline should remain as much in the hands of the administration or faculty as possible.

The only opposition to the plan presented to McMaster next Wednesday will come from students themselves.

Magic in Mountain Air

By PHYLLIS MENSAH

Miss Mensah, a third-year geography student in University College, was born in Jamaica. Below she describes the physical aspects of her country—site for this summer's World University Service seminar.

Last term, Dean A.J. Earp of Trinity College wrote something of the West Indies and of Jamaica in particular, the venue of the next World University Service Summer Seminar. The physical background is just as fascinating as the cultural.

Just over nine hours from Toronto's Malton Airport one may alight in Kingston, Jamaica. As one approaches Palisades Airport, a picture postcard land generously displays its light-filled blue skies, its restful greenery and its silver-white sands in a realm of color.

In the distance, low mountains rise (nearly half of the island is over 1000 ft. above sea level) and above the core of mountains rise the 'Rockies' of Jamaica, blue-mauve in the distance some 7,400 ft. high. The greatest width of the island is 52 miles and it measures 152 miles from east to west; across most of it, like a huge tropical fern, spreads the mountain system with a main east-west vein and branches running north and south.

Most of the rivers flow away from the E-W ranges and many towns are situated at their mouths; however, due to rapids and waterfalls, these streams are not important for navigation. A real thrill enjoyed by most visitors is that of shooting the rapids on a bamboo raft such as Princess Margaret did on the Rio Grande in the north-east of the island. Some streams disappear to reappear again; here hollows, rocky caves and ephemeral lakes are found all over the cavernous limestone areas. The lower parts of the rivers, flow through rich alluvial plains and agriculture is carried on by most of the islanders. Irrigation and land conservation practices have extended cultivable land up the slopes of the mountains as well.

The island boasts of a number of therapeutic springs. The waters of Milk River in the parish of Clarendon are warm, saline and radio-active; the sulphurous Bath Fountain in St. Thomas, the Black River Spa in St. Elizabeth and the Moffat Spring on the White River are the main ones. There are also a number of cold mineral springs.

Off the coast lie several small very attractive islands, the chief one being the Pedro Cays near Kingston Harbour.

Climate

As we shivered together last week, a Canadian friend said to me, "Oh, this must be so cold for you!" (Truth is we were both pretty cold with temperatures in the 20's) However, this is something on the climate of Jamaica. Being a mountainous country, temperatures vary quite a bit. In Mandeville, for instance, 2,061 feet above sea level and in the centre of the island, the temperatures may fall to about 50°. In Kingston, on the other hand, the average temperature is 78°. Due to the moderating influence of the Caribbean at her doors, Jamaica, naturally, has no great extremes in temperature. Local breezes are noticeable and this is one of the land's 'down where the trade winds blow'.

Most rain falls on the northern side of the mountains and while 17" may be recorded in November on the northern Blue Mountain slopes, on the southern plains just 7" may be recorded. The two very rainy seasons occur around May and October as a rule.

Earlier this year a friend came to me to discuss the weather in Jamaica; she wanted to spend her honeymoon on the island but what of the hurricanes? I hastened to explain that we in Jamaica do not spend our days dodging hurricanes. The weather bureau issues detailed information on it as soon as a hurricane develops. There is always time to prepare for the onset. Adequate, almost minute to minute warning is given as the storm progresses and there is no danger of a hurricane sneaking up and slapping one on the back before one knows he is in the neighborhood. Many of the modern homes are built to resist hurricane-force winds, so one can feel safe in the storm.

The visitor to Jamaica may be disappointed with regard to interesting wild life. There are no monkeys, snakes or giant insects waiting to pounce on the unwary from the trees and hedges. He may see a shy mongoose scurry across the rural roads (this looks like a grey-beige squirrel), colorful lizards perhaps, crocodiles in one or two streams, but everyone knows where they are; one also may see wild pigs in the mountains, several types of birds, rats of about the same size as those I've seen here and that is about all.

It is a delightful country on the whole; the tropical fevers which my textbooks mentioned from time to time are almost unknown due to the draining of swampy land, preventive medicine and modern sanitary facilities. The magic of sunlit color, rain-fresh foliage, warm seas and cool fruit juices, to name a few, is bound to captivate one. When one has visited the country, he'll forgive native sons when they wax enthusiastic about their homeland — you see it is all there. The magic is real.

Last Month

Late in the evening, leaving the city
The Christmas streets flash from the stars
And the newboys' carol God,
But we head for the country and hear
The silence of the shepherds and the stars.

John Robert Colombo

Wired For Views

by VICKY INNES
Varsity CUP Editor

Relatively few editors on the Canadian campus scene have exercised their critical right on the recent Castro triumph in Cuba. But the opinions of those who have are as different as night and day.

In a masterpiece of understatement the McGill Daily moaned: It appears... that the United States Foreign Service has once again bungled in assessing a situation correctly.

If the "eyes and ears" of the US were out of touch with the "realities of the situation", those of the East are not and the Daily concluded with a gloomy thought:

"One shudders to think what would happen to Miami as a tourist centre should a Russian missile base suddenly appear on the outskirts of Havana."

In Edmonton, the U of A Gateway complained that now the revolution is over, the bored or expelled student can no longer say, "Guess I'll head for Cuba and join Castro!"

Freedom of the press and speech received a thorough airing both in connection with recent firings of University editors and otherwise.

The Xaverian Weekly in Nova Scotia unleashed some pithy criticism at the administration of Laval and Ottawa Universities for acting as if: "All that is required for harmony is that the students do without question whatever is required of them".

The Xaverian sympathized with the victims and added parenthetically, "It is not the policy of this newspaper to support with enthusiasm the programs of student unity a la Hitler Youth which often seems to be a feature of national Canadian student organizations."

The McGill Daily launched out at Premier Duplessis for his refusal to allow a Hansard report to be taken in the Quebec Legislature.

"The need of a Hansard to tell us the truth remains as pressing as ever," they affirmed, "as long as the publishers of this province are willing to permit their newspapers to be mere spokesmen for the Union Nationale."

In a previous issue, the editors condemned Quebec dailies for their general lack of sympathy with student causes.

The Gateway jumped on the bandwagon when it was criticized for the "appalling lack of respect shown towards the University administration".

Consistent respect for powers simply because they are powers reduces an editorial page to the position of a constant-loving lapdog.

But if a prize existed for the idea of the week, it would go to the Brunswickian. Taking as their inspiration the recent institution of communes for Chinese Communist peasants, they have a solution for UNB, "where certain low capitalist dogs" have been stealing winter footwear.

The solution? Students will exchange their winter boots at registration for an attractively designed pair of "communist campus boots", made in one, and only one, size and style.

THE VARSITY

FOUNDED 1880

Published by

The Students' Administrative Council
of the University of Toronto

Toronto 5, Canada

Member Canadian University Press

Editorial and News Office

Basement, SAC Building — WA 3-8742, WA 3-8113

Business and Advertising Manager

E. A. Macdonald — WA 3-6221

Editor-in-Chief
Managing Editor
Editor-without-portfolio
News Editor

Associate News Editors
Sports Editor
Associate Sports Editors
Publicity Editor

Features Editor

Co-AM&D Editors

CUP Editor

Photo Editor

Today's Issue: Jayne Nesbitt, Bill Musgrove, David Halton, Rho

Pild, a much-refreshed Diane Jackman, and multitudinous missing links.

Doug Marshall

Mark Nichols

Sam Aizenstat

Harvey Shepherd

Ed Roberts and Al Walker

John Brooks

Dave Griner and Gene Glasky

Susie Breslin

Liz Bink

Maryann Talbot and Warren Wilson

Vicky Innes

Mike Cavanagh

A Long Day's Journey Out Of Darkness

MICHAEL JOHN NIMCHUK

Photo by Schaefer

Those of you who pig-like wallow in the smut-sex-violence-sentimental sties that fill our stage and screen, stay away from this play. Edwin Justus Mayer's comedy, "Children of Darkness", demands an intellectual attainment, an emotional restraint and a delight in subtle language. If you lack the ability to appreciate such refinements I can only recommend: Stay away.

This strange comedy, a "teatro del grottesco", a "commedia dell'arte", defies exact definition. Because of its poetic prose and didacticism it reminds me of Shaw; its sharp wit, Wilde; its harsh pessimistic point of view, Pirandello; its lack of physical action, Giraudoux. It embodies all these styles and yet manages to create a style of its own. What a pity for the American stage (play produced, New York, 1930) that Mayer did not choose to grow into the master he could have been. But, lured by the siren salary, roomed off to Hollywood to sell his rare talents in the 1930's whorehouse of words and souped-up slop. How pathetic.

The setting of the play (excellently designed by Joyce Kleinfelder) is the house of Mr. Snap, jailer of Newgate Prison, 1725. High, brown, barren walls rise like the sides of a sepulchre. Lightly lit for the first act then dimmed down when the deeper elements of the play and day descend. High windows open and inviting hope, tantalizing yet untouchable—through which the daylight innocently peers while birds freely fly in the sky outside.

Plot? Theme? Along a simple line the author examines reality. The absolute self-existent world compared to the concrete world of observed facts. How? Through three kinds of lovers and those they're involved with. The story line: Count La Ruse, an aging philosophical libertine, Jonathan Wild, a "professional" thief, and the poet Cartwright are the paying guests of Mr. Snap, jailer of Newgate Prison. Laetitia, his lusty daughter loves La Ruse who scorns her. She uses Cartwright to bring back La Ruse who is busy with Mr. Snap in robbing Wild not only of his last pound but his honour, his thief's honour. After a moment of meditation, prompted by Laetitia, La Ruse gives the poet the stolen money so that he, Cartwright, may go free. And this is the main thread of Mr. Mayer's message that hope-youth-growth-Cartwright must be served and kept alive in a cynical world laden with materialism and nihilism. A touch of hope goes into the dark night.

It is primarily by Characterization that Mr. Mayer reteaches this ancient lesson, though many times during the evening he sacrifices characterization for language, wit and idea. And I thank those few remaining gods of theatrical wisdom that he does, for his language is alive, balanced, pointed and sometimes brilliant. Wilde did it all the time. Particularly when he turned his witty searchlight on the dark caves of the middle-class mind. Mayer's beacon floodlights the contemporary mire.

At random with a small sequence we hear such comments as:

Cartwright: Because I couldn't pay their fees, my lawyers had me arrested.

La Ruse: It is not the meek who will inherit the earth. It is the lawyers. (a round of applause from the audience).

Cartwright: I was not arrested for the crimes of youth, sir.

La Ruse: You should have been. At your age every man should be arrested and jailed until he's thirty. In that way folly would be ended for all times.

Cartwright: There is proverbially no fool like an old fool, sir.

Laetitia: I vow, sir, but you talk beyond your years. You must be a colleague—a hater from the audience.

Cartwright: I was expelled.

Laetitia: Expelled?

La Ruse: 'Tis a special form of graduation designed for the more original students. (peals of laughter with a prolonged applause).

And so on from the Romantic Idealist Poet, (on the modern stage poets always seem to be R and I. Marchbanks, etc. Very out of date. Frankly I know too many hard-boiled poets who would cut their mother's heart out and sell it to the butcher to buy a beer. Maybe this is what an R and I truly is.) Anyway, from Life-Cartwright zealous rhetoric:

"That the Paradise which men have lost is to be found again on earth. Is the air given us only that we may stifle? Is the sea given us only that we may drown? Are the flowers given us only that we may faint? While we dream of a distant heaven, heaven is at hand for us to storm" . . . to the cynical musing of that limbo-wandering libertine La Ruse.

"Yes, in this chemical reality we must kiss evil on the mouth as our spirits take flight from evil. Like two wild horses, released by birth, body and soul strain different ways and tear us to pieces."

To the death-like reality of Lord Wainwright as his "woos" Laetitia:

"What do you wish of me? Raptee? Shall I speak like the world of your eyes and the blue skies; your cheek and the red rose. Where all the while like the world I am thinking of a bed. I tell you wench, I would live a celibate all of my days before a word of such cant should pass my lips to a woman."

In this age of little hope and with drawal La Ruse the cynical lover is the hero. Icarus is drowned. Prometheus is banished. To La Ruse, the lover of shade and shadow, the audience responds. He has the broadest part. The best "lines". In another era, Cartwright the poet would have been king-hera. He is the youthful Cyranos whose ideas, rhymes and intuitive strength and imagination have not been fully realized. Love is the greatest thing he cries and La Ruse, that aging and disenchanted Hamlet mocks him. But it is only when the spoils (Laetitia) of the play are picked up by the insidious Lord Wainwright emerging from his grave world of factologic materialism that I quake with fear, for around me the Wainwrights are laughing into their own mirror.

As the count La Ruse, Norman Edmondson, gifted with a resonant voice, a good figure and unusually fine timing for the various shifts, pauses and inflexions of his line re-creates the difficult-lead with authority.

Only during the meditative passages, and the deeper cynicism did I find him lacking. This is probably due to youth, not lack of understanding.

Also that sensual nature which Laetitia accredits him did not flower sufficiently to infuse the death struggle between La Ruse's soul and body at the end of the play. Torn between going back to his sporting life of women-li-quoer-gaming and offering up his body for the redemption of his soul by his reincarnation through Cartwright the young poet, La Ruse should have displayed a greater struggle. Garrick Hagon as the poet Cartwright, ever youthful, tender, compassionate, master of timing and swift speech getting across his major speeches, particularly those against La Ruse. These should be a powerful indictment of La Ruse's attitude to life. Delivered with clarity and that intense emotion which Hagon had the ability to have shook the stage with their raw majestic power. La Ruse played him off too easily.

Mr. Snap, written in one key by Mayer, was played like a symphony by Warren Wilson. He even managed to give him human stature after he finds out his daughter is pregnant. Mr. Wilson is one of those rare actors who, when playing a second lead, make so much of their part with such taste and variety as to give the impression that he was, if not the lead, at least the next best thing. I would have wished more of those qualities Lord Wainwright sees in him. Snap seems too nice a guy. A little too youthful—

Mary Anderson (Laetitia) of Hyland, with voice and balletic movement sweeps and wings through a difficult role with grace and ease. She is a delight. More vulgar I would have wanted her, to add greater pathos to the class struggle she lived in. Sometimes during a witty line she used a number of gestures where one or clear ones would have caught the audience's laughter. The shift from pompous, pitch-bombed creature to Laetitia should be intenser and clearer. We should feel sympathy when she has fallen to Wainwright, though we are resigned smugly to this justified union.

John Leventy Jonathan Wild, succeeded with his harsh metallic voice in disturbing the harmonious atmosphere of La Ruse, Laetitia and Cartwright. When he is finally dragged off to be hanged, his last utterance to reach out and grab my throat, to swing in from the outside in a prison that houses comparative safety and show me the death that lived out there. This should be a strong transition.

I was never so aware of Mr. Gill's range of talent as a director as when Lord Wainwright, standing rigidly, quietly spoke his harsh life away in his iron blue suit. Here a touch of magic was nearly reached. A gasp of awe and relief swept through the audience when he left the stage the first time. A credit to his control and talent.

Others in the cast who adequately rose to their roles were James Fleming, Alfred Gollo, and, making his second appearance, and it was little more than that, that distinguished stage manager Roy Befus. Michael John Nimchuk

Photo by Schaefer

THERE HAVE BEEN TOO MANY HAIRS ON MY SHOULDER

BAD TASTE INDEED!

I'VE HAD ONE CHILD -- A BASTARD

GOOD GRIEF!

The Scoreboard

INTERCOLLEGIATE

HOCKEY

	P	W	L	T	F	A	P	S
Label	3	5	0	3	35	17	10
TORONTO	5	1	0	52	21	10
Montreal	5	1	4	0	20	25	2
McGill	6	0	6	0	10	63	0

Friday's Results

TORONTO 12 McGill 2

Saturday's Result

TORONTO 7 Montreal 6

Future Games

Tuesday 12 at Montreal
Friday 12 at TORONTO

BASKETBALL

	P	W	L	T	F	A	P	S
Assumption	4	4	0	0	244	135	8
Western	2	2	0	0	148	90	4
TORONTO	1	1	2	0	177	177	2
McGill	1	1	2	0	177	210	2
Queen's	1	1	2	0	178	189	2
McGill	1	1	3	0	218	252	2

Friday's Result

Queen's 56 TORONTO 56

Saturday's Results

McGill 65 TORONTO 62

Assumption 62 McMaster 63

Future Games

Wednesday McMaster at TORONTO

Friday Assumption at Western

Saturday Queen's at McGill

INTERMEDIATE

Friday's Result

TORONTO 63 Queen's 52

RUBY RICHMAN

Baby Blues Host Concords Tonight at 8

University of Toronto Baby Blues attempt to get back on a winning foot tonight, hosting Lyndhurst Concords at Varsity Arena (one time is 8 p.m.).

Jack Wheldrake's crew had recorded wins over McMaster Marlins and Osgoode Hall before falling to Lyndhurst Ramblers, 7-2, last Monday.

Coach Wheldrake will have a 32 full team on hand for the game.

Gaels, Upstart Redmen Stun Basketball Blues

MONTREAL, Jan. 25 (Special) —University of Toronto basketball Blues, rated one of the strongest entries in Intercollegiate senior play this season, were virtually shunted out of contention here last night.

Blues absorbed a 66-62 defeat at the hands of McGill Redmen, a team they had trounced, 59-42, last weekend in Toronto. Friday night, Varsity dropped a 69-56 decision to Queen's University Golden Gaels in Kingston.

The results put Toronto well down in the standings (see results and standings under The Scoreboard on this page) and left them little chance of successfully defending their championship.

The Friday game began two hours late after Blues' train had been delayed, and the psychological setback apparently continued throughout the game.

and expects his flock to regain the stride they lost temporarily in the game last week.

Concords, an OHA Senior B team, are the remnants of the Canadian world hockey tourney representatives of 1953.

Queen's, playing with only eight men, completely outshot Varsity in the first half and swept into a 29-19 lead. Blues never overcame the deficit, and Gaels widened their winning margin in the second half.

Toronto's Ruby Richman was high scorer in the game with 20 points. Norm Menezel followed Richman as Varsity's best with 10.

Queen's received top performances from Greg Stone and Murray Prior, each of whom dropped in 18 to lead the Tricolor to their first win after three consecutive setbacks.

(Due to an error in communication, the final section of the dispatch from Montreal was unavailable, and consequently, all that is known of the McGill-Varsity game is the score — Ed.)

Blues return to action in Hart House Wednesday night, with McMaster Marauders the visitors. Marauders have forward Doug Marshall back, along with veteran Bob Leedsdale.

Intermediate action pits McMaster Buccaneers against Don Lipke's Baby Blues in the preliminary game at 6:30. The senior battle gets underway at 8:30.

Birdmen Defend College Title Next Weekend

Varsity's Intercollegiate senior badminton team was chosen on the weekend, and will prepare this week for the annual tournament, to be played Friday and Saturday at Queen's.

The team members, in order of seeding, are: Ross Lundy, Paul Wendling, Tim Phillips, Casey Wood and Ken Smith. All but Wendling and Smith are in first year.

Last year, Varsity raced virtually unchallenged to the title, with Jim Carnwath winning the singles title in handy fashion. Varsity was undefeated throughout the entire 1958 tourney.

Now in second year Law, Carnwath is not participating on the Intercollegiate level this season.

CLASSIFIED ADS.

$1 DOWN BUYS ANY MAKE
Brand new typewriters. $59 up. Some models $30 off. Free home demonstration. Free typing course. 959 models rented, lowest rates. 175 Jane-Humber, RO 6-1103.

WANTED

Girl undergraduate with free time other Mondays, Wednesdays or Thursdays for work in Editorial office. $1.25 an hour. Telephone EM 6-5021, after 10 a.m.

SUMMER CAMP

In Northern Michigan desires interns with university students who are interested in waterfowl or consulting positions. If interested call Dr. Don or Mrs. Joan Rosenthal WA 2-1980, after 5.

LOST

Important record stolen Jan. 15 in Trinity College East. With day, name, John Allen, Queen's Ontario. Please call RU 4-9111 or contact Dr. R. A. Trinity College.

FOUND

Two sets of keys were returned to the SAC Office last Friday. Owners may claim by identifying them.

Recreational Skating at Varsity Arena

Friday and Saturday—10:00 to 11:00 a.m.
January 25th to March 19th inclusive.

Open to all undergraduate students (men and women). Physical Education credit will be granted for attendance.
Men: Meet in Mr. Griffiths' office, north-west corner office of the Athletic Wing, between 1:00 and 2:00 p.m. on any week day.

VARSITY ARENA

Return Game!

Varsity Blues

(Intercollegiate Champions)

vs

Whitby Dunlops

(World Champions)

MONDAY, FEBRUARY 2nd, at 8 p.m.

ALL SEATS RESERVED — $2.00, $1.50 and $1.00

Special Price For Student Season Ticket Holders

1,700 tickets will be held for those holding a hockey coupon book at a special student price of 50¢ for a RESERVED SEAT TICKET. Those purchasing tickets early will receive $200 tickets in the centre of the student section while late comers will receive $1.50 or $1.00 tickets. Tickets now on sale at the Athletic Office, Hart House, between the hours of 9:30 a.m. and 7:00 p.m. Bring your book to the sale.

Tickets On Sale at Special Price Until 5 p.m. Friday, January 30th

A student may purchase a ticket for a friend in addition to his own, provided he brings the extra book.

GAMES TODAY

HOCKEY	12:30 Med. I vs St. M. A	Blute, Borthwick
	1:30 Trin. D vs St. S. VIII	Cager, Blue
	6:30 Dent. B vs Mcu. III	McElligott, Crawford
WATER POLO	1:30 SPS. IV vs SPS. III	Bonnamia, Thesingh
	4:00 Pre-Med. I Yr. vs Trin. B	Watkin, M. Boase
SQUASH	1:00 St. M. C vs Vc. II
	5:40 Jr. SPS vs Med. III Yr.
BASKETBALL MAJOR LEAGUE	1:00 SPS. III vs U.C. II	Kelner, Mandel
	4:00 Vic. II vs Trin.	Grosman, Freeman
BASKETBALL MINOR LEAGUE (HART HOUSE)	1:00 IV Geol vs III Elec	Pearl
	4:00 U.C. Binders vs U.C. Mercuries	Lubin
	5:00 Vic. Victoria vs II Mech	Lubin
	6:00 II Civil vs Med. IV Yr B
BASKETBALL MINOR LEAGUE (VIC GYM)	5:00 Pre-Med. I A vs Vic. Geology	Clarke
	6:00 Pre-Med. I D vs I Eng. Phys. B	Clarke
	7:00 Pre-Dent A vs St. M. Coopers	Marchut

GAMES TUESDAY

HOCKEY	1:00 SPS. III vs Med. II	Burnt Yates
	4:00 Pnam vs Law	Downey, Sadowy
WATER POLO	1:15 Law vs Wye	J. Boase, Nobert
SQUASH	6:20 St. M. A vs Med. II Yr
	7:00 U.C. B vs Dent A
BASKETBALL MAJOR LEAGUE	1:00 St. M. A vs St. F.S.	Trinity Oakman
	4:00 SPS. C vs SPS. V	Lubin, G. G. G. G.
	5:00 Vic. B vs St. M. D	Lubin, G. G. G. G.
BASKETBALL MINOR LEAGUE (HART HOUSE)	1:00 St. M. A vs U.C. A
	4:00 Med. I vs U.C. B
	5:00 Med. I vs U.C. B
	6:00 Med. I vs U.C. B
BASKETBALL MINOR LEAGUE (VIC GYM)	1:00 St. M. A vs St. M. W. S.	Marchut
	4:00 Vic. B vs St. M. W. S.	Marchut
	5:00 Vic. B vs St. M. W. S.	Marchut
	6:00 Vic. B vs St. M. W. S.	Marchut
INDOOR TRACK	5:45 880 Yds. Relay (2x1, 1x2, 1x3 lap)

O'Keefe

Old Vienna
BREWERY LIMITED

and NOW

- In 1929, only 4,967,000 cigarettes smoked by Canadians.
- In 1920, only 30% of tobacco smoked in Canada grown here.

- Now over 27 billion cigarettes per year smoked by Canadians.
- Now 99% of tobacco smoked here grown in Canada.

TIE FOR TOP SPOT

Blues Bounce Redmen Bash Tough Carabins

MONTREAL, Jan. 24—Special—Varsity Blues completed a successful swing through Montreal this week end, downing McGill Redmen 12-2 on Friday night, and University of Montreal Carabins 7-6 in hockey action yesterday afternoon.

Blues again routed their favorite prey—Redmen, as they outshot the local squad 69-19.

Ron Casey paced the Varsity barrage with three goals. Mike Elik, Harry Neale and Howie Roth collected two markers each, while Tom Watt, Bill Kennedy, and Dunc Brodie garnered singletons.

Redmen scored with a two man advantage in the second period, Joe Irvin tallying from Ivan Saunders and Terry O'Connor. Des Killen scored Redmen's final marker from Steve Molson, for the best McGill showing of the night.

The game was a rugged, knock down, drag 'em out affair throughout, with Varsity leading the penalty parade on ten minors and a major. McGill earned three minors and two majors.

Neil Munro suffered a bruised shoulder in the final period, and remained out of action for Saturday's clash.

Defensively, Dave Laroche was a standout for Redmen, handing out bruising checks and carrying the puck well.

The Blues-Carabin clash was a thriller in more ways than one.

The game was scheduled to begin at 2:00, but when that time rolled around, the officials were highly conspicuous by their absence. A hurried search through the stands produced several volunteers, so the game got under way an hour and a half late.

The game was a see-saw battle to the final whistle. Carabin's Marcel Landreville drew first blood for Montreal at the two minute mark of the first period.

Varsity surge ahead on goals by Doug Williams and Mike Elik, to end the stanza.

Blues were outscored 2-1 in the second frame on goals by Montreal's Yves Laurendeau and Maurice Duhaime. Dunc Brodie tallied the lone Varsity goal from Kennedy and Casey.

The third frame saw the light flash seven times as Blues outscored Carabins 4-3 to sew up the contest.

Duhaime scored for Montreal, Roth tied it up for Blues, Laurendeau put Carabins ahead until Kennedy evened it up. Williams pulled Varsity into the lead until Victor Bedard evened it up again.

Neither team could surge to the fore until the 19:53 mark of the final period.

Kennedy won the draw on a face off. A Williams pass to Howie Roth saw the sprightly Lil' B'ar blast the rubber home on a beautifully executed play.

It would be unfair to claim the officiating was not up to snuff, but by an odd coincidence, Montreal never played with a man short. Every penalty to Carabins was paired with a Blueser in the sin bin.

Blues garnered 50 minutes in penalties, while Montreal suffered eight.

Much roughness was exhibited by all concerned. Over eager fans challenged the entire Blues' bench to fistfights and fencing. Police frowned upon such rowdiness.

Varsity suffered several injuries during the clash. To add to Munro's injury, rugged Frank Sullivan came up with a battered knee, while Howie Roth, spectacular in all he does, received a freak injury requiring stitches on his tongue.

Next Blues game will be this Friday against the highly touted Laval pucksters. First place is at stake!

THE RECORD—Varsity swimmer John Deacon (foreground) touches the wall of Spencer Memorial Pool ahead of defending Canadian breast stroke champion Peter Bell (background). Deacon, who led throughout the race, set a new Dominion mark with a winning time of 2:25.6 minutes. Bell was close behind at 2:26.2.

Swimmers Win 45-41 Deacon Sets Record

By JOHN BROOKS
Varsity Sports Editor

LONDON, January 23—A 19-year old University of Toronto freshman became the finest breast stroker in Canada here tonight as Varsity Blues spun to a thrill-drenched, 45-41, victory over Western Mustangs in an exhibition meet.

John Deacon, with only four months of expert swim instruction under his belt, cracked the Canadian record for the 200 yard breast stroke while outdistancing defending champion Peter Bell to the finish line.

Deacon's official time was listed as 2:25.6 minutes, exactly half a second better than the previous mark, set by Pan-American Games competitor Bell last year. Bell's time tonight was 2:26.2.

Alex Chun, although well behind the one-two finishers, grabbed third place in the event and gave Varsity the necessary points to pull from the fire a win that had seemingly slipped out of their grasp in the opening races.

Blues' highly-touted 400 yard medley relay team dropped the first event of the evening—but only through a fine display of sportsmanship by freestyler Walt Unger.

With two laps remaining in the 16-lap race, Unger held a body-length lead over Western's Denes Szvetko, but missed the wall while swinging into the third lap.

Unger stopped, went back and slipped his hand against the wall, then resumed the race. Szvetko had moved into a commanding lead during the interval, and maintained the margin until the finish.

"Walt lost a good three to four seconds by going back to the wall. I'm happier with a display of honesty like that than a win in the race," joked Coach Bill Yorzyk afterwards.

Mustangs also claimed a victory in the 400 yard sprint relay, but the final outcome of the meet was beyond doubt at that stage. Deacon and Chun had moved Varsity into a 45-41 lead, and the most points a winning team can gain in a relay is seven.

Ron Walbank—one of the few members of the Varsity team who looks more like a football tackle than a distance swimmer—was the only competitor to win two events.

Walbank took the 220 yard freestyle in 2:20.4 minutes, 2.4 seconds faster than teammate Mike Stipetic. Mustangs John Thompson came in third.

Walbank's time of 5:12.0 minutes in the 440-yard freestyle was 12.3 seconds faster than Stipetic, and a full half-minute ahead of Western's Les Backus.

It was during the latter event that Walbank brought howls of glee from a crowd of more than 600.

Team-mate Joe MacInnis was leaning over the pool edge to instruct Walbank he had two laps remaining, when up came the chunky Walbank with an unexpected mouthful of bone. You guessed it, zowie, zowie, zowie, and MacInnis retired to wipe a gallon of water from his eye.

All told, eight records were set in the meet. Western's medley relay team set new times in Canadian open, pool and collegiate divisions.

Deacon's sparkling performance in the breast stroke event gave him Canadian open Canadian native, pool and collegiate marks, and Coach Yorzyk chopped 3.2 seconds off the pool mark in the 200-yard butterfly.

Western's relay quartet could not set a Canadian native record due to the presence on the team of Hungarian Denes Szvetko. The collegiate records are unofficial, and can be set officially only in Intercollegiate competition.

Blues return home to prepare for a Hart House meet against Rochester February 7, although Coach Yorzyk is considering an invitation from Western's athletic director John McTear to send some swimmers to a tri-meet with Mustangs and University of Michigan here that night.

The Intercollegiate championships will be held at McGill on February 28.

400 yard medley relay: 1. Western 8:40.0; 2. U. of T. 8:45.0; 3. McGill 8:50.0.

200 yard freestyle: 1. Walbank (T); 2. Stipetic (T); 3. Thompson (W). Time, 2:20.4.

440 yard freestyle: 1. Walbank (T); 2. Backus (W); 3. Backus (W). Time, 5:12.0.

200 yard butterfly: 1. Yorzyk (T); 2. Backus (W); 3. Backus (W). Time, 2:25.6.

400 yard sprint relay: 1. Mustangs 4:12.0; 2. Blues 4:15.0; 3. Mustangs 4:18.0.

400 yard medley relay: 1. Mustangs 8:40.0; 2. Blues 8:45.0; 3. Mustangs 8:50.0.

Point totals: 1. Toronto 45; 2. Western 41.

Weekend Summary

TORONTO V. MCGILL

TORONTO—Goal, Groux; defense, Stacey, Stephen, Neale, Munro, Sullivan, forwards, Watt, Elik, Macdonald, Roth, Casey, Kennedy, Brodie, Williams, Brooks.

MCGILL—Goal, Herron; defense, Richards, Grant, Dingle, Laroche; forwards, Giffillan, Saunders, Irvin, Peters, Benzi, Molson, Vanplew, Killen, Ebers.

First Period

1—Toronto, Elik (6th) 1:00
(Neale)
2—Toronto, Casey (2nd) 1:15
(Kennedy)
3—Toronto, Roth (6th) 8:10
(Williams)
4—Toronto, Neale (1st) 19:23
(Munro)
Penalties: Stacey, 9:45; Elik, 9:08; Munro, 11:18; Richards (major), 16:40; Brodie, 19:09; Laroche, 19:00.

Second Period

5—Toronto, Elik (7th) 1:45
(Elik, Munro)
6—Toronto, Watt (2nd) 7:15
(Elik, Munro)
7—Toronto, Kennedy (5th) 13:55
(Saunders, O'Connor)
8—McGill, Irvin (1st) 16:38
(McGill, Killen (3rd)
(Molson)
9—Toronto, Brodie (5th) 19:56
(Kennedy)
Penalties: Laroche, 2:17; Munro, 8:10; Williams, 19:00; Casey, 12:45; Williams, 14:20; Molson, 17:10.

Third Period

11—Toronto, Casey (3rd) 2:40
(Kennedy, Stacey)
12—Toronto, Casey (4th) 4:10
(Kennedy, Brodie)
13—Toronto, Neale (2nd) 5:30
(Williams)
14—Toronto, Roth (7th) 11:19
(Brodie, Stacey)
Penalties: Stacey, 8:04; Dingle (minor and major), 9:08; Munro, 9:08; Brooks (major), 19:07.

TORONTO V. MONTREAL

TORONTO—Goal, Dunn; defense, Stacey, Stephen, Neale, Sullivan, forwards, Watt, Elik, Macdonald, Roth, Casey, Kennedy, Brodie, Williams, Brooks.

MONTREAL—Goal, Schooner; defense, St. Jean, Hebert, Gernmain, Ferret, forwards, Duhaime, Mongeon, Bedard, Theriault, Dionne, Laurendeau, Landreville, Renaud, Belsand, Bernier.

First Period

1—Montreal, Landreville (5th) 1:59
(Duhaime, St. Jean)
2—Toronto, Williams (1st) 7:24
(Stephen, Kennedy, Brodie, Williams, Brooks)
3—Toronto, Elik (8th) 13:08
(Roth)
Penalties: Neale (elbowing), 1:32; Stacey (roughing), 2:41; Duhaime (roughing), 2:41; Renaud (tripping), 4:23; Watt (elbowing), 9:23; Brodie (roughing), 12:51.

Second Period

4—Toronto, Brodie (5th) 2:34
(Kennedy, Casey)
5—Montreal, Laurendeau (8th) 11:28
(Landreville, Duhaime)
6—Montreal, Duhaime (1st) 19:31
(Bedard, St. Jean)
Penalties: Roth (elbowing), 8:11; Macdonald (roughing), 8:11; Roth (elbowing), 10:58; Dionne (elbowing), 11:13; Roth (elbowing), 11:13; Dionne (elbowing), 11:13; Dionne (elbowing), 11:13.

Third Period

7—Montreal, Duhaime (4th) 6:51
(Molson, Brodie)
8—Toronto, Roth (9th) 8:55
(Elik, Williams)
9—Montreal, Landreville (9th) 11:35
(St. Jean, Bedard)
10—Toronto, Keith (1st) 13:14
(Casey)
11—Toronto, Williams (2nd) 14:23
(Elik, Neale)
12—Montreal, Bedard (2nd) 16:27
(St. Jean)
13—Toronto, Roth (10th) 19:53
(Williams, Kennedy)
Penalties: Roth (elbowing), 11:52; Brodie (tripping), 16:38; Neale (elbowing), 17:28.

ATTABOY—Varsity coach Bill Yorzyk (right) congratulates John Deacon after the 19-year-old freshman set a Canadian record in the 200-yard breast stroke event at Western Saturday. Deacon shaved half a second off the old mark.

(VSP Brooks)

Dedicated Men Produce Fake Mike For Publicity

The fine art of selling suffered a new twist last week when several members of Mickities '59 gained entrance to the office of "The Mike", the St. Mike's student paper and turned out an issue devoted entirely to their upcoming musical comedy production.

Female lead, Dawn Egan, script-writer Gino Matteo, and publicity director Al Kneider entered the office on the pretence of doing some typing and turned out their advertising masterpiece in one all-night marathon.

"The time and effort were worth it just to see the expressions on the editors' faces," Kneider said. Many St. Mike's students were fooled by the gimmick, and some thought it was "The Mike's" gag issue, although the paper has never published a fake issue.

The production, "The Dedicated Men", is an original book-show, with score and script created and played by an all-SMC group. Two song hits from the show, "Choo Choo" and "You're So Wonderful", have been sold by writer Jim Doris to record companies. A reputable television company has expressed interest in purchasing the show.

Tickets for the production are selling fast, and all those planning to attend are advised to obtain theirs as soon as possible, Kneider said last night. Less than 100 tickets are left for the show, "Choo Choo" and "You're So Wonderful", have been sold by writer Jim Doris to record companies. A reputable television company has expressed interest in purchasing the show.

Capacity for the Royal Ontario Museum theatre, where the show will run Jan. 29-31, is 450 seats.

Tickets are $1 each, and are available at the Students' Administrative Council office in the SMC coffee shop, and in campus residences during the evening.

Outing Club Takes Off For Laurentian Skiing

The U of T Outing Club is looking for 40 ski enthusiasts to take part in a ski weekend in Quebec's Laurentian mountains.

Participants will leave for Quebec by bus Friday afternoon. They will stay in the McGill Outing Club's two cabins over the weekend, and return by bus Sunday night, arriving early Monday morning.

Cost of $18.50 for club members and $19.50 for non-members includes transportation, meals and lodging.

Prospective participants will meet Wednesday noon to hear final weekend arrangements. Those interested in going on the weekend may attend the meeting, even though they have not yet signed up for the trip.

Here and Now

TODAY

1.10-2 p.m. — The Blinded Dog Society will meet in the North Committee Room, Hart House. Guests of members are welcome to attend.

— SCM will study "The Gospel of John" in the Hart House chaplain's office.

4-6 p.m. — Graduate students plan a weekly tea at the Graduate Union, 44 Hoskin Ave.

TUESDAY

1 p.m. — A FROS folk music group presents "Learning Canadian Folk Songs" at 3 Willcocks St.

1.10 - 2 p.m. — Prof. R. A. Ward will speak at SCM's "Prof. Talk" in the SCM office, Hart House. Guests are asked to bring their lunch to an informal bull session with a staff member each week.

— An SCM discussion group will meet in room 4, Trinity.

1.20 p.m. — The cast of the Vic Music Club's "Pirates of Penzance" plans a preview in the Wymilwood Music Room.

5 p.m. — Prof. D. Cappon will speak to SCM on "Freud" in room 8, UC.

8 p.m. — Vic debaters take on the SMC Senate Club on the topic "Resolved, that pacifism is the only intelligent choice" in the Vic Alumni Hall. Julian Porter and Howie Mills form the government, opposed by John Pierce and Peter Leyden.

8.15 p.m. — Dr. Norma Ford Walker will speak to the Osler Society on "The Genetic Effects of Radiation" at 171 St. George St.; Wednesday.

1 p.m. — Trinity's George Wulson and Willy McTavish will talk on travel in the British Isles in the third lecture of WUS' "Destination: Europe" series in room 33, UC.

5 p.m. — Deadline for purchase of tickets to the International Students' Festival Friday in the Hart House Great Hall. Tickets cost $2, and the program includes a banquet, exhibition and stage performances.

Tuesday Lecture Series

"Prophetic Profiles"

PROF. D. CAPPON,
Dept. of Psychiatry will speak on

"FREUD"

Jan. 27, 5-6 p.m. Room 8, U.C.

presented by
THE CHRISTIAN
STUDENT MOVEMENT

Pharmacists Peddle Pills

The public will have its annual opportunity to see pill-makers in action at the Pharmacy Open House Feb. 9-10.

Pharmacy students are now preparing exhibits and planning tours through the Pharmacy Building.

Laboratory demonstrations in Pharmaceutical Chemistry, Biochemistry, Haematology, and preparation of mass quantities of ointment and pills will be presented and explained.

The purpose of the Open House is to attract public interest in Pharmacy and to demonstrate many of the aspects of the profession.

There is no admission charge. Everyone is welcome to visit from 4-6 p.m. and 7-9 p.m. at the Pharmacy Building 46 Gerrard St. E. near Church.

Do You Like Ice?

Are You the Outdoor Type?

THEN HERE IS YOUR OPPORTUNITY!

Applications Now Available in S.A.C. Office

To Sleep in the Winter Carnival Igloo

THURSDAY, JANUARY 29 or

FRIDAY, JANUARY 30

Toronto University Students' Tour

EUROPE - SUMMER '59

- 10 countries — 56 days
- Crossing Atlantic M.V. Seven Seas
- Emphasis on interest points to students
- Leaving Montreal June 2 — Returning July 27

All Inclusive Rate

$899.00

AUFGANG TRAVEL BUREAU

Campus Representative — Emile Aufgang (I.U.C.)

310 COLLEGE STREET

WA 4-7709

Interested In

WINTER CARNIVAL

Activities At

Caledon?

Events are taking the form of an interfaculty competition with a cup donated by the Faculty of Forestry to the Faculty with the highest number of points.

SLEIGH RACING — LOG CHOPPING — SKI RACE
LOG SAWING — SNOWSHOE RACE — ORIENTEERING

HOCKEY

S.P.S. vs. P.O.T.
FORESTRY vs. HOUSEHOLD SCIENCE
PHARMACY vs. SCHOOL OF NURSING
MEDICINE vs. VIC GIRLS

TO HELP YOUR COLLEGE OR FACULTY WIN

SEE YOUR ATHLETIC DIRECTOR

Team Entry Deadlines — Thurs., Jan. 29 — 5.00 p.m.

Hart House

CHAPEL SERVICES

Every Day: 8.45-8.55 a.m. — Morning Prayers
4.50-5.00 p.m. — Evening Prayers
Thursday: 8.00 a.m. — Holy Communion

TODAY:

Sing Song: East Common Room at 1.25 p.m.
Art Library: Curator on duty in Art Gallery at 1 p.m.
Revolver Club: 7.30 p.m. in the Rifle Range

TOMORROW:

INTERFACULTY QUARTET CONTEST: 1 p.m. — East Common Room

LIBRARY EVENING: Mr. Arnold Edinborough, Editor of "Saturday Night" will speak on "How to Change from an Amateur Writer to a Professional". 7.30 p.m. in the Library, Members only.

AMATEUR RADIO CLUB OPEN MEETING

Mr. Douglas Smith, of the Bell Telephone Company, will speak on "Mobile Telecommunications". Film and Demonstration. 8.00 p.m. Debates Room. All welcome.

WEDNESDAY, January 28

MYRON DE QUINCY JAZZ QUINTET: 1.25 p.m. — East Common Room noon hour concert

WILLIAM AIDE, PIANO. 5.00 p.m. Music Room. Wednesday, 5 o'clock recital

Members may pick up tickets this week for the SUNDAY EVENING CONCERT on FEBRUARY 1. JAN RUBES, Bass. 9 p.m. in the Great Hall.

There Will Be No Table Tennis on Wednesday

A.V.R. "Have Tickets, Will Sell"—S.A.C. Office—NOW!

NEVER THE TWAIN ...

Play up,
play up...

THE VARSITY

and play
the game.

Vol. LXXVIII — No. 66

THE UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO

Wednesday, January 28th, 1952

REJECT PRIVATE SPONSORSHIP OF EAST - WEST HOCKEY SERIES

By JOHN BROOKS
Varsity Sports Editor

The University of Toronto athletic directorate last night rejected an offer from a first year student at University College to underwrite an east-west Intercollegiate hockey final.

Mitro Makarchuk, 28, had offered to cover any loss which would be incurred from the final, to have been played here during the second week in March.

The final—in the form of a best-of-three series—hinged, of course, on the Varsity Blues successfully defending the college title they have held for the last four years.

The three western colleges—Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba—had indicated interest in a final.

Makarchuk, who estimated the maximum cost of the venture at $4,000, said he would undertake to make up any deficit which might be encountered, providing any profits would revert to him.

That was the stumbling block which caused the directorate to turn down the offer. It was felt it would not be good policy to allow an outside promoter to make possible profit from a venture involving university teams.

The matter was, however, referred to the Ontario-Quebec Athletic Association, the governing body of the division of the Canadian Intercollegiate Athletic Union in which the University of Toronto participates.

Makarchuk told The Varsity that he was not concerned mainly with turning the series into a money-making venture. Instead, it was to be more of a test of the public's reaction to Intercollegiate hockey on a national level and to show such a series could be financially successful.

Under the terms of the offer, the university athletic association was to undertake all the intricacies of presenting the game, including referees, ushers, tickets, programs, and advertising.

Makarchuk was to write a blank cheque which could be made out to cover all expenses incurred in bringing the Western representative to Toronto for the series.

Some members of the directorate expressed concern over establishing the precedent of accepting outside promotion of a university venture, while others felt it was too late in the current year to attempt the series this season.

One member disagreed, pointing out that the 6-5 victory over Whitby Dunlops had put this university's hockey team in front of the public, and that it would be an ideal time to go ahead with a college final on a national level.

The motion to refer the matter to the O-QAA was passed, but not without some objection. One member said he felt the proposal would become a "dead issue" in the hands of the O-QAA.

See also "Speaking of Sport" on Page Seven.

Today's Paper

Page Three

Nicus backs Bissell plan for student aid.

Mortimer, the betrayed duck under death sentence.

Page Five

Truman Capote's Breakfast at Tiffany's comes under the critical eye of Dave Helwig.

Page Seven

Tonight's Basket Ball game against McMaster gets a preview.

SPONSOR Mitro Makarchuk (1 UC) estimated venture would cost $4,000, undertook to make up any deficit which might be encountered. (Varsity Staff Photo by Hatcher)

endgame

The University of Toronto Athletic Directorate's rejection of a private offer to underwrite an East-West Intercollegiate hockey final smacks of muddled thinking and economic stupidity.

The Directorate refused to sponsor a hockey final itself. It said the risks were too great and suggested a private sponsor should be found to put up the money.

A sponsor was found by The Varsity.

Both we and the sponsor, a first-year student in University College, believe in the Blues, have seen them whip the Whitby Dunlops and think they should be college champions of Canada. We also are sure such a championship would be financially successful.

So, apparently, does the Directorate. It rejected the plan because it did not think it was "good policy" to allow an outside promoter to make a profit from a venture involving university teams.

If the Directorate thinks a best-of-three final will make a profit, why doesn't it take advantage of the situation and sponsor the plan itself? Indications are western universities will welcome a playoff and a national championship will prove the Blues are of Senior "A" hockey calibre and put college hockey on the map.

If the Directorate doesn't think the venture would be profitable, it has nothing to lose by letting someone else with more imagination take the risks. Initiative is needed to promote university sports and initiative has been conspicuously absent from Athletic Directorate thinking in recent years.

The Directorate will end next season in the red and is in no position to be pompous about principle or stupid about economics.

It has let too many good shots go by already.

DM

The Old Boy Lets All The Good Ones Go By !!
(Cartoon by Greenberg)

"vagueness, indifference"

Accuses Canadian Youth

Dr. Murray G. Ross, U of T vice-president, Monday accused Canadian youth of "vagueness and indifference."

Speaking to the Toronto Young Men's Christian Association's 106th annual meeting in the Royal York hotel, Dr. Ross challenged the YMCA to develop a program to combat the recent economic and social advances in Russia and China.

At present the nation is not sufficiently prepared for such a struggle, he said. "One distinct impression I have is that Canada is a country of the 'slow-down' while the USSR and China are countries of the 'speed-up,'" he added.

Dr. Ross referred to his recent trip behind the Iron Curtain.

"In the Communist countries," he said, "the whole pressure of culture is to be as productive as possible, to do more than is expected of one, to do as much as one can to push forward the great national effort".

Too often Canadian students unconsciously set limits on their hours of study, he said. In comparison, Russian and Chinese students have an enthusiasm and drive which is generally lacking here, he added.

Canadian youth, he said, must break through "the ceilings of personal effort", while retaining the advantages of a free society.

Not Flip, Fry...

Big innovation for U of T's Carnival queen contests will be replacement of pancake flips with cooking of bacon and eggs, officials announced last night. All queen candidates have been chosen by colleges and faculties, and will compete for top honors Friday afternoon.

The queen competition includes a skating contest, cooking and log-sawing competitions and snow-shoe exhibitions officials said. The Carnival queen will be crowned at Friday night's Laval-U of T hockey game in Varsity Arena.

Aid To Students

The speech from the throne read by Lieutenant-Governor Keiller McKay in the opening session of the Ontario legislature yesterday, among other things, called for:

—implementation of "the third stage" in the provincial education grants formula, which in 15 years has seen provincial aid to education raised to $135,000,000 from $8,000,000 a year and —a program of further assistance to Ontario universities, including a system of scholarships, bursaries and student aid.

Victoria College Liberal Arts Club

Presents

DEMONSTRATION — LECTURE
ON "ORIGIN AND PLAYING OF BRASS"

BY BM. F. J. FRANCIS, LTCL, LRAM, ARCM, LGSM

ASSISTED BY BAND OF ONTARIO REGIMENT
(OSHAWA) OCTET

TONIGHT — 8.15 p.m. — MUSIC ROOM, WYMILWOOD

TICKETS ON SALE NOW

For The

All-Varsity Revue Presentation

'Have Toga, Will Travel'

February 9-16

HART HOUSE THEATRE

TICKETS ON SALE NOW IN THE S.A.C. OFFICE
FROM 9 a.m. to 4.30 p.m.

MICKITIES '59

(Saturday—Sold Out)

THE DEDICATED MEN

MUSEUM THEATRE JAN. 29, 30, 31

Admission $1.00

Tickets On Sale At S.A.C. Office
Today, 12-2 p.m.

Debate of the Year!

TONIGHT — 8 p.m.

HART HOUSE DEBATES ROOM

RESOLVED:

"THAT SELF-IMPOSED BIRTH CONTROL BEING
ALIEN TO NATURAL LAW IS DETRIMENTAL TO MAN"

ST. MICHAEL'S COLLEGE

VS

FACULTY OF MEDICINE

WOMEN ARE URGED TO ATTEND!

THIS IS ONE DEBATE YOU SHOULDN'T MISS

HART HOUSE

TODAY:

ART LIBRARY: Curator on duty at 8.00 p.m. in the Art Gallery
ART GALLERY: Open to women from 12 noon to 6 p.m.
"CONTEMPORARY JAPANESE PRINTS" and EXHIBITION OF PHOTOGRAPHS BY THE ENGINEERING INSTITUTE OF CANADA
INDUSTRIAL FILM: "RIVAL WORLDS"—1.15 p.m. Music Room

NOON HOUR CONCERT

MYRON DE QUINCY JAZZ QUINTETTE
1.20 p.m. — East Common Room

FIVE O'CLOCK RECITAL

WILLIAM AIDE, PIANO
5.00 p.m. — Music Room
Brahms, Ravel, Chopin

AMATEUR RADIO CLUB: 6.10 p.m. Theory Class—Debates Left REVOLVER CLUB: 7.00 p.m. MEMBERSHIP SHOOT. Handicap shoot for tyros, Slow Fire shoot for Seniors. Prizes.
NO TABLE TENNIS TONIGHT

TOMORROW:

Holy Communion in the Chapel at 8.00 a.m.

SUNDAY EVENING CONCERT, FEBRUARY 1

JAN RUBES, BASS. 9 p.m. — Great Hall
Members may pick up tickets from the Hall Porter's Desk this week.

EATON'S

Greet Spring with
"Citations"

Shoes are more than just an accessory this year... with the pointedly fashionable 'SabreToe' and the slimmer-than-slim heels — they're focal points themselves! "Citations" presents a fresh, young line of 'Softsteps' for Spring and Summer — each shoe is beautifully detailed and crafted, like the one we've sketched.

'Rhonda' features a tiny bow on the vamp, which puts a stop to the deep V-throat... otherwise the lines are classic, tailored — and very, very sleek. Bone and black calf in sizes 5½ to 10, narrow and 5 to 10, medium.

pair 14.95

PHONE UN. 1-5111

EATON'S Main Store — Second Floor Dept. 238

HART HOUSE THEATRE'S FORTY-NINTH ALL-UNIVERSITY PRODUCTION

Edwin Justus Mayer's

CHILDREN OF DARKNESS

Directed by Robert Gill

TONIGHT and ALL THIS WEEK at 8.30 p.m.

Box Office Open 10 a.m. - 6 p.m. — WA 3-5244

Same Special
Student Rate $1.00

Two Tickets Only
On Each A.T.L. Card

Student Meeting

Thurs. Jan. 29 — 7.45 p.m.

"THE NEW LOOK"

"A STUDY OF WEISMAN'S CORPUS"
"WINTER CAMP"

UNIVERSITY LUTHERAN CHURCH

610 SPADINA AVENUE —
Below Harbor.

CLASSIFIED ADS.

$1 DOWN BUYS ANY MAKE
Brand new typewriters. $59 up.
Some models $39 off. Free home demonstration. Free typing course.
1959 models rented, lowest rates.
375 Jane-Humber, RO 6-1103.

WANTED

Girl undergraduate with free time either Mondays, Wednesdays or Thursdays, for work in Editorial office. $1.25 an hour. Telephone
EM 6-5021, after 10 a.m.

SUMMER CAMP

In Northern Michigan desires interviews with university students who are interested in waterfront or counselling positions. If interested call Dr. Don or Mrs. Joan Rosenhol, WA 2-0980, after 6.

LOST

Important green suitcase lost in Trinity College last Wednesday.
Name: John Atkin, Dundalk, Ontario. Please call RU 1-1911 or contact Dr. Roper, Trinity College.

DELICIOUS, CHEAPER MEALS
Meatless, served at Antique Tea
Rooms, 73 Yorkville St., Mondays and Fridays from 6 to 7.30 p.m.
and Wednesday from 12.30 to
2 p.m.

TYPIST (Electric)

Fast; accurate, personalized service. Theses, essays, letters, dictation. Reasonable rates. Irene
Kenyon, 146 Bernard Avenue,
WA 3-4011.

FOR SALE

Drum set — Slingerland Blue
Sparkle set with Zildjian Cymbals, used one summer. $350. Call BA 1-6368.

PIANO PLAYER WANTED

Immediately. Must read and do some arranging. Phone Jay Allen, RU 2-6954. If not in, leave your home number with the girl.

CLARINET PLAYER

would like to form or join dance group. Phone Joe, RO 2-9825.

Nfcus Behind Scheme

Ross Defends Aid Report

An Ontario Regional Conference of the National Federation of Canadian University Students this weekend threw its weight behind most recommendations of the U of T President's Advisory Committee Report on Student Aid.

The conference, at Carleton University, Ottawa, passed a resolution endorsing the principle of "making" university education available to all who are academically qualified regardless of their financial status," and recommended to the Ontario government proposals roughly paralleling those of the Committee.

The convention heard a speech by Murray Ross, U of T vice-president and chairman of the Advisory Committee, before passing the resolution.

The resolution calls for: —free tuition for first class students throughout university as long as this standing is maintained, along with bursary aid without arbitrary restriction and emergency loan funds for these students.

—bursaries similarly related to need along with emergency loan funds for second-class students, with first-class privileges given when first-class standing is obtained and —some consideration for financial aid to third-class students. This last was not mentioned in the Advisory Committee Report.

Addressing the conference, Dr. Ross said students are now in university for reasons which range from "a wish to play football or find a husband; to various forms of technical education; to those who are genuinely concerned with becoming educated."

"Those young people should go to university who have the capacity and the desire to benefit from higher education," he said.

In Canada, he said, a high proportion of people of great ability never attend university while many go who barely scrape by academically but are less pressed financially.

The Report's proposals, he said, would "guarantee free education to all our best students."

It would, he said, "encourage our best students to continue their education," while providing "incentive for all students to strive to do well," eliminating "the huge patchwork of awards that now exists in most universities," and permitting universities to raise standards.

Regarding a suggestion in the Report's preamble that the academic year length be studied, Dr. Ross said: "Both staff and students are aware of the congestion which presently exists and the intellectual constipation which results."

The third-class student, Dr. Ross said, would remain "in about the same position in which he is now."

"I am sure there are many worthy citizens who failed high school," Dr. Ross said. "That is not the point. The university is concerned with scholarship and that is what the plan seeks to maintain."

He defended the use of high-school exams as criteria on the grounds that "it would be unfortunate to hold up our recommendations until more adequate criteria are developed."

In addition to passing the resolution, the conference endorsed the principle of Commonwealth and international exchange scholarships, discussed National University Students' Day, March 5 and heard a report on income-tax recommendations being drawn up in conjunction with the Canadian Association of Medical Students and Internes.

The U of T sent a seven-man delegation to the conference.

Mortimer Bistrisky, Nfcus president, will interview Prime Minister John Diefenbaker March 5 on the possibility of increased student aid. He will speak to the U of T Students' Administrative Council on the Advisory Committee Report and the upcoming interview tonight.

"Lor' Luv A Duck!"
No Home For Morty

By AL WALKER
Varsity Staff Reporter

"Duck: white, stray."

This may be the last rite for one of the most innocent ducks ever to become involved in human affairs.

Mortimer, a handsome white animal standing about 12 inches high is lodged in a small metal cage at the Toronto Humane Society, and is homesick.

The duck was thrown into the Whitney Hall Annex Monday night about 10 p.m. in a potato sack.

Surprised girls phoned the Humane Society and Mortimer was hauled away to be fed on a diet of mash and water until he is claimed, or . . . the gas chamber.

"You realize of course what will happen to him," said an official Monday, as he handed over a receipt for the duck, bearing the words "Duck: white, stray."

An attempt by The Varsity to claim the duck failed last night when Inspector S. J. Kemp refused to release it to anyone except the actual purchaser.

"We have been checking all city duck markets trying to trace the owner," he said.

Inspector Kemp promised the duck could be kept five days before disposal.

Describing Mortimer's arrival, Lee Pickrell (I Phys Ed) said "we didn't know what it was, and it was wriggling around, so we opened it from a safe distance."

More White (I Pot) said she thought it was a skunk.

The girls approached the sack and gingerly opened it with fire-tongs, a poker and a shovel, releasing the duck.

"We fed it some water and cookies and then called the Society," Miss Pickrell said.

The duck was of the common market variety and was definitely not captured on the waterfront.

Inspector Kemp said the ducks sell for about $1.50.

One of the girls suggested they save the duck for the women's Union.

The girls did not name the duck at the time of its arrival, but later assigned the name.

There were male footprints on the ground outside the residence, and Miss Pickrell said she suspected a fraternity of the prank. The tracks led directly to an adjacent fraternity.

"It was probably one close by, because few people know this is a women's residence," she said.

Mike Nardooze, a resident of the Theta Delta Chi fraternity house and a McGill graduate, said Gary Hewson, a U of T graduate, had bought the animal at Zimmerman Brothers' on Augusta St.

Theta Delta Chi house is next door to the Annex.

Hewson is the only one who can claim the duck, and he is in Montreal, but Nardooze said he could be back in time to save Mortimer.

Inspector Kemp said last night he expected the purchaser of the duck would be charged with cruelty to animals, "as soon as we find him."

Vic Victory
For Peace

The St. Michaels Senate Club struck out last night in its efforts to smash a government resolution at a debate in Victoria College.

Members of the house rallied, the last moment to uphold the resolution "Pacificism is the only answer to World Peace" by a 36-32 vote.

Leading off for the government, Julian Porter (VIC) said it should be the role of the free world to "kick off an all out campaign to convince Russia the west does not want war."

Porter blasted politicians approaching peace conferences with a "disarmament proposal in pocket and an atom bomb in the other."

He maintained the only way the west will get anywhere in peace negotiations is by conceding ground. "Our stubborn iron will is destroying any progress that might be made toward the disarmament of NATO," he added.

First speaker for the opposition Peter Leyden (SMC) said it is impossible for the west to take a temporary pacifist stand on the "volcanic aspect of present world politics."

Calling the idea of pacifism a "singularly twisted form of thought" he said even Christianity will support a nuclear war if it is provoked on the pretense of a just cause.

Howie Mills, second government speaker said leaders of the world are looking for the "lost coin of peace in the wrong place."

"The world is answering the problem of peace by stacking up more and more weapons."

He referred to the American attitude toward Russia as "a desperate, idiotic, illogical ideology." He said the tension of the cold war will only melt when the west takes the initiative and shows its true peace flag.

Last speaker for the opposition John Pierce (IV SMC) brought the house down when he said Russians and Americans were so afraid of each other and running so far in opposite directions they were going to collide on the other side of the globe."

Pierce said pacifism would allow the West and all its ideals to slide slowly under the "yoke of communism."

Dembski, Rupert Write

Charge Duty Swept Aside

A St. Mike's student last night, accused the SMC Students' Administrative Council of sweeping aside their constitutional duty to "direct" and fulfill the functions of government.

The charge came in a letter of resignation written by Peter Dembski, SMC Oratorical Society president. The letter was read by the council secretary and accepted by council. No official comment was offered by council members. Dembski did not attend the meeting.

A letter stating similar ideas to those given by Dembski was published and passed out among St. Mike's students by Chris Rupert (III SMC).

Both Dembski and Rupert felt the Council had failed in its duty to the students and the constitution. The council amended one line of the constitution to read, "duplication of . . . activities . . . is expressly prohibited except in the case of debating."

Dembski attacked the decision to combine the Senate club and the Forensic Club into a St. Mike's Debating Union. He wanted to break away entirely from the "privilege of a select group to legislate and provide for debating at St. Mike's."

He said gowns, ribbons and ritual are not essential to debating, but that ability and responsibility to student body are.

Rupert accused the council of having "in effect . . . destroyed its own meaning."

"First they broke a tradition. . . Then they took the easy way out by resorting to expediency. . . Thirdly they amended a clause only in part, thereby forgetting that what affects the part affects the whole, and thus set a precedent," his letter said.

Barbara Arrington, president of the St. Mike's Forensic Circle, said Dembski's resignation means a loss to the Oratorical Society. He was a "good fighter" and might have done a great deal for SMC debating, even in his limited capacity, she said.

McCulley May Chair
Penal Reform Group

Parliamentary observers last night said "very good sources" have indicated Hart House Warden Joseph McCulley will be named chairman of a committee to advise Ontario Reforms Minister Wardrobe and assist in implementation of provincial aspects of the Fauteux Report on Penal Reform.

Such implementation of the report was called for yesterday in the throne speech which opened the Ontario legislature. Mr. McCulley worked on the report during the previous Liberal regime in Ottawa. Mr. McCulley last night said he "will be happy to do what I can—if I'm invited."

"I have had some discussion with the provincial government," he said. "I have had no confirmation."

"This definitely does not mean I'll be leaving Hart House," he said. The Warden indicated that remaining at the House, he would be glad to be of use "during this period of reorganization that would undoubtedly be necessary

News Snaps

Birth Control . . .

The question of birth control will be thrashed out in the Hart House Debates Room at 8 p.m. tonight between representatives of St. Michael's College and the Faculty of Medicine.

Apartheid Condemned . . .

The government of South Africa has received a letter from Mortimer Bistrisky, president of the National Federation of Canadian University Students condemning the policy of apartheid in South African universities.

CULF Convention . . .

Plans for U of T campus Liberals to attend the 11th annual Ottawa have now been completed, club officials have announced. Canadian University Liberal Federation convention Feb 6-7 in Selection of U of T delegates begins Feb. 1.

theatrical effects

Propaganda, the communication of doctrines and ideas to the people, is a word which has become flecked with filth and shrouded in shadowy drapes of distrust and human indecency. Ironically, propaganda is a victim of its own bad habits. Two world wars and the resulting propaganda against propaganda have stripped all that was valid and sincere from the word's meaning and left only an ugly skeleton below hollow lies.

The exploitation of propaganda can take many shapes and forms. Cold War politics have added a few subtle varieties which Dr. Paul Joseph Goebbels would find difficult to understand.

Perhaps the most dangerous of the new twists is that which the West practices upon its own people. This process is developed through three stages of modern propaganda warfare. The first stage, the indoctrination of the people against everything remotely connected with Communism, has already taken place. Although the process tended somewhat to extremes under the guidance of Senator Joseph McCarthy, it still stuck to facts and can be accepted as legitimate tactics by both sides.

We are now in the middle of the second stage. Its purpose is to solidify Western concepts of our democratic ideals. It is mainly a counter-attack to Russia's charges and is designed to convince Americans of the supreme and irreplaceable advantages of capitalist democracy. This process has its silly moments.

A television commercial we saw recently sanctified the tin can as a symbol of American liberty and capitalistic good will. The theme was that all over the world underprivileged people are discovering America by means of tin cans, especially the T-Steel Company's tin cans. People who don't use cans are presumably anti-American.

But it is the third propaganda stage which worries us most of all: the deliberate subversion of demoralizing facts. Churchill may have had his tongue in his cheek, but he said in the dark days of 1941:

"The British . . . are the only people who like to be told how bad things are, who like to be told the worst."

It is doubtful whether the British people were told the worst, but at least they were more accurately informed about the situation at a time of war than the American people can hope to be, even in a time of peace. Americans have been told, and believe, the Atlas three-stage rocket has the same capabilities as Sputnik III. Yet statistics carefully avoided by American propaganda media show the Russian missile had a pay-load nearly 20 times heavier than the Atlas carried.

This political tendency to disguise unpleasant realities in the vague hope that someday things will turn out all right is more dangerous than anything Communism can throw against us. The cause of peace, like the cause of justice, can not be sustained by fabrication and deceit.

The American nation has become addicted to supremacy. Souped-up by pleasant doses of power, it now exists in a bright, multi-splendored dream world of complacency. Whenever it begins to wake up it succumbs to hysteria and is quickly calmed by soothing doses of propaganda.

Recently Prime Minister John Diefenbaker told the University of Toronto the West needed a "declaration of Freedom's creed." We need this "so that uncommitted countries can understand democracy's worth and superiority when compared to Communism."

Carried out, Mr. Diefenbaker's proposal would be an example of propaganda at its finest, propaganda as it was before political hypocrisy and perverted science twisted it into something evil.

To present to the world the basic tenets of our political ideals and philosophic beliefs, to present them clearly, honestly and without elaboration would not only do our cause more good with uncommitted peoples, it would also clarify things for us. At the moment we can't see the cause for the theatrical effects.

Age of our fathers . . .

The "Golden Twenties" and the "Dirty Thirties" seem rather remote periods to today's Canadian youth. When the old man starts to talk about the old days most young people are bored. But the old days were anything but boring. Canadians saw quite a historical drama unfold before their eyes in the years 1917-1940. In 1917 the Conservative government, faced with the problems of corruption, waning political prestige, and a serious shortage of "volunteers", found in the Conscription Issue a cure-all for all her problems. Over the dead bodies of Quebec, Laurier, and Ontario farmers, the Tories rallied round the flag. The triumph was short-lived! Quebec memory was elephantine and from 1920 to 1958 there was no such animal as a Quebec Conservative.

When Johnny came marching home, in early 1919 he found Canada anything but tame. North America was having its first big Red scare. The Reds were here, there, and everywhere. 1919 was the year of the famous plot to blow up J. P. Morgan, Rockefeller and the boys, the year of the Seattle General Strike and in Canada, the Winnipeg General Strike. Yes, right here in Canada, before our very eyes, men in black beads and red pyjamas were plotting a "Soviet Canada"! But the "good" Canadians soon got things under control and put the "foreigners", Queen, Russell Woodsworth, and Reverend Irvine behind bars.

Not only were the "foreigners" and "Reds" lively, but the farmers were acting up as well. Now that the war was over farm prices were dropping and many a farm boy, having seen Paris, did not come home. But the Tories and Liberals were still talking tariff. And so the farmers took matters into their own hands. In 1919, Drury and his Farmer-Labor Party swept into office in Ontario. In 1920, the United Farmers emerged victorious in the Alberta provincial elections and the newly-formed Progressive Party elected 65 federal members and held the balance of power in their hands until 1926.

1926 was a big year for Canadians. "Mack the Knife" King, faced with the Customs scandal and staring political oblivion in the face, read his crystal ball fervently. Out of the magician's hat came the now celebrated "King - Byng - Wing - Ding - Ding". 1926 also saw the realization that the long-cherished dream of autonomy in the panoplies of the Balfour Declaration, later to be formally incorporated in the Statute of Westminster.

Canadians were a happy in the '20's, and, like their American neighbors, shared in the joys of the Charleston, Bath Tub gin, flagpolesitting, movies, and, of course, isolationism. In 1922, Mr. King explicitly told Lloyd George to solve his problems in Chanak alone.

The History

By LARRY ZOLF

Larry Zolf is a graduate student in History. Below he launches the first of a Varsity series on the Twenties and the Thirties.

In Geneva M. Dandurand told the League of Nations that Canada was a "fire-proof" house, which could not be touched by Europe's fires.

But in 1929, this idyllic picture came to an abrupt end. Wall Street rained bodies, nor were James and Bay Streets exactly safe places for an early morning walk. Apple boxes sprang up everywhere and governments toppled right and left. In 1930, King was swept from office to be followed in the mid '30's by Henry in Ontario and Tacheau in Quebec.

From out of nowhere the "crackpots" and communists sprang up with their own little panaceas. Father Coughlin left the quiet Basilican confines of St. Michael's College to teach the American people "Social Justice". In Alberta, Aberhardt and his Social Creditors told the world that all would be well if wealth were taken away from the "International-Zionist-Communist - Capitalist - Unitarian - Atheistic" cartel and redistributed among the people. In Ontario, "Old Economy Mitch", a true Keynesian was saving the country by the wholesale dismissal of hundreds of civil servants and the public auction sale of government lands. The communists were in high gear, for obviously capitalism had come to its final end. Enthusiastically, they plunged into the task of leading, not feeding, armies of "hunger-marchers" on Ottawa, Toronto and Regina.

Organized labor became a problem too. In the early '30's, the communists led Workers' Unity League, tried to organize in Stratford, Brantford and Guelph, and engaged in a long drawn-out Bushmen's strike in Northern Ontario. In 1937, the CIO, especially the Mine, Mill and Smelter workers and the United Auto Workers, attempted to organize in Oshawa, Sudbury and Timmins. The Globe and Mail's McCullagh, with his huge financial stake in Northern Ontario's mining economy, quite shrewdly realised that the CIO was an obvious communist plot. Joining forces with such "British Justice" stalwarts as Mitch Hepburn and George Drew, they crushed the Oshawa strike and the CIO "menace" for the '30's at least.

As for world affairs in general, most Canadians in the '30's were too busy scrambling for a living to concern themselves with Europe's problems. Those who had not only the time but the obligation to consider the European scene, saw no problems there. King left his 1937 interview with Hitler convinced that the latter was a "simple sort of peasant, not very intelligent and certainly of no serious danger to anyone." Dr. Riddell's attempt to support oil sanctions against Italy in 1935 was sharply repudiated by the King government. Fortunately or otherwise, the destiny of the world did not lie in King's pudgy little hands. In 1939, the sands of the '30's ran out and World War II was upon us.

History may or may not repeat itself and may or may not teach lessons. At least it tells us that we, in the '50's, did not invent the Red smear, corruption, labor-baiting, and political "near-sightedness". In any event, the future is built by youth on the links of the present and past, and one cannot really progress unless one knows what went before.

THE VARSITY

FOUNDED 1880

Published by

The Students' Administrative Council of the University of Toronto

Toronto 5, Canada

Member Canadian University Press

Editorial and News Office

Basement SAC Building — WA 3-8742, WA 3-8113

Opinions expressed in this paper are those of the editor

Editor-in-Chief Doug Mackenzie

Managing Editor Mark Nicolson

Editor-without-portfolio Sam Aizenstat

News Editor Harvey Shepherd

Associate News Editors Ed Roberts and Al Walker

Sports Editor John Brooks

Associate Sports Editors Dave Griner and Gene Goss

Publicity Editor Susie Bristol

Features Editor Liz Birk

Co-AM&D Editors Maryan Talbot and Warren Wilster

CUP Editor Vicky Jones

Photo Editor Mike Cavanagh

Movie Editor Nancy Takeuchi

Staff Cartoonists Marg McMeekin and Sheldon Greenberg

Mortician Roger Wilson

In This Issue: Jayne Nesbitt, Sandy Weinberg, Terry Bourke, Dave Hinton, Ted Schaffer, Peter Bing. Photography by Dan Tratcher.

Breakfast At Tiffany's

BREAKFAST AT TIFFANY'S: Truman Capote, Random House. Truman Capote still writes his best about a world of lost children. At the moment, many American writers can interpret the problems of man only in terms of a child who has no place to hide and can only wander through a grotesque world taking whatever beauty and pleasure come to it by chance.

Miss Holiday Golightly, Travelling (as she is referred to by her card) is the latest lost child and the heroine of the title tip of her hat to orthodox morality. Her wildly romantic longings are summed up in her desire to eat breakfast at Tiffany's. Whenever she is afflicted with the "mean reds" (like the blues but rather worse), she just climbs into a cab and goes to Tiffany's where the sight of the jewelry calms her. Her dwarfish mentor O. J. Berman calls her a phony, but a real phony, and sums her up in two words: "She's nuts."

story in this collection. She lives as she can, with only a The only person to whom Holly shows any lasting loyalty, is her brother Fred. But she hasn't seen him for years. He was "just sweet and vague and terribly slow." As for the rest of the world, her formula is short, sharp and obscene.

The story is less grotesque and horrible than a lot of Capote's earlier work. The style is less ornate and more supple. He seems to be making less of an attempt to write consciously beautiful prose.

The other stories in the book are much shorter than the first. HOUSE OF FLOWERS is a primitive love idyll, rather hazy and sentimental. A CHRISTMAS MEMORY treats once again the relationship of a child and an infantile adult as found in THE GRASS HARP. A DIAMOND GUITAR is the most moving story in the volume, a quiet story of the betrayal of an old man by his closest friend.

Through all the stories runs the sense of childlike fear and love. When Holly Golightly sings on her fire escape, it is an old prairie melody: "Don't wanna sleep, don't wanna die, just wanna go travelling through the pastures in the sky." The world of the stories is one of intangible moods. Holly prides herself on her independence, but when she is forced to leave the country she tries to leave behind her stray cat. Then she finds that her independence was an illusion. The lost children find no solution to their loneliness except love. But love is often destroyed by circumstance. Holly's Brazilian lover leaves and she loses her baby. The only solution, as so often in modern American literature, is to go away. Even if there is no place to go.

As Scott Fitzgerald once pointed out, for some people the only destination is the past.

Dave Helwig

at hart house

The CBC Celebrity Series, presented in co-operation with the Hart House Music Committee in the Great Hall of Hart House tonight will feature the celebrated pianist Benno Moiseiwitsch.

The Programme will include works by Beethoven, Rachmaninoff, Chopin, and as a special highlight, Modeste Mussorgsky's famous "Pictures at an Exhibition".

Moiseiwitsch is everywhere hailed as one of the leading interpreters of Rachmaninoff today.

Tickets for tonight's concert may be obtained at the Hart House Theatre Box Office from 12-2 p.m. and from 5-6 p.m.

A painting by Robert Finch, titled 'Hart House', produced at the University of Toronto, showing a woman in a room.

Finch at the Gallery

When a successful poet is discovered to be an accomplished painter, it is difficult to avoid making interesting comparisons which quickly present themselves. This is particularly so in the case of Robert Finch, whose paintings are now being shown, until the end of next week, at the Picture Loan Society.

Robert Finch is better known on the campus as Professor Finch, a teacher in UC's Department of French. He is also an amateur actor, a well-known pianist and one of Canada's finest poets. His showing at the Charles Street gallery is his sixth one-man show but his paintings have been hung locally in New York, London and Paris.

The eighteen pictures on display, which were painted during the last two summers, are technically called "gouaches". This defines the semi-transparent, non-chemical quality of the paint used, which is half-way between oil and water colour.

Viewing the show, one immediately notes that the paintings are all about the same size, that there is a common theme and that the same technique predominates. In fact, many of the gouaches seem to be variations upon a common theme, but variations done in a delicate, immaculate and precise manner which displays a certain boldness of design.

Brick Kilns, for instance, which is one of the artist's favourites, is vivid in colour yet its colouring is curiously restrained. There is no shading but every aspect of the factory scene is clearly articulated. Detail has been removed and the outlines are ordered into what resembles a collection of geometric blocks, cubes, circles and quadrants.

In Moisons Finch moves closer towards presenting a definite atmosphere, yet there is still that attractive still-life quality. Pastel shades show orderly boats docked in a tiny harbour, a row of quiet houses and many slender fairy-tale chimneys rising in the distance.

Cement Works contrasts well with this and also with Burnes which is an evocation of an abbey hidden in the mist on the Lake. The first is painted in bright hues, the second in only gray and white. Both are highly stylized and give the impression of having been sensations captured by the imagination and rendered aloof from time.

There are no people in Finch's paintings. His subjects, which are usually buildings, have a deserted quality, a sort of quaint atmosphere. Even his two views of lobster-boats are static, yet they seem to be provocative because of their perfection, which is that of a miniature.

If two art forms can be compared satisfactorily, then Professor Finch's paintings complement his verse. Le Phare, for instance, showing a lighthouse in the state of being repaired, evokes much the same emotion as his poem The State of the Lighthouse, in which the lighthouse is in disorder and essence in flux, all tailored and ordered by a light and a sound.

John Robert Colombo

Benno Moiseiwitsch, pianist, tonight at Hart House.

Cappon Lauds Sigmund Freud

A U of T teacher lecturing on Sigmund Freud yesterday called on man to control himself before he ventures further into outer space.

Dr. Daniel Cappon, associate professor in the Psychiatry Department, was addressing 300 students in the second of the "Prophetic Profiles" lecture series.

Freud, Dr. Cappon said, was the "greatest and most incontestable genius of psychiatry."

Dr. Cappon also pointed out the need for greater communication among humans which Freud's "talking technique" has occasioned and the influence his theory has had upon the science of values, the modern Existential philosophy and the writings of such men as T.S. Eliot and Graham.

Turning to a criticism of Freud's theory, Dr. Cappon found it based upon limited knowledge and experience, faulty facts and a shaky foundation of archaic biology.

Freud's position, said Dr. Cappon, offered a crude model of the mind, an ethical stand that was untenable, an empty hope for hedonism and an incomplete sense of reality.

Kennedy Leads Scoring Roth Top Goal Scorer

If the Intercollegiate senior hockey League were the National Hockey League, and Varsity's Bill Kennedy were playing under similar circumstances, he'd be in line for $4,000.

He could collect a thousand each for:

- a) winning the scoring championship
- b) making the first all-star team
- c) being "rookie of the year"
- d) winning the "Lady Byng Trophy"

If, that is, he kept up the current, torrid pace he is setting, and if, of course, the University of Montreal didn't nominate Claude (Pocket Rocket) Richard for the above prizes.

Kennedy scored a pair of goals and six assists in Blues' two weekend games to move into a four-point lead in individual scoring statistics. He now has 19 points in six games.

The Lady Byng Trophy, awarded annually in the National Hockey League, goes to the "most gentlemanly player." Kennedy has not received a penalty to date this season.

Close behind Kennedy in league scoring is Montreal's Yves Laurendeau, with nine goals and six assists for 15 points. Laurendeau and Varsity's Howie Roth are the top goal-getters with nine each. Kennedy's 13 assists lead the pack.

(Ed. note — Due to circumstances which will be discussed in Sports' Editor John Brooks' column Friday, the following statistics are those accurately prepared by the sports staff of The Varsity; they are not the figures released by a league statistician in Montreal.)

PLAYER	GP	G	A	Pts	PIM
KENNEDY (T)	6	6	13	19	0
Laurendeau (M)	5	9	6	15	6
Duguay (L)	5	7	6	13	2
Ellis (T)	6	8	5	13	23
Raymond (L)	5	7	5	12	0
Landry (L)	5	5	7	12	0
Laussane (M)	5	4	8	12	4
L. Arsenault (L)	5	3	8	11	2
O. N. (T)	6	9	2	11	17

PLAYER	GP	G	A	Pts	SO	AVG
ROUX (T)	2	5	0	2.50
Leblanc (L)	5	17	0	3.40
PUNN (T)	4	16	1	4.00
Schooner (M)	6	17	1	4.25
Bourget (M)	1	8	0	8.00
Herron (McG)	6	63	0	10.50

Interfaculty Summary

St. Mike's A defeated Med I at the Arena this Monday by a 6-1 count to further enhance their playoff chances in Group I hockey.

Wheeler (2), Doty (2), Finlay, and James tallied for the Irish, while King hit the twine for Meds.

SPS VIII trounced Trinity D 5-1. Krull, Sands, Gardener, Lindsay, and McLure scored for the Engineers. Uren scored for the Panthers.

Tuesday's Group I basketball action saw Sr. SPS overcome a halftime deficit of 6 points to whip St. Mike's 51-34.

Trailing 23-17 at the half, the Engineers were sparked to a 34 point second period by the accurate shooting of Doug Winters (12) and George Holmes (8).

Joe Girdlestone paced SMC with 19 points. Phil Nicholas followed with 8.

GAMES TODAY

HOCKEY	8:00	SPS V	vs	Dent B	McElligott, Stinson
WATER POLO	4:00	St. M. B	vs	Med IV	M. Boase, Jany
SQUASH	1:00	Pre-Med I Yr.	vs	U.C. III
	4:40	Pre-Med II Yr.	vs	Tuin D
	5:40	Tuin A	vs	Med IV Yr.
	7:00	SPS IV	vs	Wye
BASKETBALL MAJOR LEAGUE	1:00	SPS IV	vs	U.C. III	Grossman, Richardson
	5:00	U.C. I	vs	Sr. M.d.	Morarty, Grossman
BASKETBALL MINOR LEAGUE (HART HOUSE)	1:30	III Mech.	vs	IV Eng. Bus.	Pearl
	4:00	St. M. Chrydians	vs	St. M. Rapavages	Stein
	5:00	Pre-Med II Yr A	vs	Med III Yr B	Stein
BASKETBALL MINOR LEAGUE (VIC GYM)	4:00	Pre-Med I C	vs	U.C. Chem.	Samson
	5:00	St. M. Chrydians	vs	I Chem.	Samson
	6:00	Pre-Med I A	vs	I Eng. Phys D	Samson
	6:00	U.C. McCaul	vs	Pre-Dent B	Samson

VARSITY ARENA

Return Game!

Varsity Blues vs Whitby Dunlops
(Intercollegiate Champions) (World Champions)

MONDAY, FEBRUARY 2nd, at 8 p.m.

ALL SEATS RESERVED — $2.00, $1.50 and $1.00

Special Price For Student Season Ticket Holders

1,700 tickets will be held for those holding a hockey coupon book, at a special student price of 50c for a RESERVED SEAT TICKET. Those purchasing tickets early will receive $2.00 tickets in the centre of the student section while late comers will receive $1.50 or $1.00 tickets. Tickets now on sale at the Athletic Office, Hart House, between the hours of 9:30 a.m. and 5:00 p.m. Bring your book to the sale.

Tickets On Sale at Special Price Until 5 p.m. Friday, January 30th

A student may purchase a ticket for a friend in addition to his own, provided he brings the extra book.

ALL-DAY MILDNESS

Black Cat PLAIN CORK FILTER

Drop round—to Varsity

Arena 'bout 4 p.m. and see 40 people who hate to skate trying to rate as great hockey players. It's an annual event called the SAC - Varsity Steam-off.

Offence star Sam Ajzenstat will make a spot-light appearance after time's called. Kids! Here's your chance to get the infamous "Richochet's" autograph. Tickets are free, the ice is cool, tears are easy and I'm nobody's fool.

TYPEWRITERS

$1.00 A WEEK BUYS . . .

. . . $1.50 A WEEK RENTS

Get a free typing course and a liberal trade-in allowance for your old typewriter when you buy a new modern machine from us.

Phone HO. 1-1843 Today

O'Keefe

Old Vienna
BREWERY LIMITED

- In 1921, 264,879 Canadian babies born
- In 1926 only 17.8% Canadian babies born in hospitals

- In 1956, 450,739 babies born in Canada
- Over 85% of Canada's babies born in hospitals

Cage Blues Host Mac In HH Athletic Night

University of Toronto basketball Blues will be out to wipe some of that embarrassment from their faces tonight when they host McMaster University Marauders in Hart House at 8.30.

Blues rated one of the strongest entries in the Intercollegiate circuit in pre-season calculations, stunned themselves and the critics with a double loss to Queen's and McGill last weekend.

The twin defeat left Varsity tied with McMaster for third place, two points behind Western Mustangs, and six back of the unbeaten Assumption University Lancers.

Against Mac tonight, Blues face a team that includes three returning veterans of college play. Forward Doug Jackson is Coach Bill Huycke's mainstay, ably backed up by Pete Gnish and Doug North.

A sparkling newcomer to the Marauder lineup is Mike Schertzer. Also on the team is Paul Fitzgerald, a transfer from Western.

Varsity coach John McManus will go with the same lineup that suffered the double loss last weekend.

The key to Varsity's troubles appears to lie in the inability of the forwards to score. Guards Pete Potter, Ruby Richman and Joe Stulac have contributed most of the 177 points Blues have amassed in four games.

For Toronto to retain the title they won last season, a win in every remaining game is a virtual "must." That task includes home and away wins over Western and Assumption.

Mustangs, who have won their only two starts to date, appear to be the team to beat. In guards Howie Bobkin and Bob Lawson, Mustangs have a short, but fast-breaking team. They were impressive last Friday, despite a 72-68, overtime loss to Wayne University, of Detroit.

Mustangs have yet to play Assumption, Lancers are undefeated in four games, but have played against Queen's, McGill and McMaster — teams not rated in contention for the title.

Intermediate play tonight pits McMaster Buccaneers against Varsity Baby Blues (Blue-Jays?) at 6.30. Toronto coach Don Lipke already has a win over Queen's under his belt in the intermediate loop.

Other events on the athletic night program include exhibition boxing, intramural gymnastics and a water polo game between Toronto Hungary and Hamilton.

For the boxers, this will be the second occasion this season that the public has had the opportunity to view the pugilists in action.

Two weeks ago, a good crowd saw some very thrilling bouts. All the fights are scheduled for three rounds of two minutes duration each.

With the Intercollegiate senior boxing finals in Kingston only three weeks away, the boxers are definitely hungry for positions. All positions are still open. A wide variety of weights (feather to heavy) will be represented.

Fight time is 8 p.m. in the Hart House upper gymnasium.

The water polo match — although a non-university function — pits Canada's national champions against the invaders from Hamilton, Hungary performed at the last athletic night against the Young Men's Hebrew Association. Blues, and were impressive with a 13-1 decision.

The university gymnastics championships, one of the unheralded fields of athletic endeavour for intramural athletes, is scheduled for the upper gym at 8 p.m.

The Intercollegiate championships are scheduled for McGill on St. Valentine's Day, and tonight's performances will be taken into consideration when selection of the Varsity team is made.

Rinkies Defeat Rangers Finlay Fires Winner

Varsity Baby Blues finished strongly in the third period to upend Concord Rangers, of the Weston Senior Hockey League, 5-3, in Varsity Arena Monday night.

Concords—who included a smattering of Canada's 1954 world hockey tourney reps—faded badly in the final frame after holding the younger Baby Blues to a 2-2 tie after the second.

Pete Randle was the big gun for the Rinkies, collecting two goals and an assist. Randle fired his second goal into an empty net with 15 seconds remaining as Rangers benched their goalie in favor of an extra attacker.

Pete Warren, Paul Finlay and Jim Simpson counted the others. Finlay's was the winner, coming from close-in early in the third period.

Dick Moulton, Lou Quinn and Al Hume tallied for Rangers. Penalties were evenly split, with each team collecting three minors.

Included in the Concord lineup was ex-Woodbridge Dodger forward Peter Bourke, who also played with St. Michael's College here when they won the Jennings Cup last season.

Bourke lost a toe in an accident last year, and only began skating a week ago. He said the injury didn't bother him during a game, but was "pretty sore" afterwards.

Varsity — Goal, Hollyman; defense, Loughheed, Cawwell, Manale, Simpson; forwards, Griffin, Doldge, Randle, Warren, W. James, Gow, Finlay, Flannery, Gatton.

Concords — Goal, Madill; defense, Gazzola, Moulton, Kendall, Hume, Hunter; forwards, Maxwell, A. James, Foster, Quinn, Van Cise, Bourke, Couch, Glarke.

REFEREES—Bill Naylor and Bob Nadin.

First Period
1—Concords, Moulton (Clarke) 9:45
2—Concords, Quinn 12:20
3—Varsity, Randle (Finlay, Manale) 19:02
Penalty: Kendall (tripping) 15:00.

Second Period
4—Varsity, Warren 13:15
Penalties: Loughheed (elbowing) 1:23; Bourke (cross-checking) 19:35.

Third Period
5—Varsity, Simpson (Randle, Griffin) 1:29
6—Varsity, Finlay (Gatton, Flannery) 4:00
7—Concords, Hume (Moulton, Bourke) 8:45
8—Varsity, Randle (Griffin) 19:45
Penalties: Loughheed (elbowing) 8:16; Hume (high-sticking) 15:15; Loughheed (hooking) 16:20.

Yorzyk, Deacon Will Attempt U.S. Records

A plane leaving Malton Airport tomorrow morning will carry two University of Toronto swim stars in search of American records.

Coach Bill Yorzyk and freshman John Deacon are scheduled to make record attempts Friday night during Springfield College's 17th annual Water Carnival in Springfield, Massachusetts.

Deacon goes after the current U.S. mark of 2:25.9 in the 200-yard breaststroke, now held by University of Iowa swimmer Dale Lucas. The old mark was set in 1956.

Coach Yorzyk will try to regain the 100-yard butterfly title, which he held until last year with a time of 54.9. Dick Harmon of Michigan State University lowered the time by one tenth of a second last year.

Yorzyk has expressed confidence in Deacon to set a new time. The freshman established a Canadian mark in the event Friday night in London, lowering Peter Bell's old record of 2:26.2 to 2:25.6.

Speaking OF SPORT

By GENE GLISKY
Associate Sports Editor

Last night, at a U of T athletic directorate meeting, a proposal for an All-Canadian hockey final was rejected.

What I thought was a good idea was not only rejected, but was I strongly suspect, scorned and probably laughed at.

The idea began with the appearance of 15 blue-shirted hockey players on Varsity Arena ice several months ago.

I saw a hockey team of which any university could be very proud. I saw 15 players and a dedicated coach preparing for their fifth year of Intercollegiate hockey domination.

This team not only caught my attention; but it also caught the eye of at least three thousand dedicated hockey fans on this campus. This team was lauded by veteran sportswriters of the city dailies, by men who have covered hockey for many years in a city that was once the hockey capital of Canada.

It was this outside pressure that publicized Blues for the great team they are, cajoling a disinterested administration into grudgingly admitting Blues were good enough for stronger competition. They even let a promise of an entry into world competition be removed.

When the time came for a decision re application, all sat comfortably on the hands they've long been warming, and did nothing but wait about expenses.

World competition is not for college athletes, it is said. Americans do it, but then they're big time.

The time has come for Canadian universities to become something a little bigger than the little red schoolhouse.

When the athletic directorate of a university this size quakes at the thought of an all-Canadian athletic event, then we are thinking small, very small.

At a time when understanding and a little closeness is important for student bodies all across Canada, what better unifying medium is there than sport?

The western universities were in favor of an East-West final.

Coach Clare Drake of the University of Alberta Golden Bears, actually challenged Blues after Varsity's win over Whitby.

Dave Humphreys, sports editor of the University of Manitoba newspaper, had this to say:

"Our athletic director A.J. Fraser, favors all-Canada finals, not only in hockey but for basketball as well. In fact he says Manitoba proposed this about three years ago and it wasn't met with open arms in the East."

This is an answer to letters I sent to western university papers well before Christmas. The idea was presented to the Athletic Director's office before that time as well.

The usual answer to queries was a quick repartee about finances, money and more money. Get us a sponsor who will guarantee expenses, then we'll do it.

Such an underwriter appeared in the person of "Mak" Mahar-chuk. Details of his proposal are enumerated elsewhere in this issue. The proposal was turned down for this reason:

We can't have outside interests profiting from a university hockey team.

Profiting they say! Well, if there is profit to be made, what are we afraid of. Why doesn't the athletic directorate arrange to make this profit themselves, as they should have long ago.

Are they afraid? Have they become so immobile and stereotyped, they may soon border on the inefficient?

If it weren't for The Varsity, sports on this campus would never get any publicity, except for a weak little bulletin in a corner of Hart House, and an advertisement in the daily papers crammed in with twenty other advertisements.

I cannot see the financial picture of athletics at this university improving at all, unless a little more imagination and initiative is displayed by the administration.

On a campus whose leader has propagated anularity, we have a huge dumping sitting where it has the least business to be.

I don't recommend substitutions on the athletic directorate, but additions — definitely yes!

... and in this corner

by pam hill

We are a weakened sex made up of sport failures!

Statistics prove that University of Toronto women athletes don't stack up to their University of Western Ontario counterparts. Why, there were more accidents and deaths at Western last year than there have been on this campus in the past five. Why are we falling behind in the goring and bloodletting?

Here is a slight breakdown of injuries to women in U of T sports for the past year. Football: six cases of pulled muscles, two broken bones, no lousy fatalities. Ping Pong: one sprained index finger. Softball: nothing at all! Hockey: six cases of bruises, three cases of goalie-exhaustion from carrying the pads, and three cases of wrinkled skin from sliding into the net. Basketball: two sprained ankles, two fractured fingernails, seven cases of cut brows from hitting them off the backboards and no fatalities.

Compare this with one little exhibition softball game the Western amazons played: six broken bones, one lopped-off hand, one struck-off head, eight cases of torn and ripped skin from goring, one case of violent vomiting, and one fatality. THIS is sport.

Now, I feel, is the time for a change — and here are a few suggestions which should help the blood flow a little faster here at home.

In the first place, for football, the women should wear no extraneous equipment — as a matter of fact, they should wear next to nothing! A sporting idea would be to place spikes (short ones, of course) up the legs of the offensive team. Just think of the screaming when a defensive player makes a tackle!

Then in basketball, put your small guys on the floor — or at least the anemic ones. And the floor should be made of smooth concrete. And the ball should be more like a cannon ball.

And in hockey, blades should also protect the sides and derrieres of the defensewomen, with enlarged picks at each end. The ice should always be very glassy; non-distinguishable, thin uniforms should be worn; and there should be no limit to the number of players allowed on the ice at a time. Sticks should be iron, not wooden.

If you're a stout-hearted Varsity supporter, I'm sure you agree with me. If you do, write your Athletic president and representatives ... but don't mention my name!

You'll have to excuse me now, I'm participating in an archery shoot — using flaming arrows and kerosene-soaked freshmen as targets, of course.

YOUR OPINION

Last night, the University of Toronto Athletic Directorate rejected a promotion offer that would bring about a Canadian Intercollegiate hockey final.

1—Do you think the Directorate, under the circumstances, made a wise decision? ...

2—Explain the reasons for your above answer: ...

3—Would you support a final series here on March 12 and 13—and 14, if necessary—for the Canadian college hockey championship? ...

4—Further comment: ...

Interested students are asked to complete the above questionnaire and leave—or mail—it to The Varsity, Students' Administrative Council Building.

Here and Now

TODAY

1 p.m. — All are welcome at a meeting of the U. of T. Outing Club for those interested in the McGill ski weekend Feb. 7-8. Meeting is in room 57, UC.

— Trinity's George Wilson and Willy McTavish will talk on travel in the British Isles in the third lecture in WUS' "Destination: Europe" series in room 33, UC.

— Principal Ramsey Armitage will talk at the Canterbury Luncheon on "Anglican Evangelism". Bring your lunch to 99 St. George St. or buy it there.

1.10 p.m. — The SCM begins a new study group on "Hope". Anyone is welcome at the SCM Coachhouse, behind 110 St. George St.

4 p.m. — Rev. W. C. Bothwell, University Anglican Chaplain, will conduct a Bible study seminar at Canterbury Centre 99 St. George St.

4.10 p.m. — The SCM will study "The Apostles' Creed" in room 14, Vic.

5 p.m. — Deadline occurs for tickets for International Student Festival in Hart House Great Hall, Friday, Jan. 30 at 6.45 p.m. Program includes banquet, exhibition and stage performances. Tickets available at the SAC office.

5.30-6 p.m. — Rev. Vince Goring will lead a Wednesday night supper meeting on "The Life of Christ" in the SCM Coachhouse, behind 110 St. George St.

7 p.m. — The Ukrainian Students' Club plans a choir rehearsal in the UNF Auditorium, 297 College St.

8 p.m. — Richard Hodges of an aerial photography firm will address the Geography Club on "Ceylon and its Modern Setting" in the Wymilwood Copper Room.

— M. Gerald Antoine will tell the UC Cercle Francais about the French Pavilion at Brussels in the Women's Union Common Room.

THURSDAY

12.15 p.m. — The Holy Eucharist will be celebrated in Trinity College Chapel.

4 p.m. — Dr. Leonard Searle will lead a colloquium-tea on "The Galatic Corona" in room 135, the McLennan Laboratory.

7.45 p.m. — The Lutheran Club will meet at 610 Spadina Ave. Refreshments will be served.

8 p.m. — Professors Spencer and Nelson and Keith Spicer will discuss "Has Democracy Failed in France?" for the Modern History Club in the Wymilwood Music Room. Refreshments will be served and all are welcome.

No CBC Decision Yet On Mickities

A Canadian Broadcasting Corp. musical director paid a surprise one-hour visit to a St. Mike's "The Dedicated Men" rehearsal Monday night, and left without making any promises.

Mickities officials said the visit was completely unexpected, although a CBC talent scout has dropped in on rehearsals "four or five times".

The CBC has promised to attend a performance of the original musical-comedy Thursday or Saturday night. Officials have been told the company is interested in buying the show for use on television.

Publicity director Al Kneider last night said, "We don't know who or how many people" from CBC will attend the Mickities performance. "We're saving five tickets for Thursday and Saturday night".

Tickets for "The Dedicated Men" have been going "very rapidly", Kneider said. Saturday night is completely sold out, and over half the available tickets for Thursday and Friday have been sold, he said.

Capacity for the Royal Ontario Museum theatre, where the show will run Jan. 29-31, is 450, Kneider said.

Tickets cost $1, and are on sale in the St. Mike's coffee shop. Tickets will also be sold today from 12-2 p.m. in the Students' Administrative Council office.

U of T Research Man Gets Glycerine Award

Dr. Dmytro Buchnea of the sub-department of Synthetic Chemistry, Banting and Best Department of Medical Research, University of Toronto, has received a Glycerine Research Award for 1958—a scroll and a $300 prize—for his synthesis of phosphatides.

Phosphatides are fat-like substances that occur widely in the plant and animal kingdoms. Brain and nervous tissue are especially rich in them. Dr. Buchnea was associated in this work with Dr. Erich Baer, who received the Glycerine Research Award for 1953.

This is the first time that recognition has been given twice to the same laboratory for accomplishments in this field.

Dr. Buchnea received his Doctorate at the Friedrich Wilhelm University in Berlin in 1924, and was assistant professor of Chemistry at the Free Ukrainian University, Munich, from 1946-51.

After coming to Canada in 1951, he joined the subdepartment of Synthetic Chemistry as research assistant, became research associate in 1954, and assistant professor last year. He is continuing his studies of phosphatides.

UNIVERSITY BLAZERS Custom Made

Especially Priced for Students

$27.50

Fine Flannel Worsted Trousers

$16.50

Business Hours: 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Saturday

Suits made to measure latest styles and design

PARNES Clothing Co.

706 QUEEN STREET WEST

EM 6-2025

Sample at S.A.C. Office

Outer Space — What's Out There?

Once, we thought, we were the centre of the universe. Now radio waves indicate that one star in ten may possess a planet on which life could exist! February Reader's Digest suggests what we might discover in outer space, tells why "the universe is more miraculous than any miracle". Get your Reader's Digest today: 42 articles of lasting interest.

DON'T FORGET . . .

Winter Carnival

IS ALMOST HERE!

FRIDAY AT LUNCH TIME:

- CHARIOT RACE
- CARNIVAL QUEEN CONTEST EVENTS

FRIDAY — 4 P.M. — VARSITY ARENA

ANNUAL HOCKEY GAME:
"VARSITY STAFFERS Vs. S.A.C."
ADMISSION CHARGE — OPTIONAL

FRIDAY — 8 P.M. — VARSITY ARENA

HOCKEY GAME:
VARSITY Vs. LAVAL
— PRESENTATION OF SNOW QUEEN
— PRESENTATION TO SCULPTURE CONTEST WINNER
— FREE SKATING AFTERWARD

REGISTRATION TICKETS FOR CALEDON — SAT. JAN. 31 ARE STILL AVAILABLE AT S.A.C. OFFICE ONLY 50c

"Those who need a ride are asked to leave their names at the Undergraduate Office, Hart House."

★ SKULE AT-HOME ★

SKULE AT-HOME

TICKETS ONLY $3.50 PER COUPLE

INTERMISSION ENTERTAINMENT

Free Corages
A Door Prize

Free Favours
Free Parking

• MART KENNEY'S ORCHESTRA •

SKULE AT-HOME
THIS FRIDAY NIGHT
Club Kingsway

★ SKULE AT-HOME ★

NEW AT . . .

Stowe
VERMONT
7 DAYS
UNLIMITED
SKIING!

only $35

SKI CAPITAL OF THE EAST!
7 continuous Days UNLIMITED Use of ALL LIFTS in Stowe at both Mt. Mansfield & Spruce Peak areas. $35 Adults; $25 children under 14. Extend beyond 7th day pro rata. Good any time during skiing season. Offered those staying at member lodges of Stowe-Mansfield Assoc.

Information, FOLDERS, Reservations:
STOWE-MANSFIELD ASSOC.
Stowe Vermont AL 3-7652

Player's Please

THE MILDEST BEST-TASTING CIGARETTE

student travel

EUROPE

1959

Conducted Tour Sailings . . .

June 16, 19 and July 10

Ask for descriptive folder

UNIVERSITY TRAVEL CLUB LTD. UTC

president: G. H. LUCAS
57 Bloor St. W., Toronto, WAInut 4-9291

HAVE TOGA, WILL TRAVEL—Feb. 9-14

BIGGEST crowd of the year heard birth control upheld in an SMC-Meds debate in Hart House last night.
(Varsity Staff Photo by Carson)

Females Swing Debate Want Births Controlled

An audience top-heavy with females gave the green light to birth control last night at a debate in Hart House.

In the biggest and noisiest match this year a pair of medical debaters squeezed the life out of the topic "Resolved, that self-imposed birth control, being alien to natural law, is detrimental to man."

The St. Michael's College government went to its knees as women spectators swung the vote by a slim six-vote majority.

Reference to the Pope brought one enraged Catholic to his feet shouting "leave the Pope and any accusation against the Catholic religion out of this".

Opposition speaker Bernie Raxlen (II Meds) apologized, saying he had no intention of "discriminating against any faith," but his argument applied to all mankind. He called the Pope a "great man".

Hitting off for the government, Peter Dembski said "in sexual intercourse the chief end of the act is procreation and raising children."

He warned that in the use of artificial contraceptives man sinks to the level of a common animal where "he is threatened with loss of the identification of his own being."

First opposition speaker Charles Lator said "birth control is here to stay."

He said the denial of sexual desires because of conscience over use of contraceptives is "an outright denial of the natural desires of man."

"It is extreme cruelty to forbid a woman married to a syphilitic man from arming herself against disease with contraceptives," he said.

A barrage of whistles and shouts greeted the only woman orator as she rose to speak.

Joan Sherry (I SMC) said it is a natural desire for man to join with woman in sexual union, and "perhaps woman with man, in a lesser degree".

An indignant house hissed when she said the primary function of marriage is children.

Flag-waving

Two Go Native

The Native Sons of Canada have enrolled two U of T students and are well on their way to increasing the total to 16.

William McAuley (III SMC) could not be reached for comment last night, and the name of the other member has not yet been revealed.

"These two brought in 14 others and all of them signed application forms, but the 14 didn't have the cash," said Native Sons Vice President Bernard Glaum last night.

The fees of the society are $10 initiation and $10 a year.

Glaum said the students intended to start a chapter on campus.

Speaking of the society's platform, he said "we are not anti-anybody. We are certainly not anti-British. We don't mind if they play 'The Queen' as long as our anthem is included."

Concerning the Canadian flag which the Native Sons support, Glaum said "The Union Jack is viewed by many as a flag of conquest."

LONGEST legs on campus are mirrored as AVR chorus girls practice for opening night Feb. 9.
(Varsity Staff Photo by Stearns)

SAC Faces Giant Deficit, Red Budget Turns Purple

The Students' Administrative Council last night took a long, hard look at its budget and moved reluctantly into the realm of big-time deficit spending.

A fiery 3½ hour meeting saw gloomy prophecies of financial loss well above the $2,000 deficit figure originally budgeted by council.

Biggest discussion centered around prospects for the All-Varsity Revue. With almost $4,000 tied up in investments for the original musical comedy, SAC heard a report pegging sales revenue to date at $500.

Last year's sales at this time totalled $1,500, with more time left for sales. Almost $3,500 worth of tickets are left to be sold before SAC can break even on the show.

Other financial matters discussed included:

—prospects for Jargon, the literary magazine, which still has $300 in revenue to collect before expected publication costs are balanced. Council decided to request tenders for publication of the magazine, reserving the right to cancel publication plans if the magazine's budget goes into the red.

—a University of Toronto dinner, honoring outstanding students in academic and extra-curricular activities. Council instructed the finance commission to appropriate $480 for a 320-seat dinner in Hart House. The university administration will match the figure to pay for a $3-plate dinner.

—costs for The Varsity. A recommendation adding $600 to The Varsity budget was approved by Council. Council also requested the finance commission to investigate possibilities of buying a new Varsity camera.

—a $150 appropriation to World University Service supporting the cost of international visitor's program. Council approved the finance commission's rejection of the request.

—faculty and college grants for Jargon. Both engineering and law representatives told SAC their faculties would not be able to support the magazine because of financial difficulties.

THE VARSITY

Vol. LXXVIII — No. 67

Thursday, January 29th, 1959

Bistrisky Beaming

Nfcus Biggest, Best Ever

The Students' Administrative Council heard a glowing progress report on the National Federation of Canadian University Students by Nfcus president Mortimer Bistrisky last night.

With the "highest membership in its history" Nfcus is playing an increasingly important role in national and international affairs, Bistrisky said.

Nfcus activities like the photography and short story contests serve the different interests of Canadian university students, he said.

In addition, Nfcus delegates in Europe represent Canadian student interests in international conference, he said.

Mentioning a forthcoming interview with Prime Minister Diefenbaker, Bistrisky said Nfcus speaks with a voice of authority it could not have hoped to assume a few years ago.

Topics of the upcoming Diefenbaker interview will include the U of T student aid plan and the Nfcus brief on federal aid to students, Bistrisky said. "We anticipate some positive answers", he said.

The Nfcus travel department has made tentative arrangements for additional space on its European tour, Bistrisky said. Bookings so far have hit a record 50 percent on all tours. Nfcus is the only student organization to offer a tour of Russia and her satellites, he said.

Nfcus membership at present includes 32 universities representing 70,000 students, Bistrisky said. The national executive expects some small universities to enter a federation soon, he said.

Mortimer Bistrisky
VSP Carson)

RESULTS TOMORROW

The Varsity offices are overflowing with student opinions on the sponsorship of the East-West hockey series.

The U of T athletic directorate Tuesday night rejected an offer of a first year student to underwrite such a game.

Results will be published tomorrow.

News Snaps

Carnivalwise . . .

Chariteers for the winter carnival races will assemble in phalanx formation at 1 p.m. tomorrow, on the front campus.

Any late arrivals will be welcomed.

All faculties that have not chosen contestants for the Carnival Queen contest should do so by 5 p.m. today when all contestants will be photographed in the Varsity offices.

Electionwise . . .

Dr. Leonard Searle, Assistant Professor of the U of T department of Astronomy was elected president of the Toronto branch of the Royal Astronomical Society of Canada on Monday night.

Bissellplanwise . . .

HAMILTON (CUP) The Student Council of McMaster University fully endorsed the principle of the Bissell plan last night, with reservations. They objected to the lack of provision made for third class students, the shortened vacation period, and the principle that "a student should be encouraged to devote himself unceasingly to his studies".

Nfcuswise . . .

GUELPH (CUP)—Ontario Agricultural College Union Council members voted recently joining the National Federation of Canadian University Students this term because of lack of time and money.

The decision was reached in spite of a "straw vote" which indicated student support for joining Nfcus.

CCFwise . . .

The Provincial Secretary of the CCF party phoned West Berlin on Tuesday night on behalf of the campus CCF club.

Object of the call was to invite Mayor Willi Brandt to speak at the University during his tour of Canada and the US in two weeks time. A definite answer is expected by the end of the week.

food

Last night your Students' Administrative Council approved expenditure of $480 for a University of Toronto dinner.

The dinner will be attended by 320 people, less than 300 of whom will be students. Students attending the dinner will be SAC members, scholarship students and other undergraduate politicians throughout the campus.

At the same meeting the council members refused to grant World University Service $150 for an International Visitor Program despite the fact that WUS needs the money, and quibbled about giving $400 for a Literary Magazine without having detailed information about the operation of such a magazine.

The SAC is operating under a self-satisfied delusion which is both unfortunate and dangerous in its long-range effects. The representatives of 13,000 university students apparently feel they are doing the university more good by sponsoring a dinner for 300 student politicians than they would by sponsoring a WUS visitor or further helping a University of Toronto Literary Magazine.

Council members should realize they are not quite the most attractive exhibition which this university can produce. One competent Literary Magazine or one WUS visitor will do far, far more to enhance the reputation of this campus than the spectacle of even 1,000 politicians happily gorging their pride.

for thought

According to the Freudians, man's deepest motivating force is sexual impulse. However, for years debate topics have been chosen in apparent ignorance of this libidinous drive.

When Eugene Forsey, Canadian Labor Congress research director, was honorary visitor to the first Hart House debate in October, few more than 100 students came to hear him. The same number listened to J. M. Minifie, Washington CBC correspondent, talk about neutrality. President Claude Bissell on education was also worth 100 listeners and Robert Mackenzie of the London School of Economics drew only 73 when he talked about Red China.

Last night the resolution "That self-imposed birth control being alien to natural law is detrimental to man" packed the debating room in Hart House with more than 400 students.

Maybe Freud was right.

SA

Hart House

TODAY

Chess Instruction: 1:15 p.m. — Debates Ante Room

Record Room Instruction: 5:15 p.m. — Record Room

ARCHERY CLUB: 8 p.m. — Rifle Range

SUNDAY EVENING CONCERT: 9 p.m. Great Hall. JAN RUBES, BASS. Members may pick up tickets this week from the Hall Porter's Desk

FEBRUARY 1st

A reader writes:

A Modern Parable

Dear Sir:

The stimulus for writing this letter was received on Tuesday night, Jan. 27th when I attended a debate on 'Pacifism' at Victoria College.

A certain Arab in the quest for a better life, fell into poverty which stripped him of the necessities of life and left him half starved. And by chance there was a Christian minister who heard of his plight, but with a sigh of passing pity, turned to concentrate on his problems. And likewise a Christian Theologian also heard of his plight and he too with a sigh of loving regret sat down to analyse the meaning of love so he could explain in a lecture why Christian love demands we should go to war and fight the Russians with H bombs—if need be. But a certain Communist also heard of the Arab's plight and gave money for his dam and technical aid for his factory. Now which of these three thickest thou was neighbour to this poor fellow.

Many sincere Christians are hoping that the proposed Eucumenical council of Christians will advance the kind of unity among Christians which has been so sinfully lacking for so many years. The reason for this drive for unity is the rising influence of Communism throughout the world.

Yet what hope is there for Christianity in its fight with Communism if we use the same weapons as it does? What hope is there for us if we still rely on power politics to stop an ideology from flooding over the world? Looking back on the bloody religious wars, the Crusades, the wars in which both sides used Christianity for a "prop"—haven't we yet realized that Christianity and war have never mixed, still doesn't mix and never will mix?

Christianity is based on love — dynamic love — love which overcomes dislike because it is not just a passive feeling about, but a positive Activity towards; — the same kind of love that the Good Samaritan showed to the robbed and beaten Jew.

Love which is the Christian's greatest power — because Christianity is caught and not taught

— has been put second to armaments. The idea of Christian pacifism has been so mutilated that many people think that it is a doctrine of indifference, of apathy, of doing nothing, that Christians practice pacifism for its own sake ... rather than a dynamic doctrine of love and self sacrifice towards all humanity as shown to us by Christ. (Or could it be that Christianity, as it exists today is simply a capitalistic, white man's religious prop.)

Would it be possible in the coming Eucumenical council, that Christians could unite solidly on the one doctrine that Christ said was the essence of all True religion; that we love God and love our neighbour as ourselves.

Don Inkpen (IH Vic)

In spite of the fact that no offer has been received from the athletic directorate to underwrite it, the SAC vs The Varsity hockey game will be played on January 30, at 4 p.m. Sportslovers are urged to attend.

Reliable sources last night said negotiations are under way to get a prominent brewery to underwrite the game.

THE VARSITY

FOUNDED 1880

Published by
The Students' Administrative Council
of the University of Toronto
Toronto 5, Canada

Editor-in-Chief	Doug Marshall
Managing Editor	Mark Nichols
Editor-without-portfolio	Sam Aizenstat
News Editor	Harvey Shepherd
Associate News Editors	Ed Roberts and Al Walker
Sports Editor	John Brooks
Associate Sports Editors	Dave Griner and Gene Glisky
Publicity Editor	Susie Breslin
Today's Issue: Debbie Halper, Bev Nykor, Jayne Nesbitt, Ken Carpenter, Terry Bourke, Morgan Tamplin, Dave Halton, Bryan Graham, Nescafe, Kelly green and apologies to Bill Aide. Photography this issue: Bob Carson.

IF YOU LIKE YOUR MUSIC LOUD

HEAR THE

BLUE and WHITE BAND

HOCKEY GAMES — FRIDAY 8 p.m. AND MONDAY, 8 p.m.

HART HOUSE THEATRE'S FORTY-NINTH ALL-UNIVERSITY PRODUCTION

Edwin Justus Mayer's

CHILDREN OF DARKNESS

Directed by Robert Gill

TONIGHT and ALL THIS WEEK at 8.30 p.m.
Box Office Open 10 a.m. - 6 p.m. — WA. 3-5244

Same Special
Student Rate $1.00

Two Tickets Only
On Each A.T.L. Card

TYPEWRITERS

$1.00 A WEEK BUYS ...
... $1.50 A WEEK RENTS
Get a free typing course and a liberal trade-in allowance for your old typewriter when you buy a new modern machine from us.

Phone HO. 1-1843 Today

GOOD HAIRCUT

RIGHT NEAR HERE
4 BARBERS—NO WAITING
600 University Avenue
Just below College
In the Basement
Open Monday through Friday
8 a.m. to 6 p.m.
ONLY $2.00

A Brand New Musical Comedy

★ AN ALL NEW VARSITY REVUE ★

★ Grand Opening February 9th ★

★ 'HAVE TOGA, WILL TRAVEL' ★

TICKETS NOW AT S.A.C.

Blues Top Mac 84-72 Forwards Break Slump

University of Toronto basketball Blues have found the range.

Two top Varsity forwards, whose scoring in previous games had been noticeable by its absence, plumped in 36 points between them as Blues whipped McMaster Marauders, 84-72, at Hart House last night.

The victory boosts Toronto into a second-place tie with Western, although Mustangs have two games in hand. Blues record is now two wins and two losses.

Forward Rolly Goldring and centre John Dacshyn were the two Varsity men who broke out of scoring slumps last night to lead Blues to the win.

Goldring hooped 22 points in his finest home performance in a Toronto uniform, and a tanned Dacshyn added 14 to the winners' cause.

"That was more like it," said Coach John McManus, who had lamented the apparent inability of his forwards to score during the weekend games against Queen's and McGill.

"If we had played that way last weekend, our record would be 4-0 right now instead of 2-2," McManus added.

Blues' guard and captain Ruby Richman actually led the Varsity scoring with 22 points, but that's nothing new. He, Pete Potter and Joe Stulac had been, all that was keeping Toronto alive until last night.

Top point-getter in the game was, towering McMaster centre Doug Marshall. He tossed in 24 points, with accurate set-shots his mainstay.

Under the basket, Marshall was less successful, as Blues consistently outjumped the visitors on rebounds.

Toronto built up a 43-31 half-time lead and increased that to 20 points with eight minutes remaining in the game. McMaster put on a late drive, but it fell short as Varsity maintained their margin.

Aside from Marshall, guards Bob Leedale and forward Mike Schertzer were the top Marauders, each netting 18 points.

In an intermediate preliminary, Varsity Baby Blues overcame McMaster Buccaneers, 73-52. Bill Patterson was tops for the winning Toronto crew with 17 points.

CLASSIFIED ADS.

11 DOWN BUYS ANY MAKE
Brand new typewriters, $59 up. Some models $30 off. Free home demonstration. Free typing course. 1959 models rented, lowest rates $75. Jane-Humber, RO 6-1103.

SUMMER CAMP
In Northern Michigan desires interviews with university students who are interested in waterfront or counselling positions. If interested call Dr. Don or Mrs. Joan Rosenthal. WA 2-0980, after 6.

LOST
Important green suitcase lost in Trinity College last Wednesday. Name: John Atkin, Dundalk, Ontario. Please call RU 1-1911 or contact Dr. Roper, Trinity College.

TYPIST (Electric)
Fast, accurate, personalized service. Theses, essays, letters, dictation. Reasonable rates. Irene Kenyon, 146 Bernard Avenue. WA 3-4011.

FOR SALE
Drum set — Slingerland Blue Sparkle set with Zildjian Cymbals, used (one summer $350) Call BA 1-6368.

PIANO PLAYER WANTED
Immediately. Must read and do some arranging. Phone Jay Allen, RU 2-6854. If not to leave your home, number with the girl.

ROOMS FOR RENT
Excellent facilities for 6 male students. Meals served if desired $27 per month. 84 Louth Avenue, (E. of College) north of Bloor. Call: George WA 4-0221.

Medicine Takes Swim Laurels Setting Three New Records

The Faculty of Medicine set three of four new records and captured the university swimming championship by a five-point margin over Skule last night in Hart House. Meds finished with 51 points, Trinity was third with 32.

Meds' 400-yard sprint relay team of Walt Unger, Alex Ashenurst, Joe MacInnis and Bill Zoryk clipped 19.5 seconds off the old mark finishing in 3:51.0.

Zoryk set a new time of 4:49.5 in the 440-yard freestyle, lowering the previous record from 5:07.1. MacInnis covered the 200-yard butterfly in 2:41.1, 3.8 seconds faster than the previous time.

Trinity's Bob Fisher, holder of the Canadian backstroke record, was the only non-Doctor to establish a new mark. He won the 200-yard backstroke in 2:13.8, bettering the old time of 2:17.1.

Unger was the only competitor to win more than one individual event. He captured the 50-yard freestyle and the 100-yard freestyle.

Skule, despite amassing 46 points for second place, managed only one first in the tournament. Their 400-yard medley relay team of John Ridpath, Art Binner, Ernie Wilson and Kirk Thompson outdistanced Meds to the wire with a time of 5:13.8 minutes.

No other college or faculty came close to touching the leaders, with Victoria fourth at four, and Architecture, Grad Studies and University College, each collecting two. Pharmacy brought up the rear with one point.

Following the swim meet, Toronto Aquatics whipped Hamilton, 21-5 in a senior water polo attraction. Bob Koszels led the winning Queen City crew with six goals.

GAMES TODAY

HOCKEY	8:00 St. M. D	vs	Dent C	Schaffner, Reimer
	1:30 St. M. B	vs	SPS III	Brewer, Reimer
	4:00 Arch	vs	Knob	Hunt, Sadowy
WATER POLO	1:00 St. M. A	vs	SPS II (Postponed)	Watkins, Jany
	6:15 SPS III	vs	Vic	Nobert, Odell
SQUASH	1:00 Trin B	vs	U C II
	6:20 Dent B	vs	Vic I
BASKETBALL—MAJOR LEAGUE	1:00 SPS A	vs	Vic II	Kelner, Trifler
	6:30 Pre-Med	vs	SPS III	Bugarski, Mausberg
	7:30 SPS C	vs	SPS V	Bugarski, Mausberg
	8:30 Pharm A	vs	Arch	Bugarski, Mausberg
BASKETBALL—MINOR LEAGUE (HART HOUSE)	1:00 St. M. Chads	vs	III Med A	Dixon
	4:00 Vic Victors	vs	U C Hutton	Wickham
	7:30 Law B	vs	Pharm A	Wickham
	8:30 Trin B	vs	Vic Middle Hse	Jen. en
BASKETBALL—MINOR LEAGUE (VIC GYM)	5:00 U C Sammys	vs	U C I	Wickham
	6:00 Pre-Dent A	vs	1 Ed. Phys C	Wickham
	7:00 U C I	vs	St. M. Coopers	Wickham
	8:15 St. M. Martins	vs	Vic GYM	Wickham

SPORTS SCHEDULES WEEK OF FEBRUARY 2nd

HOCKEY	1:30 Med II	vs	SPS IV	Baker, Shanon
Mon. Feb. 2	1:30 St. M. A	vs	Vic I	Shanon, Shanon
	5:30 SPS VIII	vs	Med IV	Shanon, Shanon
	6:15 U C II	vs	Dent A	Shanon, Shanon
Wed. Feb. 3	1:30 Jr. SPS	vs	Dent A	Shanon, Shanon
	7:00 Trin B	vs	Med III	Shanon, Shanon
	8:30 Trin D	vs	SPS VII	Shanon, Shanon
Thur. Feb. 5	8:00 Wye	vs	1 Ed. Phys	Shanon, Shanon
	1:00 Trin C	vs	St. M. C	Shanon, Shanon
	4:00 St. M. A	vs	U C I	Shanon, Shanon
Fri. Feb. 6	12:30 For. A	vs	Knob	Shanon, Shanon
	1:30 Vic III	vs	Med II	Shanon, Shanon
WATER POLO	1:00 SPS I	vs	Trin A	Watkins, M. Boase
Mon. Feb. 2	4:00 St. M. B	vs	Trin B	Jany, M. Boase
Tues. Feb. 3	6:30 Arch	vs	Arch	Jany, M. Boase
	7:15 For	vs	Pharm A	Jany, M. Boase
Wed. Feb. 4	4:00 St. M. C	vs	Med IV	Jany, M. Boase
	6:15 Med. I	vs	SPS IV	Jany, M. Boase
Thur. Feb. 5	1:00 Med. III	vs	SPS V	Jany, M. Boase
	4:00 Trin A	vs	U C	Jany, M. Boase
	6:15 Arch	vs	SPS I	Jany, M. Boase
	7:00 Law	vs	W	Jany, M. Boase
Fri. Feb. 6	1:00 Med IV	vs	Pre-Med I	Jany, M. Boase
SQUASH	1:00 Trin C	vs	Med I Yr	Denov
Mon. Feb. 2	5:30 Med IV Yr	vs	U C I	Denov
Tues. Feb. 3	6:20 Sr. SPS A	vs	Med. IV Yr	Denov
	7:00 St. M. B	vs	Trin B	Denov
Wed. Feb. 4	4:00 Trin B	vs	St. M. A	Denov
	6:20 Arch	vs	Dent B	Denov
	7:00 SPS VI	vs	Dent E	Denov
Thur. Feb. 5	1:00 U C I	vs	Sr. SPS B	Denov
	6:20 Dent A	vs	Jr. SPS	Denov
BASKETBALL—MAJOR LEAGUE	1:00 Sr. SPS	vs	Vic I	Kelner, Grossman
Mon. Feb. 2	4:00 Med IV	vs	St. M. F	Bugarski, Grossman
Tues. Feb. 3	1:00 Jr. SPS	vs	Pre-Med I	McCarthy, Grossman
	6:30 St. M. A	vs	Trin B	McCarthy, Grossman
	7:30 Dent IV Yr	vs	SPS VIII	McCarthy, Grossman
Wed. Feb. 4	8:30 Klon A	vs	Emman. A	McCarthy, Grossman
	1:00 SPS I	vs	St. M. D	McCarthy, Grossman
	6:30 U C VI	vs	SPS G	McCarthy, Grossman
	7:30 Law A	vs	Pharm A	McCarthy, Grossman
	8:30 U C V	vs	Med. IV	McCarthy, Grossman
Thur. Feb. 5	1:00 SPS F	vs	SPS VII	McCarthy, Grossman
	4:00 U C I	vs	St. M. A	McCarthy, Grossman
	6:30 U C III	vs	SPS B	McCarthy, Grossman
	7:30 Vic III	vs	Pharm B	McCarthy, Grossman
Fri. Feb. 6	1:00 St. M. B	vs	SPS A	McCarthy, Grossman
	4:00 Arch	vs	For. A	McCarthy, Grossman
BASKETBALL—MINOR LEAGUE (HART HOUSE)	1:00 IV Med B	vs	I Ed. Phys A	Denov
Mon. Feb. 2	5:00 St. M. Gra Rob	vs	Pre-Med II B	Denov
	5:30 IV C III	vs	Med. IV Yr	Denov
	6:00 Med. III Yr A	vs	Med. IV Yr	Denov
Tues. Feb. 3	1:00 II Chem	vs	St. M. Points	Denov
	4:00 St. M. Chads	vs	U C Soc	Denov
	6:00 Med. III Yr C	vs	St. M. Rappavante	Denov
	7:30 Pa. B	vs	Pharm Mortars	Denov
Wed. Feb. 4	4:00 Pharm Anions	vs	I C A I A	Denov
	6:00 Pre-Med II A	vs	U C Mercuries	Denov
	7:30 U C V	vs	U C Vadiers	Denov
	8:30 II Ed. B	vs	U C Blunders	Denov
Thur. Feb. 5	1:00 St. M. Graus	vs	U C Loudon	Denov
	4:00 U C P-ta Siks	vs	Law B	Denov
	6:30 IV Med A	vs	IV Ed. Bus	Denov
	7:30 U C Mercuries	vs	Med. III Yr A	Denov
	8:30 Vt. M. dth Hse	vs	St. M. Gra. Rob.	Denov
Fri. Feb. 6	1:00 II Med	vs	Pre-Med II A	Denov
	4:00 Arch	vs	For. A	Denov
	6:00 II Med A	vs	Med. III Yr C	Denov
BASKETBALL—MINOR LEAGUE (VIC GYM)	5:00 North Hse	vs	I Ed. Phys. B	Lubin
Mon. Feb. 2	5:30 Pre-Dent R	vs	St. M. Steinwaals	Lubin
	6:00 U C Med	vs	St. M. Galligans	Lubin
Tues. Feb. 3	4:00 St. M. J. J. J.	vs	St. M. Coopers	Lubin
	6:00 Pre-Med I B	vs	Pre-Med I B	Lubin
	7:30 U C J. J. J.	vs	St. M. J. J. J.	Lubin
Wed. Feb. 4	4:00 U C J. J. J.	vs	St. M. J. J. J.	Lubin
	6:00 St. M. J. J. J.	vs	St. M. J. J. J.	Lubin
Thur. Feb. 5	4:00 U C J. J. J.	vs	St. M. J. J. J.	Lubin
	6:00 St. M. J. J. J.	vs	St. M. J. J. J.	Lubin
Fri. Feb. 6	4:00 U C J. J. J.	vs	St. M. J. J. J.	Lubin
	6:00 St. M. J. J. J.	vs	St. M. J. J. J.	Lubin

Recreational Skating at Varsity Arena

Tuesdays and Thursdays—10:00 to 11:00 a.m.

Until March 19th

Open to all undergraduate students (men and women). Physical Education credits will be granted for attendance.

Men enroll in Mr. Gifford's office, north-west corner office of the Athletic Wing, between 1:00 and 2:00 p.m. on any week day.

TOMORROW IS THE DAY!

WINTER CARNIVAL ACTIVITIES
START AT 1 p.m. ON THE FRONT CAMPUS

SEE TOMORROW'S VARSITY FOR DETAILS

Saturday, February 1st— EVERYBODY UP TO CALEDON!

INTERFACULTY COMPETITIONS
SLEIGHING — TOBOGGANNING — SKIING
HOCKEY — SKATING

Register Now at the S.A.C. Office—Only 50c
(Registration tickets also available at Caledon)

Stay Over at Caledon After the Dance Saturday Night

Sign up at the Undergraduate Office, Hart House, for bed and breakfast.

VARSITY ARENA

Return Game!

Varsity Blues vs Whitby Dunlops

MONDAY, FEBRUARY 2nd, at 8 p.m.

ALL SEATS RESERVED — $2.00, $1.50 and $1.00

Special Price For Student Season Ticket Holders

1,700 tickets will be held for those holding a hockey coupon book, at a special student price of $1.50 for a RESERVED SEAT TICKET. Those purchasing tickets early will receive $2.00 tickets in the centre of the student section while late comers will receive $1.50 or $1.00 tickets. Tickets now on sale at the Athletic Office, Hart House, between the hours of 9:30 a.m. and 5:00 p.m. Bring your book to the sale.

Tickets On Sale at Special Price Until 5 p.m. Friday, January 30th

A student may purchase 2 tickets for a friend, or 3 tickets for a friend and himself, but only one ticket for himself.

Here and Now

TODAY

1.10-2 p.m. — The SCM will study "Achievements in Christian Unity" in the SCM office, Hart House.
 7.45 p.m. — The Lutheran Campus Club will meet at the University Lutheran Church, 610 Spadina Ave. Agenda includes a study of Weismann's sculpture "In the Chancel".
 — The Outing Club is holding a sing-song at the igloo on the Front Campus with hot drinks for everyone who sings. Come alone or bring your squaw.
 8 p.m. — Modern History Club will hear a discussion by Professors Nelson and Spencer and Keith Spicer on "Has Democracy Failed in France". Refreshments will be served and everyone is welcome.
 8.30 p.m. — Garth Hunter will call the reels at Graduate Students' square dance in the Graduate Union, 44 Hoskin Ave.

FRIDAY

6.45 p.m. — International Students' Festival begins. Last few tickets can be bought for $2 each before 1.30 p.m. today at the SAC office. Banquet, exhibition and stage performance are included.

CUP Roundup

Push University Expansion

(CUP)Expansion plans are being pushed through at a rapid rate in Canadian universities.

Recent moves include establishment of a department of Meteorology at McGill University and of Law at Western University.

A proposed plan at McGill would shorten the length of the curriculum from eight years to seven.

McGill will give a bachelor of science degree in Meteorology. Master of Science and Doctor of Philosophy degrees will be given in the faculty of Graduate Studies and Research. These replace previous Senate-awarded degrees.

This will be Canada's first Meteorology Department. There are now several research groups at McGill.

Western has announced its new law building should be completed in 1961. Faculty members are being assembled and a law library is being collected.

A full three-year curriculum will be in effect by 1962 in accordance with regulations laid down by the Law Society of Upper Canada, Ontario's governing body of law.

Grade 13 and a minimum of two years in any course will be requirements for admission. After obtaining the Bachelor of Law degree, graduates will be required to spend 14 months in a recognized law office and seven more at Osgoode Hall.

McGill's new medical course has been described as a "diagonal program" which would add medical studies to a third-year arts or science program. The fourth year would see increased medical studies with retention of some arts and sciences.

 Advantages of the plan, it is said, would be the lack of a hard and fast line between medicine and its practical use in life.

STAGE CREW WANTED FOR A.V.R.

Phone Gary Young — WA 3-8402
 Or Bill Lord — WA 5-4944

DANCING Friday and Saturday

9 - 12 p.m.

BAND OF THE MONTH

PAT RICCIO

Also in the Dungeonette (Saturday only)

OLD TYME and SQUARE DANCING

Casa Roma

SPADINA ROAD (3 Blocks west of St. Clair)

Operated by KIWANIS CLUB of West Toronto

"those awful bores" Warns Would-Be Writers

Arnold Edinborough, recently appointed editor of "Saturday Night", warned prospective campus writers Monday night of "those awful bores who are always going to write the great Canadian novel".

Mr. Edinborough discussed the topic "How to change from an amateur writer to a professional" in the Hart House library evening.

Control and conciseness of plot and characterization are the qualities which give the novelist a genuinely professional touch, he said. "In most Canadian novels these qualities are conspicuously absent".

With several exceptions, Mr. Edinborough spoke ironically of the recent crop of Canadian novels.

Robertson Davies' "Mixture of Frailties" and Ethel Wilson's "Swamp Angel" were cited as examples of imaginative and controlled writing. Norman Levine's "Canada Made Me" was described as "tiresome, dreary and ill-man-

Speaking of the opportunities in magazine writing, he said the core of professional free-lance writers in Canada is extremely small. "There will always be an opening for a writer who has something new to say and can say it in an imaginative manner", he said.

Mr. Edinborough stressed the need to examine the style of the magazine to which one submits material. "If you write about the Cuban revolution for a bee-keeping journal, you must look at the revolution from the point-of-view of the bee", he said.

The Standard Life Assurance Co.

HAS OPENINGS FOR

2 Married Arts or Commerce Graduates

For a Sales Career in Toronto

Work will primarily be among University Graduates. Remuneration consists of salary, plus commission, and bonuses.

Interviews may be arranged through your Placement Officer for Feb. 2nd, 1959.

ALL-DAY MILDNESS

Black Cat PLAIN CORK FILTER

THEN

- Toronto's first omnibus carried six passengers
- The first electric car in Toronto appeared on Church Street on August 15, 1892
- The last horse-drawn trolley ran on August 31, 1894

and NOW

- The TTC was incorporated in 1920
- In 1956 it operated 1,623 vehicles
- The TTC carried over 303,800,000 passengers in 1956

O'Keefe

Old Vienna BREWERY LIMITED

Carol Jacques (Music)

Nancy Brownridge (Wycliffe)

Andrea Keachie (P&HE)

Roslyn Knight (Meds)

Janet Scott (UC)

Rosalie Kerbekian (Vic)

Joan Ruby (SMC)
VSP Stabins-Drummond

THE VARSITY

Vol. LXXVIII — No. 6

Friday, January 30th, 1953

Queens, Races, Ice Sculptures, We've Got 'Em All!

This year three days of Winter Carnival activity will be compressed into a hectic two days. The Carnival Show Queen contests judging will begin at noon today on campus. Judges will be Joseph McCulley, warden of Hart House, and John O'Leary, television interviewer.

Starting at 1 p.m., the chariot race gets under way. Any faculty wishing to enter should be on the starting line with anything that moves at the appointed time. The only rule is that the chariots must be in the five people-power class.

Snow sculpture efforts will spring up around the various fraternity and faculty front lawns tomorrow afternoon. A complete list of contestants is not available, but a trip up St. George St. tomorrow will reveal a motley collection of comic strip characters in gleaming white.

At four p.m., the annual Varsity-SAC game starts at Varsity Arena. Well-wishers and fans should line up in front of the dressing rooms in the KCR to cheer their teams to victory as they emerge. Others can turn up at the appointed time and place to see the game of the year, particularly those who are not hockey fans.

At 8 p.m. U of T tackles Laval University in a hockey match in Varsity Arena. The Carnival queen will be announced and crowned between periods. Winner of the snow sculpture contest will also be announced at the game.

Saturday's events all take place at Caledon Hills Farm, and students who require transportation to the Farm, are asked to contact the Hart House Undergraduate Office.

The Caledon program includes:

ski racing at 1 p.m. "Normal" races for accomplished skiers will be followed by girl-and-boy and three-ski races for amateurs.

a sled race for girls only at 1:30 p.m. Teams will be composed of five members, and sleds must be provided by participants.

a snowshoe race at 1 p.m. Only two entrants are allowed per team and snowshoes will not be provided.

log-carrying at 2:30 p.m. All materials will be supplied.

orienteering at 3 p.m. Maps and compasses are provided.

Winter Carnival trophy competition throughout the afternoon. Bloomball contestants must supply their own equipment.

Tickets for the Caledon events are 50 cents per person, and may be obtained at Hart House or at the Farms Saturday.

One queen candidate, Joan Wachma from Dentistry, was out of town when these pictures were taken. But she can be seen competing for top honors today, from 12-2 p.m.

Other events to watch for on campus today:

—inter-faculty chariot race on the Front Campus at 1 p.m.

—inter-collegiate hockey game and queen crowning at 8 p.m. in Varsity Arena.

And of course, there's a host of activities waiting for you at Caledon Saturday. Happy Carnival!

Mike, Martin Speaking At Ottawa Liberal Meet

Plans for campus Liberals to attend the twelfth annual Canadian University Liberal Federation convention have been completed.

Over 150 delegates from 37 campus Liberal clubs are expected to attend the two-day convention to take place on February 6 and 7 at the Chateau Laurier in Ottawa. A delegation of fifteen students from U of T, headed by Dick Hamilton, president of the campus Liberal club, will be attending the conference.

The CULF is believed to be the first and largest Canadian political organization exclusively for university students and was founded by a U of T student, Hamilton said last night.

Highlight of the 12th annual convention of the organization will be a seminar on "Social Security in Canada".

Liberal leader Lester Pearson and former Minister of Health and Welfare, Paul Martin, will be the two main speakers of the convention. Acting as advisors to the seminar committee will be Allan MacEachern, former M.P. for Inverness-Richmond and a member of Mr. Pearson's personal staff, and two experts prominent in the field of Canadian welfare.

A national oratorical contest on the subject "Has Social Security in Canada Gone Far Enough?" has been organized in connection with the seminar and contest finals will be held at the convention.

Delegates plan a special caucus with Liberal members of Parliament on Friday morning, February 6th and then will attend the question period in the House of Commons.

"The Canadian University Liberal Federation has played a part in formulation of the national Liberal Party," said Dick Hamilton. "For example, the federation resolution calling for 10,000 scholarships and bursaries was adopted by last year's National Liberal Federation."

Joan Godfrey (P&OT)

Anne Segsworth (For)

Sandy Henderson (Trn)

Virginia Gough (Nurs)

Betty McRoberts (SPS)

Lynn Spence (Pharm)

Dollars, Entries Menace UofT Literary Magazine

The fate of the all-campus literary magazine, Jargon, still hinges on the amount of material received by the Sunday deadline. John Robert Colombo said last night.

Students' Administrative Council vice-president Adrienne Poy last night said doubts about the magazine expressed at the SAC meeting Wednesday have not affected the $400 appropriated for the magazine last year.

"We're operating on a deficit budget," she said, "but the money has already been appropriated."

Tenders for the printing of the magazine are being sent out now, she said. If tenders prove too expensive for faculty contributions and advertising to cover the balance, she said, the magazine will not be published and the money would be set aside.

Colombo expressed "surprise" that the SAC should choose to debate the issue so near the final date. "It seems in bad taste," he said, "to have bad publicity so near the final deadline."

The intention of Jargon officials to pay contributors will probably have to be changed, Colombo said.

The Publications Commission had originally decided a "small fee" should be paid for contributions. Colombo said, but after publicity to this effect had been circulated, the policy was "questioned" by several SAC members.

A compromise, such as some sort of awards, may be attempted, Colombo said.

Contributions from professional faculties are beginning to make their appearance, he said. So far, there have been no contributions from engineers, but there have been "numerous" entries from the medical faculty.

There have been no contributions from St. Mike's or graduate English students, he said. There has been one from Victoria.

Only one critical article has been contributed, he said.

Potential contributors may contact Colombo at WA3-7933. Material may be left with Jargon representatives or at the SAC office.

Sneak AVR Preview, Exhibit Planned Soon

With one week of selling time left to go, All Varsity Revue officials reported healthy weekend ticket sales last night.

The original musical comedy will get a sneak preview Tuesday when several "Have Toga, Will Travel" leads will play scenes from the show at 1:20 p.m. in the Wymilwood Music Room. Pictures of cast members are now on exhibition in Hart House.

The show opens Feb. 9 in the black-tie, grand-style manner, with 300 student, faculty, city and provincial dignitaries invited to attend. A reception for guests will be held after the show in Hart House.

AVR officials said last week those who buy tickets for the Monday opening are not required to wear dinner jackets.

The original comedy, set in ancient Rome in 58 A.D., tells the story of Emperor Nero's search for a solution to attempted sedition on the part of his senators. A love interest helps him to find a cultural solution to the problem.

The show runs Feb. 9-15 in the Hart House theatre. Tickets are on sale in the Students' Administrative Council office. Seats for performances Monday-Thursday cost $1.50, and weekend tickets cost $1.75.

TORONTO MENDELSSOHN CHOIR
Frederick Silvester, Conductor
Manzoni Requiem - Verdi
WALTER SUSSKIND, Guest Conductor
Wednesday, February 11th 8.25 p.m.
LILLIAN WEICHEL IRENE LOOSBERG
RICHARD CASSILLY DONALD GRAMM
and TORONTO SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA
TICKETS: $3 - $2.50 - $2 - $1.50
(At Box Office from Feb. 2)
MASSEY HALL

Say De Gaulle Makes French Future Gloomy

The current "let Charles do it" attitude is in danger of costing France her democracy, a panel decided last night.

The U of T Modern History Club sponsored a panel discussion on the topic "Has democracy failed in France?" and members Prof. R. A. Spencer, Keith Spicer and Prof. H. I. Nelson expressed "qualified pessimism" for the future of French democracy.

"The Fifth French Republic is the Republic of De Gaulle. The threat of civil war, and of a military coup put him into office and the fickle voters of Paris keep him there", Prof. Spencer said.

U of T graduate Keith Spicer was in Paris during last year's May 13 coup. "The French people seem to be terribly apathetic to grave violations of traditional liberties", he said. Freedom of the press has been violated, protest meetings are banned and the practice of torture continues, he added.

The standard of living in France has risen, but under De Gaulle the price of bread, wine and cheese has increased 100 per cent.

The Communists, the only party which doesn't support De Gaulle, were reduced to ten seats in the Assembly in the 1958 election. "The workers who were represented by the Communists will take to the streets to make their demands felt", Prof. Spencer said.

The panel concluded there is a good chance that De Gaulle will develop into a dictator. "De Gaulle uses his constitution as a big stick to brandish over the Assembly," Spicer said.

ST. PAUL'S
AVENUE ROAD
UNITED CHURCH
121 AVENUE RD.
(2 blocks north of Bloor)
Minister
Rev. T. W. HAZELWOOD,
B.A., B.D., D.Th.,
Student Minister—David Goultie
11 a.m.—Communion and Reception of New Members—
Dr. Hazelwood.
7 a.m. Communion—David Goultie
"THE FRIENDLY CHURCH"

Knox Presbyterian
Church
Spadina and Harbord
Extends a Special Invitation to all University Students,
Minister: Dr. Wm. Fitch
Worship Services: 11a.m. and 7 p.m.

ST. ANDREW'S
United Church
117 Bloor E., near
Yonge St. Subway
Minister:
REV. WILLIAM BRIGGS,
M.A., B.D., Ph.D.
Organist and Choir Director:
EDGAR GOODAIRE
11 a.m.
"THAT EXTRA MILE"
7.30 p.m.
"THE BIBLE TODAY"
(3) How is the Bible
Divinely Inspired?
Students cordially invited
to attend

Trinity College Chapel
WEEKDAY SERVICES
7.30 a.m.—Holy Eucharist
8.45 a.m.—Matins
6.00 p.m.—Evensong
10.30 p.m.—Compline
Also: Fri. and Holy-days—
9.15 a.m.—Holy Eucharist
Tuesdays and Thursdays—
12.15 p.m.—Holy Eucharist
Wednesdays—8.10 a.m. Holy Eucharist
Sunday Services
8.15 a.m.—Holy Eucharist
9.15 a.m.—Holy Eucharist
6.30 p.m.—Evensong
10.30 p.m.—Compline
EVERYBODY WELCOME

Bloor St. United Church
300 BLOOR STREET W.
Ministers
Rev. Dr. Ernest Marshall Howse
Rev. J. Stanley Kennedy
Organist and Choirmaster
Frederick C. Silvester
11.00 a.m.
FACING THE UNKNOWN
DR. E. M. HOWSE
7.00 p.m.
FOUR STORIES FROM THE APOCRYPHA
No. 3 Susanna and the Elders
a Detective Story
DR. E. M. HOWSE

THE CHURCH OF
THE REDEEMER
At the Head of the Campus
BLOOR and AVENUE RD.
Rector: Rev. Owen P. Prichard,
B.A., L.Th.
8 a.m. Holy Communion
11 a.m. Choral Communion
Preacher: The Rector
7 p.m. Preacher: Rev. M. S. Flint,
B.A., L.Th., S.T.M.
Wednesday, 12.15 p.m.—Holy Communion
8 p.m. BISHOP WATERMAN of Nova Scotia will conduct a Pre-Lenten Quiet Evening for Laymen
Organist—A. McKinlay, Mus. Bac.

Trinity
United Church
427 Bloor St. W at
Walmer Road
Rev. J. Robt. Watt, BA, BD,
Minister
John W. Linn,
Organist and Choirmaster
11 a.m.
"CAN YOU DO IT?"
7.30 p.m. First in Series
MY PROBLEM IS . . .
(1) "I Like To Worry!"
8.30 p.m.—Fireside Hour
You are invited to attend these Services

PARK ROAD BAPTIST CHURCH
1 BLOCK N. & E. OF BLOOR-YONGE
Minister: Rev. MURRAY J. S. FORD, M.A., B.D.
MURIEL GIDLEY STAFFORD, Organist
SERVICES AT 10:45 a.m. and 7:30 p.m.
A Cordial Invitation to all Students to Attend Inspiring Services

Rosedale Presbyterian Church
Mt. Pleasant Rd. (2 blocks north of Bloor, 2 blocks east of Yonge)
Minister: Rev. E. S. MACKAY, M.A.
11 a.m.—PUBLIC WORSHIP—"BABEL REVISITED"
8.30 p.m.—SENIOR YOUTH GROUP
A Special Invitation to Varsity Students

HILLEL
Tonight, Friday, January 30, 8.30 p.m.
Paper by Marilynne Goldstein
Sunday, February 1, 9.00 p.m.
DEBATE AND SOCIAL EVENING

Madison Avenue...
Yes, up and down ad alley you'll find the smartest account execs call for Coke during important meetings. The cold crisp taste, the real refreshment of Coca-Cola are just what the client ordered. So up periscope and take a look into the situation. Ad men of the future!—start your training now—climb into a gray flannel suit and relax with a Coke!
BE REALLY REFRESHED...HAVE A COKE!
SAY "COKE" OR "COCA-COLA"—BOTH TRADE-MARKS MEAN THE PRODUCT OF COCA-COLA LTD.—THE WORLD'S BEST-LOVED SPARKLING DRINK

Frontier College

Campus Of The Lonely Land

By LIZ BINKS
Varsity Feature Editor

While Canadian universities add hundreds every year to their enrolment totals, search the cities for room to expand their crowded campuses and cry more loudly each year for staff, a college with only a small Toronto headquarters has spread its campus over 3,000 miles of uncompromising bushland and lonely railway sidings.

Work . . .

Called "the great university of the lonely lands," Frontier College has spread its campus over 3,000 miles of uncompromising bushland and lonely railway sidings.

A staff member says, "a lot of the men are happy with their positions and we are criticized for making them dissatisfied. Perhaps we do."

By LIZ BINKS

The Toronto WUS office is nodding sagely about a new summer course in Europe they're planning that may be the solution to a lot of people's problems.

In answer to the hundreds who are turned away annually from the summer seminars, they've come up with a non-selective scheme that runs something like this:

Four courses—Language and Literature, Art and Architecture, Music Festivals and Painting—at a possible maximum cost of $800 and running for 18 to 36 days at intervals between the end of June to the beginning of September.

Sites for the courses are universities or learned institutions in Germany, Italy, France, Vienna, Spain, Austria, Czechoslovakia and Scandinavia.

At a flat fee ranging between $700 and $800 WUS is offering a student rate on a regular flight that is good anytime throughout the summer, specialized instruction in the course involved, tours and entertainment while the course is in session.

Flights from Montreal to London begin June 30 and end August 28 and each student is offered several days in London as a guest of British WUS.

Extras on some of the courses include commercial German, Spanish art and history (in the language course), contemporary French literature and a strong emphasis on contemporary art and interior design in the courses offered in Scandinavia.

The study groups are limited only by size and are open to university students, high school teachers, private citizens or entire families.

Complete information should be available from the WUS office within the next week.

Congratulations are in order for Professors J. N. B. Hume and D. G. Ivey of the Physics department who last month completed their highly successful "Focus on Physics"—the second series of CBC TV's "Live and Learn" educational program.

The two physicists faced camera lights as novices this Fall and in a set of 12 half-hour lectures whipped an attentive audience through the complexities of motion, radiation, atoms, nuclear energy and gravitation.

Apparently the public wanted more, for kinescopes of the series are now being shown Sundays at 1 p.m. in Toronto and in several other Ontario cities.

U of T's Extension Director D. C. Williams is now looking around for other public-spirited academics and it appears that educational television, at least within the context of these broadcasts, is beginning to carry some weight.

Its staff number about 89 — university students for the most part who, apart from a three-day training course, have had little or no teaching experience. Its students are the men who work Canada's industry at its source, who live in boxcars or bunkhouses and to whom life is hard physical labor with few rewards.

Called by Leonard Brockington "the great university of the lonely lands", Frontier College was founded in 1899 by a Nova Scotian minister and granted its Dominion charter in 1922. It sprang from a desire to provide some education and recreation to men who give the best part of their lives to building Canada and to alleviate somewhat the terrible isolation they know.

Rest . . .

Now in its 60th year, the college reaches laborers from Newfoundland to the Alaska Highway, has helped teach 69,000, talked to 250,000 and distributed four million magazines, 100,000 books and 2,500 teachers.

Clark Leith (IV Political Science and Economics at University College) is one of several U of T students to join the Frontier College staff.

He spent his first summer in a pulp camp in northern Ontario, his second at a uranium mine at Great Bear Lake. Both times he was in contact with about 200 men throughout the four month sessions, either in the small make-shift classroom, informal discussions or during the eight hour shift he worked each day.

"Working with the men is probably the most important aspect of the college," Clark said. "Most of them find it hard to believe that a university boy will do this kind of thing, but once you have proved it to them, they accept you, and that's half the battle."

"Of course, its gruelling work. I had it easy because I was under union regulations for a 48-hour week, but some boys I know have to work 70 hours, and still teach as well."

Because 54% of Frontier College students are new Canadians, Clark found the greatest need was English instruction although he also coached French and Mathematics.

"I divided the camps according to ability," he said. "For the most part I was using the repetitive method. One man, a French Canadian, was completely illiterate in his own language and too old to learn English. He sat beside me in every class and repeated every word I said, whether it was part of the lesson or not. By the end of the summer we could carry on quite a decent conversation."

"With the more advanced I took grammar—had them writing paragraphs and business letters. Some were even reading Hamlet."

"I'll never forget one, a Norwegian, who was a carpenter at Bear Lake. He had only been in Canada two years and was terribly discouraged because his children were learning English faster than he was. I taught him to make the "j" sound and I've seldom seen anyone so thrilled. He only came to one class but I'll never forget that thank-you!"

. . . Study

Classes varied in number from 30 to three and never lasted more than an hour. "I could only teach about two a day and had to prepare for about half an hour before each one," Clark said. "That meant that no man got more than three hours instruction a week."

"But they loved to talk. I gave up trying to write letters in the afternoon— one or two would always come along. One of these was a Ph D from Austria who was working in the mine with men twice his size to get enough money to bring his family out to Canada."

I used to help them write letters and business forms. I must have filled out 50 workmen's compensation forms last summer."

As far as actual class work goes, Clark feels definite progress is made each summer. Many of the men received Frontier College diplomas, many others learn to speak and read English for the first time in their lives. The other part of the college's work is more difficult to gauge.

"It's hard to tell just how much you can influence them by talking to them," he said. "A lot of the men are happy with their positions and we are criticized for making them dissatisfied. Perhaps we do. But surely if it makes them want to learn more, it's a good kind of satisfaction."

The Winter Carnival Has Arrived!

TODAY at 1 p.m. — Front Campus

- Chariot Race
- Campus Queen Competitions

TODAY at 4 p.m. — Varsity Arena

- Hockey Game—S.A.C. Diners vs. Varsity Staffers

TONIGHT at 8 p.m. — Varsity Arena

- Hockey Game — Varsity vs. Laval
- Presentation of Snow Queen
- Presentation to Snow Sculpture Winner
- Free Skating after the Game

TOMORROW — Anytime — At CALEDON

- 1 p.m. — Interfaculty Competitions (Skiing, Orienteering, Snow Shoe Races, etc.)
- Hockey Games (Guys with brooms, gals with hockey sticks)
- Marshmallow Roast and Sleigh Rides
- Square Dance in the Evening

REGISTRATION ONLY 50c

Available in the S.A.C. Office (with map to Caledon) today till 5 p.m.

(Registration can also be made at Caledon)

IT'S GREAT!

IT'S NEW!

It's The Great New All-Varsity Revue
"Have Toga, Will Travel"

MUSICAL COMEDY

FEBRUARY 9 TO 14 — HART HOUSE THEATRE

TICKETS ON SALE AT S.A.C. OFFICE
BUY YOURS TODAY — CHOICE SEATS ARE GOING FAST!

The Varsity

FOUNDED 1880

Published by

The Students' Administrative Council
of the University of Toronto

Toronto 5, Canada

Member Canadian University Press

Business and Advertising Manager
E. A. Macdonald — WA 3-8221

Editorial and News Office

Basement, SAC Building — WA 3-8742, WA 3-8113

The opinions expressed in this paper are those of the editor.

Editor-in-Chief	Doug Marshall
Managing Editor	Mark Nichols
Editor without portfolio	Sam Ajzenstat
News Editor	Harvey Shepherd
Associate News Editors	Ed Roberts and Al Walker
Sports Editor	John Brooks
Associate Sports Editors	Dave Griner and Gene Glisky
Publicity Editor	Susie Breslin
Features Editor	Liz Binks
Co-AM&D Editors	Maryann Talbot and Warren Wilson
CUP Editor	Vicky Innes
Photo Editor	Mike Cavanagh
Make-up Editor	Nancy Takeuch
Staff Cartoonists	Marg McMeekin and Sheldon Greenberg
Mortician	Roger Wild

Today's Issue: Morgan Tamplin, Kay McCook, Paul Conroy, Jayne Nesbitt, Moishe Reiter, Debbie Halper, Dick Hamilton, Phil Goulston, Diane Jackman (for real), a visit from Mary Anderson, and retroactively, Alex Havrilt. Photography this issue: Laurie Drummond and Andy Stabins.

many mansions

Christian theologians have begun another round of praise for the idea of Christian unity on the occasion of Pope John's announcement of his forthcoming ecumenical council.

But these same clergy have been voicing reservations which lead one to doubt that much unifying will be done, with the possible exception of a Catholic-Orthodox merger.

This makes everyone a little sad. Except us.

There are those, of course, who believe that there is such a thing as a true church. They believe, as we understand it, that one church has everything necessary and true and that every other church has less.

Against such people, there can be no argument. Obviously, you find out which church is the true one and get everybody to belong to it—by any means at your disposal.

To others of us, few though we may be, this seems rather like the stuff of which inquisitions are made.

Whether a complete religious monopoly results in a Spanish inquisition or a partial religious monopoly results in a Lord's Day Act seems to us a question only of degree and opportunity.

Such a monopoly would mean the dedicated effort of a group of men with virtually no check and the best intentions in the world to save the souls of the heathen or save us from the scourge of alcoholism.

These men would be kind-hearted, just, devout, Christian and the type of men who make inquisitions.

But suppose we escaped an Inquisition-era Spain or a prohibition-era Ontario.

We could, perhaps, develop the type of atmosphere which flourishes in Catholic France or Anglican England.

We doubt if this is exactly what Pope John has in mind, but even such a setup would seem, to us, a loss.

There are Christians who believe that man's approach to God is a direct thing, and that churches are not divine administrations but tools towards a fuller religious experience.

There are Christians who believe that the discovery and guardianship of truth is the province, not of an institution but of the individual minds of men.

There are Christians who see the search for God well-begun but far from complete and would not presume to prescribe any one course as that which will in the end prove successful.

Thus, we believe that not only non-Christians can find cause to oppose the loss of the beauty, the stimulation, the variety of insight and the variety of inspiration, not to mention the intellectual freedom, to be found in the midst of several competing churches.

HLS

brickbats and bells

Our Readers Write:

to promote understanding:

Dear Sir,

The purpose of the recent St. Michael's College-Faculty of Medicine debate was to promote understanding among students of this university. This intent was stressed by both sides in the debate. As might be expected the aim was not achieved to a great extent. However, the intent was still there.

The Varsity seems to have ignored this important factor; whether through ignorance or for convenience one cannot say.

In its coverage the paper calls the reader's attention not only away from the primary purpose of the debate but away also from the actual facts.

No "enraged Catholic" was "brought to his feet shouting." A perfectly composed member of the House merely requested that any reference to church dogma be omitted from the debate, as its purpose was a discussion of fact, not a clash of religions. The member's intent was in line with that of the debate: "to promote understanding."

The Varsity prefers to overlook fact for purposes of "color".

May I suggest that "slanted" news is not good journalism? May I suggest that it is not true?

Carol Jones, II SMC.

to remind professors:

Dear Sir:

In connection with the present campaign to "beautify the campus" (for lack of a more dignified term) by means of flood-lighting, flowerbeds and so on, has the possibility been considered of harnessing the carillon in Soldiers Tower so that the clock would strike the hours and quarters? It seems strange that the two should be so close and yet not linked.

Apart from the aesthetic qualities inherent, there would be practical advantages, such as reminding professors that their lecture times had ended, and eventually forcing more coherence between the various communities on the campus which now operate on their own systems, with differences of up to five minutes.

If, after experiment, residents in Hare House found their sleep disturbed, it would be possible to adjust the mechanism to stop striking from, say, 11 p.m. to 7 a.m.

I submit that anyone who has heard the carillonneur strike the hour before, and after his recitals would support this idea.

Yours very truly,
Philip Ward (III ARTS)

The Dedicated Reviewer

Mickity Men Magnificent

By ED ROBERTS

After years of effort and countless attempts a Toronto college group has finally produced an original bookshow that is a hit. "The Dedicated Men" is undoubtedly the best college show so far this year, or for that matter, for many a year. And any upcoming productions will have to be absolutely first-rate to best the marks set by the Mickities '59 presentation.

To the complete and utter surprise of this reviewer, the show, one of the most-ballooned of the year, turned out to be every bit as good as it was said to be.

The music ranged from magnificent to top-notch, the singing ranged from capable to superb, and the plot served its one function of providing a framework and a unity for the whole show. The only weak point in the production was the choreography, and even that was a cut above the vast majority of college efforts.

The story-line was simple, and yet it did not fall into the gaping pitfall affected by most bookshows. Nor did it decay into cloying sentiment, or deteriorate into a mock-witty and supposedly-satirical attack upon various features of the college sponsoring the show. Indeed, it was even fairly believable in spots, and delightful for the rest.

Centered about the romantic imbroglios of 'typical' college students, the plot focuses upon the adventures (and misadventures) of two extrovert males (Bill Young and Ray Buncie) who feel that the finer things in their college education — namely wine, women and song (and, to all appearances they are rated in that order) — have been neglected. The arrival of a French student to study on a fellowship provides them with the means to implement their policy. And from there on anything goes. Fellowship is thrown to the winds, and comradeship prevails.

All roles in the show are capably done, and in several cases they even rise to a high professional level. Notable among these are Susi, a thoroughly delightful vamp (Sheila Kelly), and Francois, the exchange student (Paul Hrynkiw). Both played their parts to the fullest advantage, and the audience never tired of seeing them reappear. Kudos must also be awarded to the other leads: the second and third portions of the dedicated trio (Ray Buncie as Henry and Bill Young as Robert); and Marg Hamilton as Mary Jo and Mary Brennan as Frances.

But the highlights of the dramatic portion was provided by neither; Robin Barron as "the thinker" captivated the audience with a delightful cameo reminscent of Mort Sahl at his best.

The music throughout is best described as "simply wonderful," and it is easy to see why "a commercial interest" was interested enough to purchase two of the songs. (The two songs, incidentally, were not in the show as presented because of copyright regulations).

Highlight of the show was Ruth MacKenzie's rendition of "the feather floats", a delightful satire upon the philosophies of "good little girls" everywhere. The singer and the song were both immeasurably better than by far the greater majority of the acts which crowd our commercial musical comedies. The show also produced another number, "Never Saw The World Look Better" which has everything needed to become a great college tune.

As was mentioned above, the only flaw in the show was the interminable ballet sequence "Reverie". Not only did the sequence constitute a non-sequitur, it was badly choreographed and performed. But with any luck the entire sequence will be cut before the show hits the boards again tonight.

All in all, Mickities '59 is still a critical success by any criteria, and has put every other college show to shame.

The Catch of the Season . . .

. . . the AVR

Gerds himself with Cedar

Gerd Untermann is a second year student at Victoria College. He was born in Berlin, emigrated to Canada five years ago, and is now putting himself through university. These circumstances are not unusual. He has followed the paths taken by most students — working at various trades, spending a summer heading a highway work gang, and picking up odd jobs when they were available. Now, however, he has branched out into a field where even the experts have a hard time gaining recognition, to say nothing of money. Last year Gerd began carving figures in cedar wood. He had never done anything of the kind before, but the finished figures have the beauty and completeness found only in the work of an artist and a craftsman.

Any work of art depends for its vitality on both the person who creates it and the span of time which its creation covers. The time span is not necessarily a few hours or a few days. It is painting or a piece of sculpture may express the emotions of a particular moment or a culmination of a series of thoughts and feelings which have accumulated over a lifetime. Gerd Untermann's sculptures in wood are not products of the moment.

His figures are based on natural forms but they are not limited to the specific qualities of any particular one. His fish carved in cedar is an ideal fish.

A Platonist might visualize the fish in just such an image. The carved human figures possess that same reality, not in the sense that they are exact representations, but because they express the essence (if such a thing can be done in wood) of the human forms. They are slim, elongated figures, immobile, yet holding the intangible instant of motion in every line. One feels that they could not have been any other way. Like many sculptors before him, Gerd feels that his art is really a matter of stripping away the superfluous material so that the form within the wood can be revealed. Perhaps the most striking quality about these carvings is the feeling of harmony and serenity conveyed by each single figure. Looking at them, one understands why art has been called an escape from chaos.

Gerd took his carvings to "Trade Winds", on Bloor Street, where the owner, Jewel Schwartz, bought all he had to offer. Success has only one drawback. He can no longer afford to keep any of his own carvings. Elizabeth Harrison

This picture shows some examples of the cedar carvings which have been executed by Gerd Untermann. Gerd is a young university student, who has recently produced some very promising carvings, and these can be seen at Trade Winds on Bloor Street.

Freudian Frolic

THE PERFECT FURLOUGH (Loew's Uptown), a wackily witty matrimony of Freud and the forces, offers a spicy tidbit for the tired cinema appetite.

It all concerns the frantic furlough shenanigans of a rambunctious rakehell Corporal (Tony Curtis), selected via some artful gerrymandering to provide a vicarious holiday for his "restless" mates at an isolated Arctic radar station. Since Tony's army record reads like the scenario for a stag movie, his Paris companions include not only a personally selected, comfortably contoured glamour girl (Linda Cristal), but also an inhibited army psychologist (Janet Leigh), a duenna-like Major (King Donovan) and two beefy MPs. When movie queen Linda turns out to be wedded, Tony's supercharged libido heads for the head-shrinker.

"You have a loyal face," says Tony, munching quietly on Jan's bared shoulder.

"You bug me," rejoins Jan, "and bugs are things I usually find crawling in my bed." And so he does, thereby provoking a fade-cut 21-gun wedding.

This is routine military farce, but fast and snafurious. The Parisian adventures are handled with crisp, breezy attention by Director Blake Edwards who has learned that a mildly amusing joke can be vitaminized by good timing. Tony Curtis who, some years back, was content to live off the fat of the teenage head, herein stands up on his own true feats as a creditable comedian. Linda Cristal shakes it around with provocative ease and with the help of a tight uniform, Janet Leigh fills her role quite adequately. The supreme rib-tickler, however, is King Donovan whose fawningly ingratiating personality has all the morbid fascination of a mentholated cigar.

Says one of Corporal Tony's Arctic-tied buds, ogling a newsreel of his Paris frolic: "Boy, we sure must be having a great time."

We did!

Ted Schafer

HHOA UTFS

The Hart House Orchestra will present an all-Handel concert at Hart House, this Saturday at 9 p.m. Tickets for the concert may be obtained at the Hall Porter's desk.

The U of T Film Society is presenting "Battleship Potemkin", one of the world's greatest films, this Sunday at 2:15 p.m. Applications for half-season membership may be obtained at the Museum Theatre.

Ben Rubes, well-known and popular Czechoslovakian born Bass, will be giving a recital at Hart House on Sunday evening at 9 p.m. Mr. Rubes has played lead bass roles with many Opera Companies on the North American continent, and his latest resounding success was his magnificent performance as Leodetto in "Don Giovanni" at the Vancouver International Festival.

Pianists old and young

Benno Moiseiwitsch

The old school of pianoforte playing was characterized by intense romanticism, a complete range of dynamics, a sweeping technique and a liberty with the musical text which is no longer considered 'tasteful'. Benno Moiseiwitsch is of that school. Though past his prime, there is no mistaking the shattering impact of his interpretation, the imposing architectural design of a Chopin ballade or scherzo, the provocative pianistic effects. Most compelling, however, was the complete abandon in the Chopin F minor ballade and the second and fourth scherzos. The wonderfully long melodies in these scherzos were so freely skaped that the filigree sections in the same seemed veritable swishes of sound. It is true that Moiseiwitsch is always inaccurate and even improvisatory at times, but it would be a mistake to allow these details to obscure the ballade's broad dynamic sweep of the nocturne's flitting pianissimos and magical lyricsms.

It is true that complete freedom is out of place in the Andante Favari by Beethoven. A slow movement of variations originally intended for the Waldstein sonata, the work demands more restraint and clarity. Despite the beautiful silken tone of the opening, and many dynamic contrasts, there was too much tendency to romanticize, and the faster moving bass parts were blurred by over-peddaling. The two Rachmaninoff selections were convincing in toto, but the beautiful singing quality of the B minor prelude was lost in a crashing disappointment of wrong notes. Here inaccuracies won out.

After the big Chopin group we heard Mousorgsky's Pictures at an Exhibition. Here the full pianistic palette was exploited. In Promenade we moved with military precision, hesitation or wistfulness from picture to picture. We glimpsed at the Gnome, watched frantic children play in the Tuileries, laughed at the Ballet of the Unraptured Crabs, and then moved on to the market place of a village, and then on to the intoning choirs and bells of the Great Gate at Kiev. It was a performance of massive contrasts.

The encore was Chopin's F major impromptu. The old was more renewed, the dancing treat.

Bill Aide

William Aide

William Aide, a young student at the Faculty of Music, succeeded in putting a large audience in very good spirits with his piano recital at Hart House on Wednesday.

Indeed, considering the fact that the same pianist gave a complete Chopin recital only the previous Sunday, it was a tremendous feat to appear before the public with an entirely new program. He certainly deserves great credit, for in his care, he managed to maintain a high standard throughout the performance.

Wednesday's program opened with a group of short Brahms pieces, — short in length, but in their expression of profound thought and deep emotion, comparable in difficulty to longer ones. It has been said that Brahms is great in his almost biblical manner of expression, and Mr. Aide succeeded in reproducing that depth of feeling. He gave a fullness rather than a brilliancy to his interpretation, a serious, sober-hued quality of sound. Of the two Capriccios, in F sharp minor and D minor, and the three Intermezzi, in B flat major, A minor and B flat minor, only the final intermezzo lacked colour in its melodic line. The others all possessed that "divine feeling coming from a depth of soul."

Une Barque sur l'Océan by Ravel followed. Although Ravel later was to absorb jazz idioms into his music, this seldom-played piece shows the deep influence of impressionism. Mr. Aide showed a clarity of expression, with distinct colours and sonorities, and built up an evocative composite of tonal subtleties.

Chopin's Sonata in B minor, with its contrasting lyric and dramatic sentiments, has been described as a poem of a continuous trend of thought. The four movements are connected by the interpreter's ability to make a unified whole of the four parts. In those instances where the texture depends on virtuosity, such as the scherzo, Mr. Aide's performance was excellent. He had a transparent and crystalline touch. The initial theme in the first movement was energetic, but the second should have been warmer and more singing. The finale's introduction was well-tempered, in that it was ardent rather than pompous. Though the dynamic contrasts could have been more distinct, the exaltation, rhythmic animation and constantly increasing intensity to the end were very well realized.

E.G.

Friendly Boxing Not So Friendly

The Varsity boxing team ran off ten bouts on Wednesday's Athletic night. Because of the nature of the fights, billed as exhibitions, no decisions were awarded.

Someone should have mentioned the above fact to the boxers as they threw caution to the wind and pummelled each other mercilessly.

One blood-smeared gladiator returned to the dressing room but couldn't remember where his locker was located. When questioned further he said he could not recall whom he had fought.

He wasn't even sure whether he had been in the ring or not. He did, in due time, retrieve his clothes from the vanishing locker. Who said they don't hurt each other?

Though lacking the polish all the fights were earnestly contested. The contestants pitched a wide array of punches, jabs, hooks, uppercuts, and haymakers, some of which originated in Queen's park. Luckily, few of these landed.

The following is the complete list of the Athletic night exhibitions:

B. J. Petroff fought Bob Dodds.
Roger Kirkpatrick fought Mike Wade.
Mike Chykaluk fought B. J. Brown (2 rds.)
Mike Chykaluk fought Tom Goodwin (2 rds.)
Steve U'Ren fought Art Vachon.
Peter Law fought Jim McManus.
Mike Burr fought Dave Sims.
El Frechette fought Paul Wilton.
Klaus Haessler fought Lorne Kirby.
Steve Woolcombe fought Dave Greenwood.

Shows 95.9 Per Cent Would Support Series

An opinion poll conducted by The Varsity Wednesday brought forth a promised support of 95.9 per cent for a Canadian Intercollegiate hockey final between the Eastern and Western champions.

Of almost 100 responses to the request for opinion, 90.8 per cent disagreed with the decision of the Athletic Directorate to reject the offer of a first year student to underwrite the final.

Mitro Makarchuk (I UC) had suggested to the Directorate that he cover all expenses for a best-of-three final. The hitch which caused the Directorate to turn down the bid was that Makarchuk wanted any profits which might be made.

Only seven of 98 opinions received were in support of the Directorate's decision to refer the matter to the Ontario-Quebec Athletic Association.

Most of those indicated a dislike of private enterprise, under-taking sponsorship of a university team. Of the seven, five said they would support an east-west final were it to be played here this March.

Of the 89 who disagreed with the Directorate (two opinions were undecided) a good percentage were firm in their feeling that a private sponsor should be permitted to try the venture.

"It is not an 'outside' private concern; he (Makarchuk) is one of us," read one opinion. "Supposing the SAC wanted to underwrite the series and take any profits," said another.

Several full letters were also received, the best of which came from Bill Ede (II SPS). None of the letters received agreed with the Directorate's decision.

Following, in condensed form, is Mr. Ede's letter:

"Mak" has contributed to other aspects of campus life and has been one of our most valuable members, contributing wholeheartedly to make ... a success.

"When a first year student, who takes such an active part and interest in campus life, offers to back, with his OWN money, a venture which could easily be a flop due to the disinterest of the larger part of the student body, it seems a pity that the authorities do not take advantage of his generous offer.

"It is a pity that such admirable spirit is quashed, for this type of spirit is sadly lacking on the campus. 'Mak's' offer to share his money is much more the spirit to be desired than that of the student 'prankster' who causes the needless spending of someone else's money.

"... it is not an unfair price for his risk to ask that profits go to him."

Although seven people felt the Directorate made a wise decision in refusing Makarchuk's offer, there was only one who felt the east-west final would be impractical even if sponsored by the Directorate.

In the view of the conductors of the poll, the following response was rated as the most sound:

"A final would promote college hockey in Canada; the Blues have actually been challenged by a Western team; even if the final did not develop into a permanent feature of the hockey scene, the Directorate cannot sit back and let university athletics carry themselves.

"They must support such schemes as a hockey final in the name of athletic progress."

Hart House

Art Library: 12 noon in the Art Gallery
Sing Song: 1:25 p.m. — East Common Room
Library Record Hour: 1:15 p.m. — Record Room, SIOBHAN
McKENNA reading YEATS' POETRY

SUNDAY EVENING CONCERT

JAN RUBES, BASS

Great Hall February 19 p.m.
Members may pick up tickets from the Hall Porter's Desk

VARSITY ARENA

Return Game!

Varsity Blues vs

(Intercollegiate Champions)

Whitby Dunlops

(World Champions)

MONDAY, FEBRUARY 2nd, at 8 p.m.

ALL SEATS RESERVED — $2.00, $1.50 and $1.00

Special Price For Student Season Ticket Holders

1,700 tickets will be held for those holding a hockey coupon book, at a special student price of 50c for a RESERVED SEAT TICKET. Those purchasing tickets early will receive $2.00 tickets in the centre of the student section while late comers will receive $1.50 or $1.00 tickets. Tickets now on sale at the Athletic Office, Hart House, between the hours of 9:30 a.m. and 5:00 p.m. Bring your book to the sale.

Tickets On Sale at Special Price Until 5 p.m. TODAY

A student may purchase a ticket for a friend in addition to his own, provided he brings the extra book.

GAMES TODAY

HOCKEY	12:30	St. SPS	vs	Med. I	Stinson, Brewer
	1:30	Trin. A	vs	Jr. SPS	Downey, Cader
	5:00	Dent. A	vs	Vic. II	McElligott, McCulloch
WATER POLO	1:00	SPS V	vs	St. M. B	J. Boase, Thesingh
	1:00	U.C. II	vs	Jr. SPS	Kelner
BASKETBALL MAJOR LEAGUE	6:30	SPS VII	vs	Dent. II Yr.	Richardson, Tresler
	1:00	II Eng. Bus.	vs	U.C. Beta Sigs	Shafir
	1:00	II Eng. Bus.	vs	U.C. Beta Sigs	Shafir

WOMEN'S ATHLETICS

HOCKEY
Week of Feb. 2	Visiting	Home Team
Mon. Feb. 2	4:00 St. Hilda's I	Vic. I	Schaffran
Tues. Feb. 3	8:00 Nursing	P.H.E.	Blute
Wed. Feb. 4	8:00 Meds	Pharm.	Blute
Wed. Feb. 4	12:30 St. Hilda's II	P.O.T. II	Stinson
Thurs. Feb. 5	12:30 Vic. I	P.O.T. I	Stinson

ARCHERY
Practices next week. Monday, Tuesday and Friday from 1 to 2 p.m. in the Drill Hall.

BASKETBALL
Week of February 2 to 6:
O.C.E.	Tuesday, February 3rd.
5:30	Intercollegiate
6:30	Practice
7:30	Practice

VOLLEYBALL
All the games are at L.M. Gym
Mon. Feb. 2	6-7	Vic III - P.H.E.
	7-8	St. Hilda's II - Meds
Tues. Feb. 3	5-6	St. Hilda's I - Vic IV
	6-7	Nursing - POT I
	7-8	Pharm - St. Michael's I
Wed. Feb. 4	5-6	Vic I - Nursing
	6-7	POT II - Vic II
Thurs. Feb. 5	6-7	POT II - St. Michael's II
Intercollegiate Practice
Tues. Feb. 3 5-6:30 at Drill Hall
Thurs. Feb. 5 5:30-7:30 at O.C.E. Gym

EXPORT "A"
FILTER TIP
CIGARETTES

1858

O'Keefe
ALE
BREWERY LIMITED

and NOW

1958

Laval Invades Arena First Place At Stake

By GENE GLISKY
Associate Sports Editor

To add spark and zest to the weird and wonderful works of what promises to be the gayest winter carnival in years, Varsity Blues are scheduled to play a hockey game we unconditionally bill as the game of the season.

The powerful Laval Rouge et Or pucksters tonight make their first appearance of the year on Varsity ice. Undeclared in five games, the Laval power-house have handed Blues their only setback of the season, outscoring them 7-5 in the league opener.

To say Varsity are up for this game is an understatement. They have to win this one to gain first place. Laval on the other hand, are quite pleased to be setting the pace, and have no desire to relinquish their hold on a possible Intercollegiate title.

The loss of starry center Michel Lagace has been a blow to the Rouge et Or, although they ice a very well balanced, high scoring squad.

Center ace Claude Dugay, third in league scoring, boasts seven goals and thirteen assists, with team-mates Pierre Raymond and Robert Landry close on his heels with twelve points each.

Fortunately, Varsity will be out at full strength for the contest. The injury jinx which can raise such havoc with a team's strength, has been reasonably kind to Blues.

The most serious casualty has been defenseman Neil Munro, who suffered a painful shoulder injury in last week's action. Munro, however, was his usual dippy-doodling self at work-outs last night.

The high flying Mike Elik, Grant Mills, John Macdonald contingent will lead the face-off.

Big (Bear) Kennedy, out to increase his lead in the scoring race, will operate along with Dunc (Nails) Brodie and Ron Casey on the wings.

The colorful kid-line of Doug Williams, Howie (Lil' Bear) Roth and Jim Brooks will be out there rambling.

Defensively, veteran Ray Dunn will guard the nets, with Harry Neale, Lorry Stacey, Red Stephen, Munro, and Frank Sullivan up front to do the heavy work at the blue line.

Game time is at 8.00, with a full house expected at the Arena.

Blues Captain Royalty Elik Is Dubbed Baron

Captain Mike Elik, Varsity Blues' greatest competitor, and one of the finest hockey players to skate for the blue and white, last night regretfully confirmed rumors that tonight he would be playing his last league game in the Varsity cause.

On contract with the Cleveland Barons of the American Hockey League, Elik is obliged to join the professional club when they badly require his services.

In a telephone interview with the Varsity last night, Mike had this to say.

MIKE ELIK

"I thought it over. I really don't like going, but it was economic pressure that made me do so. At the beginning of the year I made an agreement with them that if they were short-handed I'd help out. Cleveland had helped me out financially."

Elik, in his final year of mechanical engineering at S.P.S. will continue his studies at the University, joining Barons for weekend games. He will commute from Toronto to join the club wherever they play.

Having played a single game with the American League club, Elik, under the Intercollegiate hockey league rules, will no longer be eligible to play for Varsity.

Mike, obviously feeling badly about leaving Blues, went on to say that he didn't think his absence would hurt the team that much, and expressed confidence that the Varsity squad would go on to clinch the championship without him.

Now in his third year with Blues, Mike Elik has been a standout performer, and all hockey fans at U of T will sincerely miss the rugged, always breath-taking hockey star.

The sports staff of the Varsity wish to express sincere congratulations to Captain Mike, wishing him the best of luck in pro hockey. We are proud of his success!

Mike Elik will see action against brother Bo Elik's Rochester Americans on Saturday, while on Sunday he plays in Buffalo against the Bisons.

Mike Elik will return to Blues for their exhibition clash with Whitty this coming Monday.

Badminton Competition

The University of Toronto's Badminton team travels to Queen's today with the avowed aim of retaining the Intercollegiate crown they won last year.

The following are members of the team: Ross Lundy, Paul Wendling, Casey Wood, Tim Phillips and Ken Smith.

Varsity were not beaten in the tournament while winning the title last year.

Lundy and Wood will form one doubles team while Wendling and Phillips make up the other duo.

Lundy, Wendling, Wood, and Phillips will play the four singles matches. Smith is the spare and will fill in wherever needed.

Jim Carnwath, the non-playing coach of the Varsity squad, is confident that this year's team can retain the crown.

The tournament lasts two days, as play will continue on Saturday following the first matches today.

by john brooks

varsity sports editor

The University of Montreal doesn't seem to realize it, but a lack of efficiency and, apparently, its students are doing their utmost to knock out the props that support the already-shaky Intercollegiate Senior Hockey League.

A discouraging trend over the past few years crumbled last Saturday afternoon into appalling chaos, when that university's team played Varsity Blues at McGill Winter Stadium. Varsity, incidentally, won the game, so what follows is not a matter of whimpering in defeat.

The game was scheduled to start at 2 p.m., but Montreal had failed to make proper arrangements for officials. An hour later, Blues' coach Jack Kennedy informed Carabins they had exactly 30 minutes to produce referees, or the Toronto team would pack their gear and depart.

A few seconds later, an individual poked his head in the door of the Varsity dressing room and announced that he was the referee and would the team kindly come out on the ice so the game could be started.

Kennedy asked him who the other official was and discovered, to his amazement, that this brave soul planned to control the game all by his lonesome. When the Toronto coach said he would not play without two officials, it was the referee's turn to gasp.

"He told me we didn't need two officials for a 'friendly little game between two colleges,'" Kennedy related. I actually stood and argued with him over the fact we should not go on the ice without two referees.

At 3.30 p.m., another "referee" was found, but he didn't have a striped jersey. Upon being asked by Kennedy where his referee's sweater was, he replied, "I left it at home." (So there I was, officiating in my best white shirt).

"Roland Beau (Carabin's coach) told me this guy was a qualified official, so what could I do? They had me over a barrel. Besides, there were about eight of them jabbering away in French," said Kennedy with a disconsolate shrug.

The game was only a minute old when a long, long string of Varsity penalties started. (All told, Blues had 10 minors, two majors, a 10-minute misconduct, and a match penalty; Carabins had four minors).

"I've never seen so many cheap penalties. And when those referees did give Montreal a penalty, they had to send one of our players off as well. They didn't play a man short in the whole game," Kennedy said.

The first blowup came late in the first period. Two Varsity players broke in alone on the Montreal goal with 55 seconds remaining to play. Suddenly, the buzzer sounded to end the period.

Kennedy (after a dose of smelling salts) went over and asked the timer what was happening, and got this response: "The big clock runs slowly, so I kept time by remembering the sweeps of the second hand."

(According to Toronto team manager Dave Gawley, a McGill Winter Stadium maintenance man overheard the timer's explanation, and promptly suggested there was nothing whatsoever wrong with the clock).

It was in the second period that the real fun began, however. Howie (Lil' Bear) Roth was assessed a two-minute penalty for "elbowing" ("another cheap penalty"—Kennedy) and was discussing the matter calmly with the "referee" when a Montreal player began pawing the ice.

Kennedy related: "I looked up, and this guy was changing across the ice with his stick up, and he was going 100 miles an hour, straight for Roth. Somebody yelled to warn him (Roth), and he spun around with his stick up to protect himself.

"The Montreal player hit that stick dead on, and went down with a thud. So the referee gave Roth a major for 'spearing'. Why, if Howie hadn't turned around, that guy would have killed him!"

A couple of minutes later, Johnny Macdonald became involved in a fencing duel with a Montreal player. They both reared back for a swing, and Johnny inadvertently felled a Carabin standing behind him.

Macdonald was promptly assessed a match penalty for deliberate attempt to injure (which is somewhat like a fighter winding up for a hard right and smashing his hand into the ring-post behind him, thereby ending his immediate career).

As Mac threaded his way to the dressing room, some 200 fans surged down on the Varsity bench. The Toronto players turned, stood up in a line, and pointed their sticks to the crowd at La Fidel Castro.

Macdonald trotted behind the armed guard to safety. The crowd retreated, but there wasn't much the Varsity players could do to stop the guided missiles. Down they came — peanuts, overshoes, bottles, lighters, programs, etc.

"Those fans down there throw everything. They always have. Red Stephen once had his head cut open by a lighter, and at one game, there were six broken mickeys lying on the ice," Kennedy grimaced.

Now, whether or not McGill rents the Stadium to Montreal for the Carabins home games is uncertain. But the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association rule book places the onus on rink managers to "provide proper police protection at all times."

Presumably, common sense guides these enforcement officers in carrying out their duties. And they have the Criminal Code of Canada to back them up (yes, even in Quebec).

And that, sport-lovers, is hockey at the University of Montreal. Couldn't you hear Foster Hewitt giving his famous introduction at a Carabin game?

"Hello fight fans in Canada and the United States. We're in the second round (oh goody, a bottle of Black and White) and the score is (aha, a new lighter) 4-2 for the U of M. There are seven players in the penalty box (got that paper dart out of my ear) and several fans on the ice. We've played four minutes of the second period, and there's the buzzer to end the game."

MIS LORDSHIP, MIKE ELIK

A late flash in the office last night brought the sorry news that Mike Elik will depart Saturday for Cleveland Barons of the American Hockey League.

Always a versatile and colorful competitor, Elik will long be remembered in these parts. Best of luck, Cap'n Mike.

Interfaculty Summary

St. Mike's D defeated Dents C in Intramural hockey at the Arena by a 5-2 count yesterday.

Finley, Soden, Ceroni, Cooper, and Duggan scored for the Irish while Arthur and Fosset hit the twine for the Dentists.

SMC B whipped SPS III 6-0 in the only other game played. Evans (2), Smithern, Auchinloss, Morse, and Welden tallied for St. Mike's.

Basketball action saw Vic II wallop SPS A 42-25 while SMC Chadams (playing with only four men) edged III Metal 40-39.

Trin B defeated UC II in squash action. Boake, Elby, and Matheson posted the victories.

... and in this corner

by sharon milgram

Everybody, but everybody is choosing teams. All sorts of teams... big teams, little teams, hitting teams, shooting teams, senior teams, intermediate teams and almost any other sort of team that one can think of. We're simply teeming with teams.

To be a little more specific, the names of the players of four different intercollegiate teams were made known this past week. The list includes the senior basketball team which is composed of returnees Jean Willis, Judy Smith, Sally Meredith, Sandy McMullen and newcomers Joy Mahood, Marg White, Elaine Thompson, Joan Wachna, Sue Pierce, and possibly veterans Lil Bobson and Milly Hutt.

If you want to read more names continue reading because this next paragraph will be devoted to the intermediate basketball you know what. It includes Elaine Atkinson, Mary Russell, Barbara Black, Betty Gallagher, Jane Dusan, Julia Gules, Judy Geay, Mary Timmins, Lynn Philpott, Marg Thompson and Marg Merritt.

It is quite possible that some of the girls will be shifted from one team to the other before the intercollegiate tournament. This, of course, depends on the play of the girls in games scheduled before the big tournament.

In one game already played, the intermediate girls lost a very close decision to the Y.W.H.A. The Toronto players seemed slightly lost on the large "X" floor. They had some trouble finding one another with their passes, which might have been due to the size of the floor but more likely was due to the fact that they have been playing together as a team for a short time... a very short time.

Other intercollegiate teams released this week were the badminton and indoor archery squads. Previous Toronto teams in both of these sports have been very successful in tournament play, winning the championships for the past few years.

The archery team should have no trouble in retaining their title if they shoot as well as they have been in their many 8 a.m. practices. Three of the four men, pardon me, four woman team are girls who helped Toronto win last year. They are June Seivour, top score in last year's shoot, Jean Hayward, and Marg Merritt. The only new comer is Vilja Kasep who played on the intercollegiate outdoor archery team.

Turning to badminton we have Pat Wood the only veteran, Dorothy Vernon, Barb Goodwin and Jill Sagard. The toughest competition for these girls will probably come from Queen's.

Here and Now

TODAY

1:00 p.m. — The Quaker Study Group will discuss "The Quaker Testimony" at 100 in Room 114.

— SCM and FROS will discuss "Happiness on Canadian Outlook" led by Prof. E. Gatham, Dept. of Geology, at 3 Willecks St.

3:00 p.m. — The SCM will discuss "The Life of Jesus" in the SCM Office Hart House.

SATURDAY

2:15 p.m. — The International Students' Festival Cultural Exhibition at Hart House Debates Room will be open free to all students.

8:15 p.m. — Dr. D. C. Williams, U of T psychology professor and Director of the Department of Extension, will speak to the Royal Canadian Institute on "Seeing is Believing" in Convocation Hall.

SUNDAY

9:15 a.m. — Canterbury Corporate Communion takes place in Trinity College Chapel.

TYPEWRITERS

$1.00 A WEEK RENTS . . .
 . . . $1.50 A WEEK RENTS

Get a free typing course and a liberal trade-in allowance for your old typewriter when you buy a new modern machine from us.

Phone HO. 1-1843 Today

1:15 p.m. — All students are invited to a tea at Canterbury Centre on 99 St. George St.

8:45 p.m. — Rt. Rev. D. B. Marsh, Bishop of the North will preach on: "The Eskimo, the Church, and Arctic development", at an SCM "Sunday Night Fireside", in the Coachhouse, 110 St. George St.

MONDAY

8 p.m. — The Philosophical Society lectures Professor Emil Fackenheim of the Dept. of Philosophy, speaking on "Martin Buber's Concept of Revelation" in the Wymilwood Music Room.

TUESDAY

1:20 p.m. — Several AVR leads will present a sneak preview of scenes from "Have Toga, Will Travel" in the Wymilwood Music Room.

UNIVERSITY BLAZERS

Custom Made

Especially Priced for Students
$27.50

Fine Flannel Worsted Trousers
$16.50

Business Hours: 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.
 Monday through Saturday
 Suits made to measure
 latest styles and design

PARNES Clothing Co.

706 QUEEN STREET WEST
 EM 6-2025
 Sample at S.A.C. Office

Vic Coeds Are Iglooless Builders, Police Clueless

Two disappointed Victoria College coeds learned today they won't be able to sleep in the Winter Carnival igloo after all.

Carnival officials found their igloo smashed in this morning after a 1½ day building spree finished last night.

The men in charge of the igloo claim the ice hut could not have fallen in. "When we finished it last night it was frozen solid—one of the boys even walked on top of it", a spokesman said last night.

Police checked the igloo at 12 p.m. last night and reported it was in perfect condition. This morning the 7-foot hut was demolished.

Builders say the hut was probably broken in by "several people jumping on top of it". They have no idea who was responsible for the damage.

Two Vic girls were slated to sleep in the igloo tonight, and two male members of the Blind-ed Dog Society had volunteered to take over the hut tomorrow night.

Five tons of ice for the igloo was donated by Lake Simcoe Ice and Fuel Co. There is no possibility of rebuilding the hut, officials said.

Last year's igloo was damaged by a fire set at night in its interior. The persons responsible were never discovered.

Scholarship

A scholarship for one year of study in Germany is being offered by World University Service.

The scholarship provides free tuition tenable at any university in Germany. It also includes 12 months of board and lodging, and free rail travel from the German border to the chosen university.

The scholarship is open to Canadian students in their third or final year. Applicants must have been active in extra-curricular activities.

Application forms can be obtained by writing to WUS, 2 Willecks St., Toronto 5. Deadline for applications is Feb. 20.

For Germany

JAN RUBES

BASS

CONCERT IN HART HOUSE

This Sunday, February 1st

9 p.m.

Great Hall

Tickets for this concert may be picked up from the Hall Porter's desk by all members of Hart House. Women are most welcome if escorted by members.

The Music Committee of Hart House has brought Jan Rubes from New York especially for this concert.

DON'T MISS IT

ALL-DAY MILDNESS

Black Cat PLAIN CORK FILTER

Nobody Gave A Hoot For J. Paul Sheedy* Till Wildroot Cream-Oil Gave Him Confidence

"I like everybody avoid me so?" howled J. Paul. "Because you're such a rolled old bird", replied his best buddy. Well that really opened Sheedy's eyes. He took a taxi-dermist down to the store and pecked up a bottle of Wildroot Cream-Oil. Now he's the picture of confidence because he knows his hair always looks its best from morning till night. So if people have been hooting at your messy hair, screech for a bottle or tube of Wildroot Cream Oil. It's guaranteed to keep your hair neat but not greasy. And all the gals will go out of their way to break to you.

* 131 No. Harris Hill Rd., Williamsville, N. Y.

Wildroot Cream-Oil
 gives you confidence

It's Fun to DANCE

AT

Mart Kenney's Ranch

EVERY SATURDAY
 CANADA'S FINEST
 BANDS

Special Student Rates
 $1.00 per person
 Reservation And
 Information
 AT. 8-1282

CLASSIFIED ADS.

$1 DOWN BUYS ANY MAKE
 Brand new typewriters, $59 up. Some models $30 off. Free home demonstration. Free typing course. 1959 models rented, lowest rates 375 Jane-Humber, RO 6-1103.

SUMMER CAMP
 In Northern Michigan desires interviews with university students who are interested in waterfront or counselling positions. If interested call Dr. Don or Mrs. Joan Rosenthal, WA 2-0980, after 6.

TYPIST (Electric)
 Fast, accurate, personalized service. Theses, essays, letters, dictation. Reasonable rates. Irene Kenyon, 146 Bernard Avenue, WA 3-4011.

FOR SALE
 Drum set — Slingerland Blue Sparkle set with Zildjian Cymbals, used one summer. $350. Call BA 1-6368.

ROOMS FOR RENT
 Excellent facilities for 6 male students. Meals served if desired. $27 per month. 84 Lowther Avenue, (2 blocks north of Bloor near St. George) WA 4-0233.

CAMP IN ONTARIO
 with general camp program, plus Jewish cultural program desires summer section make staff. Apply Box 7, S.A.C. Office.

TWO STUDENTS
 desire ride either to and from Peterborough or one way only on weekends. Please contact Joan at CH 1-1992 after 8 p.m.

EATON'S

MADE-TO-MEASURE SHOP breaks a style tradition and fashions the new '59 blazer in a very new 'Ivy' styling!

Worth Noting: neat stitching set one-quarter inch from the edges of the jacket; polished metal buttons; deep centre vent; subtle stripe lining. Classic wool flannel. Made-to-Measure, each 49.50.

Eaton's Main Store
 Second Floor
 Dept. 230

MAD SCRAMBLE above contains an element of method and won for the Engineers the annual chariot race before University College Friday. Only serious competition in the highlight of Winter Carnival proceedings, the Forestry chariot dropped out early in the race.
(Varsity staff photo by Stabins)

THE VARSITY

Vol. LXXVIII — No. 69

Monday, February 2nd, 1959

Saskatchewan Makes Bid For East-West Play-Off

By JOHN BROOKS
Varsity Sports Editor

The University of Toronto Athletic Directorate may have solidly squashed possibilities of a Canadian Intercollegiate hockey championship this season, but the idea isn't dead yet.

Not by a long shot.

Mitro Makarchuk, first-year University College student who last week offered to underwrite a best-of-three final here March 12, 13 and 14 (if necessary), has received feelers from the University of Saskatchewan.

Sam Filer, spokesman for the Saskatoon university, wired Makarchuk yesterday to invite his consideration of staging a similar series in that city instead of Toronto.

The telegram read:

"Regret U of T unable to see obvious benefits of your proposal for three-game East-West Intercollegiate hockey final. Would you consider holding series at U of S under similar terms offered U of T?"

"We are quite interested and feel such a series will be invaluable in building better Canadian student spirit."

Makarchuk, commenting on the wire, said he would prefer to sponsor a Toronto series, but added he was quite prepared to investigate fully the Saskatchewan offer.

"I know nothing at all about their facilities, and have wired back asking for more detailed information. I would, however, want to be there for any final, and I'm not too keen on taking a week off school at this stage of the year," he said.

Possibilities of holding a final this year appear slim, however. Varsity has indicated it would not go ahead with the series without official sanction from the Ontario-Quebec Athletic Association.

The O-QAA holds its annual meeting in mid-March and any decision forthcoming from the meeting would be too late to act upon this season.

The U of T directorate hedged over permitting "outsiders" interests to make possible profit from a university team. The Saskatchewan telegram, however, indicated U of S would turn over any profit to Makarchuk.

The entire matter hinged on Varsity Blues successfully retaining the Eastern college title. They solidified their chances Friday night with a 12-4 victory over Laval Rouge et Or (see story page seven).

The Western representative would be from the University of Saskatchewan, Alberta or Manitoba. Although Alberta has won the title 19 of the last 21 years, it appears Manitoba has the inside track on the 1959 crown.

PRETTY ROSALIE Kerbekian of Victoria College, a Winter Carnival queen hopeful, went through her stunts with gusto during competition Friday.
(Varsity staff photo by Stabins)

Igloo Smashed, Spirit Cooled

By JAYNE NESBITT
Varsity Staff Reporter

Winter Carnival at the University of Toronto began with an igloo in ruins on the front campus and ended in a state of semi-collapse.

Emmanuel Mary Thomas, the Queen...

Two girls from Victoria College were to sleep in the igloo on Thursday night, and two male students were to occupy it on Friday night.

On Thursday morning, the igloo was no more. It had been built of five tones of ice, and had frozen solid during two days of icy weather.

Powerful forces had smashed it sometime Wednesday night.

Friday's Carnival events on campus went well. The Faculty of Engineering eliminated all competition before the Chariot Race, and won a sweeping victory on the icy front campus.

The only entry which had dared to brave Skule was a small red sleigh from the Faculty of Forestry. It didn't even cross the starting line.

At the same time, the Snow Queen contestants were making bacon and eggs, sawing logs and throwing tennis balls at a snowman. Warden Joseph McCulley of Hart House, and John O'Leary of the Canadian Broadcasting Corp. were the judges.

Friday night, the pretty contestants were introduced on the ice, following the Laval University-U of T hockey game. Mike Eliek, Captain of the victorious Varsity Blues presented the Queen and her attendants with bouquets of red roses.

Mary Thomas, representing Emmanuel College was crowned Queen. Her two princesses were Joan Ruby (III SMC) and Andrea Keachie (I PHE).

Trinity College and their statues of Peanut, Linus and Snoopy won the Snow Sculpture Contest, and a U of T tug.

The Varsity hockey team mustered its strength in the King Cole Room and emerged to defeat the Students' Administrative Council 7-4 at Varsity Arena.

Harvey "Rocket" Shepherd, News Editor, was the outstanding player for the Varsity.

On Saturday, the Carnival moved up to the Hart House farm at (Continued on Page 6)

For Study Fund

$250,000 Asked

Staff members at the University of Toronto have called on the Federal Government to set up a $250,000 fund to encourage study and research by selected Canadian scholars in the field of Slavic studies.

"Government has got to do something," Prof. George Lucky, head of the university's department of Slavic Studies, said last night. "The Russians have encouraged the international idea that they are the great enigma, but I think we can find out a lot about their thinking."

"Many people are not aware that the intense interest in things Russian which exists in this country today is to a large extent frustrated because we must rely upon the United States for our knowledge," he added.

Recognizing the need for an all-Canadian contribution to East-West understanding, a small group at the U of T has quietly submitted a brief to the Canada Council proposing a five-year program to help deal with the problem.

Two proposals are contained in the brief; one, which would cost about $50,000 a year, calls for the freeing of young scholars with a knowledge of Slavic languages and academic qualification from ordinary duties while providing them with an academic atmosphere conducive to research in the Slavic field; the other, estimated to cost some $7,500 yearly, would set up a summer school for the very intensive study of the Russian language by present members of university staffs and possible future members who are now postgraduate students.

Assembly To Advance Grad Senate Elections

An amendment to the University of Toronto Act moving election of members of the university Senate to the spring, from between spring and fall terms as at present, is being prepared.

"Approval by the provincial legislature is necessary to make the change, described last night by U of T Registrar J. C. Evans as "purely procedural".

The change would affect the approximate one-third of the 159-man body elected by college and faculty graduates from their own numbers, he said.

The new election time would permit the new Senate to take office at the beginning of the fall term, he added.

In addition to the graduate representatives, the Senate includes ex officio members of the university's administrative staff, elected representatives of the teaching staff, and appointed representatives of licensing bodies such as the Association of Professional Engineers.

The U of T Registrar, in his capacity as Senate secretary, conducts the graduate poll every fourth year, Dr. Evans said. In theory, this could mean a mail poll of some 60,000 graduates, although the limited number of nominations usually makes the required polling far lighter, he added.

Native Sons At U of T

A U of T recruit of the Native Sons of Canada last night said a campus branch of the society is in the planning stages.

William McAuley (II SMC) said 17 members have already been recruited for the new campus movement including several Orangemen.

"We are hoping for general campus support for the new branch," he said.

The Native Sons have as their aims to establish "O Canada" as the Canadian national anthem, and to create a "distinctive" Canadian flag.

"We have our own flag," McAuley said. "It consists of a diagonal line separating the flag into a red and a white triangle, with a green maple leaf in the center."

This flag won second prize in a 1945 competition.

"We are attempting to obtain nation-wide approval for our flag," McAuley said.

International Student Life Represented in Hart House

Over 150 students from all over the globe attended the first festival of the U of T International Students' Organization Friday in Hart House.

The festival consisted of a banquet, an international cultural display and native entertainment from seven countries.

Hart House Warden Joseph M. Miller spoke after the dinner of the "banquet" pattern of Canadian life to which the various international groups contributed.

The guests in Hart House from universities all over North America, the Canadian and countries and Europe testified, he said, to the international spirit of education.

Displays of Japanese, Chinese, Polish, German, Ukrainian and Canadian groups showed the culture of each country.

One eye-catching exhibit was a three-foot high lion's head of paper match from China. The head and body are carried by two people in the famous Lion Dance of the Chinese New Year.

National dances and songs following the display ranged from a presentation of old German waltzes to a Japanese koto performance.

Although the idea for the festival originated four years ago, this year's ISO president, Anthony Ip, was the first to bring it into being.

The festival ends with a dance on February 27.

Science Speaker

Dr. J. Tuzo Wilson, President of the International Union of Geodesy and Geophysics, will speak at a meeting of four Professional Development groups of the Engineering Institute of Canada tomorrow.

Professor of Geophysics at the University of Toronto, Dr. Wilson was director of Operational Research and Exercise Muskox for the "Canadian Army Expedition in the Arctic".

The meeting is at Cody Hall, School of Nursing, at 7.30 p.m.

Not Much Time Left For HH Photo Meet

Members of Hart House will have a chance to prove themselves members of the noble lineage of Karsh, but their time is running out.

Deadline for entries in the Hart House Exhibition of Photographs is Friday, Feb. 13, at 6 p.m.

The exhibition will be a showing of the best work of campus photographers, from Feb. 17-28 in the Hart House Art Gallery. There are two major divisions for entries; black and white prints and color slides.

Trophies will be awarded in a number of classes in the first division, and a trophy will be given for the best color slide.

Honorable mentions will be made in all divisions, and acceptance stickers will be placed on all prints hung, by judges.

This year, judges are commercial photographers Herb Nott and Fraser Byrne, and top print-maker Ron Sorley of the Toronto Camera Club.

Many U of T photography fans have gone on from this exhibition to do well in outside competitions.

All entries must be handed in to the Hart House Hall Porter's desk before the deadline, Feb. 13.

U of T Prof. Heads Body

Leonard Searle, professor of astronomy at the University of Toronto, has been elected president of the Toronto Centre of the Royal Astronomical Society.

His name was announced with the election of other officers to the body over the weekend.

HOCKEY VARSITY BLUES

VS.

WHITBY

LAST CHANCE!

Get your special price (50c with student hockey book) tickets today — until 5 p.m. at

ATHLETIC OFFICE

GAME TIME — 8 p.m. TONIGHT

The International Students' Festival Committee

expresses its many thanks and appreciation of the interest shown and the support given by the guests, staff members, students, friends and many community members present at the Festival on the 30th - 31st January, 1959, at Hart House.

Come With the Rest... To See the Best...

YOUR ALL-NEW VARSITY REVUE
MUSICAL COMEDY PRESENTATION

'Have Toga, Will Travel'

FEBRUARY 9-14
HART HOUSE THEATRE

Tickets at S.A.C. Office Now!

How to Get Your Free Copy of

"The Installation Lectures"

Texts of the Installation Lectures, delivered on the day of Dr. Bissell's installation as President, are in the hands of the printer. As the hundreds who were turned away will testify, the lectures were given to packed houses. Professor Northrop Frye, Victoria College, spoke on "Humanities in a New World"; Professor Clyde Kluckhohn, Harvard University, on "The Scientific Study of Values"; and Professor V. B. Wigglesworth, University of Cambridge, on "Science: Pure and Applied".

A booklet containing the three lectures will be available at no cost to graduate students and undergraduates who request it. If you would like a copy, please complete the coupon printed below and mail it to Department of Information and Publicity, Simcoe Hall, University of Toronto.

The printing order will be based on the number of replies received by February 15, 1959. The order cannot be increased and free copies will not be reserved after that date.

Please send me a free copy of "Installation Lectures"

Name (Please PRINT)

Address (Please PRINT)

TUESDAY LECTURE SERIES

"Prophetic Profiles"

Prof. H. N. Milnes,
German Dept., U.C.

will speak on:

"NIETZSCHE"

Tues., Feb. 3—Room 8,

UC — 5 p.m.

Presented by the Student Christian Movement

COMING SOON

Graduate Students'

Valentine Dance

AT

The Sign of The Steer

AT

Friday, Feb. 13th

Tickets $3.00 Per Couple
Available at 44 Hoskin

CLASSIFIED ADS.

$1 DOWN BUYS ANY MAKE
Brand new typewriters. $59 up. Some models $80 off. Free home demonstration. Free typing course 1959 models rented, lowest rates 375 Jane-Humber, RO 6-1163.

TYPIST (Electric)
Fast, accurate, personalized service. Theses, essays, letters, dictation. Reasonable rates. Irene Kenyon, 146 Bernard Avenue, WA 3-4011.

FOR SALE
Drum set — Slingerland Blue Sparkle set with Zildjian Cymbals, used one summer. $350. Call BA 1-6368.

ROOMS FOR RENT
Excellent facilities for 6 male students. Meals served if desired. $27 per month. 84 Lowther Avenue, (2 blocks north of Bloor near St. George) WA 4-0233.

CAMP IN ONTARIO
with general camp program, plus Jewish cultural program desires senior section male staff. Apply Box 7, S.A.C. Office.

MAGAZINES
Before buying or renewing any subscription... give us a call. We offer the lowest possible student prices. These prices are exclusive for U of T Varsity Subscription Centre, RU 2-2521.

Royal Conservatory of Music HOLLYWOOD STRING QUARTET

(Slatkin, Shure, Dinkin, Aller)

Feb. 12: Beethoven, Op. 18 No. 5; Prokofiev, Op. 92 Ravel.
Feb. 13: Mozart, K. 458; Kodaly, Op. 10; Brahms Op. 51 No. 2.
Feb. 14: Haydn, Op. 77 No. 1; Bartok, No. 3; Beethoven, Op. 127
Concert Hall at 8.30 (Free Parking, coat checking) Subs. $6, (students, $4). Single Tickets $2.50 (students $1.50). Mail orders, cheques payable Royal Conservatory. EM 8-2655.

Hart House

CHAPEL SERVICES:

Every day: Morning Prayers: 8.45-8.55 a.m.

Evening Prayers: 4.50-5.00 p.m.

Thursday: Holy Communion: 8.00 a.m.

ART GALLERY THIS WEEK

CONTEMPORARY JAPANESE PRINTS

and

"ATOMS FOR PEACE" — Exhibition of Photographs

MONDAY, 5th FEBRUARY:

CAMERA CLUB: Print Mounting Demonstration by Mr. W. J. Blackhall — 12.10 p.m. — Camera Club Rooms

SING SONG: 1.25 p.m. — East Common Room

ART LIBRARY: Curator on duty 1 p.m. in the Art Gallery

GLEE CLUB FULL REHEARSAL: 5 p.m. — Debates Room

TABLE TENNIS CLUB: Play as usual on Wednesday evening

NOW!

big discounts for students and faculty at SHERATON HOTELS with a Sheraton Student or Faculty I.D. card

Here's how to cut your travel expenses. Sheraton Hotels have special low rates for students, faculty, and all other college personnel during weekends, vacations, and summer. Rates even lower with two or more people in the same room. Group rates are also available for clubs, teams, and other organizations.

Arrangements may be made for credit privileges at Sheraton Hotels. The Sheraton Student-Faculty Plan is good at all 48 Sheraton Hotels in 39 cities in the U. S. A. and in Canada.

You must present your I.D. card when you register at the hotel to be eligible for these special discounts.

Get your Sheraton I.D. card from:

MR. PAT GREEN
College Relations Department
Sheraton Building
470 Atlantic Avenue
Boston 17, Massachusetts

For Black-Tie Opening, VIP's AVR Heads For Opening Night

By HARVEY SHEPHERD
Varsity News Editor

With the opening of the U of T's All-Varsity-Revue only a week away, show director Dick Dean last night said the show has been entirely put together.

"We're just ironing out the little things," Dean said.

Curtain rises on the two-hour show entitled "Have Toga, Will Travel" at 8.30 p.m., Monday, Feb. 9. The opening night is to be a black-tie affair with a list of patrons headed by the Italian ambassador to Canada attending.

Ambassador Alessandrini will be accompanied by Toronto's mayor Nathan Phillips, U of T Chancellor Samuel Beatty, U of T President Claude T. Bissell and Hart House Warden Joseph McCully.

Also expected to attend the opening is Bob Allen, Canadian Broadcasting Corp. supervising director, show producer Ed Lord said last night.

Students at Trinity and Victoria Colleges will get a preview of a number of songs from the show Monday and Wednesday respectively.

Lord stressed that tickets are on sale for Monday's opening and students purchasing opening-night tickets are not required to appear with black ties.

The show, which runs from Monday to Saturday, is keynoted by "whimsy", Lord said. "It is light entertainment and requires no great intellectual perception on the part of the audience."

"Have Toga", written by Dean and Stan Farrow, the show's musical director, is not in the satiric school of "Spring Thaw" and "My Fur Lady", Dean said.

Stars include: Ruth Ann Scott (III Trin), Sandra Stephenson (III Trin), Roger White (II Meds), Neil McLean (OCE) and Ian Garratt (I Music).

Featured in the cast is an emperor Nero who plays his fiddle after an extravagant "fire ballet" sequence, Dean said. At other points during the show the emperor also plays bagpipes and clarinet, Dean added.

Show producer Lord was set-designer for last year's AVR and Skule Nite as well as for a number of Hart House plays. Lord is a graduate of the Ontario College of Art.

Victoria graduate Arline Patterson, "Have Toga" choreographer, is also a veteran of last year's AVR, in addition to three editions of Skule Nite.

"Have Toga" co-authors Farrow and Dean also collaborated with another librettist on last year's "Vic Bob" which included the widely acclaimed number "The Opposite Sex."

In addition, Farrow wrote a couple of numbers for last year's AVR and has composed several other original numbers in connection with his work as music director of a summer resort lodge.

The "Have Toga" score "tops off anything Farrow's ever done before," Dean said.

The two-hour show is about half dialogue and half music, he added.

ROGER WHITE and Sandra Stephenson whom it up in togas and Roman cars as the last week of rehearsals for the AVR get under way. Rehearsals continue all this week as the cast hustles towards the opening date a week today.

Jargon Deadline Gets Extended

There have been so many last minute contributions to "Jargon", the all-faculty literary magazine, that the deadline for contributions has been extended to Wednesday.

"I feel there may be many more people ready to contribute who feel it is too late," Jargon Editor John Robert Colombo said last night.

"We have thirty separate contributions and these, combined with about 20 per cent reprint material from existing undergraduate magazines, will make a fine issue," he said.

To date there have been no contributions from Graduate English or SPS students, and only two from Victoria College.

The magazine, to be released early in March, will be 48 pages, with a semi-soft cover.

"Copies will be mailed out to editors, and distributed to all those concerned," Colombo said. "It is hoped some payment may be made for contributions at the time."

On Thursday all manuscripts will be graded by faculty editors. The actual editing will be done by a small committee of SAC members and people experienced in such publications.

Contributions should be made to the editor at 73 St. George St., to SAC representatives or to the SAC office.

No Word

Delegates to the World University Service Summer Seminar have been chosen, but the names will not be released until Wednesday.

"Although we know who the three delegates will be, they have not been notified, and until they are, we cannot release the names," WUS Chairman Sue Evans said last night.

University Radio May Be Coming

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld.—CUP—There's a 50-50 chance that present plans for forming a national network of Canadian university radio broadcasters will bear fruit, Dave Warren of Memorial University of Newfoundland said last night.

"The CBC are still somewhat sceptical but they are nevertheless willing to listen", Warren originator of the idea for the Canadian Association of University Broadcasters, said.

Idea for the organization germinated last fall when MUN's Students' Council adopted a motion by Warren proposing the formation of a CAUB. The motion was then forwarded to universities all across Canada.

"Nothing but favorable replies have been received so far", Warren said. "Nrcus and WUSC have also endorsed the proposals and CBC have shown interest", he added.

Present plans call for a weekly program originating from one of the CBC's production divisions, with a CBC producer co-ordinating the different regions at a national level.

The program would consist of weekly news reports sent to the production centre via closed-circuit coupled with non-dated material which would be mailed in on tape as obtained. "General format would be similar to that now used on 'News Roundup' or 'Trans-Canada Matinee'", Warren said, with material being drawn from all Canadian universities.

Purpose of the program is "to give the general public a better insight into Canadian universities and into Canadian university education", he said. "It would give the public a picture of the makeup and operation of the university community, including the faculties", he added.

"It is also hoped that such a program would be a major factor in bringing all Canadian students into a closer relationship with each other", Warren said.

"It's planned to hold a conference in Toronto sometime this month to try and get this operation off the ground", he said.

"Dates for the meet have not yet been finalized, but present indications point to Feb. 16 or 17," he continued.

"The conference, which is to be held in one of CBC-Toronto's conference rooms, will probably last three days", he said.

"The conference will be asked to form the CAUB and then we'll spend the remainder of the time discussing various program formats", Warren said.

"A representative from the CAUB will then present our conclusions to the CBC and they will be discussed with Eugene Hallmar, CBC's director of radio networks", he added.

"We all realize that a lot of planning and discussion must take place between both parties before a program of this type can be produced on a national scale, but the forthcoming conference is the first and biggest step in the right direction", he said.

The following universities have agreed to send delegates to the conference: MUN (Dave Warren), Dalhousie (Fred Woolridge), UNB, Assumption University in Windsor, Saskatchewan (M. D. Smiley), Manitoba, Alberta, UBC (Bill Ballantine), Carlton (Josephine Leikin), Sir George Williams (Jean Pelguin), UWO, Queen's (Neil Berglund) and U of T (Jean Dubel).

Nrcus President Mortimer Bistrisky and Executive Secretary Andre L'Heureux are also expected to attend the conference sessions.

Orator's Loss "Regretted"

Resignation of Peter Dembski as President of the St. Michael's College Oratorical Society has occasioned words of regret and protest from SMC newspaper, "The Mike".

"Mike" editors Tom Embler and Bill Young described his resignation as "a great loss" in last week's issue of the paper. His resignation may lead to a loss of effectiveness on the part of the Society, they said.

"Peter is known as one who sticks to his principles and upholds them under fire from all sides," an editorial said.

Dembski resigned in protest over a decision by the St. Mike's Students' Administrative Council to combine the Senate Club and Forensic Circle in a Debate Union.

In his resignation letter Dembski said he felt the Council "did not fulfill the functions of a government" in its decision.

Further regrets over Dembski's resignation were expressed by second-year student Brigid Elson in a letter to the editor.

Miss Elson described the Council's action as "a poorly conceived and ill-executed move."

Bloody Mary?

Give blood and relax afterwards with a "Bloody Mary."

At least one group of donors will be in this happy situation after the campus blood drive.

Beta Sigma Rho has voted to donate a bottle of imported vodka to the fraternity on campus having the highest percentage of active members donate blood.

The campaign extends from Feb. 16-20, a total of five days to bleed for the Red Cross.

Beta Sigma Rho is only concerned with one thing regarding their offer. There is no way to record what fraternity a donor might belong to.

"We hope the offer of a bottle of vodka will be enough of an incentive for the individual fraternities to keep track of who gives blood," said Boris Freeman of Beta Sigma Rho last night.

Donors must be enrolled to give blood. Enrolment cards are available from student service representatives in the various colleges and faculties.

THE VARSITY

FOUNDED 1880

Published by

The Students' Administrative Council
of the University of Toronto

Toronto 5, Canada

Member Canadian University Press

Business and Advertising Manager

E. A. Macdonald - WA 3-6221

Editorial and News Office

Basement, SAC Building - WA 3-8742, WA 3-8113

The opinions expressed in this paper are those of the editor.

Editor-in-Chief

Doug Marshall

Managing Editor

Mark Nichols

Editor without portfolio

Sam Ajzenstat

News Editor

Harvey Shepherd

Associate News Editors

Ed Roberts and Al Walker

Sports Editor

John Brooks

Associate Sports Editors

Dave Griner and Gene Glesky

Publicity Editor

Susie Breslin

Features Editor

Liz Binks

Co-AM&D Editors

Maryann Talbot and Warren Wilson

CUP Editor

Vicky Innes

Photo Editor

Mike Cavanagh

Make-up Editor

Nancy Takeuchi

Staff Cartoonists

Marg McMeekin and Sheldon Greenberg

Mortician

Roger Wild

Today's Issue: Bill Musgrove, Dave Halton, Jayne Nesbitt, Diane Jackman (in spirit only), Rhio Pild and with thanks to Andy Stabins for another beautiful job.

"Suffer yourselves to be blamed, surprised, concerned; suffer yourselves to be hated, but publish your opinions. It is not a right, it is a duty."

farewell

There exists in this university a number of student activities which regularly pop out like an annual cuckoo clock, perform a perfunctory duty and then disappear again. Not all these activities are useful, some of them are not even enjoyable, but they come up on schedule, year after year, just because they fit into the stale tradition of student life and because they appeared the year before.

Student life might be more profitable and even enjoyable if two or three of these activities were abolished once and for all. One program in particular which is fast proving the futility of its own existence is the annual Winter Carnival.

Winter Carnivals can be lavish or they can be drab; they can be the highlight of the Spring term or they can be merely routine exercises for the all-round freshman. The University of Laval's Winter Carnival, backed by fervent tradition and lots of snow, is magnificent. The University of Toronto's Winter Carnival, backed by mediocrity and slush, is duller than a rear-view of University College.

Better organization might have sparked some sort of gleam on the Winter Carnival snows of last weekend, but we doubt it. This university, this collection of self-interested estates, is too large to support interest in anything but the most spectacular activities.

The Winter Carnival costs money yet serves no concrete purpose beyond that of entertaining the undergraduates. If only 100 people responded to the entertainment, money is obviously being wasted.

We suggest the Students' Administrative Council act on the suggestion of its predecessor, abolish the Winter Carnival and find something more profitable on which to spend its money.

Council members certainly have given no indication of their support for the farce beyond approving a few expenditures.

Only four of them appeared to play hockey against The Varsity staff at the weekend's most heavily publicized function.

They should be able to relegate the Carnival to oblivion without too many sentimental pangs of regret.

hail

Forty fortunate representatives of the University's 13,000 students spent last weekend as the guests of the University of Montreal.

This year's Carabin exchange was no better or no worse than the nine others which came before it. In other words it was one of the most wonderful things we have experienced at university.

And for once, in a formal way, we want to say thank you to everybody connected with it and hope that, whatever else the students of this university become bored with, they never allow the Carabin weekend to die.

Busman's Holiday

By LIZ BINKS

Some of the greatest word-pictures in the history of language have been conjured up by statesmen in their speeches of encouragement, victory, or defeat to the people they lead. Since Demosthenes first tried to shout out the sea, men have stepped forward to articulate the hopes of nations and unify them into a vision of past, present and future.

Canadians should be proud that in this century they can claim one of these men and that already his utterances are such that they will some day form chapter headings in the history of man.

In a holiday broadcast to the nation, Prime Minister Diefenbaker offered such words when he assured his people that they, along with the other Commonwealth countries, were soon to be engaged in a program of "mutual self-help".

That speech really made the New Year worth celebrating. Somehow it made one feel there was no longer cause for worry about this Canadian mediocrity everyone accuses us of because one could now stride forward confidently into one of the most uniquely outstanding epochs Canada has ever known.

At least, that is how I felt—after I had given Mr. Diefenbaker's words due consideration and had come up with what I hoped was a correct interpretation which would do them the credit they deserved.

Because all great utterances like this are necessarily hard to understand. They are meant to make people think and if they were perfectly clear from the start people would just forget about them as soon as they had been spoken.

So I did my duty as a Canadian—probably the way many of you did—and I thought carefully about "mutual self-help".

I thought of all the barbers who have nobody to cut their hair, of all the cobblers who have nobody to shine their shoes, the lawyers who have nobody to plead their cases, the cooks who have nobody to make their meals. I thought of the politicians who have nobody to vote for but themselves.

Gradually the vision began to clarify itself in my mind—a great and glorious busman's holiday for Canada!

I thought of how this would involve the rest of the Commonwealth and found the possibilities to be truly exciting. We could start breeding rabbits to ease some of the burden for Australia.

Perhaps the government could arrange to swap some Sons of Freedom for some Mau-Maus so that we in Canada could have serious racial problems and still give something in exchange.

We could export more and more beef and dairy products to New Zealand to make up for all the beef and dairy products they import to us.

There's something for everybody in Mr. Diefenbaker's plan. Kind of like giving a would-be suicide that extra shove he needs as he teeters on a bridge-rail.

And it's not only that the plan is a sound one. That part of it is easy enough to appreciate for any thinking person. It's the artless imagery of the phrase that is so captivating. It must take a versatile mind indeed to sustain such weighty thoughts and at the same time to articulate them in such simple terms. It seems unjust, somehow, that Gertrude Stein achieved lasting fame for taking eight words to describe a mere rose, when Mr. Diefenbaker took only three to describe the future of so many nations.

With the boy scouts and girl guides of Canada we offer a mute vote of thanks to something too intangible to praise.

Nationalism

Dear Sir:

Patriotism, just now, doesn't seem to be in fashion around here. If you want to show you're up on things, apparently the expected thing is to be rather down on patriotism.

Or call it nationalism. You know, that's what those natives in Asia and Africa do. Now those Egyptians, for instance; they were hardly playing the game when they nationalized that canal, were they?

Or, instead, we can try to look at the facts. Where do we think these nationalists got the idea in the first place, if not from us? Can it be denied that what we are witnessing in Africa and Asia today is the very same exciting force that swept across Europe and America in the last century?

To deny nationalism, as it happens, would be to deny a large part of what we call "the heritage of Western Man". This applies not only to our political institutions, (though liberal democracy was certainly a product of this development), but also to the field of culture. It almost seems as if every upsurge of nationalism was accompanied by an artistic flowering. Names like Shakespeare, Chopin, Goya, Whitman just begin the list of artists who drew inspiration from nationalism.

But now, they tell us, nationalism is a destructive force, leading only to hatred and war. Well, nobody could deny that nationalism, as cultivated in one country 1933-1944, could bear pretty tragic fruit for Europe as a whole. But does it always have to be carried that far?

Of course, we all hope that some day the entire world will freely join hands in peace and brotherhood. But what are we to do in the meanwhile?

Isn't it a fact that for our country to lose its nationhood now would not mean our merging with all the peoples of the world, but rather our absorption by one particular nation to our south?

If the students would look down from their ivory tower, they would see there is a growing national feeling among the people of our land. It seems about time we asked ourselves whether we cannot keep our internationalism and still be glad that we live in Canada; fully proud of our country's past, and hopeful about what it can achieve in the future.

Dan Goldstick (I UC)

For "The People"

Dear Sir:

Mr. Farley Mowat has been recently writing a series of articles for a Toronto newspaper dealing with the Eskimos. He is currently writing a new book concerning the position of our Eskimos.

Mr. Mowat upholds the Eskimos as men and not the childish animals as we know them. I feel that this series is one that should be read by most Canadians, not to be swallowed in one gulp as the gospel truth, but to be digested slowly in order to reap the real benefits.

What do we really know about the Eskimos? The legends keep the Eskimo as a happy creature living in his comfortable igloo. As Mr. Mowat says in his articles, they are not to be treated as children, but as men.

The are known to the RCMPs and the trading post men as "the people". Yes, and they are people. They are an industrious race who have proven themselves capable of performing a feat few men could master. This race of people has lived on the barrens for many years and survived. This alone is a difficult task.

Now, one of their main sources of food, the caribou, is dwindling. The government has stepped in to help, but moving them to an area where there is caribou is not necessarily the answer. The caribou are dwindling and the Eskimo must live.

The Eskimos are not unlike the white men. They have learned to work with the newcomers to the north, and have proven themselves capable.

Last summer I flew into the outpost of Bathurst Inlet with a man who has spent several summers in the Arctic. As he stepped from the small plane, he was greeted by a familiar face and a warm handshake. It was the Eskimo who had been his guide two years before.

The Eskimo has his rights the same as you or I. He quite often looks upon the white man as foolish and perhaps he has good reason to do so. As we might laugh at the Eskimo caught in the web of our society, he too might laugh at us struggling in the Arctic.

Eskimos should be given the chance to work, but not to become lazy. A most disheartening incident occurred as I was preparing to leave the outpost of Coppermine. An Eskimo boy ran down to the dock and held out a soap-stone carving for me to purchase. This is not a good thing. The Eskimo may begin to rely on selling his carvings and other "souvenirs" to the visitors. Even if there is an upsurge of people to go north there will never be enough "tourist trade" to support "the people".

The Eskimo is a person with his own traditions and feelings. He is industrious and if given a chance will work with us.

Don Garden, II UC

Who, Us?

MODESTLY. We admit it to the world, our victory in hockey over the SAC.

It's Ballet Month In Old Toronto

National Ballet dancers Harold da Silva and Earl Krand grapple in one of the National's new ballets "The Fisherman and His Soul". The company will be at the Royal Alexandra starting February '2.

At the Royal Alexandra for the next few weeks:
The National Ballet of Canada.

Mon. COPPELIA

*Tues. LE CARNIVAL
WINTER'S NIGHT
GALA PERFORMANCE

Wed. COPPELIA

*Thurs. COPPELIA

Fri. SWAN LAKE

Sat. Matinee: SWAN
LAKE

*Sat. Evening:
LES RENDEZVOUS
WINTER'S NIGHT
OFFENBACH IN THE UNDERWORLD

An original costume sketch for the National Ballet's production of "The Nutcracker". In addition to this Tchaikovsky perennial, the company will do such favorites as Coppelion and Offenbach in the Underworld.

Students may attend these evenings at a special rate of 75 cents.

Attention, Troubadours!

The season for serenading women's residences by moonlight is fast approaching. To meet the situation, a classical style, nylon stringed guitar is being sold for $50, with a mandolin thrown in free; Total retail value $100. For a sample pluck phone Barbara Whalen at WA. 4-6522.

ALL-Handel Concert Success

It seems that the practise followed by the Hart House Orchestra this season, in presenting some of its concerts based on the music of a single composer, is very popular, more so even than the usual method of building a concert around composers from several periods. Witness to this was the enthusiastic crowd which packed into the Great Hall Saturday evening for a concert of works by Handel (1685-1759).

The Associates' budget has been kind enough again to allow them to present a soloist. Their choice was Perry Bauman, perhaps Toronto's most accomplished oboist. He and the orchestra, under Dr. Boyd Neel, played one of Handel's numerous oboe concerti.

It almost goes without saying that Bauman's performance was of the highest calibre. We noted on another occasion a year or two ago, the individuality of this artist's style. His tone seems to belong to him alone; it is peculiarly rich and full, and very smooth and liquid to the ear. Combine with this the flawless technique and sincerity of approach, and you have the qualities necessary for a fine performance.

The remainder of the program was devoted to solely orchestral music. To start off, Dr. Neel led the ensemble in the overture to Faramondo; it is in the "French" style, so-called. As happens in most opening numbers anywhere, there were odd moments of dispute among the musicians; but these were very few.

The most chequered performance of all was that of the ninth Concerto Grosso from the Opus 6 group, in F. We expected the Fugue to show its seams here and there and catch the various voices of the group with its complexities. But they handled it superbly. On the other hand, the closing Gigue was distinctly unpleasant in spots, particularly at the beginning. Indeed, wherever the first violins played alone, their harshness of tone and slippery intonation made us seurm. And after all, the music is not that difficult. Horror of horrors, they played this movement as their encore!

Five movements from the huge collection of Water Music opened the second half. One can only say this was beautifully done. Dr. Neel has had a long and very personal experience with this music; it is said that his recording of it on the London label is the best available. Certainly he was able to impress his musicians with the charm, elegance, urbanity, and sense of balance in these pieces, for these qualities shone through with unstinted brilliance.

A less known Concerto Grosso, number five from Opus 3, closed the program. Like the Faramondo overture, there were many "new" themes and ideas here. Perhaps in future seasons the Orchestra will play more from this Opus, for it is at least as fine as the Opus 6, and actually follows it in chronology, coming as it does from the great Oratorio period.

Ted Barnes

portrait of artist as old dog

There may be artists who are tormented, brooding, fiercely silent young men, but Gulley Jimson in The Horse's Mouth (Odeon Hyland) is not one of them. As played by Alec Guinness he is a light-hearted 67-year-old ragamuffin who meets the challenge of earning a living by borrowing and filching from his friends. Desire for artistic recognition or public acceptance does not really concern Jimson. He knows exactly who and what he is, and the one thing he must do is get his inner vision onto a canvas or a wall as soon as he can. His goals are high and true, but his methods of reaching them have a strong flavour of low comedy.

Out from prison, with a bit of money borrowed from barmoid friend Coker, (Kay Walsh), he impersonates the president of the Royal Academy over the phone, bamboozles a wealthy patron and before long installs himself in a sumptuous apartment for six weeks to paint a gigantic mural of the raising of Lazarus. A sculptor friend (Michael Gough) crashes in on him, and the two of them have the time of their lives daubing and chiselling, while their host's furniture changes piece by piece into a handful of pawn tickets. The whole sequence is a richly comic tour de force.

A series of misadventures lead Jimson to his final challenge, a chapel wall where he can paint a giant-sized Last Judgment. The chapel is unfortunately condemned, but again, the important thing is to set the vision on concrete, and let the world deal with it afterwards. When the last brush stroke has been applied, Jimson gaily drives a tractor through the walls himself, and sets off in his house boat down the Thames, as if to some artist's Valhalla of his own.

Despite the dash and brilliance of most of the picture, the ending leaves one feeling oddly let down. This could be because the plot is not tightly integrated, but episodic, with the apartment scene standing out as the central episode.

It is a very funny scene, but it is also one in which the issues are most clearly defined and within everyone's grasp. In the closing scene, the practical man in all of us begins to wonder what an artist achieves by finishing a mural that is to be destroyed, and then suddenly leaving everything forever. What has happened to our boozy hero? The raggle-taggle swindler we laughed at has slipped out of our grasp, and changed, without our realizing it, into some sort of mystic personage, who is headed toward a place where we cannot follow. I think that is why The Horse's Mouth leaves the spectator dissatisfied. The banquet table at which we heartily enjoyed ourselves suddenly changed into a communion rail, and we wanted the laughter to go on and on.

Burt Koy

"This is the Duchess of Blackpool calling" says the great English painter Gulley Jimson, played by Alec Guinness in his own screen adaptation of Joyce Kilmer's 1906 novel The Horse's Mouth.

Here and Now

TODAY

1.10 p.m. — SCM study group will meet to discuss "The Gospel of John" in the Chaplain's office, Hart House.
4.6 p.m. — The weekly tea for Graduate students will be held in the Graduate Students' Hall, 44 Hosken Ave.
8 p.m. — There will be badminton for Graduate students in the Drill Hall.
8 p.m. — The Philosophical Society will present a paper on "Martin Buber's Concept of Revelation" in the Wilwood music room, Victoria College.

TUESDAY

1 p.m. — The FROS Music Group will listen to "The Music of Costa Rica" at 3 Willcocks St.

1.10-2 p.m. — The SCM will hold its discussion group at Trinity College, room 4.
1.20 p.m. — A preview of the AVR will be given by some of the cast at the Noon Hour Concert in Wilwood Music Room.
7.30 p.m. — There will be a joint meeting of the Professional Development Program of Engineering Institute of Canada in Cody Hall. Dr. Tuzo Wilson, OBE, will be guest speaker.

WEDNESDAY

1 p.m. — Howie Rubinoff (IV Meds) will talk on travel in the Scandinavian countries in the fourth lecture of the series "Destination: Europe" in room 33, UC.

HAIRCUTS

75c

SATURDAYS 85c
BEN'S BARBER SHOP
652 SPADINA AVE.
Near Harbord St.
Open Daily 9 a.m. to 7 p.m.
Closed Wednesday

TYPEWRITERS

$1.00 A WEEK BOYS ...
... $1.50 A WEEK RENTS

Get a free typing course and a liberal trade-in allowance for your old typewriter when you buy a new modern machine on us.

Phone HO. 1-1843 Today

SPECIAL ATTENTION — 25% Discount

ON ALL JEWELLERY PURCHASES

Including: Watches, Diamonds, Silverware, Lighters, Wallets, Pens, and Pencils, Radios, Clocks, Costume Jewellery etc. etc. You must have your A.T.L. card when making a purchase.

SHEFFIELD JEWELLERS

DIAMOND MERCHANTS

323 YONGE ST. (5 doors above Dundas)

TEL. EM. 6-0977

ALL-DAY MILDNESS

Black Cat PLAIN CORK FILTER

CCE Disturbed

Plan National Student Day

The National Federation of Canadian University Students expects to make liaison with the Canadian Conference on Education next year with regard to National University Student Day and Education Week.

A statement released by Nfcus executive secretary Andre L'Heureux said Nfcus was unaware when they designated March 5 this year as university student day that the CCE envisaged an "Education Week" in the same period.

At its recent Toronto convention, the statement said, the CCE was "disturbed" by a university day delegation.

Recent discussions with CCE executive members, the statement said, will result in a National Advisory Committee next year, comprising representatives of CCE, Nfcus and the Canadian Association of University Teachers.

The CCE, the statement continued, wishes to "strengthen direct cooperation at all levels" with Nfcus representatives.

For this year's program, CCE executive secretary Caroline Robbins has instructed local CCE branches to welcome assistance from Nfcus groups in promoting Education Week. However, the CCE Education Week Committee "is not in favor of any special designation being made of any one educational group," she said.

Igloo Smashed ...

(Continued from Page 1)

Caledon, where enthusiasm died. About 100 people braved the cold to take part in the Sports Day. Skiing was cancelled because of packed snow, and changeable weather during the week had made the ice unsuitable for the planned hockey tournament.

Engineering won the Caledon events by taking the Sled Race and the Log Chopping competitions.

Forestry won the Snowshoe Race and Victoria College won the Orienteering Contest.

Two orienteering teams were lost until 8 p.m. on Saturday night.

The lack of enthusiasm at Caledon was blamed on the distance of the farm from Toronto and on cold weather.

TYPING

Theses, Essays, Notes, Charts, French, German, Latin, English, Prices Upon Request

4pt. 12
21 AVENUE RD., WA 2-7624
MRS. M. D. STOTT, B.A.

10-Piece Dance Band

Music for all occasions supplied by Gord Staple's Orchestra, an experienced group of musicians with a repertoire of music to satisfy all tastes. For those who want the very best in music, least contact:
BOB BELL, BE. 3-2325

GAMES TODAY

HOCKEY	12.30 Med. II vs SPS. IV	Brewer, Stinson
	1.30 St. M. A vs Vic. I	Sadovsky, Bortnick
	5.40 SPS. VIII vs Vic. I	Quinn, McElligott
	6.00 U.C. II vs Dent. A	McElligott, Crawford
WATER POLO	1.00 SPS. I vs Trin. A	Watkin, M. Boase
SQUASH	1.00 Trin. C vs Med. I Yr.
BASKETBALL MAJOR LEAGUE	2.00 St. SPS vs Vic. I	Kelner, Grossman
	4.00 Med. IV vs St. M. P	Bugarski, Richardson
BASKETBALL MINOR LEAGUE (HART HOUSE)	1.00 IV Mech vs I Eng. Phys. A	Denov
	4.00 Sr. M. Gr. Rob. vs Pre-Med. II B	Pearl
	5.00 IV Civil vs Med. II Yr.	Pearl
	6.00 Med. III Yr. A vs Med. IV Yr. A	Pearl
BASKETBALL MINOR LEAGUE (VIC GYM)	5.00 Vic North Hse. vs I Eng. Phys. B	Lubin
	6.00 Pre-Dent. B vs St. M. Stenwachs	Lubin
	7.00 U.C. McCaul vs St. M. Galligans	Lubin

GAMES TUESDAY

WATER POLO	4.00 St. M. B vs Trin. B	Jany, M. Boase
	6.00 Med. I vs Arch	Ford, J. Boase
	7.15 Fox vs Thaim	B. n. emia, J. Boase
SQUASH	7.00 St. M. B vs Dent. D
BASKETBALL MAJOR LEAGUE	1.00 J. C. F. S vs Pre-Med.	M. n. n. G. o. s. m. a. n
	1.00 St. M. A vs St. M. A	L. n. d. n. F. i. e. m. a. n
	6.30 St. M. d. vs SPS. VIII	L. n. n. F. i. e. m. a. n
	7.30 Dent. IV Yr. vs SPS. VIII	Linden, Fireman
	8.30 W. y. A vs Pharm. B
BASKETBALL MINOR LEAGUE (HART HOUSE)	1.00 II Chem. vs St. M. Points	C. n. k. e
	4.00 St. M. Chadsam vs U.C. Soes	McGuth
	6.30 Med. III Yr. C vs St. M. Rapsavages	Newman
	7.30 For. B. vs Pharm. Mortars	Newman
	8.30 Pharm. Antons vs Knox. B	Newman
BASKETBALL MINOR LEAGUE (VIC GYM)	4.00 St. M. Qu. g. l. e. y. s. vs St. M. Coopers	Foster
	5.00 Pre-Med. I B vs Pre-Med. I D	Foster
	6.00 U.C. Sammys vs Pre-Med. I A	Kolodzie
	7.00 Emma. B vs For. C	Kolodzie
	8.00 St. M. Wimps vs Vic. Gators	Kolodzie
INDOOR TRACK	5.00 220 Yds. - 2 Miles

ORGAN RECITAL

JOHN L. SIDGWICK
CONVOCAION HALL
5 p.m.

NEW AT ...

Stowe
VERMONT
7 DAYS
UNLIMITED
SKIING!
only $35

SKI CAPITAL OF THE EAST!
7 continuous Days UNLIMITED Use of ALL LIFTS in Stowe at both Mt. Mansfield & Spruce Peak areas. $35 Adults; $25 children under 14. Extend beyond 7th day pro rata. Good any time during skiing season. Offered those staying at member lodges of Stowe-Mansfield Assoc.
Information, FOLDERS, Reservations:
STOWE-MANSFIELD ASSOC.
Stowe Vermont AL 3-7652

THEN

and NOW

O'Keefe

ALE

BREWERY LIMITED

Blues Trounce Lavals, 12-4 Take Top Spot

By GENE GLISKY
Associate Sports Editor

With a devastating show of scoring power, Varsity Blues hammered Laval Rouge et Or 12-4, in Intercollegiate hockey action in the Arena Friday night.

The win puts Blues in sole possession of first place, two points ahead of Laval who still have one game in hand.

Blues led 3-2 at the end of the first period, stretched the lead to 8-4 in the second, and fired four unanswered goals in the third to end the rout.

Ron Casey was the leading marksman for Varsity, scoring three goals and assisting on another.

Mike Elik, Dunc Brodie, and Harry Neale counted two each, with singletons going to Doug Williams, Grant Mills, and Bill Kennedy.

The Casey, Kennedy, Brodie line played a spectacular game, figuring on six of the Varsity markers. This trio promises to become the highest scoring contingent in Intercollegiate history if they keep up their sizzling pace.

Until the half-way mark of the second period, Laval were very much in the game. Aging Lorne Arseneault collected his second goal of the night to tie the contest at 3-3.

Yorzyk Shatters American Record

Special to The Varsity

SPRINGFIELD, MASS., Jan 31 —University of Toronto swimming coach Bill Yorzyk last night set a new United States record for the 100-yard butterfly event during Springfield College's 15th annual Aquatic Club Carnival.

Yorzyk finished in 54.7 seconds, one-tenth of a second better than the previous mark of 54.8 seconds, set by Dick Harmon of Michigan State University last year.

The 26-year old Olympic gold medalist had held the previous mark of 54.9 seconds, which he set in May, 1956 and retained until Harmon set a new time year.

Nineteen-year old John Deacon, Canadian breaststroke champion was six-tenths of a second away from the U.S. 200-yard mark with a finishing time of 2:26.5, although the Varsity freshman did set a new pool record by 1.4 seconds.

Deacon set a Canadian record in the event on January 23 in a meet at London, with a time of 2:25.6 minutes, three-tenths of a second faster than the American record, currently held by Dale Lucas of the University of Iowa.

What's This? Varsity-53, Mac-13 Oh, It Was The Girls' Basketball

At approximately 4.30 Thursday afternoon, one bus load of female basketball players left our campus for McMaster University. The girls arrived back in Toronto in the wee small hours of Friday morning.

In that relatively short interval of time, the U. of T. senior girls' basketball team emerged as a serious threat for the Intercollegiate basketball title. They did this by thoroughly trouncing the McMaster team 53-13. Only one week previous, the team from Western defeated the McMaster girls 42-19.

As the score indicates, the Toronto squad displayed both a strong offence and defence. The scoring was spread quite evenly among the girls with Milly Hutt scoring 14 points followed by Lil Bobson (11), Jean Wills (11), Marg White (10)

Judy Smith (5) and Joy Mahood (2).

The biggest surprise of the game and the one that probably made coach Mickey Barnett the happiest, was the scoring display of Milly Hutt and Lil Bobson. Both of these girls, returnees from last year's team, were playing their first game with this year's squad.

Another feature of the game was the great defensive display put on by all the guards. They were continually intercepting passes and setting up the forwards. Especially effective was the guarding trio of Aylane Patterson, Joan Wachna and Sandy McMullen. These girls played the last three quarters of the game and allowed McMaster a grand total of six points, two in each quarter.

Previous to this game, Western seemed the logical choice to retain the title they had won last year. But if the Toronto girls continue evening, then Western will get quite a run for their money.

Not to be completely outdone by the senior team, the intermediate girls made it a perfect evening by defeating the McMaster intermediate team by the not too large margin of 26-16.

The Toronto squad had a tough time breaking through the McMaster defence in the first three quarters of the game. But in the fourth quarter they seemed to find the opening and they took advantage of it to put the game on ice.

The Toronto scorers in this game were Barb Black (9), Mary Russell (6), Jane Dustan (5), Elaine Atkinson (3), and Betty Gallagher (2).

Canadian Champion

CANADIAN CHAMPION— Wendy Griner, 14-year-old sister of Dave Griner, Associate Sports Editor of The Varsity, won the Canadian Junior Ladies' figure skating championship in Noranda, Quebec, last weekend. It was her second attempt at the title. She was third in the 1958 championships.

Baby Blue Swimmers Drop Ridley 52-25

University of Toronto Baby Blues won seven of nine events and whipped Ridley College, St. Catharines, 52-25, in an exhibition swim meet in Hart House Saturday afternoon. Ridley's only wins were in the 50-yard freestyle and the 200-yard sprint relay.

Backstroke Nick Thierry was Varsity's top competitor, winning the 100-yard backstroke in 1:06.7 minutes, 5.7 seconds away from the Canadian College Swimming Association record which has stood since 1954.

Thierry also swam on Toronto's 200-yard medley relay quartet, that outdistanced Ridley to the finish line by 7.1 seconds. Ken Currie, George Milne and Alex Ashenhurst were the other members of Varsity's winning team.

Milne captured the 50-yard butterfly event in 28.2 seconds, with Ridley's Bruce Hall second at 29.5 seconds. Ashenhurst was eight-tenths of a second ahead of the visitors' Terry Guest in the 100-yard freestyle.

Guest claimed Ridley's only victory in an individual event taking the 50-yard freestyle in 25.4 seconds, 1.9 seconds ahead of Varsity's Kit Moore. Ted Smagala, of Toronto, was third.

At Staples' St. Catharines' crew took their other first in the 200-yard sprint relay, with the foursome of Peter Mackinnon, Ted Trumper, Guest and Hall covering the course in 1:50.3 minutes, 4.2 seconds ahead of Varsity.

200-yard medley relay: 1. Toronto (Thierry, Currie, Ashenhurst, Milne); 2. Ridley. Time, 1:59.9.

200-yard freestyle: 1. Thompson (T); 2. McIntyre (T); 3. Trumper (R). Time, 2:15.8.

50-yard freestyle: 1. Guest (R); 2. Moore (T); 3. Hayward (R). Time, 25.4.

Diving: 1. Sims (T); 2. Logan (T); 3. Wilnot (R).

50-yard butterfly: 1. Milne (T); 2. Hall (R); 3. Michael (T). Time, 28.2.

100-yard freestyle: 1. Ashenhurst (T); 2. Guest (R); 3. Moore (T). Time, 57.8.

100-yard backstroke: 1. Thierry (T); 2. Malone (R); 3. Patterson (T). Time, 1:06.7.

100-yard breaststroke: 1. Michael (T); 2. Currie (T); 3. Hansen (R). Time, 1:18.9.

200-yard sprint relay: 1. Ridley (Mackinnon, Trumper, Guest, Hall); 2. Toronto. Time, 1:50.3.

Point totals: 1. Toronto, 52; 2. Ridley, 25.

Whitby Dunlops Here Tonight

Was the Varsity Blues 6-5 victory over Whitby Dunlops in December a freak upset, or has university coach Jack Kennedy welded a unit that could compete successfully in Senior "A" competition?

The answer may be forthcoming at Varsity Arena tonight. With the opening faceoff at 8 p.m., the two teams meet again, and if it's anything like the first game between the teams, there is little chance of the spectators going away displeased.

Blues and Dunlops hooked up in a real thriller in their first meeting, and kept close to 3,000 fans on pins and needles throughout the game, particularly the third period.

Wren Blair's Dunlop crew will be tougher tonight. Captain Harry Sinden sat out the first game with a wrist injury, but will be back in his usual blueline spot tonight.

Varsity captain Mike Elik, who played his final Intercollegiate game against Laval Friday, will return from a pair of weekend games with Cleveland Barons to rejoin linemates Johnny Macdonald and Grant Mills.

Name Macdonald Ice Blues' Chief

John Macdonald, a hard working flashy right-winger, has been appointed captain of Varsity Blues for the remainder of this season.

In his third year with Blues, Macdonald toiled on the famous Grant Mill, Mike Elik trio in all these years, finishing second to Elik in team scoring last year, and fourth in '57.

Before coming to Varsity, Macdonald starred with Toronto Marlboro juniors, and later with Hao Emm's Barrie Flyers. He also was an outstanding athlete with Brampton high school as well as a star hockey player in the Brampton minor loop.

In an interview with the Varsity last night, "Mac" has this to say.

"I am very pleased and flattered. I'll never be able to fill Mike's (Elik) shoes. We'll sure miss him."

The Scoreboard

INTERCOLLEGIATE HOCKEY

	P	W	L	T	F	A	P	T	S
TORONTO	7	5	1	0	30	28	10	8
Laval	6	5	1	0	30	28	10	8
Montreal	6	2	4	0	34	28	4
McGill	7	0	7	0	13	68	0

Friday's Results
TORONTO 12 Laval 4
Montreal 5 McGill 3

Future Games
Wednesday—McGill at Montreal.
Friday—Montreal at TORONTO.

BASKETBALL

	P	W	L	T	F	A	P	T	S
Assumption	5	4	1	0	8
Western	3	3	0	0	0
TORONTO	4	2	2	0	4
Queen's	5	2	3	0	4
McMaster	4	1	3	0	2
McGill	5	1	4	0	2

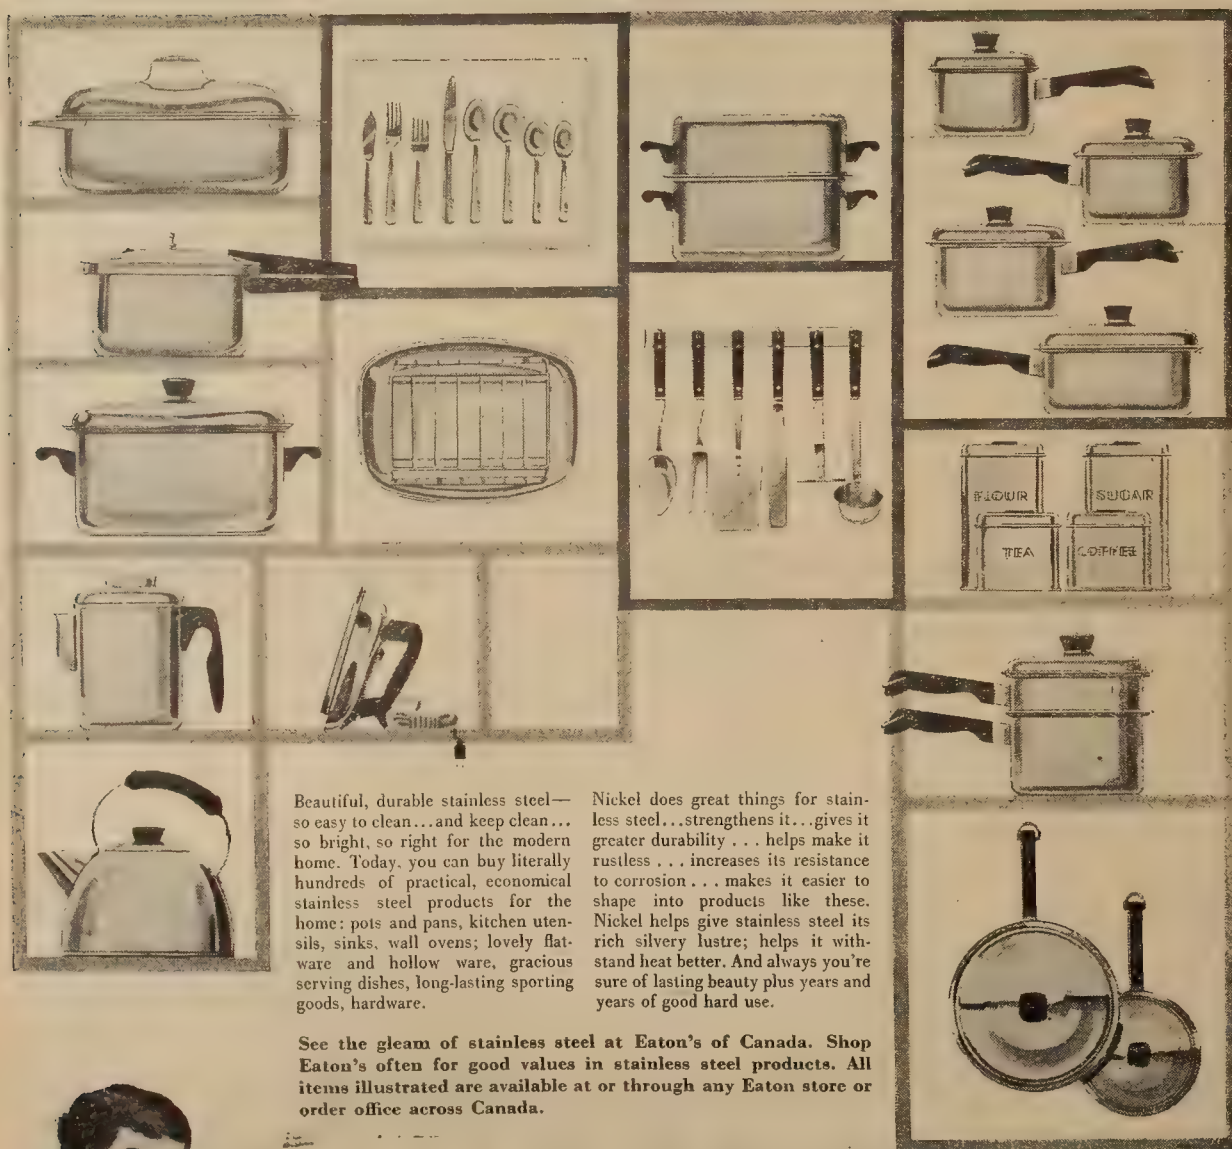

Weekend Results
Western 66 Assumption 55

Future Games
Wednesday—McMaster at Western.
Friday—Western at Queen's; Assumption at McMaster.
Saturday—Assumption at Toronto; Western at McGill.

at EATON'S OF CANADA from Coast to Coast see the gleam of Stainless Steel

CONTAINING INCO NICKEL

in beautiful, durable products!

Beautiful, durable stainless steel—so easy to clean...and keep clean...so bright, so right for the modern home. Today, you can buy literally hundreds of practical, economical stainless steel products for the home: pots and pans, kitchen utensils, sinks, wall ovens; lovely flatware and hollow ware, gracious serving dishes, long-lasting sporting goods, hardware.

Nickel does great things for stainless steel...strengthens it...gives it greater durability...helps make it rustless...increases its resistance to corrosion...makes it easier to shape into products like these. Nickel helps give stainless steel its rich silvery lustre; helps it withstand heat better. And always you're sure of lasting beauty plus years and years of good hard use.

See the gleam of stainless steel at Eaton's of Canada. Shop Eaton's often for good values in stainless steel products. All items illustrated are available at or through any Eaton store or order office across Canada.

INCO Inco Nickel
makes stainless steel perform better, longer

The International Nickel Company of Canada, Limited
Toronto, Ontario

The Faculty of Medicine

Presents THE VARSITY

Vol. LXXVIII - No. 70

Wednesday, February 16, 1945

This is the convulsed mob of medical students whose sudden eruption yesterday noon on Elizabeth St. in front of the Red Cross donor centre resulted in the snatch of the prized Engineers' cannon, on hand for publicity photographs. Left, Bob Lee, students' council representative for Medicine, heads for the escape car with the cannon-bag, leaving an astonished cannoneer in a mob of medsmen. (Varsity staff photo by Hatchet.)

Skule Cannon Captured In Meds Coup

For the first time in more than 10 years the Faculty of Applied Science and Engineering has lost its revered Skule Cannon.

A gang of 80 Faculty of Medicine students descended on a startled Cannoneer shortly before 1 p.m. yesterday and whipped the cannon from his arms and into a waiting car.

Cannon was being used for publicity photographs for U of T's upcoming blood campaign.

After a 30-second struggle outside the Red Cross Blood Donors headquarters on Elizabeth St., a Medsman broke free with a brown duffel bag containing the cannon and jumped into a waiting car.

Medical Society officials say the cannon will be returned to Skule if the Engineers fulfill their 900-pint quota for the blood campaign and "other minor stipulations".

A squad of 40 angry Skulemen stormed The Varsity office about 10.50 p.m. last night. After breaking through the Students' Administrative Council building door they were repelled by Varsity staffers. The Engineers left with an exposed roll of Varsity film. No serious damage was done.

The Medmen's coup was a well-planned operation. Groups of 20 or 30 students were stationed around the Red Cross building.

When the Cannoneer appeared, they rushed him from all sides before he could realize what was happening.

The successful coup brought 30 years of flaming Meds-SPS rivalry over the cannon to a head. Many attempts, two this year by other faculties, have been made on the symbol of Engineering supremacy since the new cannon was presented in 1950. None were successful.

Meds last bagged the cannon in the Spring of 1949. SPS retaliated by kidnapping the president of the medical society and holding him at Ajax for a week.

In 1955 Medsman launched a tear-gas attack on the Engineering float in the Homecoming parade. After a half-hour struggle on Yonge St., the medical students discovered the cannon wasn't on the float.

Earliest interfaculty flare-up dates back to 1930 when all front windows in the Meds and Engineering building were broken after a snowball fight

The present cannon, a muzzle-loader with a 10-inch barrel and a three-quarter-inch bore, is known as Mark II. Its predecessor, Mark I, was made by W.H. Kubbing, an SPS staff machinist in 1936.

Always a symbol of pride and prestige, the cannon was copped by University College in 1944 but recaptured in the Spring of '45.

The famous '49 attack by Medsman took place during the chariot races. SPS traded the Meds president, Bill Hetherington, for the cannon after holding Hetherington at the university's extension in Ajax.

Last successful attempt came in the Fall of 1949 when UC again sneaked the cannon away and used it for publicity in the UC Follies.

The capture of the Skule cannon yesterday was exclusively a project of the Medical Student body. Blood Campaign Chairman Charlotte Hubbell knew nothing of what was going to happen; nor did the Students' Administrative Council give out any information which should not have been made known. We wish that all innocent parties should be absolved of any blame related to this incident.

Doug Wilson,
President, Medical Society.

ALL VARSITY REVUE

ROW

A

SEAT

1

"HAVE TOGA, WILL TRAVEL"

TICKETS

At Students' Administrative Council Office

February 9-14

HART
HOUSE
THEATRE

AT

8.30 p.m.

Dominion Study Shows Medsmen On Their Own

By RALPH MacMILLAN

Results of an extensive survey by Canadian Medical Students, Internes and Nficus officials has shown financing of a student's education is largely the responsibility of the student or of his immediate family. This being the case, one would think that the government would encourage the student and family. But, under the present Income Tax Law, this is not the case.

1. The cost of tuition for the student in full-time attendance at a Canadian college or university should be deductible from the taxable income of the student or from the taxable income of the person paying this expense, whether this person be parent, guardian or spouse.
2. The cost of books and instruments for the student in full time attendance at a Canadian college or university should be deductible from the taxable income of the student or from the taxable income of the person paying the expense, whether that person is parent, guardian or spouse.
3. The present amount which a student in full-time attendance at a Canadian college or university may earn and still be claimed as an exemption on the income tax return of parent or guardian should be increased from $950 to $1,100.
4. The exemption which the parent or guardian of a student in full-time attendance at a Canadian college or university may claim as exemption for the student should be increased, when this exemption is applicable, to $1,000 from the present $500.
5. The spouse of a student in full time attendance at a Canadian College or University should be allowed an exemption of $1,000 for the student provided that the student not earn more than $1,000, in which case the exemption would be reduced by the amount earned over $1,100 subtracted from $1,000.

McGoey Strong And Runs Well

A St. Michael's Hospital orthopedist last night hinted socialized medicine is subject to the same objections as socialized law would be.

Dr. Paul McGoey, addressing the annual student - faculty Medical Society smoker said some socialist lawyers, who would be opposed to free litigation in courts of law, see socialized medicine as even beneficial.

Quoting an apocryphal statement by Winston Churchill, former British Conservative Prime Minister, Dr. McGoey said, "whenever a Socialist sees anything big and strong and running well, he wants to nationalize it."

In a speech mainly concerned with medical teaching methods, Dr. McGoey said, "at St. Michael's Hospital we have very few lecture halls. I wish we had none."

The dignity of the patient must be respected, he said, and the doctor should not worry to much about his own dignity.

He compared the example of Christ who washed his disciples' feet with that of certain doctors who refuse to examine feet.

He recommended that doctors use tricks of showmanship, a question-and-answer method and a "brain-storming" method in teaching.

Use of visual aids and storytelling, he said, should be sparing.

A professor, he said, has an advantage in teaching over a junior teacher because of his prestige. "Junior teachers," he said, "should not try to usurp the function of the professor."

About 125 staff and students attended the smoker.

UBC Paper Foils Strike

Vancouver (CUP) — A three-union strike over union jurisdiction in Vancouver's printing shops has forced the University of British Columbia newspaper to print daily mimeographed news editions.

The Ubysey, which usually prints an eight-page newspaper three times weekly, has distributed one or two-page mimeographed editions daily since the strike began Jan. 22 at 4.30 p.m.

Most of the printing shops involved in the strike employ workers from more than one of the three striking unions. The shops, which include the college printers, are being forced to decide jurisdiction between the lithographers' union, the typographers' union, and the pressman's union.

Students Protest Extradition

U.S. Consulate Picketeted

By HARVEY SHEPHERD
Varsity News Editor

A group of University College students yesterday picketed the Toronto United States consulate in protest against a proposal, since dropped, to send a Canadian youth back to a Florida prison.

Kenneth William Brymer, 20, had been sentenced to 20 years for stealing $160 at the age of 16. He escaped after serving two years and fled to Canada.

The UC students picketed the consulate between 8.30-9.30 a.m. and between 12.30-1 p.m. bearing signs with such slogans as "Yankee go home — but leave Brymer here," protesting extradition proceedings against the youth.

They also sent telegrams to Prime Minister John Diefenbaker, Ontario Premier Leslie Frost, Arthur Maloney, a member of parliament and prominent criminal lawyer, U.S. secretary of state John Foster Dulles and Canadian Justice Minister David Fulton.

It was announced late yesterday afternoon that extradition proceedings against Brymer have been dropped and American authorities have promised to review the case.

Brymer escaped from the Florida prison after serving two years and fled to Canada.

The picketers, numbering about 25 in the morning and about ten in the afternoon, were organized by James Knechtel, fourth-year history student, Wayne Tulloch, second-year political science and economics and Bill Marshall, second-year English language and literature student.

Marshall said the idea of picketing had been conceived at a party Monday night. The group, Knechtel said, was protesting the fact that "a Canadian citizen and British subject could be subjected to what seemed to be the arbitrary statutes of Florida which apparently completely ignored the rules of law."

Knechtel said Brymer had been convicted as an adult. The judge and prosecutor, he said, had apparently refused to believe his statement of age.

The prison he was sent to, Knechtel added, was "apparently a nightmare with whips and the rest of it."

The telegram to Prime Minister Diefenbaker, Marshall said, read: "Fellow-Canadian. How does your vision of Canada look to Brymer now?"

It was signed: "Young PCs." Three of the picketers are members of the campus Progressive Conservative club, Marshall said.

The telegram to Mr. Dulles read: "We strongly deplore your extradition of Kenneth William Brymer. He is a minor and a British subject." It was signed: "Toronto university students."

A delegation from the group called on the U.S. consul yesterday afternoon, before news of the waiving of extradition proceedings had been made public, Marshall said last night.

The consul, Marshall added, had said he considered the demonstration an insult to a fine man, Mr. Dulles, and an insult to the United States.

Several of the signs the students carried bore such slogans as "Dull, duller Dulles," "Drop dead Dulles," and "American eagle turns vulture."

PROTESTING proposed extradition of Canadian youth to Florida, University College students demonstrate in front of American Consulate. (Varsity staff photo by Walker)

Magazine Medicine: Time-Supplemented Texts

By BOB LEE

It is with increasing alarm that the medical student of today observes the increasing number of "scientific" articles on medical topics appearing in well known magazines such as "Readers' Digest" and the "Saturday Evening Post."

I did a perfunctory survey of some of the popular weekly and monthly publications, and I came across many enticing literary works on such subjects as "Why Strokes Occur," "The Day I Played Psychiatrist," "What the Sex Manuals Don't Tell You" and "A Bacteriological and Clinical Study of Gastroenteritis with Enteropathogenic Escherichia 0127-B8."

What will be the ultimate effect of exposing the lay public to all this scientific data? It is indeed a terrifying thought, for the medical student to contemplate that after 6 years of hard study he may graduate and enter a world in which engineers, lawyers, plumbers, tool workers, and other subscribers to "Readers' Digest" know as much or more about medicine than he does.

No longer does a patient walk into a doctor's office merely complaining of simple headache or a pain in the abdomen.

Instead they arrive convinced that they are suffering from glioblastoma multiforme or chronic ulcerative colitis. Moreover, they have already decided what type of medication will cure their condition and visit the physician only to obtain a prescription for the remedy of their choice.

The doctor has an even greater problem when he is confronted with a patient who has made a self-diagnosis of some exotic tropical ailment such as Kwashiorkor disease or Schistosoma haematobium. Unless the poor doctor has been fortunate enough to read last week's issue of "Time," he probably hasn't heard of these strange illnesses, since his enlightening course on tropical medicine in the second medical year.

And even heart surgery, the field of some of the most modern advances in medicine appears to be threatened. Anyone who has ever watched that famous television production "Medicine" should be quite proficient at the technique of grasping a pulsating heart and carrying out heart-lung procedures on it.

A recent edition of Star Weekly gave several pages of a pictorial lesson on the use of the heart-lung machine to men heart surgery all in vivid red and green technicolor.

It is ages since I read the time may soon come when the average Canadian home will have a heart-lung machine as standard household equipment along with the dishwasher and automatic clothes dryer. This would be very useful in eliminating time consuming trips to the Toronto General Hospital for such simple procedures as aortic commissurotomy and repair of ventricular defects.

How is all this going to affect the medical student? It is quite obvious that the young man entering the practice of medicine these days cannot hope to prepare himself to cope with all the weird ailments of his patients by studying ancient textbooks published as long ago as 1957.

Perhaps the most realistic solution to the problem would be for the student to throw all his weighty medical textbooks out the window, purchase several magazine subscriptions, and then wait patiently for his weekly or monthly issues of "Time," "Readers' Digest," "Woman's Home Companion," and "Playboy" to arrive in the mail.

UWO To Host Exchange

Delegates from Canadian and American universities will meet at the University of Western Ontario Feb. 19-22 for an exchange weekend.

Applications for the weekend are available all this week in the Students' Administrative Council office.

Activities during the weekend include attending classes, discussion groups, banquets and parties. The exchange was initiated last year by the UWO National Federation of Canadian University Students committee.

Toronto has been asked to send two male and two female delegates to the conference. Cost is $8 registration fee plus transportation costs. Room and board will be provided at the conference.

The U of T Weekends committee will be unable to cover any costs for the delegates.

Deadline for application to the weekend is Monday at 5 p.m. in the SAC office.

Carabins Still Singing After Sumptuous Stay

Varsity students returned to Union Station Sunday evening tired but still singing after the completion of the 10th Annual Carabin Weekend Exchange. The Toronto students were guests of a group of students from the University of Montreal and were billeted in French-Canadian homes.

The first stage of the Exchange took place last December when 40 Carabins visited Toronto.

A special event for the students from slushy Toronto, was a full day of skiing at Mont Gabriel in the Laurentians.

For many, this was the first time on the boards, but three feet of soft snow prevented too many bruises from developing in the nether regions.

For the "never-say-I'm-tired" Carabins, several hours of skiing was only the beginning, and next on the agenda was a sleigh ride to St-Adele, followed by a party at "Le Sommet Bleu."

Saturday afternoon emphasis was put on the serious side of things, and the Toronto and Montreal Carabins listened to an address by Gerard Pelletier, prominent Montreal journalist and Labour Union organizer.

In the evening, the University was host at a reception and a dinner, followed by a very informal party in a palatial French-Canadian home.

The U of T Carabins again languished in French-Canadian hospitality on Sunday afternoon, when they were treated to a sumptuous repast in the homes of the host families. Because the U. of T. students were so captivated by all these amenities, many failed to notice that the time for departure had arrived. Consequently, the stream of late Carabins delayed the train for 15 minutes.

Soviet Nationalism Impresses UofT Prof

The President of the International Union of Geodesy and Geophysics told a meeting of the Engineering Institute of Canada last night of the homogeneity of the professional groups of the nations of the world.

Dr. J. Tuzo Wilson of the University of Toronto cited the co-operation and free exchange of technical data arising out of last year's International Geophysical Year.

In his travels throughout Russia and China last summer Dr. Wilson was impressed with the strong spirit of nationalism in both countries.

As a driving force nationalism seems to have displaced all considerations of ideology in the minds of the people.

Advances in science and technology have contributed to a shrinking world. It is more important than ever that the nations of the world should learn to live with one another, he said.

It is of special interest to Canadians that an engineering scheme is underway on the Danube River similar to our construction of the St. Lawrence Seaway.

Mission Talks In HH

Anglican students and teachers will meet in Hart House Saturday for a day-long conference on "Vocation and Education".

Program for the conference includes talks by three Anglican church officials and a panel and question period.

The Rev. Michael Creal will address conference participants at 10 a.m. in the Hart House Music Room. Rev. Creal is General Secretary of the Anglican national department of education.

Canon A.H. Davis, a Canadian expert on the overseas church, will speak from 11.30-12.30 p.m.

After lunch in the Hart House dining room, delegates will hear a talk by Miss Florence Lamb, an expert in Anglican youth work.

A discussion will follow all talks. A panel and round table discussion will conclude the day's activities.

All Anglican students on campus are invited to attend the conference.

R pro civitate

"Until the medical profession becomes a body of men trained and paid by the country to keep the country in health, it will remain what it is at present: a conspiracy to exploit human credulity and human suffering."

—George Bernard Shaw

It is not difficult to understand the reasoning behind the above not untypical piece of Shavian invective. Even before Shaw's time, many felt that the medical profession was demanding for its services more than the "average man" could afford to pay. Families were crippled by the burden of medical expense. The standard of medical attention enjoyed by the sick was an index of financial status. And so on. But times have changed. The Welfare State is upon us and the millennium in sight. Humanitarian considerations have now become politically expedient and the medical profession made vulnerable to the machinations of once conservative politicians. Forty years after a Liberal convention just promised Health Insurance to Canadians, a Conservative government has introduced a National Health Insurance Act which once in effect, will provide hospital benefits to citizens of participating provinces. Nor will this be all. It has now become politically fashionable for politicians of every stamp to argue that health is a basic right to which every member of society is entitled regardless of his or her ability to pay for it. Governments of the future will find it electorally convenient to make the argument the reality, even while coyly refusing to specifically inform an increasingly uncomfortable medical profession that this is their ultimate intention. Now, statism is still not the rule in Canada where the public and private sectors of the economy are carefully delineated by succeeding governments dedicated to a free enterprise system. Nor does the immediate future hold the bright promise of a "co-operative commonwealth" due to the electorate's unfortunate but singularly consistent rejection of Canada's Socialist party. Therefore a dismayed medical profession faces the unhappy prospect of being politely but firmly conducted along the path to complete state control in a nation steadfastly committed to capitalism. Believing that its co-operation is essential for the country's well-being the profession will go peacefully for it is really not sufficiently well-organized to do otherwise. The question only remains — what form shall the ineluctable intrusion of the state into medicine take? The profession, if it must choose — and it is to be hoped that some benevolent government of the future will offer a choice — would prefer a scheme modelled on that presently in existence in Sweden. In such a scheme, the patient would be free to choose his own doctor and the doctor to set his own fee, a pre-determined part of which would be recoverable by the patient from the state. The scheme thus allows individual physicians to make full allowance for their training and experience. It is generally felt that the Health Plan in effect in the U.K. tends to "over-regulate" the profession and this is reflected in the steady emigration from the U.K. of brilliant young physicians and surgeons to Canada where they come to practise in a less restricted atmosphere. That government which introduces a "comprehensive" health programme in Canada, must be careful to include in it as few restraints for the Canadian physician as are consistent with a sound health plan lest the present trickle of our graduates in medicine, lost to the U.S., become a flood. JH

A Reader Writes:

In Defence of the UTAA

Doc's

For my first and probably last literary effort in The Varsity, I find that I am unable to prevent myself from adding a few comments to the current controversy regarding an East-West hockey final. As Vice-President of the Athletic Directorate, and Chairman of the meeting that made the fateful decision, I feel that I am as much in possession of the facts as anyone concerned in the matter — certainly more aware of them than Mr. Marshall or Mr. Glisky who discussed the problem in editorials appearing in The Varsity last Wednesday. Their second-hand information was no doubt obtained from the unbiased Mr. Brooks, who is also a member of the Directorate. In support of Mr. Brooks it should be pointed out that his article adequately stated the facts although little explanation was offered for the decision made. His account was the fairest of the three that appeared.

I would like to make it clear before I begin that the opinions expressed have not been sanctioned by other members of the Athletic Association, so are in no way to be interpreted as official policy on the matter.

I am somewhat surprised that the results of the student poll were as one-sided as they were. Very few seem to realize the implications involved in private promotion of a university activity. This, in essence, would be lending to an individual the University's name and reputation, as well as its team, for the purpose of personal profit. This amounts to exploitation of University athletes, who are amateurs in the real sense of the word, for the sole purpose of monetary gain for a promoter. It is analogous to lending our name to a cereal company to help the sale of cereal, or to the Physics department accepting money from E.P. Taylor to develop a new atomic bomb with the provision that all results, discoveries, and profits were to come to him. I do not believe that Mr. Makarchuk had this in mind when he made the offer, but he surely must realize that the University could be no part of any such scheme. Financial support of university affairs cannot be accepted with strings attached. It was, however, suggested that Mr. Makarchuk be approached to determine just exactly what strings were attached to his offer, and whether or not a satisfactory solution could be found.

No one seems to realize that an East-West hockey final has very little to do with the University of Toronto per se. If the Eastern universities in general are in favour of the idea, it is still not up to the University of Toronto to decide. Laval, University of Montreal, and McGill would probably appreciate consultation beforehand. Although our hockey team is very strong, to involve it in an East-West final before the title is decided is certainly in bad taste. If a play-off is to be held, it should be decided by the league officials and arranged between the two leagues, not between the individual universities who feel they have a claim to the title. The matter was, therefore passed on immediately to the O.Q.A.A. for consideration. The Directorate is strongly in favour of an All-Canadian hockey final if it can be satisfactorily arranged, and it is not to be condemned for refusing to decide on a matter which, after all, is not directly its business.

I believe that the Directorate acted in the only manner possible under the circumstances. There really was no alternative. The matter certainly was not scorned, as Mr. Glisky seems to feel, and I am sure that all possible steps are being taken to work things out satisfactorily for all concerned. Although The Varsity was, as usual, a little overzealous, it is to be commended for its interest and support of the athletic teams, and I sincerely hope that this same spirit continues in the years to come.

LARRY JOYNT III Meds

Doc's Progress

"Just one glance and you can tell we are Medsmen" — that is our goal and it could not be more appropriate. But why are Medsmen stereotyped? What process turns the eager wide-eyed Premed student into a hard-working blearily-eyed interne?

The first stage of the metamorphosis from butterfly to workhorse starts with the "Premedder" — a well-dressed enthusiast who sprouts along to his English classes in new blazer and tie in order to cram his large briefcase full of material for his next essay. At this stage he is interested in atheistic philosophizing at the fraternity and in getting his P.E. credits "to develop stamina and a durable physique for future training".

By the time he gets to first Meds he has been moulded into a "Bronze Adonis" physically and mentally. He is ready for endless cadaver cutting, spurred on by thoughts of the day when he will be a great surgeon and be allowed to cut LIVING flesh. In his spare time he is too tired for sports and he does not need the credits anyway so he just studies with determination so he can attain the privileged position of undressing a female without getting his face slapped.

This first year Medsman also attains the medical smell and is proud of his formaldehyde aroma, although his pride is often shaken by the new date when she inquires, "Have you bad breath or gangrene?"

If the eager Premed butterfly can study with enough determination and at times even neurotic (overzealous) motivation, he will probably become a Second Meds bacillus and gain the smell of sputum cultures and pathology specimens. His time is now more profitably spent fondling human livers and he has a distinct glow about him as he lets his new stethoscope dangle from his overcoat pocket in a jaunty manner which says "I am a doctor". This confidence soon disintegrates when he is confronted with his first forty year old spinster and both patient and doctor put in a few tense moments as he fumbles for her heart on the right side.

By the time third Meds rolls around the mature young doctor smells like the urine lab and acts like a psychiatrist, but he is now one of the oldest men on the campus and rightfully scorns his previous opponents, those juvenile plumbers from the Little Red Skule House. By now his blazer has patches on the elbows and he has pawned his briefcase, overcoat and stethoscope in order to buy the heavy microscope in that big, black box.

By fourth Meds, our butterfly has become "Doctor" with his own patients and a unique aura of accomplishment. His inner shyness has subsided and he has learned to quickly undress all patients (especially young females) even if their complaint is only an ingrown toenail. His confidence here is buttressed by the fact that only web-footed Medsman fail fourth year.

And then there is graduation. This is comparable to indoor track featuring a relay race past two dignified gentlemen. As the first holds a cloth starting band for you to duck under, the second gentleman throws you a parchment baton and you race out of Convocation Hall to get it to your proud parents, who paid the $10,000 entry fee.

The "Olds" six years of study and arduous, pranks and pleasures. Six years that influence every facet of one's mind and being. Only the most rigid personality could graduate in Medicine without a completely new frame of reference in regard to people and their personalities.

Graduation enables him to become an interne; to work steadily for two weeks before he has a day off; to go to bed at 2 a.m. and get up at 7, and surprisingly enough, feel relatively content about it all.

This is the metamorphosis from butterfly to workhorse, from student to scientist, from parasite to contributor. And this latter is the one feature that makes Medicine so rewarding. It is the direct contact with needy, sometimes desperate people, and a doctor's innate right and privilege to relieve this need.

CHARLES BULL, MD

THE VARSITY

Member Canadian University Press

Editorial and News Office
Basement, SAC Building — WA 3-8742, WA 3-8113

The opinions expressed in this paper are those of the editor.

Cannons-in-chief

Fuse Lighter

Powder Stuffer

Ball Handler

Ram Rodder

Gun Cleaner

Chain Gang

Bore Borer

Sight Setter

Make-out Editor

Bob Lee and Bill Franks

Nick Bruchovsky

Peter Brawley

Art Hart

Jules Harris

Jean Skimba

Joynt, Hambley, Dent, Baker

Ralph MacMillan

Sue Atack

Doug Wilson

Today's Issue: Don Morin, Gord Perkin, Dick Charron, Doug Marshall, Mark Nichols, Harvey Shepherd, Susie Breslin, Jim Anderson, Chuck Bull, Dave House, Joe MacInnis, Gary Ashby.

A scene from the National Ballet of Canada's production of "COPPELIA" which opened this year's month of new ballet in the Royal Alexandra Theatre.

Coppelia — a doll worth knowing

It is a fine presentation of classical ballet. If you think ballet is stuffy stuff, this is the stuff that will dissuade you. For Coppelia presents choreography that is lyrical, delicate, vivacious, lusty. It will not deeply involve your mind or heart, it is entertainment, art for art's sake—of a most enchanting and stimulating kind.

Celia Franca's troupe dances the fairy tale with charm and dash though the squat stage noticeably dwindles the latter. Always, saving the men, their technique is good. The performers seem at ease with the fluid rhythms of the purely classical style as they are with the sharp, vigorous motions of the peasant dances. David Adams plays Franz with a bold grace and vital legs which the other men generally lack. Lois Smith's Swanilda is delightful — certain as a syllogism but with also an evanescence, a fragrance.

I don't know whether it was wise to mount a new production of Coppelia; the costumes and sets are usually pretty, though sometimes there are fetid combinations of blush pinks, dust browns, electric blues and slush yellows. There are many good and many bad costumes and I wonder if they could be replaced by a new ballet instead. Now the National Ballet of Canada presents a practice costume on a stage. The costumes are by Stanley, B. and Jerome Robbins constantly creating new works for them. It is satisfying to see a classical ballet being performed, but modern ballets as a rule present something more emotionally and intellectually complex. Classical ballet is a non-representative art — the chief joys it offers are line, form, rhythm and space, also the dazzle of legs and smiles. Modern ballet has more to offer. It is more closely linked with human situations and therefore may have a more immediate appeal to the theatregoer. The National Company adds only one new ballet to their repertoire this season: Ballet.

Jamie Cunningham

A M & D

I Hear Music

GEORGE WEIN, owner of Boston's Storyville held a cocktail party at a Toronto hotel this week where he revealed his plans for a Toronto Jazz Festival at the C.N.E. It's slated for July 22, 23, 24, 25. Canadian jazz groups will be featured in afternoon concerts at the bandshell and U.S. games in the evening. Stan Kenton and Sarah Vaughan have already been signed, and also "the Four Freshmen." The Newport scene, also promoted by Wein, is scheduled for July 2, 3, 4, 5.

For followers of the folksinger, THEODORE BIKEL will be in town on Feb. 7 at Eaton Auditorium. This should be a far better show than the Josh White concert.

If you like to listen and sing along with a folksinger, drop in to The Concerto Cafe, Bay-Bloor area, any night of the week. The amiable and talented GREG CURTIS is there with guitar and a large repertoire.

THE OSCAR PETERSON TRIO is being held over at the Town Tavern for one more week. And there is a POSSIBILITY that Gerry Mulligan and Art Farmer will be arriving soon after.

CANADIAN JAZZ SHOW on tap for Channel 6 TV the night of Feb. 20. Featured are Oscar Peterson, Moe Koffman, Ron Collier and possibly Pete Ayerlyard.

Wednesday Night presents a play in verse, Auden's "The Age of Anxiety." The music is written by Norm Symonds and played by his octet, the nucleus of which is made up of the Ron Collier Quintet, 7.30 to 10.00 p.m., Feb. 4.

If you enjoy STEREOphonic sound, tune in CBL and CJBC every Thursday evening at 7 p.m. Place one radio on your left and tune it to CBL, then place the other radio on your right and tune that one to CJBC, and then relax to the ultimate in sound for one hour. Bill Bessy is the announcer.

For you Dixie enthusiasts it's the Westover Hotel on Dundas St., and Mike White's Imperial Dixie Band nightly. Buck Clayton on trumpet is featured this week and Willie "the Lion" Smith on piano the week of Feb. 2. On radio CJBC, every Wednesday, live from the Westover at 9 p.m.

Oscar Peterson, now a Toronto resident and currently playing in Boston, is slated for the Town Tavern next week. The talented Mr. Peterson is scheduled to go on tour in Europe sometime in April.

The House of Hambour, at 233 Dundas St. W., features this weekend, Ed Buckert on guitar, Jack Linder, of Australian Jazz Quintet fame on bass, Butch Watanabe on trombone, Gerry Toth on alto sax and others. Fri. to Sat., midnight to 4 a.m., Sun. 9-12.

"Swinging Shepherd" Moe Koffman's quartet can be heard Saturday from 12 to 3 a.m. at George's Spaghetti House, Sherbourne and Dundas.

Phil Nimmmons and his group play jazz live from the CBC studios on McGill St., every second Tues. Admission is free and you should be there around 8.30 p.m. Broadcast is from 9.00 p.m. until 9.30 over CJBC radio. Next concert is Tuesday, Feb. 10.

Larry Lederman

A general view of the Valse Noble from the National Ballet's presentation of "LE CARNAVAL" part of the second evening of this week's program.

Another Day, Another TSO Concert

A little man with a big name thrilled a riotous audience last night in Massey Hall. He was the internationally loved and respected pianist Artur Schnabel.

Proof of the love felt for him was the clamoring ovation with which the rain-soaked audience welcomed his performance of the Piano Concerto No. 1 by Tchaikovsky. The orchestra gave evidence of their respect by joining the audience in applause.

Under Rubinstein's hand the popular concerto took on a new power and grandeur. We have seldom seen such a little man pack such a huge punch. Especially in broad passages the score rolled and swept out of the piano, driven through the whole mechanism of the instrument by his forceful attack.

Conversely, delicate phrases floated forth on turgid waves of sound throughout the orchestral fibre. In spite of the thickness of much of the scoring, Susskind had no trouble keeping the orchestra from overwhelming the piano. The two forces were in such sympathy that an indiscretion of this sort never occurred.

The orchestra itself suffered embarrassment only once or twice. At a tempo change in the second movement Susskind turned his back on the basses and cellos; consequently they dragged and did not catch up for a few bars. Again, in the final movement, some contrasting effects in the woods were lost in the over-strong brass tone. But fairly clean handling of the tricky symphony was their redemption.

Barber's Symphony in One Movement was the only other work on the program played with conviction. Much of the audience apparently did not like the music; this seems to be Toronto's typical reaction to new works. But it is good music all the way.

The first section is a brief but tightly knit Allegro non troppo in sonata form, lacking the recapitulation. Its various themes form the material for the rest of the symphony.

At the end of the development, a scherzo in lighter orchestration is worked out of the main themes. As a joke, it was rather poorly told. But its esthetic importance was its contrasting texture. Barber showed here his knowledgeable use of colour.

The third section, Andante tranquillo, is very thick. Woven into its conclusion is the dramatic final passacaglia, in which every voice of the orchestra gradually wove itself into the recapitulation to the whole work.

Because of the richness of the score's fibre, the orchestra fell prey to one of its usual faults: muddiness. We felt at times that the work was over-orchestrated, but more careful shading would have elicited much more detail.

The performance of Wagner's Siegfried Idyll was generally careless and lacklustre. Susskind's shading closely approached the demands of the work, but otherwise our interest was allowed to wander.

The opening number on the program was Dvorak's rather bombastic overture, Carnival.

Ted Barnes

Medical Benefit Party Hits Campus, Has Hopes

"There are no significant differences among campus political parties — all are striving to offer the voter the biggest list of socialist legislation."

This statement was made in an interview with Nikolai Bruchovsky, student leader of the newly formed Medical Benefit Party.

The interview was the first official announcement made by the party since its mysterious beginning four years ago in Great Britain.

When questioned on the fundamental platform of the party, Bruchovsky made it plain there were many conflicting opinions within the party itself, but that certain basic ideas had been agreed upon. He handed The Varsity a five-point manifesto, which, he said, would explain the general purpose of his group.

1. The Medical Profession shall control the state after the overthrow of the Socialists in the inevitable Socialist - Medical struggle.

2. All existing political groups, regardless of pretensions to the contrary are, in reality, reactionary socialist bureaucrats whose sole aim is the eventual destruction of human worth.

3. Those who study human illness and seek honestly to cure it are best qualified to guide humanity to life, peace, and the realization of happiness.

4. The ideal society is one motivated by love and guided by knowledge. Other values such as patriotism are merely tools in the hands of unscrupulous governments.

5. Human life is sacred — no agency under any condition — even the state is justified in killing. War must be outlawed, and with it, capital punishment. The infliction of pain—mental or physical, is the only moral evil.

"Even now," he said, "agitators are at work strengthening the party's ranks, and many influential people are backing us". He declined to give any names. In his final remarks, he asked us to print this request to the student body—

"I strongly urge all men and women of good will and courage to support this movement — for only in the application of our principles can catastrophe be averted — we haven't much time."

Talk State Medicine

The controversial topic of socialized medicine will be dealt with in full detail today, CCF Club President Jerry Caplan said last night.

The campus CCF Club will hear a lecture by Jules Harris, a final year Medical student at U of T and president of the Canadian Association of Medical Students and Internes.

During the talk, Harris will outline a scheme for the introduction of socialized medicine in Canada.

"We think this is a very timely and highly important topic for our day," Caplan said. "With the new Ontario health scheme now in operation, and the majority of the other provinces already participating in some kind of health plan, many people claim that we in this country almost have socialized medicine now. Besides, one constantly hears contradicting stories about what socialized medicine really involves. The problem is, of course, few of these people have enough of the facts."

The talk and the facts will be heard this afternoon at 4.15 in room 4 of University College. The meeting is an open one and all students are invited.

Here and Now

TODAY

1.10 p.m. — VCF Bible Study at SPS.

1.00 p.m. — Speaker at the weekly Canterbury Luncheon will be Rev. Vincent Goring, national SCM President. Bring your lunch to 99 St. George St., or buy it there.

1.10 p.m. — SCM Study Group on: "The Anatomy of Hope" At SCM Coachhouse behind 110 St. George St.

4.00 p.m. — Rev. W. C. Bothwell will conduct a Bible Study Seminar at Canterbury Centre, 99 St. George St.

4.10 p.m. — SCM Study Group at Victoria College "The Apostles' Creed". Room 14 Victoria College.

4.15 p.m. — CCF Club will hear a lecture by Mr. Jules Harris (IV Meds), President of Canadian Association of Medical Students and Internes on the subject of "Socialized Medicine". Room 4 UC. Everyone welcome.

5.30 p.m. — Wednesday Night Supper Meeting, "The Life and Mission of the Church". At SCM Coachhouse behind 110 St. George St. Everyone welcome.

8.00 p.m. — Dr. J. Tuzo Wilson, professor of geophysics at the U of T and president of the International Union of Geodesy and Geophysics will address the Pakistan Canada Society on "Two Months as a Guest of Russian, Chinese and Formosan Governments" in the Women's Union, 79 St. George St. A Spanish dancing group will also perform.

3.00 p.m. — Vic French Club meets in Wymulwood music room. Mr. Gerald Antoine of the Sorbonne will speak on "La Vie Universitaire En France". Also songs and refreshments.

THURSDAY

12.00 a.m. — VCF Bible Study Group, Room 16, School of Nursing.

12.15 p.m. — The Holy Eucharist will be celebrated in Trinity College Chapel.

1.00 p.m. — VCF Bible Study, Room III, UC.

1.10 p.m. — SCM Study Group on: "Achievements in Christian Unity" SCM Office, Hart House.

1.15 p.m. — VCF Bible Study, Room 21, Vic.

4.00 p.m. — Seminar in Room 135, McLennan Laboratory, Dr. R. S. Storey on "The Low Lying Levels of Light Nuclei and their Interpretation in Terms of the Collective Model". Tea.

CLASSIFIED ADS.

$1 DOWN BUYS ANY MAKE
Brand new typewriters, $59 up. Some models $30 off. Free home demonstration. Free typing course. 1959 models rented, lowest rates. 175 Jane-Humber, RO 6-1103.

TYPIST (Electric)

Fast, accurate, personalized service. Theses, essays, letters, dictation. Reasonable rates. Irene Kenyon, 146 Bernard Avenue, WA 3-4011.

ROOMS FOR RENT

Excellent facilities for 6 male students. Meals served if desired. $27 per month. 84 Lowther Avenue, (2 blocks north of Bloor near St. George) WA 4-0233.

ROOM FOR RENT

Male student — Harbord St., one block from campus. Kitchen facilities available. WA 3-0036 (WA 5-1614 after 7 pm)

ACCOMMODATION AVAILABLE
for a male and a female student in Campus Co-Operative Residence. Phone WA 1-2520.

WOMEN'S ATHLETICS

ARCHERY
Practice cancelled Friday, February 6th.
VOLLEYBALL
The game on Thursday February 5th from 6 to 7 between P.O.T. II and St. Michael's II has been cancelled.
SKI CLUB
There will be an important meeting tomorrow at 5 p.m. in Falconer Hall. All faculty representatives and those intending to enter the meet or the weekend activities, please be sure to attend.

GAMES TODAY

HOCKEY	1.30 Vic. III vs Med II	Blute, Sadovy
	4.00 Trin. B vs M d III	Cole, McCulloch
	5.00 Trin. D vs SPS VII	Schallman, Blunt
WATER POLO	4.00 St. M. C vs Med IV	Jeny, Miens
	6.15 Dent. vs Med II	Nouet, Janv
SQUASH	1.00 Jr SPS vs Trin B
	4.20 Vic. I vs St. M. A
BASKETBALL MAJOR LEAGUE	1.00 GE. VI vs St. M. D	Coopack, Treffer
	6.30 U.C. VI vs SPS. G	Fickerson, G. dley
	7.30 Law A vs Pham. A	Leitch, Godly
	8.30 U. V vs Med B	Riherdon, Godley
BASKETBALL MINOR LEAGUE	1.00 U.C. Bn. Spt. vs I.C.A. A	Shafir
	4.00 P.A. Med II A vs U. M. J. Spt.	Stim
	5.00 P.M. A vs U.C. Wella C	Chis
	6.00 I.T.E. C vs U.C. Bndr. C	J.P. A
	7.00 H. C. A vs U. London	Jonen
	8.00 Wic. E vs Law B	Jen n
BASKETBALL MINOR LEAGUE (VIC GYM)	5.15 U.C. J. H. E vs P.A. M. d. IC	S. n
	6.00 I.M. C vs I.E. D	S. n
	7.00 U.C. Jeanneret vs St. M. C & F	Kot. n
	8.00 St. M. Galligans vs U.C. Taylor	Klodzie

"Fly away, Sheedy", said J. Paul's* tweetie, "Your hair's too seedy for me".

Sheedy was sitting on his girl's front perch. "My love for you", said he, "is plain as the nose on my face. Toucan live as cheeply as one, so..." "Stop", she cried "I'll never be yours till you do something about that messy hair!" So Sheedy hopped down to the store and pecked up some Wildroot Cream-Oil. Now his tweetie is happy because his hair always looks handsome and healthy without a trace of grease. Next time you're at the store get a bottle or tube of Wildroot Cream-Oil. It's guaranteed to make your hair look good to other people!

*of 131 So. Harris Hill Rd., Williamsville, N.Y.

Wildroot Cream-Oil makes you feel good about your hair!

- Sound was first recorded as far back as 1877.
- Edison held his first public showing of his Kinetoscope in 1894.
- The first all-talking picture was "Lights of New York" in 1928.

- The movies added color in the 30's.
- Next came 3-D movies, first in two colors, then in full-color.
- Now we have Cinemascope, Todd A-O, stereophonic sound and Cinerama.

DUNLOPS 5-4 ON LATE FLUKE

Varsity Drops Thriller Before 3,500 Fans

By GENE GLISKY
Associate Sports Editor

In a classic contest that lacked none of the thrills of their first encounter Varsity Blues battled the world champion Whitby Dunlops to a standstill before bowing to a heart-breaking 5-4 defeat.

Before 3,500 cheering fans, Blues proved once and for all their former victory over Whitby was no accident, as the two great teams gave their all Monday night to stage a spectacular contest.

Dunc (Nails) Brodie, playing a standout game, opened scoring on a stellar passing play with Bill Kennedy at 5:46 of the first period.

Whitby's Tommy O'Connor put Dunlops ahead with two goals five minutes apart.

Nine seconds later, Blues bounced back to tie it up, John Macdonald was Johnnie-on-the-spot to slam home a Grant Mills' rebound. Harry Neale garnered the assist.

Whitby consistently capitalized on Varsity mistakes to earn the victory. An example was Dunc's goal in the second period. Bob Attersley tallied an unassisted goal at 15 seconds of the period, taking advantage of a sloppy Varsity clearing pass in front of their own net.

Brodie tied it up on a tremendous solo effort, skating through the Whitby defence to beat Long John Henderson with a blistering shot.

The second period belonged to Blues. Henderson's spectacular netminding plus several bad breaks prevented what appeared to be certain Varsity goals. Lady luck played a fickle role as Blues' attackers twice grazed the goal posts.

Blues swung into the lead for the last time in the game on Howie Roth's early period marker. Doug Williams and Jim Brooks assisted on the well executed attack.

Dunlop's ganging attack paid off when Fred Etcher combined with Attersley and O'Connor to hammer the rubber past Varsity goalie Ray Dunn. Blues were playing a man short at the time.

Varsity remained in hot water until the 15 minute mark of the period, managing to ward off Whitby attackers on a tremendous effort by the defensive corps and Ray Dunn.

A freak major penalty to Mike Elik left Blues short handed for five minutes. Elik was charged with drawing blood with a high stick.

Whitby's winning goal was a heartbreaker for Varsity. From a scramble in front of the Blues' goal, the puck deflected from a Varsity player's stick into the net.

O'Connor was credited with the goal with 49 seconds remaining in the game.

Dunn was replaced by a sixth attacker as Blues waged an all-out effort to tie the contest, but a determined Whitby squad held the fort.

Long John Stops Mac

DUNLOP GOALIE John Henderson steers aside a shot by Varsity winger Johnnie Macdonald, as Alf Treen (3) moves in to take Macdonald out of the play. Duncie captain Harry Sinden turns with a worried expression on his face, but Henderson has already cleared the shot.

SO NEAR but yet so far, is what Blues' Mike Elik groans as the puck he had so craftily slid past Henderson strikes the goalposts before bouncing away. Elik was playing his fourth game in as many nights. — VSP Ball

Speaking OF SPORT

By AL CECUTTI

What is the role of athletics in a university student's life?

There are many ways to answer this question, but I would like to consider it from the viewpoint of a Medical student hoping that it will also apply to those in other faculties and colleges.

Let me point out first that I do not cherish any idealistic belief or hope that everyone should take an active part in sports. Some people are not able to compete due to a physical disability, or perhaps their interests focus on other fields. For these students many other extra-curricular activities are available at U of T.

In the freshman year, the physical education requirements compel each student to participate in some form of athletics, but after the first year what is to determine whether a student will continue an active role in sports?

To me, the greatest benefit in athletics is relaxation. You may ask: "How can you relax when you are exerting so much effort?" But that is the fun of the game, working hard at it and forgetting studies completely for an hour or two a week.

The same principle would apply for any activity whether it is the drama society or camera club. If you do not put your heart into the game, you shouldn't be playing because you are not truthfully enjoying your relaxation.

Many people regard athletics as a hobby comparable to model plane building or stamp collecting. Webster's dictionary defines a hobby as an occupation or interest to which one devotes his spare time. And there lies the crux of the matter! It must be your spare time, not all your time. A good athlete will not let sports interfere with the proper function of his duty as a student.

Through athletics, you can make many pleasant acquaintances and some lasting friendships. In the gym and on the Back Campus you meet people in all the different faculties and gain a little insight into how the rest of the university lives.

By getting away from the cadavers and microscopes you discover that the human body is more than a well-organized anatomical machine.

We at the U of T are fortunate in having one of the best athletic setups in the world. We need not dwell on the intercollegiate aspect of the sports picture, since its scope and popularity are well recognized.

As far as the Intramural program is concerned, it is so broad and so well organized that it provides an outlet for every student, no matter what his athletic inclinations or abilities. Fine traditions have grown up with the annual healthy rivalries for such coveted trophies as the Mulock Cup, Jennings Cup and Reed trophy.

Unfortunately, it seems there must always be those who try to spoil a good thing. These people show their ingratitude and lack of consideration by signing up for a team but not showing up, by criticising all the time but never doing anything constructive, by complaining about the referees but never obeying the rules themselves.

They are the poor sports who, losing sight of the true meaning of the game, go out intent to win at all costs even though someone else may be hurt in the process. Thank goodness these types are few in number; yet they are still too many.

On this subject I would like to quote the President of our university: "The game here is the thing; and the end is the personal pleasure, excitement and stimulation that come partly from one's own efforts, partly from team-work ... such participation can be an important part of one's education."

I am grateful for this opportunity to express in print a few opinions on athletics. If I may, I should also like to thank the Intramural and University Athletic Associations, especially Miss Kay Boyd, Miss Phyllis Lea, Mr. John McCutcheon and Mr. Warren Stevens, who are the driving forces behind this vast program.

We of the graduating class especially will remember the wonderful enjoyment university athletics have given us.

Dope On Doctors

Cage Team Strong

With the new basketball season in full swing, Senior Meds basketball team are aiming for their first Interfaculty championship in many years.

Coach Jerry Edelist, former Blues' basketball player, has his team heading for first place this year.

Gerry Lansky, Vic Kurdyak, Florian Matsalla and Larry Joyn are leading the squad. Lansky, the big gun, is top scorer, and gained 19 points when Meds trounced UC 54-38 Wednesday.

Before that, Meds had defeated Vic 52-44, with Kurdyak's skilful rebounding deciding the game. Matsalla on the fast break and Joyn't around the key pose a double threat in every game.

With Marv Goldman, from the Intermediates, Joe Anderson, Jerry Zadyko, Stan Frieck and Al Gross up from Pre-Meds, Senior Meds will give any team a run for their shorts this season.

Last night, Senior Meds trounced St. Mike's in a hard-fought game to the tune of 45-38. That gives Meds their third win in a row. Lansky and Kurdyak were the big guns in the game, scoring a total of 25 points.

Water Polo, Squash Have High Hopes

With only two games under their belts, this year's Meds' Firsts water polo team have already managed a tie and a moral victory.

Basically the same team that went to last year's Interfaculty finals: Marty Kosoy and Irv Gorsfield on offense (both men have played Intercollegiate water polo in the past); captain Lionel Chisholm, Gerry Lansky and Harry Hall on defense (versatile Harry also warns the bench), and Doug (Vezina) Wilson in the nets.

Sandwiched between this unprejudiced defense and an unequalled offense are sophomore swimmer Walt Unger, veteran Don Morn and Dave Berger.

The annual Medical squash tournament is now entering the final stages. Competition has been keen, with about 30 entries, mostly from the Medical Interfaculty squash teams.

The four seeded players, John Ireton, Morley Smith, Sheldon Schiller and Sam Malcolmson, are all members of the Intercollegiate squash team.

Morley Smith, Sheldon Schiller, Sam Malcolmson

Pre-Med Course?

Why Not Throw It Out?

By RON WINTROB

I think the present Premedical course should be done away with. It is neither fish nor fowl: neither a science nor an arts course. And what it is is a flavourless stew made up of chunks of humanities, social sciences, basic sciences, with no one chunk large enough to really get your teeth into.

So you come away frustrated. If you were interested in philosophy, you could not get more than two courses in it. If you were interested in physics, you got only a one-year basic course. You could not follow up a special interest in any field. In the attempt to expose the student to the best of both worlds, neither one really came off.

There are other criticisms. It develops a mass instinct in the student. If he went in to Pre-meds to have more time to decide about continuing in Medicine, social pressures develop which tend to keep him from changing his mind and choosing another field. His contacts are narrowed by the nature of his course, the amount of work and the people in the course.

I suggest first that Medicine be made a post-graduate course. This would do much to encourage students to follow different fields in their undergraduate days without prejudicing their chances of acceptance into Medicine. The high-school graduate would not be encouraged to make an important decision affecting the rest of his life until he had experienced three years of university. The Faculty of Medicine would draw students who were more sure of themselves, of their desire for Medicine.

I suggest a three-year Premed course (honours) leading to a BA degree, with basic requirements for Medicine of one course in each of physics, zoology, inorganic chemistry, organic chemistry. These four courses could be taken at any time during the three years, according to the student's interest and the nature of his other courses. The student would take five courses per year. He would be encouraged to specialize in one or another branch of humanities, social sciences, or pure sciences. A student interested in English, for example, might take: 1st year: English, History, psychology, physics, inorganic chemistry. 2nd year: two Englishes, history, psychology, organic chemistry. 3rd year: three Englishes, history, zoology.

I think a Premedical education should expose the student to the broad range of people and ideas that make up a university by not crowding him or channeling him early with respect to classmates or subject matter. It should encourage the student to further his interest in a specialized field of his own choice, in addition to providing the matrix of courses necessary for Medical training.

WUS Seminar Trio Announced

Three U of T students have been selected to attend this year's World University Service summer seminar in the West Indies—but one of them may not make it if money is not forthcoming.

Sure to go, WUS committee chairman Sue Evans said last night, are Bob Matthews (III, Trin) and Mary Fraser (III, Vic).

But she said the attendance of Paul Druckman (II, Meds) is contingent on the WUS committee raising $750 to send him.

Delegates contribute $250 each themselves. Total cost for a delegate is $1,000.

Candidates were chosen by a committee of five U of T staff members and four students, chaired by U of T vice-president Murray Ross.

The Seminar will begin with an orientation period in Toronto followed by lectures at the University College of the West Indies, Kingston, Jamaica.

Delegates will then break into separate groups to study politics, economics, social conditions and health, education, and culture.

Each group will visit two contrasting West Indies islands and a final seminar in Trinidad will follow the tours.

The program will finish before the end of July, Miss Evans said.

UNIVERSITY HEALTH SERVICE SALK POLIO VACCINE WOMEN ONLY

Salk Vaccine Will Be Available for WOMEN Students:
TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 10th — 12:00 noon to 2:00 p.m.
WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 11th — 2:00 p.m. to 4:00 p.m.
THIS WILL BE THE LAST OPPORTUNITY FOR WOMEN STUDENTS TO BEGIN A SERIES OF INJECTIONS.

Special Attention — 25% Discount ON ALL JEWELLERY PURCHASES

Including: Watches, Diamonds, Silverware, Lighters, Wallets, Pens, and Pencils, Radios, Clocks, Costume Jewellery etc etc. You must have your A.T.L. card when making a purchase.

SHEFFIELD JEWELLERS DIAMOND MERCHANTS

323 YONGE ST. (5 doors above Dundas) TEL. EM. 6-0977

Private Instructor Wanted

in all or any of the following subjects:
Soil Mechanics
Structural Steel
Reinforced Concrete Design.
Call Alex: OX. 9-3196, between 7 and 9 p.m.

TYPEWRITERS

$1.00 A WEEK BUYS ...
... $1.50 A WEEK RENTS
Get a free typing course and a liberal trade-in allowance for your old typewriter when you buy a new modern machine from us.
Phone HO. 1-1843 Today

Counsellors

Camp Arowhon
Algonquin Park

HU. 7-0311

COMING SOON

Graduate Students'

Valentine Dance

AT

The Sign of the Steer

AT

Friday, Feb. 13th

Tickets $3.00 Per Couple
Available at 44 Hoskin

UNIVERSITY BLAZERS

Custom Made

Especially Priced for Students
$27.50

Fine Flannel Worsted Trousers
$16.50

Business Hours: 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.
Monday through Saturday
Suits made to measure
latest styles and design

PARNES Clothing Co.
706 QUEEN STREET WEST
EM 6-2025

Sample at S.A.C. Office

HAVE YOU CONSIDERED ...

a career as a pharmaceutical representative?

SCHERING —

the leader in steroid research, is currently expanding its

FIELD STAFF —

and is inviting applications for

INTERESTING POSITIONS

in various areas throughout Canada

If interested, write to —

SALES MANAGER,
SCHERING CORPORATION LTD.
8370 Labarre St.,
Montreal 9, P.Q.

VE DAY!

VOCATION AND EDUCATION CONFERENCE

For Anglican Teachers and Students at HART HOUSE, MUSIC ROOM

Saturday, February 7th, 1959

10.00 a.m. to 4.00 p.m.

Speakers:

- The Rev. Michael Creal, General Secretary of the Church's national department of education
- Canon A. H. Davis, a Canadian expert on the overseas Church
- Miss Florence Lamb, an attractive young career woman, whose field is youth work in the Church.

Hart House

WEDNESDAY, 4th FEBRUARY:

ART LIBRARY: Curator on duty at 9.00 a.m.

ART GALLERY: Open to women from 12 noon to 6 p.m.

"CONTEMPORARY JAPANESE PRINTS" and

"ATOMS FOR PEACE", an exhibition of photographs

INDUSTRIAL FILM: "Pursuit of Wisdom" — 1.15 p.m. — Music Room

CAMERA CLUB: Print Mounting Demonstration by Mr. Ed Hoskin, 1.10 p.m., Camera Club Rooms

LEE COLLECTION: Open to men and women from 5 to 6 p.m.

AMATEUR RADIO CLUB: Theory Class in Debates Loft, 5.10 p.m.

TABLE TENNIS: 7.00 p.m. — Fencing Room

MEMBERS' ART SHOW

The Members' Art Show will be hung in the Hart House Art Gallery from 2nd to 16th March. Graduate and undergraduate members of the House and male members of the University staff are invited to submit paintings, drawings or sculpture for consideration by a Selection Committee. CLOSING DATE FOR ENTRIES — FEBRUARY 27. Information from the Undergraduate Office, WA 3-9504.

EATON'S

the Suit
for the Co-Ed in the Springtime

A brand new basic, that lends itself so beautifully to wardrobe-building! The slim skirt has a deep pleat in back, the brief little jacket (very new!) just touches the waist — and both are fully lined. Elegant wool "Rodier" cloth in navy or grey — brightened with a splash of red at lapel and cuff. Incidentally, just one of the many to be found at EATON'S.

each, 69.95

PHONE UN 1-5111
EATON'S Main Store — Fourth Floor,
Dept. 644

Skulehouse Attacked By Angry Pre-Meds

Rivalry between the Faculties of Medicine and Applied Science spotlighted by the stealing of the Skule Cannon by Medsmen Tuesday burst into a midday battle yesterday.

The ruckus was kicked off by a march by premedical students on the Engineering Faculty following the disappearance of a film on "Control of Fertility" which was to have been shown at the Banting Institute under the auspices of the Canadian Association of Medical Students and Internes.

The students were met by Enigneers who poured from the Skulehouse and the two groups fought in a battle.

Several hundred students were estimated to have taken part in the fray at about 2 p.m.

Some students were reported to have used wooden clubs during the battle and a fire hose was uncoiled and turned on in the neighbouring Medical Building, filling the halls with water.

Two premedical students were seized by the Engineers and held in the Engineering Stores for a short while, while another was chained to a tree.

One of the captives was forced to leave the Stores without his shoes and all three were daubed with black ink.

Yesterday, the cannon was stolen by a swarm of Medical students while being taken from the Toronto Blood Donor Clinic where it had been used for publicity photographs.

A Skuleman who took part in yesterday's battle said last night three Meds students tried to abduct him from his home and later from his place of employment, but failed because they were overpowered by him and his father.

Medical Society president

J. TUZO WILSON who last night told a meeting of the Pakistan Canada Society that the Russians are not controlling China and that the establishment of communes in China has been exaggerated. (Varsity staff photo) two worlds . . .

Russ Don't Rule China, Says Prof

By TERRY BOURKE
Varsity Staff Reporter

University of Toronto students gained an insight into two worlds last night at the first meeting of the Pakistan Canada Society this year.

Dr. J. Tuzo Wilson U of T Geophysic professor and president of the International Union of Geodesy gave a personal slant on his work during the Geophysic year, explaining with slides his recent around the world trip.

Joyce McKay, decked out in a colorful Spanish costume added a touch of old Spain as she went through her paces bouncing out two Spanish dances.

Commenting on his tour through the Soviet Union Prof Wilson said the most prominent feature to first strike the visitor is the "surging growth of construction in buildings and industry."

"The average Russian is being influenced by the west and is demanding more of the good things of life," he said.

Claiming his trip was "entirely non-political" in its purpose Dr. Wilson said he asked the governments of Moscow and Peking if "he could see only those centers having a direct bearing on work concerning the International Geophysical year."

He called the majority of Russians a well-dressed and cheerful people. "But there is a striking difference between the poverty-ridden condition of the average Russian's home and the marvelous buildings seen on Russian propaganda posters."

Contrary to public opinion many Russians are restoring old churches, especially in Georgia, indicating religion is coming back he said.

He exploded the myth that all Chinese villages are being torn down by the Communists and being replaced by barracks. "There are thousands of villages still left in China, too many in fact for the Reds to abolish."

Illustrating the "completeness of the change" in Chinese thinking he showed pictures of lamposts with flying horse designs indicating a "leap forward into the future."

Russia is not running China the (Continued on Page 4)

Bissell Calls For Clear Distinction

LONDON, ONT.—CUP—President Claude T. Bissell of the University of Toronto last night called for a clear distinction between senior and junior universities in Ontario in an address made to the London branch of the U of T Alumni Association.

In recent years Ontario has been building an informal, but highly effective integrated system of higher education, he said. Its basis is the seven universities that now receive provincial assistance, he continued.

Dr. Bissell said it was clear these universities in themselves will not provide sufficient facilities for the vastly increased numbers of students that will be seeking higher education in a few years time.

More centres of higher education are now being established, and the various established Ontario universities welcome these developments, since they realize that without them their own campuses might well be swamped, he said.

"At the same time," he said, "it is of the greatest importance that now, at this period of flux and change, that we should pause and look seriously and comprehensively at our whole developing system of higher education in this province."

"The problem is essentially one of making clear distinctions that do not carry with them a suggestion of inferiority or inequality," he continued.

"The need is for the distinction between senior and junior universities," he said.

The former is concerned with concentrated undergraduate work which leads to specialist work, the major professions, "and above all to postgraduate work," he said, while the junior university is concerned primarily with general education that may be terminal but that usually leads on to professional work.

The president did not call for a clear cut and unflexible distinction between the two but said, "If the lines become blurred and if as the years go on, we have an increasing number of universities all aspiring toward the same goal, then the likelihood of achieving excellence in any field will be diminished."

JUST WASHED MY HAIR might be the caption for the charming person seen above, one of the faces on display at the Royal Ontario Museum's mask exhibition opening Feb. 11 - April 5. (Varsity staff photo)

News Snaps

Brymer extradition

Florida's governor Leroy Collins yesterday promised to intercede personally for Kenneth Brymer, at the request of Ontario Minister George Wardrope.

An earlier report that extradition proceedings against Brymer had been dropped has been denied.

HHOA grant

The Canada Council yesterday approved a grant of $1,000 to the Hart House Orchestra Association.

"The grant will help us out of our financial difficulties this year, and will make us feel much more secure next year," HHOA Public Relations Director Peter Brawley said last night.

Jargon deadline

Today is definitely the last day for submissions to "Jargon," editor John Robert Colombo said last night.

"Although Trinity has been extremely lax in submissions, I have over 45 contributions," Colombo said.

Debates cancellation

An inter-collegiate international debates tournament scheduled to begin today was called off at the last minute last night because of delay in obtaining a sponsor.

Although 30 universities were invited, only six signified they could attend.

Ski weekend

U of T Outing Club officials reported yesterday there is still space left on a ski weekend in the Laurentians next weekend.

Anyone interested can call Mike Berger at HU, 5-6255.

Deny Cruelty To Duck

Gary Hewson, last week accused of throwing a large white duck into the Whitney Hall Annex, last night denied any knowledge of the affair, and said he was on a TCA flight at the time.

Facing prosecution on a charge of cruelty to animals, Hewson refused a Varsity appeal to claim Mortimer.

The Toronto Humane Society has kept Mortimer alive longer than the usual five days' hoping to find the owner.

thought control

Discussion of the topic of birth control between Catholics and Protestants is as futile as it is inflammatory. Catholics believe birth control to be immoral on the authority of the Church and Protestants, far from regarding it as immoral, tend to think of it as a necessity.

Recently the Faculty of Medicine and St. Michael's College attempted to find some common ground of understanding by debating the topic that birth control was alien to natural law and therefore detrimental to man.

They did not succeed. Throughout the debate no serious attempt was made to define what was meant by "natural law" and the air merely blistered with a series of categorical and contradictory assertions.

Even if they had attempted to define natural law, the debaters would not be much further ahead. St. Mike's students, who are taught Thomistic philosophy, cannot talk of natural law without introducing the Philosophy of Nature and this in turn is enlightened by theology. Protestants, if they believe in a natural law, are more inclined to think of it in realistic terms.

The debate therefore seemed silly from the very beginning. Yet elsewhere on this page are two samples of a flood of letters issuing from St. Mike's and accusing our reporter of everything from intolerance to sensationalism. More, the St. Mike's students seem to think the reporter holds opinions contrary to their doctrine and beliefs and therefore cannot help but be biased.

He does not. He is in fact a student in St. Michael's College. And while his report may have missed some of the louder assertions of belief, he remained perceptive enough to see the futility of discussing doctrinal faith across the Hart House debates table.

He accordingly treated the subject with an objective lightheartedness which not a few hot-headed dogmatists in the college across the way might emulate.

THE VARSITY

FOUNDED 1880

Published by
The Students' Administrative Council
of the University of Toronto
Toronto 5, Canada

Member Canadian University Press

Editor-in-Chief Doug Marshall
Managing Editor Mark Nichols
Editor-without-portfolio Sam Aizenstat
News Editor Harvey Shepherd
Associate News Editors Ed Roberts and Al Walker
Sports Editor John Brooks
Today's Issue: Debbie Halper, Maryanne Kelso, Terry Bourke, Pete Brawley, Rihho Pild, Moisha Reiter, Jayne Nesbitt, Warren Peace, Ladd Vormitag, the immanent presence of 5,000 seething engineers, and our possible cannonization.

Our Readers Write: Intolerant Reporter

Dear Sir:

I would like to express my admiration for the democratic spirit of your newspaper — you must certainly be a tolerant group to allow such an article, as that allegedly covering the debate on birth control, to appear on the front page. On the other hand, for sheer prejudice, I suppose it deserves a distinction of some sort.

Had I not attended the debate myself, I certainly would have received an erroneous impression of the whole affair, thanks to the enthusiastic distortion of your reporter. His enthusiasm, I might add, is equalled only by his journalistic inconsistency. In one deep, and presumably hesitant breath, he declared that the government was "brought to its knees... by a slim six-vote margin". I hardly think that a confessedly slim margin of six votes is an occasion for dropping to one's knees.

I for one felt no need for it, and, perhaps in defiance to the tide, stood up at the end and judgment of your representative shamelessly strode through the door—brazen eh?

I thought that the government presented a good case very well, at least as well as the opposition, who apparently can derive a limited satisfaction from having the dubious support of your reporter.

R. HAGAN (III SMC)

Unity

Dear Sir:

In writing to your esteemed Daily, you may allow my physical nearness to be sufficient substitute for my lack of U. of T. membership. As it was supposed to, the Jan. 30 editorial by HLS would make some people feel it should not go unanswered. After all, the column treated of the Unity of Christendom,— an excellent and important topic.

Would it not have been very much more to the point, had the writer reflected —

1, that to most people, the doing of God's Will is of primary importance?

2, that "alcoholism" is just not in the same running as is Man's religious nature?

3, that Christ, Who, though unmentioned in the article concerned, yet has SOMETHING to do with the Church and the above-mentioned Will of God, Himself desired that "they all may be One" — meaning Christians, and (by direct implication) all men?

4, that unity does not necessarily mean Inquisitions or crushed personalities, but rather the fulfillment of this Will of God, cf. the Lord's Prayer?

5, that if Roman Catholics, Anglicans, Eastern Orthodox and Protestants would even say together the Lord's Prayer, it would be showing an obedience to the Truth which is exactly what is required and demanded, Q.E.D.?

W.J. EVANS

(Assistant Curate, Church of the Redeemer, Avenue Rd. & Bloor)

Perplexity

Dear Sir:

It was a shock for me when I entered university this year and learned how naively I had conceived the world for so many years. But I have had the courage to face up to the truth and I think everyone else should. Everyone knows that solipsism has never been refuted, and yet, try as I may, I haven't been able to find another solipsist besides myself on this campus.

Arnold Toybean (I Nursing)

SEE The A.V.R. FREE

Be An

Usher or Usherette

MEET IN FRONT OFFICE OF THE

S.A.C. BUILDING ON FRIDAY,

FEB. 6, AT 4.30 p.m.

Medical At-Home

THURSDAY, FEB. 12

ROYAL YORK HOTEL

BENNY LOUIS ORCHESTRA

CY McLEAN QUINTET

Dress Optional Advance Tickets $3.50 Per Couple

Corsages on Sale at The Door

Tickets $4.00 At The Door

- J. L. Baird, a Scottish inventor, gave the first practical demonstration of television in 1926
- Regular TV broadcasting was started by the BBC in 1936; by the NBC in New York in 1939
- By 1939 there were an established 20,000 TV sets in the London area; by 1940 about 20,000 sets in the New York area

- Now only 34 years later, Baird's invention is an accepted part of our lives
- There are now over 50 television stations in Canada
- There are over 2,500,000 TV sets in Canadian households

Hockey Scoring Mark May Be In Danger

By JOHN BROOKS
Varsity Sports Editor

Varsity hockey fans may be weeping over the departure of Cap'n Mike Elik for greener pastures — and remuneration of the same color—but never fear, there cometh to succeed an even greater force.

Three times greater, to be exact.

Blues' so-called "second line" — the odd combination of a veteran, a rookie and a converted defenseman — is the force in mention, and if they continue their present pace, they may go down as one of the greatest forward lines in Intercollegiate history.

The University of Montreal is still talking about 1953-54 and a trio of habitants named Claude Hotte, Claude Dagenais and Bernie Quesnel.

Varsity fans of 1958-59 have Duncan Brodie, William Kennedy and Ronald Casey — and don't they sound awesome when the shortened Christian names are forgotten momentarily.

Awe some is, perhaps, an understatement.

Currently Varsity's hottest forwards, they have amassed a total of 50 scoring points — 21 of them goals — in seven games to date, and need only 26 points in the five remaining games to overtake Blues' highest point output to date.

The famed Hotte-Dagenais-Quesnel trio accumulated 96 points (not 97, as may have been erroneously reported earlier) on 36 goals and 60 assists. To shatter that, Varsity's Brodie-Kennedy-Casey line would need a 9.4 per game average in battles yet to be waged.

It may sound like an impossible task, yet it must be remembered that Brodie, although hitting at a two-point a game clip, has not reached his peak point output (he did, for instance, gain five goals in the two Whitby games).

If Brodie starts a full-scale assault, and Casey maintains his knack of hat-tricks (two to date), Messrs. Hotte, Dagenais and Quesnel just might observe the relegation of their record to second place in college history.

As for Kennedy, not much more could be expected. The former Marlboro junior has seven goals and 15 assists, and leads the league in scoring (unless Montreal's Yves Laurendeau gained more than six points in last night's McGill-U of M game).

Penalty-wise, McGill rearguard Terry Dingle continues as the league badman, with 48 minutes. Far back in second place is Varsity's Lorry Stacey with 28.

Blues lead in team penalties with 170 minutes, trailed away back by Redmen with 113. Laval has 89 and Montreal 82. (All figures, of course, do not include last night's game).

Toronto's goaldenting duo of Ray Dunn and Bob Giroux have a comfortable edge in netminding activity, with Giroux's record 2.50 for two games, and Dunn registering 3.57 for five games.

Laval's Jacques Lebrun was close until he fished 12 Varsity shots out of the net here last Friday night.

Hockey Scoring

PLAYER	GP	G	A	Pts	MIN
KENNEDY (T)	7	7	15	22	2
ELIK (T)	7	10	7	17	27
Laurendeau (M)	6	10	6	16	6
BRODIE (T)	7	7	14	21	2
CASEY (T)	7	7	14	21	10
Laudry (L)	6	6	8	14	0
Arsenault (L)	6	4	10	14	0
Duguay (L)	6	7	6	13	2
Duhaine (M)	6	5	8	13	4
ROTH (T)	7	9	5	12	19
Raymond (L)	6	7	5	12	0
Bedard (M)	6	5	7	12	2
MACDONALD (T)	7	4	7	11	17
Laureville (M)	6	4	6	10	1
WILLIAMS (T)	6	3	7	10	2
NEALE (T)	7	4	6	10	10
STEPHEN (T)	7	1	8	9	12
Bouchard (L)	7	1	8	9	12
St. Jean (M)	6	0	9	9	20
MUNRO (T)	6	2	6	8	12
MILLS (T)	6	4	4	8	12
Arsenault (L)	6	1	7	8	0
Therault (M)	6	4	4	8	4
STACHEL (T)	7	2	4	6	28
Lapage (L)	3	3	3	6	6
F. Laroche (L)	5	1	5	6	0
Mongeeon (M)	6	4	2	6	4
Blanchette (L)	6	4	2	6	4
Audet (L)	6	3	3	6	6
Bourgeois (L)	6	2	3	5	8
Saunders (M)	7	2	3	5	9
BROOKS (T)	7	2	2	4	9
Irvin (MCG)	7	1	3	4	4
Leblanc (L)	6	0	3	3	17
Killen (MCG)	7	0	3	3	2
O'Connor (MCG)	7	0	3	3	2
Molson (MCG)	5	0	3	3	4
Dingle (MCG)	7	0	3	3	25
Richards (MCG)	7	0	3	3	45
Hutchinson (MCG)	4	0	3	3	0
WATT (T)	4	2	0	2	4
Grant (MCG)	6	0	2	2	6
FLEMING (T)	2	0	1	1	2
Sauve (M)	3	0	1	1	0
Poirier (M)	7	0	1	1	2
Clement (M)	5	1	0	1	0
Renaud (M)	6	0	1	1	2
Beland (M)	1	0	1	1	2
Hebrt (M)	6	0	1	1	8
Mattie (M)	6	0	1	1	2
Dionne (M)	6	0	1	1	12
Dufour (L)	6	0	1	1	10
Baziv (MCG)	6	0	1	1	8
Vanplew (MCG)	7	1	0	1	0
Peters (MCG)	7	0	1	1	2
Michael (L)	3	0	0	0	4
Perron (M)	3	0	1	1	2
Young (L)	6	0	1	1	6
Bernier (M)	5	0	0	0	6
D. Laroche (MCG)	5	0	0	0	8
Germain (M)	6	0	0	0	6
Foerts (MCG)	6	0	0	0	2
Leclair (M)	1	0	0	0	2

GOALKEEPERS	GP	GA	SO	AVG	MIN
GIRoux (T)	2	0	250	0	0
DUNN (T)	5	20	1	4.00	0
TORONTO
TOTALS	7	25	1	3.57	0
Schooner (M)	4	17	1	4.25	8
Lebrun (L)	6	29	0	4.83	0
Taurel (M)	2	11	0	5.50	2
Herce (MCG)	7	68	0	9.71	0

TYPING
Treses, Essays, Notes, Charts
French, German, Latin, English.
Prices Upon Request
Apt. 'D'
21 AVENUE RD—WA 2-7624
WRS. M. D. STOTT, E.A.

GOOD HAIRCUT
RIGHT NEAR HERE
4 BARBERS—NO WAITING
660 University Avenue
Just across College
in the Basement
Open Monday through Friday
8 a.m. to 6 p.m.
ONLY $1.00

TYPEWRITERS
$1.00 A WEEK BUYS...
$1.50 A WEEK RENT...
Get a free typing course and a liberal trade-in allowance for your old typewriter when you buy a new modern machine from us.
Phone NO. 1-1843 Today

Cagers Play YMHA In Tough Warmup For Lancer Battle

Tonight at 7, the U of T basketball Blues meet YMHA in an exhibition game. This should be a good warmup for Varsity's league game Saturday with the league leading Assumption University.

Although Coach John McManus' squad hasn't won too many games this year, they improved their shooting to a sharp 45 per cent for 86 points last game against McMaster.

YMHA is one of the best Senior basketball teams in Toronto and will provide a stiff test for the Blues' newly found range.

Blues centre Jim Maguire has fully recovered from a blow requiring several stitches when he was conked under the eye last week by a hard McMaster head.

The rest of the team is in top shape, both mentally and physically, and should come up with one of their better games of the year.

The location is the YMHA gym at Bloor and Spadina

Interfaculty Summary

St. Mike's A edged Victoria Firsts, 4-3, in Group One hockey play, with four players sharing in the Irish scoring. Finlay, Quinn, Wheeler and Flannery netted the Double Blue goals. Griffin led Vic with a pair, and Grant added one.

Skule Fourths whipped Meds Seconds, 9-0, with Brock (4), Booth (3) and Kearney (2) taking care of the scoring. Victoria Thirds and Meds Second battled to a 2-2 tie. Shiels and Carascaden scored for Vic, while Sprowl and Irvine tallied for the Doctors.

Senior Skule defeated Victoria 38-25 in cage play. Patterson hooped 18 to lead Engineers, while Winters added seven. Sapuntis with eight was high for Vic. McCrae netted 13 to lead Junior SPS to a 43-42 win over Junior SPS. Pashkevych topped Skule with 11.

Meds Fourth bested St. Mike's

F, 44-32, on a brilliant 22-point performance by Vaughan. Humphries added nine for Meds, with Schmid's nine points leading the Irish.

St. Mike's Ponticellos edged Second Chemical, 27-23. Newry paced the winners with 24 points, and Kelly contributed nine. Bulley had eight for Skule. Hallas hoped 20 to pace Fourth Mechanical to a 44-31 win over First Engineering-Physics.

UC Beta Sigs tripped First Civil A 38-17, with Thomas leading the way at 10. Shulman added six, and Doyle led the losers with the same total.

Three players netted a hat-trick as Skule trounced Trinity, 11-0, in water polo. Harper, Thesingh and Binner netted three each, with singles from Boese and Vandewaan.

Special Attention — 25% Discount

ON ALL JEWELLERY PURCHASES
Including Watches, Diamonds, Silverware, Lighters, Wallets, Pens, and Pencils, Radios, Clocks, Costume Jewellery etc. etc. You must have your A.T.L. card when making a purchase.

SHEFFIELD JEWELLERS

DIAMOND MERCHANTS

323 YONGE ST. 35 doors above Dundas

TEL. EM. 6-0977

GAMES TODAY

HOCKEY
3.00 a.m. Wye	vs	For B	Quinn, Sadowy
1.30 Trin. C	vs	St. M. C	Downey, Reimer
4.00 St. M. A	vs	U.C. I	McColloch, Brunt
WATER POLO
1.00 Med. III	vs	SPS IV	J. Boese, Thesingh
4.00 Trin. A	vs	U.C.	M. Boese, Moens
6.15 Arch	vs	SPS I	Smith, Selzer
7.00 St. M. A	vs	SPS II	Smith, J. Boese
SQUASH
1.00 U.C. I	vs	Sr SPS B
6.20 Dent. A	vs	Jr SPS
BASKETBALL MAJOR LEAGUE
1.00 SPS F	vs	SPS VII	Fireman, Treffer
4.00 U.C. I	vs	St. M. A (POSTPONED)
6.20 U.C. III	vs	SPS B	M. Boese, Mandel
7.30 Vic III	vs	SPS V	M. Boese, Mandel
8.30 Trin. A	vs	Fairman A	Mausberg, Mandel
BASKETBALL MINOR LEAGUE (HART HOUSE)
1.00 U.C. Mercade	vs	IV Grad	Jensen
4.00 U.C. Beta Sigs	vs	Trin. B	Clarke
7.30 IV Grad	vs	Med III Yr A	Thompson
7.30 St. M. Gables	vs	IV Eng. Bus	Thompson
1.00 U.C. Middle Hse	vs	St. M. Gra Rob	Thompson
BASKETBALL MINOR LEAGUE (VIC GYM)
4.00 St. M. McNulty	vs	Vic. North Hse.	Wilkinson
7.00 Vic Stanley	vs	1 Eng Phys D	W. Boese
8.10 U.C. I	vs	1 Eng Phys C	W. Boese
8.30 U.C. I	vs	2 Eng Dent A	W. Boese

ALL-DAY MILDNESS

Black Cat PLAIN CORK FILTER

Here and Now

TODAY

12 noon — VCF will study the Bible in room 116, School of Nursing.

12.15 p.m. — The Holy Eucharist will be celebrated in the Trinity College Chapel.

1 p.m. — VCF will study the Bible in room 113, UC.

1.10 p.m. — SCM will study "Achievements in Christian Unity" in the SCM office, Hart House.

1.15 p.m. — VCF will study the Bible in room 21, Vic.

4 p.m. — Dr. R. S. Storey will lead a seminar-tea on "The Low-Lying Levels of Light Nuclei and their Interpretation in Terms of the Collective Model" in room 135, the McLennan Laboratory.

— Prof. Bruno Morawetz and Prof. W. O. Fennell will discuss "Has Christianity Come to the End of its Road" with John Burbage as moderator in the Wymilwood Music Room.

5 p.m. — The Christian Science Organization will hold its regular meeting in the UC Women's Union, 79 St. George St.

8 p.m. — J. Sulma will address the discussion group of the Polish Students' Club in Polish on modern Polish painting at 206 Beverley St. The talk will be illustrated with slides.

— Dr. W. B. Scott will meet students in the Museum parking lot for an illustrated lecture on "Snakes in the Museum", discussing the Museum's new reptile gallery with a tour behind the scenes. Evening is sponsored by the Biology Club.

— Hon. Kelso Roberts, Ontario attorney-general, will address the Conservative Club in Falconer Hall. Also planned is a discussion of plans for Ottawa with a complete agenda, including the names of all speakers.

— Dr. H. M. Coxeter, U of T Mathematics Dept., will address the Mathematics and Physics Society on "Fibonacci Numbers — Mathematics in the Realm of Nature" in room 135, Physics Building.

— Dr. J. Tuzo Wilson will address the Slavic Circle on his recent visit to the USSR. Slides will be shown and refreshments will be served at the Women's Union Theatre, 79 St. George St. All are welcome.

FRIDAY

7.45 p.m. — Rev. Elwyn Davies will address and show slides to a VCF Missionary Meeting on "Europe Today" in the Parkroad Baptist Church.

SATURDAY

10 a.m. - 4 p.m. — Anglican teachers and students will hold a Vocation and Education Conference in the Hart House Music Room! Speakers will be the Rev. Michael Creal, Canon A. H. Davies and Miss Florence Lamb.

U. S. Debaters Here

A debating team from Yeshiva University in New York will tangle with a U of T team this Sunday on the topic "Resolved that the further development of nuclear weapons should be prohibited by international agreement."

Judges will be Senator David Croll, Sydney Harris, Chairman of the Joint Public Relations Committee of the Canadian Jewish Congress and B'nai Brith, and Dean A.J. Earp, Trinity College Registrar and Dean of Men.

CFRB News Analyst John Collingwood Reade will moderate. The Yeshiva squad is one of four units touring the United States and Canada. They are packing 20 debates into a space of one week. Yeshiva University is America's first university under Jewish auspices.

Their debaters have won more than 75 per cent of debates entered in the last four years.

The Toronto debate will be held Feb. 8 at 8.30 at 3600 Bathurst St.

BE DIFFERENT

Say it with RECORDS ...on Valentine's Day

Capitol Records proudly presents

RECENTLY RELEASED HI-FI ALBUMS

T-1115

W-1120

T-1124

T-1118

ADDITIONAL NEW ALBUMS

SALUTE TO THE SMOOTH BANDS	Freddy Martin	T-1116
AFRICAN JAZZ	Les Baxter	T-1117
DANCING ROOM ONLY	Guy Lombardo	T-1121
THIS THING CALLED LOVE	Tommy Sands	T-1123
PRaise HIM	Fred Waring and His Pennsylvanians	T-1122
MISTER PIPE ORGAN	Eddie Dunstetter	T-1128
ITALIA MIA	Pino Calvi, his piano, with orchestra	T-10199
ST. PATRICK'S NIGHT IN DUBLIN	Recorded "live" in Ireland	T-10201

T-10188

G-7152

P-8462

W-1069

W-1109

G-7148

P-8464

A & A RECORD BAR

351 YONGE ST., Toronto (EM. 4-6832 - EM. 4-6053)

The ONLY Record Bar That is Open From 7 a.m. to 12.00 Midnight, Every Day of the Week, Including Saturday

We Have the Largest Open Counter Display of Long-Playing Records in the City

Wilson on China

(Continued from Page 1)

professor said, "China did not throw out the Americans and the British to have the Russians step in and takeover control" he said.

After his European-Asian tour he flew to Antarctica, via Hawaii and New Zealand, where he viewed the work of fellow scientists at the pole.

Later in the evening Joyce McKay gave renditions of authentic Spanish dances against a background of taped Spanish folk-songs.

CLASSIFIED ADS.

$1 DOWN BUYS ANY MAKE
Brand new typewriters. $59 up. Some models $30 off. Free home demonstration. Free typing course. 1650 models rented, lowest rates 375 Jane-Humber, RO 6-1103.

TYPIST (Electric)

Fast, accurate, personalized service. Theses, essays, letters, dictation. Reasonable rates. Irene Kenyon, 146 Bernard Avenue, WA 3-4011.

ROOMS FOR RENT

Excellent facilities for 6 male students. Meals served if desired. $27 per month. 84 Lowther Avenue, (2 blocks north of Bloor near St. George) WA 4-0233.

ROOM FOR RENT

Male student - Harvard St. one block from campus. Kitchen facilities available. WA 3-0036 (WA 5-4614 after 7 p.m.)

ACCOMMODATION AVAILABLE
for a male and a female student in Campus Co-Operative Residence. Phone WA 1-2520.

UNDERWOOD PORTABLE FOR SALE
Sacrifice $30. WA 2-2936.

FOR SALE

1952 Meteor. Black with white walls. Radio, heater. Immaculate condition. Must sell. BE 3-7280.

FURNISHED APARTMENT TO LET

Available March 1st to June 15th. Walking distance from University. Call on weekend, WA 2-2336.

CAMP IN ONTARIO

with general camp program, plus Jewish cultural program desires senior section male staff. Apply Box 7, S.A.C. Office.

Medsmen Disappearing, Skule Cool

STOIC MEDSMAN Joe MacInnis looks out on a world of Engineers as he awaits his fate. He was one of three Medsmen kidnapped by Skulemen from in front of the Medical Building yesterday at 2 p.m. (Varsity Staff Photo by Hatcher)

University of Toronto Engineers, blood boiling, struck back at the Faculty of Medicine last night. Four Medsmen were kidnapped in revenge for the stealing of the famed Skule cannon Tuesday.

Engineering Society President Rick Schaeff said last night he had been notified of the kidnapping of four Medsmen, including Medical Society President Doug Wilson.

The other three, all from first year Meds, are Joe MacInnis, Ted Graham, and Dave Howse.

An anonymous phone call to the Varsity at 10.45 p.m. yesterday said "we have Wilson and he won't get back until we get the cannon. This kills the blood promotion stunt". The caller hung up without giving any further information.

At 12 p.m. last night Schaeff said the three Medsmen would be returned to their homes by today. "But we'll keep Wilson if I have anything to do with it", he said.

Wilson was last seen at noon yesterday afternoon when he left the Toronto General Hospital. At 11 p.m. last night his wife had still not received any word as to his whereabouts.

MacInnis, Graham and Howse were kidnapped about 2 p.m. by a group of engineers outside the Meds building. The trio was bundled into a late model Ford convertible and handcuffed.

Parents of the kidnapped Medsman later received calls from their sons. Nothing further was disclosed.

Parents contacted last night said they were not overly surprised at the news, but that they were extremely worried about an Anatomy test the students were to have written this morning.

The test, one of three term tests written during the year, counts for 17 per cent of the final mark.

Engineering Society President Schaeff claimed last night "the boys didn't seem to be overly worried about missing the test".

No indication was given as to when the four would be returned.

THE VARSITY

Vol. LXXVIII — No. 72

Friday, February 6th, 1959

Writer Is Banished Feature "Blasphemy"

WOLFVILLE, N.S.—CUP—The editor of Acadia University's Athenaeum has been suspended and a writer ordered to leave town "within 24 hours" because of a story appearing in the Jan. 30 edition.

The story, written in Mickey Spillane style, referred allegorically to a woman thought by some to be the Virgin Mary.

Writer Robert Flander was advised by University President Watson Kirkconnell "to leave Wolfville within 24 hours" because of the "foul blasphemy" of the article.

Flander had described his work as "pro-Christian."

Wednesday night a student court charged Editor Donald Angus with publishing material "offensive to good taste and religious conscience."

He was acquitted when Kirkconnell failed to define "religious conscience" to the satisfaction of the court.

Kirkconnell, who is also president of the Canadian Authors' Association and of the Baptist Federation of Canada, advised Flander in a letter that he was being suspended from the university indefinitely. Acadia is a Baptist university.

The story could lead to "criminal action in the Nova Scotia courts", the letter said.

Flander said he felt the suspension was unfair and unjustified and that it was "outside the president's jurisdiction to ask me to leave town."

He said he was considering court action against the president because of the letter.

The student court has recommended that Angus be "found incompetent" and be asked to resign.

The council met last night to discuss the findings of the court and to hear Angus' story. The council has the power to force his resignation.

The court recommended the formation of a board of censors for the paper, consisting of two faculty members as well as students.

Angus said he did not consider the article "blasphemous".

"His stuff is always difficult to understand", he said, referring to Flander's work. "You have to study it to make sense. But we had no idea such an interpretation would be made."

"The administration here has been getting away with murder for years," he said, and this case may "allow some reforms in the way the paper is sat upon."

Students who are mature enough not to run wild" are circulating a petition siding with the two, Angus said.

A poem, also written by Flander, appeared directly beneath the controversial article dealing with the crucifixion of Christ.

Halifax poetry critic Dan McCarron said he considered the poem "one of the most clever and moving I have ever read on this subject".

Kirkconnell said Flander had a "disciplinary record" at the university and that action was taken on that basis rather than on the content of the poem.

"Normally he would have appeared before the student judicial committee but the last time he was before that body it said that it was the last case involving him it wished to handle and passed the responsibility to the administration."

"This time we decided we must take action," he said.

Celebrations And Arrests

Eleven Students Jailed

Antigonish, N.S.—CUP—Eleven students of St. Francis Xavier University in Antigonish, Nova Scotia, were arrested last Friday night following disturbances in the wake of celebrations marking the end of mid-year examinations.

Students "who are mature

Arrests were made at random after students returning to residences after a dance refused to help push a police patrol car stuck outside a cafe which the police had attempted to clear.

Words were exchanged between the students and the police, and the arrests followed, the chief of town police allegedly having said he would "get those college students".

After the first car load of collegians had been removed to the town lock-up students poured out of residences and staged demonstrations in various parts of the town. More arrests followed.

The 11 were arraigned before an Antigonish magistrate Saturday morning and given suspended sentences.

Students involved also face appearance before the University's disciplinary committee. If the committee decides to take further action it may expel the students or send letters to their parents advising them of the circumstances.

Student leaders have denied that friction between American and Canadian students was the cause of incidents as reported over the local radio station, CJFX, and cited this as a further attempt to stir up smouldering animosity between "town and gown".

Attorney-General Roberts (Photo by Stabins)

Ontario's Attorney General last night launched a double-barrelled blast against reckless drivers in the province.

Despite competition from a campus production of Gilbert and Sullivan, a fair crowd of students showed up to hear Kelso Roberts address the Progressive Conservative Club.

Calling careless drivers "foolish fanatics", Mr. Roberts said, "such individuals not only endanger their own lives but those of others around them."

He said a fool-hardy driver behind the wheel "turns the civilized life of our society into a farce and mockery by his barbaric antics."

Praising the new Ontario Point System designed to encourage safe driving, the Attorney General said the plan was meant to deter, not punish, the carefree motorist.

Born and raised in the Canadian North, he said it is impossible for the present generation to realize the scope "of the vast revolution in communications taking place in the northern territories."

"Roads, railroads, and air routes are linking the north and other parts of Canada into a closely knit and more completely national unit."

Quoting statistics for last year, he said the Ontario government doled out highest appropriations to education, highways, and health.

He predicted the Ontario taxpayer will see his taxes raised during the next few years. "Ontario has been growing by leaps and bounds and must be financed some way if it is to sustain its rate of growth."

Pharmacist Proud To Roll His Own Pills

Denying the age of the professional pill-roller has passed, a committee member of the Undergraduate Pharmaceutical Society last night suggested a visit to the Society's open house next week should enlighten bewildered students.

"There is a lot more involved in pharmacy than making a soda," Jerry Epstein said.

The Society's open house will be next Monday and Tuesday.

4-6 and 7-10 p.m. at 46 Gerrard St.

There will be three laboratories set up showing steps in the manufacture of pills and demonstrations of medicinal preparation in drug stores.

"We are trying to familiarize the public with our profession, and show them we still roll our own pills," Epstein said.

"Although people constantly complain about the high price of medicine, they should remember most of them spend more money on beer every month than on pills," he said.

Guides will be available to answer the public's questions, and refreshments will be served.

WUS Caledon Date Set

Plans have materialized for a World University Service seminar weekend Feb. 20 to 22 at Caledon Hills Farm.

With the theme "Individualism — its Role in International Affairs" the seminar is intended to promote understanding between Canadian and overseas students through discussions in a relaxed atmosphere. WUS officials said yesterday.

University professors slated to speak at the seminar are: Dr. J. Markowitz, Prof. B. Morawetz, Dr.

E. Carpenter and UC's Dean Ian MacDonald. Weekend activities include skating, sleigh rides, dancing and use of the Caledon "Sauna" steam bath.

Cost of the weekend is $3 for three days and $2 for Saturday and Sunday. Participants leave Friday at 4:30 p.m. and return Sunday afternoon.

Application forms are available at the Students' Administration Council and FROS offices. Application deadline is Feb. 13.

Feature - Packed Visit For Michigan Students

Fifteen students from the University of Michigan arrived in Toronto yesterday for an exchange weekend with the U of T Commerce Club.

Sponsored by Massey-Ferguson Ltd., the weekend features three days of banquets, speeches, discussions and seminars.

Today's program includes a tour of the university and Hart House, lunch at Hart House and presentation of a paper on "The Russian Trade Offensive - Its Threat to Canada, the United States and the Free World" in the Hart House Music Room at 2 p.m.

Guest speaker at a dinner at the National Club tonight is William Kimmond, a Toronto Daily Star editorial writer.

Saturday's program begins with a marketing seminar and lunch at Massey-Ferguson, Ltd. An afternoon seminar is planned on "Canada and Her Giant Neighbor" in the Hart House Map Room. Panelists include Mrs. Harry Kerkheide from the Canadian Institute of International Affairs, Ivan White from the US consulate, W.O. Twaits from Imperial Oil Ltd., and W. L. Gordon from Clarkson Gordon and Co.

Squadron Leader Scott Alexander, RCAF, will be guest speaker at a dinner in the Regency Towers Saturday night.

Delegates will attend a hockey game in Maple Leaf Gardens Saturday night. The weekend closes with a luncheon Sunday at which John Fisher of the Canadian Tourist Association will speak.

The visiting Americans are all members of the University of Michigan School of Business Administration. More than 20 U of T students will host the conference for the U of T Commerce Club.

HART HOUSE

TODAY:
Art Library: 12 noon in the Art Gallery
FILM: ARNOLD TOYNBEE LECTURE - 1.15 p.m.—Music Room
LIBRARY RECORD HOUR: YEATS' POETRY - SIOBHAN McKENNA, 1.15 p.m.—Record Room

NEXT WEEK:
Wednesday, 11th February:
CHESS SIMUL - 7.45 p.m.—Debates Room. Chess Master: FRANK ANDERSON. Tickets from Hall Porter's Desk, $1.00 non members, 25c members.
FIVE O'CLOCK RECITAL: Music Room. RHODA PENDLETON, SOPRANO.

Thursday, 12th February:
HART HOUSE DEBATE: 8 p.m. Hon. Visitor: DEAN C. A. WRIGHT, Faculty of Law, University of Toronto. "THE LEGAL PROFESSION IS JEOPARDIZING THE ADMINISTRATION OF JUSTICE".

Friday, 13th February:
INVITATION DINNER - 6.45 p.m.—Great Hall—Table Services: to be followed by the ANNUAL INTERFACULTY AND INTERCOLLEGIATE QUARTET CONTEST. Members of the House are welcome to come to the Dinner ($3.00 a couple), for which tickets are available at the Hall Porter's Desk, and to attend the Quartet Contest afterwards (no charge).
INTERCOLLEGIATE BRIDGE TOURNAMENT - Friday and Saturday, 13th and 14th February.

Sunday, 15th February:
ALL-UNIVERSITY RELIGIOUS SERVICE, WORLD DAY OF PRAYER FOR STUDENTS.
11.00 a.m. Great Hall. Preacher: REV. CELESTINE FERNANDO Chaplain, University of Ceylon.
SUNDAY EVENING CONCERT. 9 p.m. Great Hall. BAROQUE TRIO OF MONTREAL. Members may pick up tickets from the Hall Porter's desk this week.
CAMERA CLUB: Closing date for entries to the 37th Photographic Exhibition FRIDAY, 13th February - 6.00 p.m.

He says he does it by Steady Saving
at the Bank of Montreal*

*The Bank where Students' accounts are warmly welcomed.
*You'll find these B of M branches especially convenient!
Bloor and Bay Sts. KENNETH A. McNEIL, Manager
Queen's Park JOSEPH BURDOCK, Manager
St. George and Bloor Sts DWIGHT A. EVANS, Manager

Here and Now

TODAY

- 1 p.m. - Outing Club Bus leaves from in front of Hart House for the Laurentians.
- 1.10 p.m. - Mr. Potvin, Geography Dept., will talk to the SCM-FROS current events group on "French Canada and Canadian Nationalism". The talk, at FROS, 3 Willcocks St., will be followed by a discussion.
- 3 p.m. - SCM will study the life of Jesus in the SCM Office, Hart House.

SATURDAY

- 5.30 p.m. - Chinese Overseas Students' Association is sponsoring a Chinese New Year's banquet at the Kwong Chow Restaurant, Elizabeth at Dundas. Tickets are available from any COSA executive member at $2.25 each.

SUNDAY

- 9.15 a.m. - Canterbury Corporate Communion will take place in Trinity College Chapel.
- 8.30 p.m. - Everyone is welcome to an SCM Sunday Night Fireside featuring a reading of the play "Christ in the Concrete City" at the SCM Coachhouse behind 110 St. George St.

MONDAY

- 1-2 p.m. - Fathers Andrew Blair and Hilary Beasley of the Community of the Resurrection, Mirfield, England, will speak at a special luncheon at Canterbury Centre, 99 St. George St. Bring your lunch or buy it there.
- 4 p.m. - The Graduate Union plans a tea at 44 Hoskin Ave.

Trinity College Chapel WEEKDAY SERVICES

7.30 a.m.—Holy Eucharist
8.45 a.m.—Mattins
6.00 p.m.—Evensong
Tuesdays and Thursdays - 12 p.m.—Holy Eucharist
Wednesdays - 8.10 a.m. Holy Eucharist
Sunday Services
8.00 a.m.—Mattins
8.15 a.m.—Holy Eucharist
9.15 a.m.—Holy Eucharist
6.30 p.m.—Evensong
EVERYBODY WELCOME

Knox Presbyterian Church

Spadina and Harbord
Welcomes all University Students
• Worship Services at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m.
• Young People's 8.30 p.m.
Minister: Dr. Wm. Fitch

ST. PAUL'S AVENUE ROAD UNITED CHURCH

121 AVENUE RD. - (2 blocks north of Bloor)
Minister
Rev. T. W. HAZELWOOD, B.A. B.D., D.Th.,
Student Minister—David Gourlie
SERVICES: 11 a.m. and 7 p.m.
"THE FRIENDLY CHURCH"

THE CHURCH OF THE REDEEMER

At the Head of the Campus BLOOR and AVENUE RD.
Rector: Rev. Owen P. Prichard, B.A., L.Th.
8 a.m. Holy Communion
11 a.m. Morning Prayer
7 p.m. Evening Prayer
Preacher at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m.—The Rector
ASH WEDNESDAY SERVICES
12.15 p.m. Holy Communion
8 p.m. PENITENTIAL SERVICE
Lenten Address by the Rector
Organist—A. McKinlay, Mus. Bac.

PARK ROAD BAPTIST CHURCH

1 BLOCK N. & E. OF BLOOR-YONGE
Minister: Rev. MURRAY J. S. FORD, M.A., B.D.
MURIEL GIDLEY STAFFORD, Organist
SERVICES AT 10:45 a.m. and 7:30 p.m.
A Cordial Invitation to all Students to Attend Inspiring Services

Rosedale Presbyterian Church

Mt. Pleasant Rd. (2 blocks north of Bloor, 2 blocks east of Yonge)
Minister: Rev. E. S. MACKAY, M.A.
11 a.m. - PUBLIC WORSHIP - "THE NATURE AND PURPOSE OF THE CHURCH'S UNITY"
8.30 p.m. - SENIOR YOUTH GROUP
A Special Invitation to Varsity Students

Monday, February 9th - 1 to 2 p.m. SPECIAL LUNCH with

Fr. Andrew and Fr. Hilary Beasley
(Community of the Resurrection, Mirfield, England)
at
CANTERBURY CENTRE
99 St. George St.
ASH WEDNESDAY - FEB. 11th
1 to 2 p.m. - Regular Luncheon at 99 St. George Street
Subject: "Christian Asceticism and Lenten Discipline"

ST. ANDREW'S United Church

117 Bloor E., near Yonge St. Subway
Minister:
REV. WILLIAM BRIGGS, M.A., B.D., Ph.D.
Organist and Choir Director:
EDGAR GOODAIRE
11 a.m.
"Take Your Share"
Rev. George G. D. Kilpatrick, D.D.
7.30 p.m.
"THE BIBLE TODAY"
(1) The Method of Revelation
THE MINISTER
Students cordially invited to attend

Trinity United Church

427 Bloor St. W at Walmer Road
Rev. J. Robt. Watt, BA, BD, Minister
John W. Linn, Organist and Choirmaster
11 a.m. "NEEDED - Thermostats Not Thermometers!"
7.30 p.m. Continuing Series - My Problem Is...
(2) "I'm Always Frustrated."
8.30 p.m.—Fireside Hour
All Are Invited
A warm welcome to a students at any of the Services in Trinity

Bloor St. United Church

300 BLOOR STREET W.
Ministers
Rev. Dr. Ernest Marshall Howse
Rev. J. Stanley Kennedy
Organist and Choirmaster
Frederick C. Silvester
11.00 a.m. - THE POWER OF THE WORD
Dr. E. M. Howse
7.00 p.m. - FOUR STORIES FROM THE APOCRYPHA
No. 4—Bel and the Dragon
An Adventure Story
Dr. E. M. Howse
The Campus Club will meet following the Evening Service. The speaker will be Mr. W. J. Wacko of the Brookside Clinic.
Subject: Steps in Alcoholism.

Fraternity of the Resurrection

Visit of Mirfield Fathers
The Very Rev.
ANDREW BLAIR, C.R.
Prior of Mirfield
The Rev.
HILARY BEASLEY, C.R.
Director of the Fraternity of the Resurrection
Sunday, February 8th
Hear these Anglican Fathers Whose Order Has Been Banned By The South African Government Speak On
Apartheid in South Africa
8.30 p.m. Public Meeting
In St. Thomas' Parish Hall (381 Huron St., south of Bloor)
Illustrated talks by the Fathers on the Life and Work of the Community of the Resurrection in Africa, Europe and the West Indies.
All Welcome Refreshments

UNIVERSITY BLAZERS Custom Made

Especially Priced for Students
$27.50
Fine Flannel Worsted Trousers $16.50
Business Hours: 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Saturday
Suits made to measure latest styles and design
PARNES Clothing Co.
706 QUEEN STREET WEST
EM 6-2025
Sample at S.A.C. Office

Minister Calls Church "tory"

The Christian Church was yesterday called "damnably conservative" by one of its ministers.

Rev. W. O. Fennell, Professor of Systematic Theology at Emmanuel College, said "Women's associations, boys' clubs and such trappings of the modern Church are moribund and must be buried".

Prof. Fennell made the comment in a discussion on "Has Christianity Come to the End of its Road?"

Professor Bruno Morawetz of Trinity College continued in the same vein, as he called for the revitalization of the Church. The responsibility for this must lie with youth, he said.

"Both Christianity and Judaism must revolutionize their exclusiveness to remain in existence," he said.

back home after 12 years

UC Papers Return

By AL WALKER
Varsity Staff Reporter

After 12 years of relative obscurity, Sir William Mulock's personal university documents have been found, and are gradually making their way into the University College Archives.

Last December Howard Somers, a U of T graduate, discovered the documents in a Queen St. second-hand store, and purchased a number of them which he presented to UC. In Mr. Somers' donation were 13 subject certificates dating from 1859 to 1863 and a hand-illuminated resolution of thanks from the UC Senate in return for a $2,000 scholarship grant.

Today a 14th certificate will be presented to the Archives along with 2 early photographs of Sir William.

Last week it was discovered that Albert Rosen, the owner of "The Collector's Center", had all the remaining documents in his possession, except one certificate which had been sold to William Slate, a Toronto dealer and collector of rare Canadiana. Mr. Slate was persuaded to donate his certificate to UC.

Still in Rosen's store are the four remaining subject certificates, along with several rare photographs of Sir William in various phases of university life of the 1860s. One photograph is believed to be one of the few surviving copies of Sir William's class picture.

UC Archivist H.N. Milnes said last night it would be difficult for the Archives to purchase the material since little money is available to them. "We have to depend pretty much on grants," he said, and most of our mater-

(Continued on Page 8)

CCFers Hear:

Russia Healthiest

The president of the Canadian Medical Students and Internes Association told the U of T CCF Club Wednesday that Canada has learned a lot from the Russians in the field of socialized medicine.

Jules Harris (IV Meds) said, "despite the drawbacks of Communist philosophy, Russians are healthier today than at any other time in their history because of socialized medicine."

Pin-pointing Sweden as the healthiest nation in the world, Harris said state control over medicine has given Swedish people free hospitalization, drugs and transportation to clinical centres.

He predicted all Canadian provinces would eventually adopt the National Health Insurance Plan. "Even Quebec will join if they feel some measure of the provincial autonomy will be retained," he said.

Outlining problems facing a Canadian socialized system of medicine, Harris said the United States posed the most serious threat to the plan.

"Any blunt restrictions on Canadian medical practitioners will increase to a flood the present trickle of Canadian medical graduates now emigrating to the US," he said.

Calling medicine in Canada "poorly organized", Harris said doctors will fight "tooth and nail" against any new change introduced into the present medical setup.

He forecast state control over medicine as "inevitable", adding that within the near future "public opinion will demand legislation to relieve the misery of the inadequate health facilities as they now exist."

Mickities Gets Backer For Show Recording

The SMC musical production, "Mickities" is being recorded, and will be released soon.

"We have a private backer for the recording", Gino Mattaao, show writer said last night.

"In fact, the cover is being designed now, and the record should be available in a couple of weeks", he said.

"The prospective buyers of the show saw 'Mickities' but we haven't heard anything yet, he said. "Of course, we are hoping, but probably nothing will come of it."

Gerry Rossi, treasurer of St. Mike's SAC said last night, "Besides being a success financially, the show has given the college a great lift for the past few weeks."

HAVE YOU CONSIDERED...

a career as a pharmaceutical representative?

SCHERING -

the leader in steroid research, is currently expanding its

FIELD STAFF -

and is inviting applications for INTERESTING POSITIONS in various areas throughout Canada

If interested, write to -

SALES MANAGER
SCHERING CORPORATION LTD.
8370 Labarre St.,
Montreal 9, P.Q.

The Modern Sound of Jazz at the

HOUSE OF HAMBOURG

New Location - Ward-Price Galleries, 23 Grenville Street (One block north of College between Yonge and Bay)

TWO GROUPS NIGHTLY - NO INTERMISSION

FRI. AND SAT. -

Midnight to 4 a.m.

SUNDAY NIGHT -

9.00 to Midnight

The Ron Collier Quintet (Collier - Bray - Bickert - Piltch - Rully)

Free Parking Opposite Information and Reservations: WA 3-6068

ON SALE MONDAY

U.C. - ST. MICHAEL'S

THE CHILDREN'S HOUR

HART HOUSE - FEB. 18, 19, 20, 21

U.C. Rotunda - Students Only $1.00 - Carr Hall

TORONTO MENDELSSOHN CHOIR

Frederick Silvester, Conductor

Manzoni Requiem - Verdi

WALTER SUSSKIND, Guest Conductor

Wednesday, February 11th 8.25 p.m.

LILLIAN WEICHEL IRENE LOOSBERG
RICHARD CASSILLY DONALD GRAMM
and TORONTO SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA

TICKETS: $3 - $2.50 - $2 - $1.50 (At Box Office)

MASSEY HALL

You Are Invited to Attend...

The Faculty of Pharmacy

1959 OPEN HOUSE

AT 44 - 46 GERRARD ST. EAST

Monday and Tuesday - February 9th and 10th

4 to 6 p.m. and 7 to 10 p.m.

A New Musical Whimsy

FOR YOU

OPENING MONDAY

THE ALL-NEW VARSITY REVUE

'HAVE TOGA, WILL TRAVEL'

FEB. 9 - 14 at 8.30 p.m. - HART HOUSE THEATRE

TICKETS AT S.A.C. OFFICE NOW!

HAVE A CANNON BALL

AT THE

Medical At-Home

Thursday, February 12

Royal York Hotel

Benny Louis Orchestra

Cy McLean Quintet

Dress Optional

Advance Tickets $3.50

$4.00 at the Door

Coverages On Sale At The Door

sic, sic, sic, (sic)

The deaths early this week of three rock-and-roll singers provide us with an opportunity, albeit tenuous, to comment on the public reaction to their music as part of the public reaction to experience in general.

The "enlightened" public does not like rock-and-roll. There are a lot of other things too, that this public does not like. Almost from the time we begin to think, we tend to pigeon-hole our experiences into the acceptable and the unacceptable. We learn to take sides. And gradually, as we espouse one cause against the other, artificial dichotomies are built up: between "classical" and popular music, between romanticism and classicism, between representational art and non-representational art, between east and west.

This process of taking sides has been made a necessary part of our intellectual and moral integrity. Pressure is upon us from all sides to make, as Mordecai Richler puts it, "a choice of enemies," and if we refuse, if we insist on taking truth, and goodness, and beauty wherever we may find it, we find ourselves with such derogatory labels as "eclectic" or "fence-sitter" attached to us.

Something like this has happened in the case of rock-and-roll music. Plenty of people think it and only it is all good, many others think it, and only it, is all bad. Very few look for the good in it, and reject the bad. That would be eclectic.

Thus they entirely miss this music's great potentiality for the expression of physical and mental vitality, its frequent cleverness, its constant self-satire, and even its beauty.

And the process is repeated in all our experiences. Our whole educational program for instance, seems designed to restrict our field of vision. We are taught to wear blinkers. Thus the scientist learns to hate poetry; the poet to hate science, and the man who can find beauty in both is a bit of an oddball.

He is odd because he does not subscribe to the prevailing belief that there is "a place for everything and everything in its place." He has not capitulated to the belief that you must look for beauty in the art gallery, not in the dung-heap, for love in the parlour, not in the brothel, for dignity in the polite, not in the perverse, and for God in church, not in the dung-heap, the brothel, or the perverse.

The point is that there is not always "a place for everything," and everything is not always in its place." And those who restrict themselves to looking for beauty, love, and dignity only in certain places, may never find them at all. As Yeats' Crazy Jane says, "love has reared his mansion in the place of excrement." But perhaps you have to be Crazy Jane to find it there.

There is importance everywhere, if we learn how to look. It is to be found in a rock-and-roll line like "oo-ee-oo-ah, ah-ting-tang walla, walla, bing-bang", or in filth, or in wretchedness, or "away in a manger."

As the French writer Jean Genet said in an article on Rembrandt, Rembrandt teaches us that "everything, even a festering wound, has its own dignity."

We will not see anything, until we learn to open our eyes even to the dignity in a festering wound.

As for the three dead rock-and-roll singers, we belatedly thank them for the beauty, the love, and the dignity, that they put into their vital, ecstatic, and sensually joyful music. SA

Our Readers Write:

Anatomy Of A Debate

Dear Sir,

That the debate on birth control was a farce, no one will deny. However, in your editorial on Thursday you seemed to shed more confusion on the reasons why it was a farce, than the debate itself did on birth control.

The reason why the debate turned out the way it did was that practically no one in the room knew anything about the subject. It was, or should have been, at heart a discussion of the nature of man; but the participants had thought so little about the subject that they were not even aware of this.

You, on the other hand, attribute it to the fact that some of the participants were religiously committed to certain conclusions about the subject... they came to it with "dogmas" to contradict the "reasons" of their opponents. To try to talk with Catholics about anything having to do with the teachings of their church is hopeless. It should be avoided.

What you fail to mention, is that any Catholic, as a Catholic, has similar "pre-judgements" about any topic which touches on man or human nature — whether it be philosophical, literary, historical, political, psychological, etc. What you ask is that the Catholic either forego Catholicism, or forego the discussion. Religious dogmas have no place in such an endeavor — it takes place in the realm of reason alone.

Now a dogma is nothing but the description of an attitude — or the standard of one. Popular opinion to the contrary, Catholicism is not a philosophy; it is a way of salvation. It has one interest, and one aim only — being born again, and living, in Jesus Christ. Its dogmas are merely the how, where, when and why of that Life — concretized and defined.

But that Life, and the dogmas which try to express it, are not without speculative implications. To believe in, to be committed to, that Life, is necessarily to take certain attitudes toward certain things. It is necessarily to live in a world where there is a God and angels and human souls which are immortal, etc. The "positing" of such things is not an attempt to round out the "system"; nor are they accidental accretions whose purpose is to have an "answer" to everything. They are the conditions without which that Life would turn into something different — the speculative expression of the application of practice.

Catholicism is thus a way of "standing", of involving one's self, in reality. It is a stance. But it excludes other stances. When a Catholic enters a discussion on man, for instance, his stance as a Catholic implies certain things about it, brings certain values to the subject matter. What he has already chosen to be before the discussion already implies what he will think in the discussion. But in this, the Catholic does not differ from anyone else with a religious conviction, especially where the individual attributes that conviction to faith.

What is on the basis of your remarks is not a misunderstanding of this, but a notion of reason which precludes it. In any discussion, reason is to be the final arbiter. This is agreed. But you interpret this to mean that reason itself—human reason—must be the originator of all that enters the discussion. If religious conviction makes claims that have not occurred to reason, reason must take over those claims, and make them its own — stand behind them with its own authority. Reason, in other words, is a system which can include nothing but itself.

Reason, for you, asserts that it is universal; and they—religions—are "sects" or "cults". It therefore has the right to judge them and correct them. But they assert that such a reason is useless. It can only speculate; but what matters is not thinking, but being. Being, which for man is living, requires an attitude, a stance. That is what they are — a stance from which to live and be.

Reason must then choose — it must either admit that it is ultimately useless, only a game, or assert that it too is a stance. But by asserting it is a stance, it becomes one stance among many; it loses its universality, and hence its claim to judgement upon the other. Reason has become a sect.

But it has an answer to this — it can, it says, be an "architectonic" stance; it can digest the other stances. Unfortunately, this will not work. The others cannot be digested, but only destroyed by reason—because to be digested by reason is to become completely anthropomorphised, to lose the "divinity" by which they distinguished themselves from reason in the first place. Once reason has destroyed them, it can no longer be architectonic because it has nothing to order. On the other hand, where reason is a stance, a system, faith cannot digest it — for its individuality rests solely on its denial of the reality of revelation. We are left then only with a simple choice between reason and religions—some unreason in us must decide which appeals to it more. We cannot have all of man for ourselves, we must choose a part of him.

Thus the notion of reason with which we started refuses to be assimilated to the rest of man, or let the rest of man be assimilated to it. It can be tied to man only by irrationality, by man's unreasoning choice to make himself reason.

This reason has been abstract reason — reason conceived as a thing by itself. This is the fallacy behind pseudo-liberalism. Since reason is a thing by itself, it cannot be a power of man, or only a part of his personality. It must be all of man, or none of him. But it can only become man through irrationality. It thereby destroys itself.

When we take reason to be an abstract system of thoughts, it contradicts itself. We are forced then to take reason for something else—it must be an individual power in individual men. In this way it is man who thinks or who has convictions. Reason is man's power or ability to know, to draw consistency out of his conviction. A discussion is between men, is then individual reasons grappling with some subject—their attempt to elucidate that subject by assimilating it to the meaning of their existence. For a Catholic, this means relating it to man in his pursuit of God—and since that pursuit is to terminate in the beatific vision — it means making the thing a preamble to the knowledge of God. Thus the function of reason is still to know the thing; but the context of that knowledge — its purpose and consequently the ultimate significance of the thing—he has already determined in his choice of what "living" is to mean to him — i.e. being a Christian.

The ultimate link between "reasons" in discussion is only the subject under discussion. That discussion becomes a process in which more and more "meanings" or "aspects" of the thing are uncovered, precisely because of what each party brings to the discussion...

If we take this attitude toward reason, what was wrong with the debate was not that there were "dogmas" present, but that the "holders" of those dogmas did nothing but hold them. They did not look at the subject, but merely asserted that they knew what would be there if they did look. The "discussion" was a failure because the majority of them (the first speaker possibly excepted) never entered the discussion. Their trouble was not that they looked at birth control from their point of view, but that they failed to talk about birth control, and spoke only about their point of view.

R.C. PINTO (SGS)

Adolescents

Dear Sir,

Much has been written in regard to student "pranks". Much more will be written. One does not need to look far to find specific examples of so-called "pranks" to support the oft-made generalizations. Two recent examples immediately came to mind: the chopping down of the Skule Christmas Tree and the destruction of the Winter Carnival Igloo on the Front Campus. These are NOT just harmless "pranks", but rather an unfortunate reflection of some stupid, insane, emotionally unstable University of Toronto adolescents. I refer specifically to the igloo which was my responsibility in the Winter Carnival.

On Tuesday, Jan. 27th, a few handy Victoria College types spent the day manipulating 400 pound blocks of ice into position, carrying water from U.C. to the front campus, and mixing pails of slush. Wednesday evening once slush was completed—a seven foot high, solidly frozen structure. Thursday morning it lay in ruins — the fruit of one day's labor entirely devastated. As a direct result of this vandalism:

1. Publicity for the Winter Carnival (in the form of pictures taken of the half-completed igloo and the two girls who were to sleep in it) which were to appear in The Telegram were lost.
2. Relations between the University and the Lake Simcoe Ice and Fuel Company, who donated five tons of ice, have become strained and this company will no doubt think twice about donating ice to the University again.
3. The University has lost the support of those who worked on the construction of the igloo, and these are the very sort of people whose support the University cannot afford to lose!

I agree wholeheartedly with a recent editorial in The Varsity suggesting that the Winter Carnival should be abolished — at least until certain members of the student body are mature enough to realize that a Winter Carnival requires help, not hindrance.

Chuck Spencer, AE Vice Blue and White Council

THE VARSITY

FOUNDED 1880

Published by

The Students' Administrative Council of the University of Toronto
Toronto 5, Canada

McGraw-Hill University Press

Editor-in-Chief: Doug Mercer.
Managing Editor: Mark Nichols.
Editor without portfolio: Sam Ajzenstat.
News Editor: Harvey Shepherd.
Associate News Editors: Ed Roberts and Al Walker.
Sports Editor: John Brooks.
Associate Sports Editors: Dave Griner and Gene Glisky.
Publicity Editor: Susie Ereslin.
Features Editor: Liz Bink.
Co-AM&D Editors: Maryann Talbot and Warren Wilson.
CUP Editor: Vicky Innes.
Photo Editor: Mike Cavanagh.
Make-up Editor: Nancy Takeuchi.
Staff Cartoonists: Marg McMeekin and Sheldon Greenberg.
Mortician: Roger Wild.
Today's Issue: Maryanne Kelso, Kay McCook, Debbie Hoberg, Sally Bambridge, Terry Bourke, Megan Tamplin and a big ball of wax. Photography this issue by Andy Stabins.

Blues Lose 54-48 To YMHA Seniors

The U of T basketball Blues, trailing the YMHA Seniors 26-13 after a lethargic first half, gained momentum in the second half for 35 points but lost a close decision 54-48 last night.

Captain Ruby Richman, with deadly accuracy from outside the key, led Blues' scoring with 11 points. Silverman, Gaidy and Powell, a former California Tech star, were top scorers for YMHA. Blues started the game poorly, missing field goals, layups and foul shots consistently. YMHA took advantage of Varsity's slow start by controlling the backboards completely at first. However, as Toronto warmed up, rookie Jim Maguire and Curt Russell teamed up to take most of the rebounds.

Varsity (48): Stulac, 9; Potter, 9; Richman, 11; Goldring, Norman, 2; Maclell, Russell, 2; Dacshyn, 2; Maguire, 9; Ercle, 4.

YMHA (54)—Levko; Harrison, 2; Niskey; Wat rs, 8; Gelman, 1; Powell, 11; Silverman, 18; Buntins, 3; Gaidy, 11; Unger.

Rasslers, Pugs Biff Bam Ouch

Saturday's Athletic Night will decide the U of T championships for both boxing and wrestling.

The boxers have presented two pleasing exhibition cards this year. However, Saturday they play for keeps when the team laurels are up for grabs.

Headlining the tiff will be Tom Godwin, Bill Brown, Jim McManus, Boris Petroff, Ozzie Hutchinson, Roger Kirkpatrick and an array of others.

Fight time is 7:00 p.m. at the boxing gymnasium. Members of the Ontario Boxing and Wrestling Commission will officiate.

Meantime, in the wrestling gymnasium, the grapplers will be declaring their champions. The preliminaries were run off on Wednesday and Thursday. Still in the running are such outstanding athletes as Rod Carrow, Bill Polito, Frank Brown, Bill Brown, Andy Higgins, Pat Allen and Ken Deer.

Starting time is 8:00 p.m. The wrestling team looks very rugged, indeed, this year. Coaches Amos and Wipper are expecting big things in the intercollegiate meet on the 27 and 28 of this month.

Squash Team Splits On American Jaunt

University of Toronto's senior squash team returned this week from a four-match tour of United States colleges. On the tour, Varsity met Rochester, Williams, Amherst and Dartmouth, defeating Rochester and Williams.

VS. ROCHESTER
Harry Malcolmson, W: 3-0; Arnold Massey, W: 3-0; John Ireton, W: 3-0; Morley Smith, W: 3-0; Keith Acheson, W: 3-0; Bob Bryce, W: 3-0; Sheldon Schiller, W: 3-0; Sam Malcolmson, W: 3-0.

VS. WILLIAMS
H. Malcolmson, L: 3-2; Massey, L: 3-1; Ireton, W: 3-0; Smith, W: 3-0; Weynerowski, W: 3-2; Acheson, W: 3-1; Bryce, L: 3-1; Schiller, 3-2; S. Malcolmson, W: 3-2.

VS. AMHERST
H. Malcolmson, L (default); Massey, W: 3-1; Ireton, L: 3-1; Smith, L: 3-1; Weynerowski, L: 3-2; Acheson, L: 3-1; Bryce, L: 3-0; Schiller, W: 3-0; S. Malcolmson, W: 3-2.

VS. DARTMOUTH

H. Malcolmson, L: 3-0; Massey, W: 3-2; Ireton, L: 3-1; Smith, W: 3-0; Weynerowski, L: 3-0; Acheson, L: 3-2; Bryce, L: 3-0; Schiller, W: 3-1; S. Malcolmson, L: 3-2.

Sports Parade 40 Years Ago

Starting a new daily feature of The Varsity sports pages, an item taken from the corresponding issue of The Varsity in 1919 will be presented with each edition.

From The Varsity Files
February 6, 1919

ADVERTISEMENT: Aura Lee Rink, 204 Avenue Road. Skating Season Now Open. Beautiful protected and secluded ice surface. On Wednesday nights, Ben Hoke's Celebrated Ten Piece Orchestra is a special attraction to combination Skating and Dancing Parties.

On account of the rotten condition of the ice the UC-Sr. Med game was not played last night.

Q.E.D.

Yes, it's been demonstrated time and time again, that for real refreshment it's Coke every time! Add up that cold crisp taste, that lively lift and you really have a drink worth going after. So whenever the crowd has a multiple thirst, make the high sign of good taste... pass around the Coca-Cola! Quod Erat Demonstrandum!

BE REALLY REFRESHED...HAVE A COKE!

SAY 'COKE' OR 'COCA-COLA'—BOTH TRADE-MARKS MEAN THE PRODUCT OF COCA-COLA LTD.—THE WORLD'S BEST-LOVED SPARKLING DRINK.

GAMES TODAY

HOCKEY	12.30 For. A vs Emman.	Brewer, Reimer
	1.30 Jr. SFS vs Vic. II	Cader, Downey
WATER POLO	1.00 Med. IV vs Pre-Med. I Yr.	J. Bcase, Thesingh
BASKETBALL MAJOR LEAGUE	1.00 St. M. B vs SPS. A	Moriarty, Kelner
	4.00 Arch. vs For. A	Richardson, Trefler
BASKETBALL MINOR LEAGUE (HART HOUSE)	1.00 III Geol. vs Pre-Med. II A	Shafir
	4.00 Music vs For. B (POSTPONED)
	5.00 III Metal vs Med. III Yr. C	Denov

WOMEN'S ATHLETICS

VOLEYBALL
All the games are at L.M.
Mon. Feb. 9	6-7 Vic I - P.O.T. I
	7-8 P.H.E. - St. Hilda's II
Tues. Feb. 10	5-6 St. Michael's I - Vic IV
	6-7 Phum. - St. Hilda's I
Wed. Feb. 11	5-6 Vic II - O.C.E.
	6-7 P.O.T. II - St. Michael's II
	7-8 Meds - Vic III
Thur. Feb. 12	5-6 O.C.E. - St. Michael's II
	6-7 O.C.E. - P.O.T. II

Intercollegiate Practices:
Tues. Feb. 10, 5-6:30 at the Drill Hall
Thurs. Feb. 12, 5:30-7:30 at O.C.E.
Intercollegiate Tournament:
Fri. Feb. 13, and Sat. Feb. 14 at O.C.E.

HOCKEY
Week of Feb. 9th:	Visiting
Mon. Feb. 9	8:00 St. Mike's
	8:00 U.C.I.
Tues. Feb. 10	8:00 P.O.T. II
Wed. Feb. 11	12:30 Vic II
Thurs. Feb. 12	12:30 POT I
Fri. Feb. 13	4:00 Pharmacy
	Home Team
	Nursing
	Vic I
	M. de
	P.H.E.
	St. Hilda's I
	St. Hilda's II

BASKETBALL
Week of February 9 to 13
O.C.E. Tuesday Feb. 10	Thursday Feb. 12
5:30 Intercollegiate Practice	Intercollegiate Practice
7:30 Intermediate Practice

ARCHERY
Practice cancelled tomorrow, and there will be no more archery practices this term.

EXPORT "A"
FILTER TIP
CIGARETTES

THEN

and NOW

O'Keefe

ALE

BREWERY LIMITED

- Bowling said to have been played 7000 years ago
- 9-pin bowling once prohibited by law
- 5-pin Bowling invented by Toronto man in 1905

- Now more popular than golf or curling
- More bowling lanes in Toronto than in New York and Philadelphia combined
- 1,000,000 bowlers in Ontario alone!

Careening Carabins Ici Scream For Blue Blood

By GENE GLISKY
Associate Sports Editor

In every sense of the word, tonight is hockey night at Varsity Arena. Beginning at 5 p.m. the ice will host puckmen from Jr. OHA, while those rough and ready, red bloused, larondellers — is that the way they say it in French — from the University of Montreal square off against the Elik-less Varsity Blues.

Despite their unimpressive record on the statistics, Les Carabins are still one of the top teams in the intercollegiate loop. (The choice of the word loop is unfortunate, the latest sports release refers to the circuit as the intercollegiate conference.)

With two sharpshooters like Yves Laurendeau and Marcel Landreville prowling the wings, Montreal can be dangerous. Maurice Duhamel is no slouch either, and the speedy center has 13 points on the scoring column to prove it.

In their two contests to date, Blues have taken the measure of Carabins 3-0 and 7-6. Their last encounter proved a thriller, when Varsity squeaked in the final seconds of play. Fisticuffs and fencing highlighted the match, and who knows how long the red-shirts nurse a grudge.

The Varsity roster will see a few changes. Replacing Mike Elik between John Macdonald and Grant Mills, will be old dippy-doodle himself. Veteran Doug Williams will lead the face off parade, and if anyone can fill Elik's shoes, Williams is the logical choice.

Husky forward Tommy Watt will center the kid line between Howie (Li'l B'ar) Roth and Jim Brooks. This line is the unknown quantity on the Blues roster. How much scoring punch they can produce after only a week's workout together remains to be seen. Of one thing coach Jack Kennedy may rest assured, this line is the hardest back checking trio Blues have.

The Bill (Bear) Kennedy, Ron Casey, Dunc (Nails) Brodie contingent remains intact. Scoring power galore is definitely not lacking in the line-up.

The cream of intercollegiate defensive squads should be at their bruising best against Laurendeau and company. Frank Sullivan, Red Stephen, Harry Neale, Lorry Stacey, and Neil Munro will all be out to guard Ray Dunn in the Varsity nets.

Immediately following tonight's game, Blues grab a bus for Buffalo, N.Y. Scheduled to meet Clarkson College at 12 noon tomorrow, Varsity have a score to settle with those worthies. A depleted Blues squad last year dropped a 5-4 decision to the Yanks.

If your throat has recuperated from the Whitby contest, let's all meet for some GO BLUES GO at the Arena tonight. Game time 8 p.m.

All ardent hockey fans take note. The flash appearing in the Tely, blaring forth "Mac to visit Russia", definitely does not refer to our John (Mac) Macdonald. He will remain to captain Blues to the end of this season.

by
john brooks

varsity sports editor

Exactly what we are led to inquire after that exhibition hockey game between Varsity and Whitby Monday night, is the drawing power which compels 12,000-plus fans to jam Maple Leaf Gardens each time the Toronto Maple Leafs try to get out of the cellar?

Is it the opportunity (if you can afford it) of parking your posterior on red padded seats? Is it the fine music forthcoming from the old Shea's Theatre organ? Is it the impressive whiteness of the ice, or the bright red goal posts?

It must be one or all of those, because it surely cannot be the hockey game itself. In comparison to the wide-open, end-to-end play in the two Varsity-Whitby games, professional hockey begins to resemble a one-ring circus on its last legs.

If you're a professional hockey player, and you happen to be carrying the puck into the opponents' zone, and you discover you are all alone against two defencemen, your immediate thought is your personal safety, and you dump the puck into the corner.

But if you're playing in a Varsity-Whitby game, and you face similar circumstances, you're just as likely to try to carry the puck past those two men and get a decent shot on goal. And chances of a fist in the face or an elbow in the ear are much slimmer.

The game Monday showed comparatively little of the clutch-and-grab type of hockey that somehow appeals to Toronto's populace. Instead, there was hard, clean checking.

A good example of that came in the second period, when Mike Elik broke in with one man and the goalie to beat. He didn't even get past the defenceman (Alf Treen), who upended him with THE body-check of the game. And Elik will be the first to tell you it was a good, clean check.

And with that aforementioned "dumping" the puck into the corner comes the principal drawback to fast, free-wheeling hockey. Missing at the House That Smythe Built are the end-to-end rushes, the never-ceasing pace that should bring the Varsity fans out in hordes.

Monday's game was not as exciting as the first meeting between Jack Kennedy's Blues and the world amateur champion Dunnies. The teams were, perhaps, more equal in this second battle, with the shots on goal a much better indication of the play.

At the end of two periods, the score was 3-3, and the shots on goal were 32-32. Each team had scored once on a breakaway, once on a rebound, and once on a screened shot. Each team had tallied once with the opposition short-handed through penalty.

Penalties hurt Blues in the third, and Dunnies outscored them 2-1 and outshot them 17-5. That the game became more one-sided in the third period, and that Whitby won the game on a fluke goal, rendered the climax less pulsating than in the first game.

But it was, nevertheless, a great contest. Both goalkeepers were nothing short of sensational, and in a game which produced 86 shots, they had to be. Ray Dunn played as well, if not better, than when he carried Varsity to a 6-5 victory over Whitby in December.

Dunc Brodie (who played the third period with bandages wrapped on a cut in his leg), Mike Elik (playing his fourth game in four nights — he arrived at the Arena at 7:59 after driving 200 miles from Olean, N.Y.), Jim Brooks, Bill Kennedy, Johnny Macdonald and the whole gang were flying.

And you've got to give special plaudits to the unsung heroes of that game — Toronto's four-man defense platoon. Lorry Stacey and Harry Neale played defensive hockey at its best. If you want proof, consider the number of times Dunnies forwards found themselves ridden off after breaking into the Varsity zone.

Dave Stephen and Neil Munro played one of the finest two-way games this observer has seen either produce in the past four years. They did their share of defensive work admirably, and more than once, that guy carrying the puck out of the Varsity end was Stephen or Munro.

Incidentally, there were those who objected to the selection of the three stars, chosen by Gene Glisky of this journal. How anyone could argue with the selection of Stephen as the first choice is difficult to ascertain. (Where, for instance, would Varsity have been without the old redhead killing that five-minute penalty in the third period?)

Tommy O'Connor well-deserved the second star. Apart from Bobby Attersley (the who roamed the blue line), O'Connor was Dunnies' most effective forward. Neale as the third star earned it. As a defensive defenceman, he was the best on the ice on either team.

If honorable mention could be given, let's single out Whitby captain Harry Sinden and Blues' Dunc Brodie (ironically, they are brothers-in-law). Both are consistently colorful and valuable performers, but for THE three stars, there couldn't have been a better choice. (And picking them is not an easy job, either.)

And so it becomes a memory. Two fine hockey teams engaged in two finer hockey games. Varsity Blues may never get to the Olympic Games, they may never be Canadian college champions, they may never again have a team like this one.

But when the end of the trail rolls around in May, we'll have many intangible keepsakes of our four years at college. Two of those momentos will be great hockey games.

FROM THE BLUE ROOM

Dunlop GM Wren Blair wants a third game ... it's understandable, though, as his out from the two to date must easily surpass income from the tiny Whitby rink for which he pays rent ... chances of a rubber match are slim, however ... Varsity coach Jack Kennedy wants a college title.

With this issue, The Varsity welcomes the addition of its second Varsity Blue footballer to the sporting roster ... Weldon Thoburn hops onto the senior basketball beat.

Upcoming of interest: Hockey tonight, with Montreal Carabins visiting Blues at 8 p.m.; basketball tomorrow night with league-leading Assumption the visitors; exhibition swimming, boxing, water polo and dancing add to the Athletic Night entertainment.

And while we're on swimming, watch for great plans from the aquamen ... we'll give you the full story next week ...

Irony played a heavy role in the McGill-Montreal game Wednesday night ... McGill goalie Alex Herron got a tripping penalty with less than four minutes to play and the score 1-1 ... Carabins promptly rattled two goals past Herron and claimed a 3-1 victory.

Saskatchewan to Toronto telegrams are flying thick and fast as Mitro Makarchuk continues investigation of holding a college hockey final in Saskatoon's 5,500-seat arena ... U of S is celebrating its Golden Jubilee and wants a final out there badly ...

Tournaments Galore For Female Athletes

BY SHARON MILGRAM
Varsity Staff Reporter

Intercollegiate tournament time has rolled around once again. With one tournament, archery, just completed and three more, volleyball, badminton and basketball, coming up in the near future, the U. of T. girls are being kept quite busy.

During the past week-end, the girls' indoor archery team travelled to O.A.C. to compete, very successfully I might add, in the Intercollegiate Shoot.

Never headed, the Toronto squad won the title by a very comfortable margin over the runner up OAC team. The final standings were: U. of T. 3919, O.A.C. 3502, Queens 3377, McMaster 3284, Western 3134 and McGill 2744.

Saturday morning each girl shot four ends from distances of 15, 20 and 25 yards. Each end consists of six arrows. At the end of the morning shoot the team scores were tallied and the U. of T. squad led their nearest competitor by approximately 260 points. This same method of shooting was repeated in the afternoon and the Toronto team increased its lead to gain victory.

June Seviour, president of the Archery Club, led the Toronto team and all other entrants in the tournament in shooting for the second consecutive year. In the individual scoring race, June's toughest competition came from Irene Tomko of McMaster whose score of 1004 was exactly 100 points behind the leader. Third top scorer in the tournament was another Toronto girl, Margaret Merritt (H.S.e.) with a score of 983. Other Toronto scorers were Viuu Kanep (PHE) 936 and Jean Hayward 896.

Blues Host Assumption Highlight Athletic Night

By WELDON THOBURN
Varsity Staff Reporter

Headlining the major Athletic Night of the 1959 season, this Saturday the University of Toronto basketball Blues meet Assumption University Lancers in what rates as the key game of their schedule. Presently in third place the Blues are looking to improve their 2-2 record by bottling up the league-leading Lancers defensively.

For the first time this year Varsity will hold the edge in height. Rolly Goldring, John Dacyshyn and Jim Maguire will lead the Blues' forward wall against the Lancers' Gene Rizak, a 5'10" centre, Jerry Kotwas and Larry Francoeur.

Veteran Pete Potter and Captain Ruby Richman will handle the ball at the guard spots.

Due to the loss of eight players through graduation last year Coach John McManus seemed destined to lose his championship. By winning their remaining games Blues could end up with an 8-2 record — good enough to take top laurels — and provide the comeback story of the year. Last year was the first year Varsity won the championship since 1940.

The same two colleges will clash in an intermediate game at 6:30. Coach Don Lipke will be counting on tall Bill Patterson to help the seconds gain their third straight victory.

For swimming enthusiasts, coach Bill Yorzyk and record-breaker Bill Deacon from Upper Canada College will lead the Varsity swim team against the University of Rochester.

Although star swimmer Joe MacInnis was reported captured by the Engineers Thursday, the team is expected to come up with another fine showing.

Also in the way of aquatics the YMHA and U of T water polo teams will swim at 9:30.

Men to represent Toronto in the intercollegiate boxing championships will be decided in a series of bouts in the upper gym. Coach Tony Cuzzano has lined up a tough young bunch headed by heavyweight Mike Chykaluk. Mike, a former Golden Gloves champion in Alberta, was a defensive tackle on the football Blues last fall.

Individual combat also includes an exhibition of judo in the upper gym at 7, along with the University Wrestling Championships. The newly organized Judo Club will tangle with representatives from Assumption College. Two women judo experts will be on hand to add some spice to the combat.

Intercollegiate team wrestlers will be included among the sparans grunting and groaning for their individual faculties.

All these events, along with dancing in the music room after the basketball games, can be enjoyed for only 50 cents plus a University ATL card.

Baby Blues Host Marlies—and Cote

Defenceman Roger Cote, whose antics have cast him into the OHA Junior A spotlight with St. Catharines Teepees, visits Varsity Arena this afternoon.

With him come Toronto Marlies, scheduled to meet Varsity Baby Blues in an exhibition tilt at 5 p.m. Marlies are currently in fifth place in the junior standings.

Baby Blues will be out to regain their winning stride after dropping an 8-6 exhibition encounter to Cobourg, of the OHA Intermediate series, last weekend.

The Scoreboard

INTERCOLLEGIATE HOCKEY

	P	W	L	T	Pts
TORONTO	1	0	6	23	12
Laval	6	5	1	0	29
McGill	7	3	4	0	37
McGill	8	0	8	14	71

Wednesday's Result:

Montreal 3 McGill 1

Future Games:

Tonight—Montreal at TORONTO

BASKETBALL

	P	W	L	T	Pts
Western	4	4	0	0	8
A. Assumption	5	4	1	0	8
TORONTO	4	2	2	0	4
Queen's	5	2	3	0	4
McGill	5	1	4	0	2
McMaster	3	1	4	0	2

Wednesday's Result:

Western 81 McMaster 74

Future Games:

Tonight—Western at Queen's, Assumption at McMaster.

Tomorrow—Assumption at TORONTO, Western at McGill.

A Confused History

(Continued from Page 3)
ial is either bought with money donated, or is itself donated by alumni of the university."

Mr. Rosen said although he has been collecting such material for many years, and is not particularly anxious to part with it, he realized it should be in University College. "I'm not looking for a large profit, but of course I'm not in business for my health," he said.

The history of the documents is long and complex. Shortly after Sir William's death in 1944, the Mulock Jarvis St. home was turned over to the Salvation Army and was used as a home for unwed mothers. Gradually, as more bed space was needed, Sir William's personal possessions were disposed of, through a series of sales at first, and then finally thrown away.

In one of these sales, several truckloads of material were bought by Saul Winetraub, a well-known Yonge St. book dealer. Mr. Rosen, who was interested in philatelic material, assisted him in identifying much of this material. From these truckloads came about 800 pounds of paper which Rosen bought.

Out of this mass of documents came about 25 pounds of useful material including all the Mulock documents.

There were all of Sir William's subject certificates in a sealed packet, various other documents and several photographs of Sir William and other prominent Canadians.

All these items lay in Rosen's store for 12 years until last December and Somers' donation, which started the ball rolling for the Archives.

An article in The Varsity concerning Somers' gift was followed in a few days by the donation of a 1905 class pennant and pin.

Last week John McCaul, the great grandson and namesake of U of T's first president, donated an illuminated address given by a committee of Toronto citizens to the former president in 1848 on the occasion of his appointment as president of the now defunct King's College, which became the University of Toronto in 1850.

Mr. Slate's donation is the latest of the series.

Details about the early history of the university are few and far between, according to Mr. Milnes, and every horde of documents that turns up fills in a few of the blanks.

Until these subject certificates began to appear, Mr. Milnes was not aware there had ever been such documents.

Rosen will not put a price on the documents he has, but promised not to take advantage of the fact that the Archives is anxious to obtain them.

After nearly a hundred years it seems fitting that the possessions of such a famous Canadian, connected with the University almost all his life should be placed within the wall of the institution he helped build.

SEE The A.V.R. FREE

Be An

Usher or Usherette

MEET IN FRONT OFFICE OF THE

S.A.C. BUILDING TODAY AT 4.30 p.m.

It's Fun to DANCE

AT

Mart Kenney's Ranch

EVERY SATURDAY
CANADA'S FINEST
BANDS

Special Student Rates
$1.00 per person
Reservation, And
Information
AT. 8-1282

In MATINÉE

you'll find the finest...

Its classic tobaccos give the special quality you demand. The delightful mildness is Matinée's own, and the pure, white filter completes your enjoyment. That is why you'll smoke Matinée with the complete confidence you've found the finest.

A cigarette of elegance... A filter of particular purity

SOVIET UNION And East European Tour

UNDER THE DIRECTION OF MR. JOHN GREER NICHOLSON, B.A., M.A., (Cambridge) Lecturer at the University of Montreal — Slavic and East European studies. Adviser of the East-European International Service of the CBC in Montreal.

51 Days - $995.00 - All Inclusive

- * Orientation seminar aboard the Europe-Canada Line m.v. SEVEN SEAS sailing from Montreal on June 2.
- * Visiting FINLAND, RUSSIA, UKRAINE, POLAND, CZECHOSLOVAKIA.
Itinerary includes Helsinki, Leningrad, Moscow, Kiev, Gygycow, Cracow, Ostrava, Gottwaldov and Prague.
- * Return trip by regular KLM ROYAL DUTCH AIRLINES flight featuring multi-stopover plan
The tour participants will be allowed to remain in Europe after the tour on their own and at their own expense.

FOR INFORMATION:

NFCUS TRAVEL DEPARTMENT
375 RIDEAU STREET OTTAWA, CANADA

CLASSIFIED ADS.

$1 DOWN BUYS ANY MAKE
Brand new typewriters $59 up
Some models $30 off. Free home demonstration. Free typing course
1959 models rented, lowest rates
375 Jane-Humber, RO 6-1103.

ACCOMMODATION AVAILABLE
for a male and a female student in Canada. Co-Operative Residence. Phone: WA 1-2320.

FURNISHED APARTMENT TO LET

Available March 1st to June 15th.
Walking distance from University.
Call on weekend, WA 2-2338.

CAMP IN ONTARIO

with general camp program, plus Jewish cultural program desires senior section male staff. Apply
Box 7, S.A.C. Office.

TYPIST (Electric)

Fast, accurate, personalized service.
Theses, essays, letters, dictation. Reasonable rates. Irene
Kenyon, 146 Bernard Avenue,
WA 3-4011.

Nobody Ever Called 'J. Paul Shеды* Till He Heard About Wildroot Cream-Oil!

"Shеды, I've got moose for you", said J. Paul's girl. "I could never caribou a guy with messy hair. Why don't you use your head for something besides a hatrack?" This opened Shеды's eyes. So he collected some doe and hoofed it down to the store for a bottle of Wildroot Cream-Oil. Now Shеды feels good about his hair because he nose it looks neat and natural all day. Wildroot Cream-Oil contains no elk-ohol...er, alcohol...to dry your hair. No heavy grease to plaster it down. Use Wildroot every morning and the compliments you get will be moose-ic to your ears.

* of 131 So. Harris Hill Rd., Williamsville, N. Y.

Wildroot Cream-Oil
gives you confidence

EATON'S

Corduroy Slacks with a new Touch the slim tapered look and the pleatless front remain unchanged, but the buckle-on-the-back has yielded to a pair of neat flaps on the hip pockets. The flaps are not only new and different... they're more functional. Added styling note: leather-trimmed pockets, foulard lined inside waistband. Brown, beige, sand, charcoal. Sizes 30 to 42.

each 11.95

PHONE UN 1-5111 — MEN'S CLOTHING
Eaton's Main Store — Second Floor, Dept. 229

THE VARSITY

Vol. LXXVIII — No. 73

Monday, February 9th, 1959

Acadia Reinstates Angus, Fiander May Finish Year

WOLFVILLE, N.S. — CUP — The Acadia University campus newspaper went to press today with its editor back on the job after being suspended for publishing an article described by college authorities as "blasphemous".

Editor Donald Angus, suspended last Thursday on the recommendation of the student disciplinary committee of the Baptist-affiliated university, was reinstated Friday by order of the student council.

Aside from reversing the judicial committee's decision to suspend Angus and to ask for his resignation the students' council also overthrew another recommendation which would have set up a board of five censors, to include two faculty members, which would scrutinize all articles before publication.

But hints of faculty interference came in a statement by University President Watson Kirkconnell released last night.

"I still have the power to suspend the paper at any time", he said, "and I can close it down if necessary".

He also hinted that the student author of the article, whom he ordered to "leave town within 24 hours", might be permitted to complete his Arts course — but not in the university.

Dr. Kirkconnell said fourth-year Arts student Robert Fiander, 25, may be allowed to finish his course "extra-murally, with the possibility of finally graduating from this university".

The article, published in the Jan. 30 issue of The Athenaeum, was entitled "Paradoxically Speaking". It consisted mainly of a dialogue, apparently between two theological students, which was followed by a religious poem.

Editor Angus said he examined Fiander's article before publication and understood it perfectly. The charge that it was "blasphemous" was "ridiculous", he said.

Here it stands:

Lutheran Chapel

A modernistic $210,000 University Lutheran Chapel was officially opened by Rev. John W. Behnken, president of the Missouri Lutheran Synod, at a special service yesterday afternoon.

A congregation composed of families and students overflowed the 250-seat chapel proper and more than filled all available seating in a cellar hall where loudspeakers had been installed.

The service, fairly close to the Anglican pattern, was led by the Anglican pastor, Rev. F. A. Gumz. Rev. Behnken delivered the sermon.

In the chapel, Rev. Behnken said, students will find, not high-flown philosophical discussion, but the Word of God.

Pastors, he said, are the ambassadors of Christ on Earth, and must preach His Word. They believe what is laid down in Scripture whether or not they understand it.

He cited doctrines concerning baptism and transubstantiation. "The Lutheran Church," he said, "is a doctrinal church."

Those attending the chapel, he said, would be called upon to see their own sinfulness. "Sometimes," Rev. Behnken said, "you will want to sink out of the chapel."

The site of the chapel, 610 Spadina Ave., was the second to be purchased for it.

In the summer of 1955, the Ontario District of the Lutheran Church purchased a building site on College St. Just as the new building was about to be erected, the U of T expropriated the area in which the site was located.

However, the U of T reimbursed the Ontario District and the Spadina lot was purchased. The chapel will be directly opposite university residences when the current U of T expansion program is completed.

The boxlike chapel is adorned on the outside with a plain rectangular steeple bearing a naked cross and with the insignia of Christ and the apostles cut into the front wall.

The simple interior features a copper Corpus — a figure of Christ with outstretched arms — against a gold background over a plain altar.

Contract Cooling Faculty Feud Meds to Return Skule Cannon

Negotiations have been completed for return of Skule Cannon, mascot of some 2,000 U of T Engineers.

Fourth year Meds president Gord Perkin said last night the cannon will be returned Wednesday in exchange for a replica modeled on the original.

He said terms of a contract had been drawn up Saturday between the Engineering Society and the Medical Society. Only detail not decided is whether the exchange will be formal or informal.

"Both sides figured they had had their fun and this was the way to get out gracefully," Perkin said.

Engineering Society president Rick Schaeff said last night negotiations were underway but refused to elaborate. However in a statement to engineers written yesterday Schaeff listed tentative terms of the pact and called upon all Skulemen to "prove to the Medsmen we are men of our word. Comply with the terms."

Schaeff's terms, confirmed by Perkin, are:

The cannon is to be returned exactly as it was when it was stolen;

Medsmen are to be presented with a replica of the cannon "so they finally get something besides their own old beat-up cup to look up to";

All kidnapping, on both sides is to cease immediately;

Medsmen are guaranteed safe conduct back to their building with the replica;

There is to be no attack on any description made on the Meds since Thursday night;

There will be no attack on the Skule dance the following Thursday night;

And each side will do its best to fulfill its blood quota.

Men of our word. Comply with the terms."

Schaeff's terms, confirmed by Perkin, are:

The cannon is to be returned exactly as it was when it was stolen;

Medsmen are to be presented with a replica of the cannon "so they finally get something besides their own old beat-up cup to look up to";

All kidnapping, on both sides is to cease immediately;

Medsmen are guaranteed safe conduct back to their building with the replica;

There is to be no attack on any description made on the Meds since Thursday night;

There will be no attack on the Skule dance the following Thursday night;

And each side will do its best to fulfill its blood quota.

VIRGIL over Rome's last by AVR lead Ned McLean as she after he learns he has two weeks to fill royal history.

Press, VIP's Annoyed As Model UN Finishes

MONTREAL (CUP) — Wandering at university, national and international levels vied for the spotlight with international insights and calls to idealism at the University Model United Nations in Montreal last week.

Miffed were the French-speaking Montreal press, University of Montreal delegates, at least one Canadian cabinet minister and a number of real-life international diplomats. The four-day convention ended Saturday.

The French press flared up over alleged preferential treatment given the English papers in distribution of copies of a speech by External Affairs Minister Sydney Smith Wednesday night.

Meanwhile, a real-life Minister of External Affairs, Lester B. Pearson, visited the conference table as a delegate, but declined to sit on the same panel as representatives of the United Republic of the South Atlantic.

Another headache came with a protest from Finance Minister Fleming that he had not been mentioned as a keynote speaker at the UN assembly. The protest, scheduled for Thursday, was cancelled when the minister accepted the minister's offer.

Meanwhile University of Montreal delegates said McGill University was getting too much publicity from the conference.

Liberal leader Lester B. Pearson, honorary UMUN president, in the keynote address Friday night, urged the half-hearted and "mild action" of the recent United Nations General Assembly in showing no inclination to create a small permanent UN armed force.

Negotiation is hampered, he said, by the abuse of the UN for unworthy publicity. He added, "Headlines too often merely burden convictions without clarifying them."

At the closing banquet Saturday night Paul Martin, former Health and Welfare Minister and vice-president of the first Canadian UN delegation, said the UN General Assembly is assuming increased authority at the expense of the Security Council because of the veto in the latter body.

The U of T delegation consisted of four students who represented New Zealand.

VIRGIN and beautiful, AVR chorus pays homage to high altar during last night's dressless rehearsal of "Have You Will Travel".

New Principal . . .

The warden of the Anglican Church Army and rector of the Epiphany was named principal of Wycliffe College last weekend.

Canon H. H. Hunt was elected by the college board of governors to succeed Dr. R. W. Armitage who announced his retirement recently after 19 years as Wycliffe principal.

Canon Hunt is expected to assume his duties in September.

This week he will receive one of the few earned doctorates of divinity awarded by the college.

pitiful

Of all the charges which could be levelled against any society or group of individuals, perhaps the most damning in our modern terms is the charge that the society or group is entirely lacking in imagination.

The charge is damning for two reasons. In the first place it denies to that society any real intellectual ability or appreciation. In the second, the individuals become members of that miserable category of human-beings towards which one reacts with sympathy rather than disgust; with pity rather than anger.

In our opinion, students of the Faculty of Applied Science and Engineering and particularly their elected representatives on the Engineering Society, are entirely lacking in imagination.

The Engineers have been hurt this year, and hurt badly. Their morale first began to suffer when talk was heard of the banning of their stylish jackets; it wilted when a safe was high-jacked from beneath their very noses and a Christmas tree dismantled in spite of elaborate preparations to prevent it; finally, it withered completely with the ignominious loss last week of their sacred Skule Cannon, symbol of Engineering supremacy on campus.

And how have the Engineers reacted to all this? They have reacted by the only method they are capable of understanding: the traditional method of crude, brute force. Brute force cannot be condemned by itself. Although a disorderly storming of The Varsity office and the kidnapping of half a dozen Medsman cannot be termed either original or effective, these operations do display an elementary spark of basic imagination.

But when the Engineering Society seeks further revenge by sending pornographic obscenities through the mail in the full knowledge the mail will be opened in mixed company, we no longer feel angry or disgusted.

Our principal emotion is one of pity.

THE VARSITY

Member Canadian University Press

Today's Issue: Riho Pild (who runs copy). Photography this issue: Dan Hatcher.

Kitten

big, bulky BAN-LON

Big jumbo-knit BAN-LON with pearly pie-plate buttons... big style with flaring Queen Anne collar, wide contrast-knit collar edging and front panel... no pilling, no stretch or shrink... hand-finished... in a mind-blowing spring colours. $15.95 AT GOOD-BOYS everywhere.

Look for the Kitten Brand!

Christian or Blasphemous?

The Acadia Crisis

Many narrow minds, much hasty judgment and excruciating newspaper lay-out last week fanned a small, internal controversy in a Maritime university into a nation-wide news story.

Trouble began January 30 when The Acadia Athenaeum, students' weekly newspaper of Baptist-affiliated Acadia University in Wolfville, Nova Scotia, printed an article which wandered across page two and page three called "Paradoxically Speaking."

As a result of this article, the writer, fourth-year student Robert Flander, 25, was expelled from university and ordered to leave town within 24 hours. Donald Angus, editor of the Athenaeum, was fined by the student council.

After second thoughts on the matter, the council has reinstated Angus and the university's president, Dr. Walter Kirkconnel, has hinted that the article's author might be allowed to finish his courses "extra-murally with the possibility of finally graduating from this university".

And what was the article which produced so much discontent yet apparently needed so much understanding? Dr. Kirkconnel has called it a "foul blasphemy". Angus maintains it is "pro-Christian".

Most cool-headed people, if they bothered to read the whole article and judge it as a unity, would agree with Angus. The article is certainly "pro-Christian". The real question, and the question which Dr. Kirkconnel should have asked instead of yelling "blasphemy", is whether or not the article was necessary. Most cool-headed people would again be forced to say that it was not.

In essence the article is a long, crude dialogue between two theological students. On their way to "wespers" the students pause to discuss a painting of the Virgin Mary. "Gotta load of that", says one. "Man! Would I like to have them on the front of my car", answers the other.

"What's her name?" "In our profession we call her Mary. She doesn't have a last name."

Using "beat" phrases, the two go on to confuse Brigitte Bardot with the Virgin, to discover that "Mary Whatser-name's" son died because he couldn't face the truth and because "nobody had a claw hammer, so he died of blood poisoning."

Finally they come across a book-marker with a poem on it. Calling the poem "idealistic drive!" for some "Baal worshipper" they decide to "throw it in the can and flush it down the sewer."

At the last moment one decides to use the poem as a book-marker to mark the "good pages" in his Mickey Spillane novel.

The dialogue ends and the book-marker poem is printed. The poem is a sincere and beautiful Christian lament called "The Grim Salvation". Of the four verses, it is necessary only to quote the last:

The words of grim salvation
Through burning lips were spread;

A mother screamed beneath him

As thorns fell from his head.

Taken in complete context, the article is a criticism of what the author sees as a modern and perhaps Catholic tendency to abuse Christianity and treat it as a book-marker. It is crude, but not blasphemous. It is pro-Christian, but does not need any of the filth which creeps into the initial dialogue to convey its message.

Perhaps the greatest fault of the article is a mechanical one. As it is printed, it rambles across ten columns and two pages. It has no printed unity and it is quite conceivable that a casual reader, like Dr. Kirkconnel, might mistake the dialogue as being the whole article. To disregard the whole, and damn the author for writing the parts, would hardly be fair.

We cannot judge whether or not the article should have been printed. But we can suggest that if it is to be printed, it should be printed clearly and intelligently to preclude any possibility of mistaking a part for the whole.

And we can also suggest that, whichever way it is printed, the student council and the president should have been either broad-minded or perceptive enough to understand what the author was saying instead of making wild threats, yelling "foul blasphemy" and trying to run a student out of town.

—Doug Marshall.

CLASSIFIED ADS.

$1 DOWN BUYS ANY MAKE
Brand new typewriters, $56 up. Some models $30 off. Free home demonstration. Free typing course. 1959 models rented, lowest rates. 375 Jane-Humber, RO 6-1103

TYPIST (Electric)
Fast, accurate, personalized service. Theses, essays, letters, dictation. Reasonable rates. Irene Kenyon, 146 Bernard Avenue, WA 3-4011.

WANTED
Accurate manuscript typist. Acquainted with contemporary literature. 6-8 hours daily for approximately 2 weeks. Rate of payment open to discussion. RU 1-8977 evenings.

LOST
Yellow textbook "Psychology of Learning" by Deese. Molly Fergusson Desperate. Phone WA 3-4442

UNIVERSITY HEALTH SERVICE SALK POLIO VACCINE WOMEN ONLY

Salk Vaccine Will Be Available for WOMEN Students:
TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 10th — 12.00 noon, to 2.00 p.m.
WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 11th — 2.00 p.m. to 4.00 p.m.
THIS WILL BE THE LAST OPPORTUNITY FOR WOMEN STUDENTS TO BEGIN A SERIES OF INJECTIONS.

UNIVERSITY HEALTH SERVICE SALK POLIO VACCINE Men Only

All male students who received their first Salk Polio vaccine injection on or about January 15th are asked to report to the Health Service on THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 12th — 10.00 a.m. to 3.00 p.m.
TO RECEIVE A SECOND INJECTION
These students are reminded that a single dose of the vaccine offers very little protection against Polio and it is most important to receive the first two injections within the recommended time interval.

GAMES MONDAY

HOCKEY	12.30 Med. I vs Vic. I	Stinson, Borthwick
	1.30 SPS. V vs Trin. B	Cader, Sedowy
WATER POLO	1.00 Arch vs SPS. I	Watkins, M. Boase
SQUASH	1.00 Sr. SPS. B vs Sr. SPS. A
	5.40 Med. III Yr. vs Dent. A
BASKETBALL MAJOR LEAGUE	1.00 U.C. I vs St. M. A	Moriarty, Keiner
	4.00 St. M. C vs U.C. III	Bugarski, Mandel
BASKETBALL MINOR LEAGUE (HART HOUSE)	1.00 II Eng. Bus. vs St. M. Gra. Robs.	Denov
	4.00 St. M. Rapeav. vs U.C. Wallace	Lubin
	5.00 Med. III Yr. A vs IV Mech.	Lubin
	6.00 Med. II Yr. vs Med. IV Yr. A	Lubin
BASKETBALL MINOR LEAGUE (VIC GYM)	5.00 St. M. Wimps vs I Eng. Phys.D (Postponed)	McGrath
	6.00 I Mech vs Pre-Dent. A	McGrath
	7.00 I Civil. B vs Vic. Gators	McGrath

Hart House

CHAPEL SERVICES:

Morning Prayers — 8.45 - 8.55 a.m.
Evening Prayers — 4.50 - 5.00 p.m.
Holy Communion: 8.00 a.m. Thursday

ART GALLERY:

"CONTEMPORARY JAPANESE PRINTS"
Open every day from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. to members
Open to women on Wednesday from 12 noon to 6 p.m.

MONDAY, February 9th, 1959:

Sing Song: 1.25 p.m. — East Common Room
Art Library: Curator on duty at 1 p.m.
Revolver Club: 7.30 p.m. — Rifle Range

WEDNESDAY, 11th February:

CHESS SIMUL. CHESS MASTER — FRANK ANDERSON.
7.45 p.m. — Debates Room. Tickets from the Hall Porter's Desk. Price $1.00 non-members; 25c members.

FIVE O'CLOCK RECITAL in the Music Room. RHODA PEN- DLETON, Soprano, Schubert, Brahms, Debussy, Michael Head and Daniel Pinkham.

THURSDAY, 12th February:

HART HOUSE DEBATE — 8 p.m. Hon. Visiter: DEAN C. A. WRIGHT, Faculty of Law

FRIDAY, 13th February:

INVITATION DINNER (tickets from Hall Porter's Desk, price $2.00 per couple) and ANNUAL INTERFACULTY AND INTERCOLLEGIATE QUARTET CONTEST

CLOSING DATE FOR ENTRIES TO THE 37th PHOTOGRAPHIC EXHIBITION — FRIDAY, 13th FEBRUARY — 1.00 p.m.

Special event: Hart House Lecture

"Have Toga, Will Travel" is set in the whimsical, wonderful world of ancient Rome.

It's hero is Emperor Nero, a friendly fellow who means well in spite of a retiring nature. Nero's simple life is somewhat complicated by the discovery of a senators' plot to seize control of the Empire.

Nero's solution to the problem is a cultural one, but he is alternately aided and plagued by love intrigues within the castle.

The troubled Emperor manages, of course, to "fiddle while Rome burns"—onstage. But during the course of the show, he also finds temporary solace in playing a clarinet and the bagpipes.

Authors Dick Dean and Stan Farrow admit they use some political lines to take what might be interpreted as a swipe at Canadian politics. But the show avoids topical lines as much as possible, they say.

Irv Goldberg, All-Varsity Revue chairman, says one reason the AVR committee picked "Have Toga, Will Travel" was because the show bears no relation to McGill University's smash hit "My Fur Lady". And one of the differences between the two shows is "Have Toga's" lack of dependence on topical lines.

Producer Bill Lord describes the musical comedy as "whimsical". Dialogue and music are mixed equally in the show, he says. About 15 original musical numbers are included in the show.

One big production sequence in the show is "We're having a festival" in which almost the entire cast of 50 students takes part.

Another spectacular number is a fire-dance sequence which portrays "the burning of Rome onstage", Lord says. As a fire precaution, officials have arranged for "all the Praetorian guards to stand backstage with their helmets filled with water", he says.

Informed sources say officials have decided to ignore history and let their Vestal Virgins marry.

"Have Toga, Will Travel" was born last summer out of a bitter, two-year Students' Administrative Council battle and in the minds of two young Victoria College students.

The clamor of an original U of T musical comedy began as a murmur in 1956, while Curt Reis completed plans for the production of "Finian's Rainbow". Although "Finian's" was a financial as well as critical success, McGill University came out the same year with "My Fur Lady", the original musical which went on to sweep the country.

The U of T collective pride had been struck a deadly blow. While Reis went ahead with plans to produce another Broadway show, "Guys and Dolls", the opponents lined up for a prolonged battle over the merits of an original U of T show.

After two months of wrangling and tension-packed meetings, the SAC handed down its verdict. Reis's plans were swept aside, and the AVR committee began a desperate and tardy search for original material.

It was soon apparent that no such material was, or would be, available. But the SAC stuck to its decision, saying that the ban on Broadway shows would provide initiative for potential student playwrights.

Last year's AVR was culled from the best of a conglomeration of college and faculty shows. Under the direction of Jim Vasoff and Bob Yasny, both U of T alumni, the show received a tremendous advance build-up, but did not quite manage to break even.

Added to these inauspicious circumstances, St. Mike's came up this year with its "The Dedicated Men", an original comedy, which was a rave success.

These factors have all combined to give "Have Toga, Will Travel" the worst advance publicity possible. No one has been able to judge the show on its merits; instead they have condemned it wholesale for "the sins of the fathers".

H A V E T O G A

Cast

NERO	Neil McLean
JOHN	Roger White
MARCUS	Ian Garratte
LUCIA	Sandy Stephenson
JULIA	Ruth Ann Scott
PORTIA	Di Ede
PRIMUS	Dean Hutchinson
QUINTUS	Jim Henning
SECUNDUS	Gerry Dawson
TERTIUS	Sheldon Greenberg
CAPTAIN OF THE GUARD	Bob Gibb
FLAVIUS	Doug Myers

Dancers

Nancy Deller	Muriel Bobyk
Dalla Grin	Bernice Bobyk
Marlin Keene	Brenda Leake
Lynne Easto	Gilbert Zuker
Tamara Weir	Marshall Redhill

Chorus

Liz Chater	Bob Gibb
Denise Irvine	Jim Henning
Nancy Jarvis	Terry Jabour
Judy Kellock	Stan Litch
Anna Koabel	Barry Munroe
Mary Munroe	Doug Myers
Shirley Pethes	Dave Rosevear
Mary Thomas	Hart Rossman
Jean Tavell	Peter White
Jean Wilson	Hank Wolstat

W I L L T R A V E L

here

TODAY

1-2 p.m. — Fathers Andrew Blair and Hilary Beasley of the Community of the Resurrection, Mirfield, England, will speak at a special luncheon at Canterbury Centre, 99 St. George St. Bring your lunch or buy it there.

1-10-2 p.m. — SCM will study "The Gospel of St. John" in the Chaplain's Office, second floor, Hart House.

4-6 p.m. — The Graduate Union plans a tea at 44 Hoskin Ave.

TUESDAY

12-15 p.m. — The Holy Eucharist will be celebrated in Trinity College Chapel.

1 p.m. — The FROS folk music group presents a surprise at 3 Willocks St.

1-10-2 — Bring your lunch to the Hart House SCM Office for another "Prof Talk". Mr. Claude Brodeur, Ph.D. candidate in philosophy and a Roman Catholic will be on hand.

8 p.m. — The German Club will hold its annual "Faschings Ball" carnival dance in the Trinity Buttery. Everyone is welcome and costumes are optional, but please wear eye-masks.

Fleming, Fulton, Jung Address Young Tories

Names of speakers at the upcoming Progressive Conservative Student Federation's MacDonald-Cartier Conference were announced last night.

Douglas Jung, M.P. for Vancouver Centre and President of the Young Progressive Conservatives will kick off the Conference Friday with greetings from the YPC's, and Finance Minister Donald Fleming will deliver the opening address to conference delegates at 3 p.m.

Keynote addresses will be given by Justice Minister Davie Fulton on "Canadian Conservatism" and by Transport Minister George Hees on "The Future of the Conservative Party in Canada".

Seminars on Foreign Affairs and Economics will be held Friday, the first day of the conference, while the second day will be devoted to discussions of Conservative Philosophy and History and to the proposed Canadian Bill of Rights.

Highlight of the three-day conference is a reception of delegates by Members of Parliament and Cabinet Friday night.

The conference, being held in Ottawa next Friday, Saturday and Sunday, will bring together delegates from Ontario and Quebec. Conference Organizer and Ontario Chairman Del O'Brien (I Law) will be leading the University of Toronto's delegation to the meet.

Special Attention — 25% Discount

ON ALL JEWELLERY PURCHASES

Including Watches, Diamonds, Silverware, Lighters, Wallets, Pens, and Pencils, Radios, Clocks, Costume Jewellery etc. etc. You must have your A.T.L. card when making a purchase.

SHEFFIELD JEWELLERS

DIAMOND MERCHANTS

323 YONGE ST. (5 doors above Dundas)

TEL. EM. 6-0977

ON SALE TODAY

U.C. - St. Michael's

the children's hour

HART HOUSE THEATRE — FEB. 18, 19, 20, 21

U.C. Rotunda — Students Only $1.00 — Carr Hall

ORCHID — GARDENIA — CAMELLIA — CARNATION

Valentine's Corsages — 35% Discount

FOR ALL STUDENTS

SATISFACTION GUARANTEED CITY-WIDE DELIVERY

WONG'S FLORIST, 3211 YONGE ST., HU. 5-4575

Special Student Service — Call From 3.30 to 12 p.m.

REMEMBER: You Can't Go Wrong With Wong

DANCE OF THE YEAR FOR GRADUATE STUDENTS

The Valentine Dance

at

THE SIGN OF THE STEER

on

FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 13

Dancing 9 - 1

Supper Included

SEMI-FORMAL

$3.00 PER COUPLE

Buy Your Ticket Immediately at 44 Hoskin Ave.

and now

Grand Opening Tonite

8.30 p.m. — Hart House Theatre

The All New Varsity Revue

"Have Toga, Will Travel"

Tickets $1.50 and $1.75 at the S.A.C. Office

- Basketball was invented in 1891 by a Canadian, Dr. J. A. Naismith
- There were originally 9 players on each team
- The first uniforms were full-length gymnasium pants and long-sleeved jerseys

and NOW

- There are now only 5 players per team
- The uniforms have been abbreviated for freer movement, faster action
- The original peach baskets have been replaced by steel hoops, the original soccer ball by a special faceless ball

BUTTON certifying that President Claude T. Bissell has pledged his blood to the Red Cross was pinned to the presidential button-hole by campaign chairman Charlotte Hubbell in a ceremony yesterday afternoon. The blood campaign begins next week. (Varsity Staff Photo by Cavanagh)

Injured Kennedy Out For Season

Centre Bill Kennedy, the Intercollegiate Hockey League's leading scorer, will be lost to the Varsity Blues for up to four weeks as the result of an injury in Saturday's exhibition game in Buffalo.

The 22-year old veteran of Ontario Hockey Association Junior A play suffered a head injury when he fell heavily to the ice midway through the third period, and was carried unconscious from the Buffalo Auditorium.

Kennedy spent the night in hospital, and returned to Toronto with Coach Jack Kennedy Sunday. The colorful playmaker suffered no apparent after-effects from the injury, but was advised by team doctor David L. MacIntosh to avoid contact for a month.

The verdict may keep Kennedy out of action for the remainder of the season. Varsity wraps up the schedule against Laval and University of Montreal on March 6 and 7.

Kennedy, playing his first season with Varsity, has amassed eight goals and 17 assists in eight league games to hold a comfortable lead in college scoring. He has been working on a line with Dunc Brodie and Ron Casey.

Blues' most productive unit, the trio has produced 54 points in games to date, and was only 21 points away from Varsity's all-time scoring record for a forward line in one season.

To replace the injured player, Coach Kennedy has moved defenseman Harry Neale into the vacant centre slot, with Frank Sullivan joining Dave Stephenson on the blueline.

THE VARSITY

Vol. LXXVIII — No. 71

Tuesday, February 10th, 1959

Aid Plan Released By BC Criticized As Political Sop

VANCOUVER — CUP — A provincial student-aid plan proposed by British Columbia's Premier W. A. C. Bennett in his budget speech last Friday has been termed nothing but "political propaganda" by University of British Columbia student leaders.

The plan would see the provincial government paying half the fees of first-class students (those with marks over 80 percent) and one third of the fees of the top 2,000 students in the second-class (65 to 80 percent) bracket.

The plan, first of its kind to be introduced in Canada, "will encourage scholarship and assist the ablest students", Premier Bennett said in his speech.

Student leaders Saturday morning termed the plan a political sop to sugarcoat the Premier's earlier refusal to give UBC the $2,000,000 it had requested to avert threatened fee increases.

Charles Connaghan, head of UBC's Alma Mater Society, Saturday said "the scheme is nothing but a beautiful piece of political propaganda".

Later in the weekend a group of student leaders met with Dean Geoffrey Andrew, Deputy President of UBC, who had attended the budget speech at Premier Bennett's request.

After the meeting the UBC student council issued a statement that the scheme was "the beginning of a good plan" but there were gaps in it.

Main criticism of the plan is that it would do little for the majority of students. Money would go to top students, most of whom would be provided for by outside interests, opponents say.

Students at UBC are now faced with a threatened $100 fee increase next year. It is estimated that the proposed plan would slightly more than cover the increase for the students it assists.

But students who will not receive benefits under the new scheme will have to carry the entire fee increase by themselves. University President Norman McKenzie has termed these students "the important ordinary types so vitally needed in society."

There has been no announcement of a fee increase but expectation here is that fees will have to go up. The university is to receive some $5,000,000 in this year, compared with the $6,300,000 it had requested.

The requested extra cost of an increase of $2,000,000 over last year's total of $1,380,000 is expected to have gone largely to pay increases for faculty members.

Fees at UBC are presently $246 for Arts and science courses and $296 for Engineers. The figure is some $50 below fee scales at other smaller western universities. Fees at U of T range from $375 for Artsmen to over $800 for Engineers.

Helwig Big Winner In Epstein Awards

A third-year English language and literature student walked off with the big money in this year's University College Epstein creative writing awards, it was announced yesterday.

Dave Helwig received $400 for two short stories, a group of poems and a play submitted to a judging committee of UC teachers headed by Prof. N.J. Emdin.

Eight awards in all were made in this year's annual competition. Second-highest award was $150 to third-year philosophy and English student Dave Stein.

Given $100 each were third-year English student Christopher Stein and third-year philosophy student Sam Aizenstat, Miss E.A. Anstus, in third-year political science and economics won $75 for a short story.

A poem group netted Alexander Leggett first-year English student, $50 while $25 each went to fourth-year modern languages student F.A. Lewis and fourth-year philosophy and English student John Robert Colombo.

"A great deal" of material was received for this year's contest, Prof. Emdin said. "The general level, except for essays, was quite high," he added.

The pieces submitted generally showed literary promise and some experience, he said.

Helwig said his prize-winning pieces were written "last summer in the middle of an island in Stony Lake between sessions as a private tutor."

Asked whether he felt his work had improved since last year when he won $50 in the contest, Helwig quipped, "The judges obviously think so."

Stein said his stories were written over an electric heater during the most miserable Christmas holidays I have experienced.

Said Stein: "I'm happy. I'm looking forward to a promising career in the arts."

Rebels Take Over TV Station To Stop US Influx Of Crime

Antigonish, N.S.—CUP—A mock revolution patterned after Fidel Castro's coup, last week spread to Moncton when CKCW Television was seized by youthful rebels Feb. 5.

About 35 St. Francis Xavier University students had earlier taken over the Mount Allison provincial parliament in an effort to prove that a properly organized rebellion can be successfully executed.

Last Tuesday's seizure of the TV station caused panic among viewers and Civil Defence switchboards were kept busy with anxious inquiries. Purpose of the second incident was to "bring attention to the abominable cultural senility present in Canada today", rebels said.

The rebel leader, impersonating Fidel Castro, went on the air saying "this is a revolutionary movement. We have taken control of this station." He went on to lash the intellectual rot that is sweeping Canada, blaming it in part on the influx of crime from the U.S.

The rebel leader, who with his band, wishes to remain anonymous, indicated no further action will be forthcoming.

News Snaps

Cannon Returned . . .

A public return of the Engineering Society cannon, stolen by Medical students last week, has been scheduled for tomorrow, it was announced last night.

Medical Society president Doug Wilson said the ceremony, at which the cannon will be returned to the Engineers, has been tentatively scheduled for 1 p.m. in front of Hart House.

Secretary Honored . . .

Miss A.E.M. Parkes, secretary-treasurer of the Women's Athletic Association was honored at a luncheon given by the U of T women's athletic directorate Saturday. Miss Parkes retires this year after having held U of T staff positions since 1923.

Son's Flag Flown . . .

A flag following a design put forward for a Canadian flag by the Native Sons of Canada was found Sunday morning on the main university flagpole east of the Students' Administrative Council Building. Bernard Glau, spokesman for the nationalist society, William McAuley, a U of T student who belongs to the organization and campus police, all denied any knowledge of the incident.

BOW ties were sported by dignitaries at the opening of All-Varsity Revue's "Have Toga, Will Travel" last night. From left, Toronto Mayor Nathan Phillips, U of T President Claude Bissell, Hart House Warden Joseph McCulley, and Mrs. Bissell. See review on page 2. (Varsity Staff Photo by Weston)

sugar and gall

Premier Bennett of British Columbia is a politician of that fine, old school which stresses interest rather than integrity and appeasement rather than common sense.

The principal hallmarks of such politicians are their ability to remain cool whatever the crisis and soothing whatever the scandal.

In a recent maneuver concerning university education, Mr. Bennett proved that he has nothing to learn from his present colleagues in Alberta and Newfoundland. At the same time, certain crudities in his approach lead one to suspect that a short course in ethics from the Premier of Quebec might produce that final, brilliant polish in his technique.

Mr. Bennett has a scheme for helping university students. The basis of Mr. Bennett's plan is summed up in the phrase "money for marks". The provincial government will undertake to pay half the university fees of all students with marks more than 80 per cent. Further, the government will pay one third of the fees for the top 2,000 students in the second class bracket.

At first glance it seems the plan will not only provide financial aid but will also encourage scholarship. Who could ask for anything more?

Well, it seems the University of British Columbia, the only university in the province, could ask and has been asking for a great deal more.

The 10,000 students at UBC face a fee increase of more than $100 each next year. To offset this they needed some $2,000,000 from the provincial government. All they got in Mr. Bennett's budget was an extra $708,000 plus the new plan.

Total provincial grants to UBC are less than $5,000,000. The University of Toronto, with only 3,000 more students, received $11,000,000 from the Frost government last year from a total of more than $22,000,000 set aside for Ontario universities.

UBC student leaders consider the Bennett scheme to be nothing more than a "beautiful piece of political propaganda". They regard it as a sop to sugar-coat the earlier refusal to grant the much-needed $2,000,000.

With the fee increase, the Bennett scheme will represent the saving of almost $60 for a mere "handful" of top students. Second class students might save as much as $10 if they are in the top 2,000.

Mr. Bennett will need a lot more sugar before his pill tastes like anything but political gall.

A. V. R. at last . . .

Toga, Toga, Burning White

"Have Toga, Will Travel" opened last night at Hart House Theatre to an audience bedecked in taffeta and black ties, and despite its shortcomings, it managed to keep them entertained and gave them some good laughs.

It all started with "Have Gun, Will Travel"—the phrase has become a popular cliché. Rock and roll star Duane Eddy has chosen it for the title of his latest album, "Have, Twangy Guitar, Will Travel", and the Austin Motor Company selected it for an advertising slogan—"Have Austin, Will Travel". Now the 1959 All-Varsity Revue has adopted the catchphrase for their latest venture "Have Toga, Will Travel". It's extremely doubtful though, that their toga will travel.

The book, written by Dick Dean and Stan Farrow, centres itself around the shabby court of the Roman Emperor Nero in the year 58 A.D. Worried about the lack of tourists, Nero sets about planning a cultural festival, the brain child of one Marcus, whose presence in the palace as a professor is never quite clearly explained.

Trouble develops when John, a professional criminal, arrives on the scene and presents his card (cleverly inscribed "Have Toga, Will Travel") to four greedy Senators, named respectively Primus, Secundus, Tertius, and Quintus (the fate of Quartus was never mentioned), who are planning to overthrow Nero. But, as fate would have it, love rears its lovely head in the form of two sprightly young Vestal Virgins, Julia and Lucia, who, quite against the doctrines of their religion, fall in love with Marcus and John.

As the reader by now must have gathered, the story is an old, well-hackneyed and absurdly predictable one. And of course, it has a happy ending.

In spite of the weakness of the book, we found ourselves enjoying the show. This was due without doubt to some fine individual performances, which gave the show pace and vitality. The bewitching performance of Sandra Stevenson (Lucia) was delightful to watch throughout and both she and Ruth Ann Scott (Julia) provided the highlights of the evening. They are a talented pair and their voices are well suited to their roles. Ruth Ann Scott's mellow tone provided a delightful contrast to Lucia's parrot-like pitch. Also to be congratulated for his vocal ability was Ian Garrett, who managed to surmount the difficult task of some sloppy love songs.

Other commendable performances were given by Roger White as John ("I'm from the CBC—The Culture Booster Club!"), Neil McLean as the weak, brainless Nero, Diane Ede as the over-bearing Portia and Doug Myers as the ultra-British tourist, Deane Hutchison, Gerry Dawson, Sheldon Greenberg and Jim Hennig, who played the four Senators, were amusing at times, but on the whole tended to overact.

The musical direction, always one of the most delicate facets of a revue, was well-handled by Stan Farrow, who was also responsible for the score—no mean undertaking. "Have Toga, Will Travel" has several attractive and well-written songs to its credit. Most noteworthy of these are: "It Must Be," "Complaints and Confessions," "Culture is the Cure", and "Welcome to Rome". "What-tya Say to Romance", a duet between Marcus and Julia, seems to show much Coward influences but the show could well have done without it.

The orchestra was competent and had a very keen sense of timing and rhythm. Both Stan and Gwen Farrow were able accompanists, though we hope that the ants in Mr. Farrow's pants will have vacated their victim for the remaining evenings.

The Chorus was very tuneful throughout, and provided some of the most exciting moments of the evening.

Vocally the production was a success; however the choreography (an equally vital part of a revue) was embarrassingly shabby—in fact almost non-existent. The dances were unoriginal and untidy, save for an extremely effective fire dance with luminous scarves (where the dancers were luckily shadowed in obscurity). As a result the show was sadly lacking on the spectacular side.

William Lord and Elizabeth Wilson must be given a strong pat on the back for their exceptionally fine costumes, and some extra praise should be awarded Mr. Lord for his simple but extremely effective sets. Nor should the lighting be overlooked. Walter Russell managed this skilfully and controlled the brilliance and color to suit the mood with a highly professional touch.

The new A.V.R. production is no more than a set of lyrics wrapped up in a toga. But in spite of its drawbacks, it does have something to offer and should provide the theatre-goer with a pleasurable evening of light-hearted entertainment.

Maryan Talbot & Robin Green

THE VARSITY

FOUNDED 1880

Published by

The Students' Administrative Council
of the University of Toronto
Toronto 5, Canada
Member Canadian University Press

Today's Issue: Moishe Reiter, Toivo Miljan, Bill Musgrove, and several beautiful girls, including Jayne Nesbitt, Shelagh Mackenzie, Diane Jackson and Janet Macdonald. Also Our Star: Sheldon Greenberg.

Photography this issue: Wayne Weston; welcome, and thanks for a job well done.

ATTENTION SKIERS!

Would anyone planning to go to Collingwood on Saturday morning, who would be willing to take 4 girls with them, from the Women's Ski Club, please leave name and phone number at S.A.C. Office by Wednesday morning.

ORCHID — GARDENIA — CAMELLIA — CARNATION

Valentine's Corsages — 35% Discount

FOR ALL STUDENTS

SATISFACTION GUARANTEED CITY-WIDE DELIVERY

WONG'S FLORIST, 3211 YONGE ST., HU. 5-4575

Special Student Service — Call From 3.30 to 12 p.m.

REMEMBER: You Can't Go Wrong With Wong

Medical At-Home

THURSDAY, FEB. 12

ROYAL YORK HOTEL

BENNY LOUIS ORCHESTRA
CY McLEAN QUINTET

Dress optional Corsages on Sale at the Door

Advance Tickets $3.50 Per Couple

Tickets $4.00 At The Door

ON SALE TODAY

U.C. - St. Michael's

the children's hour

HART HOUSE THEATRE — FEB. 18, 19, 20, 21

U.C. Rotunda — Students Only $1.00 — Carr Hall

1/3 OFF A.V.R. TICKETS

For Tonight's Performance

(Tuesday, Feb. 10)

If This Coupon is Brought To

The S.A.C. Office Before 3.30 p.m., Today

50c

THIS COUPON IS WORTH 50c ON AN

50c

A.V.R. TICKET

FOR TONIGHT'S PERFORMANCE OF

"HAVE TOGA, WILL TRAVEL"

ON SALE AT

S.A.C. OFFICE

BEFORE 3.30 p.m. TODAY

50c

50c

HILLEL

Rabbi's Class

Tonight—Tuesday, Feb. 10
— 8.30 p.m.

Review of "Creeds in Competition"

The German Club's

"FASCHINGSBALL"

MASKED CARNIVAL
DANCE

Will Be Held In

Trinity College Buttery

TONIGHT at 8 p.m.

Members: 25c
Non-Members: 50c

TUESDAY LECTURE SERIES

"PROPHETIC PROFILES"

Prof. B. Morawetz, Trinity College, will lecture on:

"MARX"

Feb. 10, 5-6 p.m., Rm. 8
U.C. College

Presented by the Student
Christian Movement

Blues Batter Carabins Clarkson Other Victim

By GENE GLISKY
Associate Sports Editor

Varsity's big Blue hockey machine rolled to another successful weekend, as they downed Montreal Carabins 4-1 at Varsity Arena Friday night, and took the measure of Clarkson Golden Knights 4-2 in Buffalo Saturday afternoon.

The less successful Blues Intermediates fought Toronto Marlboros to a draw before bowing 3-1 in overtime in Friday afternoon hockey action at the arena.

Experimenting with two new line combinations, Blues failed to score on Montreal in a penalty ridden first period, but burst through with two goals in the second and two in the third, to clinch the contest.

Lorry Stacey, Ron Casey, Doug Williams and Bill Kennedy were the Varsity marksmen, while Victor Bedard scored the lone Carabin tally early in the third period.

Kennedy also assisted on two goals, to add three points to his lead in the individual scoring race. Bear now has 25 points, eight more than his nearest rival, Yves Laurendeau of Carabins.

An enthusiastic crowd witnessed few scoring plays, or sterling hockey for that matter, although the contest was far from dull.

Sixteen penalties were handed out by referee Gord Feveaux, nine to Blues and seven to Carabins. Sticks were carried high and body checking was vicious as tempers continually verged on the boiling point.

A flareup ensued over one of the Varsity goals, Montreal claiming the puck had not entered their nets. Referee Feveaux calmly withstood all the French invective to get the game under way again. Carabins completed the game under protest, claiming, among other things, that the use of two linesmen and a referee was not cricket, and that two referees and no linesmen was to be the order of the day.

In the preliminary match featuring Toronto Marlboros, Varsity II's played a thrilling game of hockey.

Bruce Dodge scored for Rinkles mid-way through the first period on an assist by Bill Griffin. Goalie Al Fleming closed the gates on Marlies for almost two periods before Jack Aldis tied the contest for the Junior A club.

In the first five minutes of the overtime session, Marlies took advantage of a tiring Varsity squad by firing two unanswered goals. Eight minor penalties were awarded Rinkies, while Marlies garnered three minors and a major.

A depleted and tired Blues team travelled to Buffalo late Friday night to engage Clarkson in a rather lacklustre affair Saturday afternoon. Blues played minus four regulars, recruiting capable Pete Warren and Peter Randle from the Intermediates to fill in.

Golden Knights, boasting ten Canadian players on their roster, weren't an impressive lot. Overequipped with an odd assortment of head gear, including a football helmet, it appeared coach Len Ceglarski had trained a group of burly pucksters into marvelous condition, but forgot to tell them what hockey was all about. Skate and shoot they could, but failed to do much else in the way of coordinated team play.

Before Blues could gain their skating legs, and suffering from a rash of cheap penalties, Clarkson pounded two goals past a surprised Ray Dunn. From then on it was Blues all the way.

Jim Brooks led Varsity marksmen with two goals in the second period, while Grant Mills and Frank Sullivan fired one each.

A note of fear struck the Varsity camp when centre star Bill Kennedy crashed to the ice at the peak of one of his spectacular rushes. Vaulting through the Clarkson defence, Bear was caught skate high to lie in a crumpled heap on the ice. He was immediately rushed to hospital, where late reports confirmed his injury was not too serious although there is a distinct possibility he may be out of hockey action for up to four weeks.

'Because regular lines were switched beyond recognition, with the kid-line of Williams, Howie Roth and Brooks the only line having worked together before, Blue's forwards and defensemen gave a brilliant display of stick handling and solo rushes. Particularly outstanding were Mills and Kennedy.

The three men defense platoon of Harry Neale, Neil Munro and Lorry Stacey earned unending respect from the Clarkson forwards. When it came to a bit of rugged checking, our boys showed them how, head gear or no.

Lancers Bow Blues Rizak Beats Record On 44 Point Effort

By WELDON THOBURN
Varsity Staff Reporter

Assumption College Lancers, with an exciting second half comeback, defeated the University of Toronto Blues 90-72 Saturday night at Hart House. The victory puts Assumption two points ahead in the Senior Intercollegiate Basketball League.

Starring for the Lancers, Gene Rizak set a new Intercollegiate scoring record with 44 points, thirty-one of these being accounted for in the second period, when he dazzled the Blues with his dexterous dribbling and deadly set shots. Toronto, attempting to check the 5' 10" wonder, fouled him for 33 free throws, from which he gathered 26 points. Another Lancer, Dick Mackenzie held the former record of 42.

Starting strongly, Toronto dominated the first period, with forwards Goldring and Maguire controlling the rebounds. Goldring carried the brunt of the Blues attack throughout with 25 points. He picked up three quick fouls however and Coach John McManus was forced to use him sparingly.

Windsor began the second half with a full court press, forcing the Blues in their own end. Toronto repeatedly lost possession of the ball trying to break through. The sudden change of pace seemed to catch Varsity sitting down and it was well in the second period before they scored again.

Apart from failing to score often enough, Toronto exhibited an amazing knack for collecting fouls. Stulac, Richman and Norman gathered five, well before the end of the game, taking the sting out of Toronto's offence.

Toronto has come up with something novel in the way of cagers in the form of Pete ("Rabbit") Potter who blows bubbles as he lays up a shot. Pete also managed to hoop 15 points for Toronto.

In the Intermediate matchup the Crusaders completed a double victory for Assumption, by dumping the Seconds 64-57. The game was hard fought all the way, but as in the Senior game Toronto kept losing the ball trying to break through the Windsor defence.

The two U of T teams begin a tough Buffalo, Western, Assumption series to-morrow night across the border. University of Buffalo boasts one of the top teams in America, and should provide good seasoning for the Blues. Friday and Saturday will see Blues in London and Windsor, respectively.

Although forward Curt Russell is an unlikely starter for Toronto this weekend, Coach McManus feels that his boys are angry enough over Saturday's loss, to take the set.

Toronto (72)—Stulac, 5; Potter, 15; Richman, 14; Goldring, 25; Norman, 2; McKenzie, 2; Russell, 2; Dacshyn, 2; Maguire, 5; Eccles, 10.

Assumption (90)—Rizak, 44; McCerron, 5; Black, 4; McKerron, 3; Valentine, 1; Nickson, 4; DeVriendt, 3; Girard, 1; McCaffery, Innocente, 15.

Intermediate
Toronto (57)—Patterson, 7; Schafer, 12; Kistler, 12; Muir, 10; Jack, 10; Miller, 6; McKinnon, 6; Crouse, 4; Ouchterlony, 10; Probert, 10.

Assumption (64)—Nethery, 14; Dunlop, 14; Reynolds, 11; Gleason, 5; Bouillon, 1; Martens, 1; Pentecost, 17; Bruce, 14; Gordon, 1; Gitsdorf, 1.

HAIRCUTS 75c

SATURDAYS 85c
BEN'S BARBER SHOP
652 SPADINA AVE.
Near Harbord St.
Open Daily 9 a.m. to 7 p.m.
Closed Wednesday

Pugs Score Twin KO's

By MIKE CHYKALIUK
Varsity Staff Reporter

Duck, here comes that flock of migrators again. No, not them, those are the canaries. My, aren't they cute? Wish they would get off my shoulder though, it's getting rather heavy... See who's at the door, and while you're there answer the phone too, boy. Hey you don't hear the phone, what's the matter with you, you punchy or something?

After last Saturday's bouts there probably are a few U of T boxers who still occasionally hear that metallic clunk and the odd chirp. Two knockouts were registered in the seven bout card, for the right to represent Varsity in the intercollegiate meet.

Art Vachon roared out of his corner and caught Ozzie Hutchinson with a short right to the jaw. Another right flattened Ozzie. He was up at the count of nine, but the referee wisely intervened and awarded Vachon a knockout victory.

Tom Godwin also connected early against Bill Brown, sending him down for a nine count in the initial seconds of the fight.

Brown fought back gamely (he got out of the sick bed to participate) but was again floored. The referee again interceded and awarded Godwin with a TKO.

Jim McManus gave Roger Kirkpatrick a sound boxing lesson while winning a unanimous three round decision.

Boris Petcoff and Bob Dadds pummeled each other mercilessly before Petcoff walked off with the win.

Mike Butt shaded Dave Simms in another close scrap. Peter Law earned a hard fought decision over Lorne Kirby.

In the curtain raiser, perpetual bleeder Frank Corner nodded Klaus Haessler.

Fisher Sets Record

Smooth-stroking freshman Bob Fisher chopped three-tenths of a second off his own Canadian record for the 200-yard backstroke event as Varsity swim Blues walloped Rochester, 76-10, in an exhibition meet in Hart House Saturday night.

Outnighting team-mate Nick Thierry to the finish line, Fisher covered the distance in 2:13.4. His time will stand as Canadian College Swimming Association and pool records as well as a Dominion mark.

Fisher also captured the 50-yard freestyle, and swam on Varsity's winning quartet in the 400-yard sprint relay. Coach Bill Zoryk was the only other Blue to cop two events.

Varsity had little difficulty with the visitors, taking a first in all 10 events, along with five seconds and a third.

Said Coach Zoryk after the meet: "I don't like swimming against a weak team like that. There's not much enjoyment in it."

Junior Waterpoloists Work Out Tonight

Varsity's junior water polo team will practise in Hart House at 8:30 tonight in preparation for a return game with Hamilton on Thursday.

The Ambitious City crew claimed a 10-1 win in the first game of a two-game inter-collegiate series.

WOMEN'S ATHLETICS - VOLLEYBALL

Wed Feb 11 1-2 P.M. Time between Meets 4:00 P.M. All times are based on 11:00 A.M. and 1:00 P.M. and 4:00 P.M. All times are subject to change.

GAMES TODAY

HOCKEY	1:00 Trin A	vs	U.C. II	Stuart, Yates
	4:00 St. M. C	vs	U.C. III	Flure, McCulloch
WATER POLO	6:00 Den I	vs	St. M. A	Shier, Jany
	7:15 Lash	vs	W.A.	Smith, Jany
SQUASH	6:30 Mod II Yr	vs	Art I
	7:00 Mod II Yr	vs	W.A.
BASKETBALL MAJOR LEAGUE	7:30 St. M. I	vs	Art IV	Gosson, B. Fisher
	8:00 St. M. I	vs	Art II	Kelner, Richardson
	8:30 St. M. I	vs	Don A	Leveson, Godley
	9:00 St. M. I	vs	SPS D	Linden, Godley
	9:30 St. M. I	vs	St. M. E	Linden, Godley
BASKETBALL MINOR LEAGUE (HART HOUSE)	7:30 St. M. I	vs	Art I
	8:00 St. M. I	vs	Art II
	8:30 St. M. I	vs	Art III
	9:00 St. M. I	vs	Art IV
	9:30 St. M. I	vs	Art V
BASKETBALL MINOR LEAGUE (ART HOUSE)	7:30 St. M. I	vs	Art I
	8:00 St. M. I	vs	Art II
	8:30 St. M. I	vs	Art III
	9:00 St. M. I	vs	Art IV
	9:30 St. M. I	vs	Art V

GAMES WEDNESDAY

HOCKEY	7:30 Trin A	vs	U.C. II	Stuart, Yates
	8:00 St. M. C	vs	U.C. III	Flure, McCulloch
WATER POLO	6:00 Den I	vs	St. M. A	Shier, Jany
	7:15 Lash	vs	W.A.	Smith, Jany
SQUASH	6:30 Mod II Yr	vs	Art I
	7:00 Mod II Yr	vs	W.A.
BASKETBALL MAJOR LEAGUE	7:30 St. M. I	vs	Art IV	Gosson, B. Fisher
	8:00 St. M. I	vs	Art II	Kelner, Richardson
	8:30 St. M. I	vs	Don A	Leveson, Godley
	9:00 St. M. I	vs	SPS D	Linden, Godley
	9:30 St. M. I	vs	St. M. E	Linden, Godley
BASKETBALL MINOR LEAGUE (HART HOUSE)	7:30 St. M. I	vs	Art I
	8:00 St. M. I	vs	Art II
	8:30 St. M. I	vs	Art III
	9:00 St. M. I	vs	Art IV
	9:30 St. M. I	vs	Art V
BASKETBALL MINOR LEAGUE (ART HOUSE)	7:30 St. M. I	vs	Art I
	8:00 St. M. I	vs	Art II
	8:30 St. M. I	vs	Art III
	9:00 St. M. I	vs	Art IV
	9:30 St. M. I	vs	Art V

THE THIRD ERNEST DALE MEMORIAL LECTURE

A View of the Theatre from 1946-1959

GUEST SPEAKER - DONALD DAVIS
OF THE CREST

Hart House Theatre Monday, February 16

Kennedy Hurt

(Continued from Page 1)
The breaks are with Varsity in the immediate future, however. Blues meet Clark-dwelling McGill here Friday, and the final battle of the season with the winners, Redmen should give Coach Kennedy an ideal opportunity to test his new formations under fire.
The loss of Kennedy is Blues' second blow in a week. Captain Mike Elki left the team January 31 to join Cleveland Barons of the American Hockey League. He is commuting between New York, Ohio and last night's Toronto.

Here and Now

TODAY

12 noon — VCF will study the Bible in the Anatomy Building, room 213 and in the School of Nursing, room 53.

12.15 p.m. — The Holy Eucharist will be celebrated in Trinity College Chapel.

1 p.m. — VCF will study the Bible in UC, room 11.

— FROS folk-music group presents a surprise at 3 Willcocks St.

1.10 p.m. — Bring your lunch to a "Prof. Talk" in the Hart House SCM office. Mr. Claude Brodeur, PhD candidate in philosophy and a Roman Catholic will be on hand.

1.30 p.m. — A Hart House singing of favorite hymns will be led by Mr. Ross Workman in the East Common Room.

4.30 p.m. — Prof. A. Dalzell will deliver a public lecture on "Liberty of Speech at Rome" in Trinity's Convocation Hall.

8 p.m. — The German Club plans its annual "Faschings Ball" carnival dance in the Trinity Buttery. Everyone is welcome and costumes are optional but please wear eye-masks.

WEDNESDAY

8.10 a.m. — The Holy Eucharist will be celebrated in Trinity College Chapel and followed by breakfast at Canterbury Centre, 99 St. George St.

9.10 a.m. — Rev. E. R. Fairweather will preach at an Ash Wednesday Service in Trinity College Chapel.

TYPEWRITERS

$1.00 A WEEK BUYS . . .

. . . $1.50 A WEEK RENTS

Get a free typing course and a liberal trade-in allowance for your old typewriter when you buy a new modern machine from us.

Phone HO. 1-1843 Today

NEW AT . . .

Stowe
VERMONT
7 DAYS
UNLIMITED
SKIING!
only $35

SKI CAPITAL OF THE EAST!
7 continuous Days UNLIMITED Use of ALL LIFTS in Stowe at both Mt. Mansfield & Spruce Peak areas. $35 Adults; $25 children under 14. Extend beyond 7th day pro rata. Good any time during skiing season. Offered those staying at member lodges of Stowe-Mansfield Assoc.
Information, FOLDERS, Reservations: STOWE-MANSFIELD ASSOC.
Stowe Vermont AL 3-7652

CLASSIFIED ADS.

$1 DOWN BUYS ANY MAKE
Brand new typewriters. $59 up. Some models $30 off. Free home demonstration. Free typing course 1959 models rented, lowest rates 375 Jane-Humber, RO 6-1103.

TYPIST (Electric)
Fast, accurate, personalized service. Theses, essays, letters, dictation. Reasonable rates. Irene Kenyon, 146 Bernard Avenue, WA 3-4011.

WANTED
Accurate manuscript typist. Acquainted with contemporary literature. 6-8 hours daily for approximately 2 weeks. Rate of payment, open to discussion. RU 1-8977 evenings

APARTMENT TO SHARE with two students. Close to the university. Call WA 2-6397 after 6 p.m.

FURNISHED APARTMENT TO LET
Available March 1st to June 15th. Walking distance from University Hall after 7 p.m., WA 2-2338.

1 p.m. — Rev. W. C. Bothwell will discuss "Christian Asceticism and Lenten Discipline" at a luncheon at Canterbury Centre, 99 St. George St. Bring your lunch or buy it there.

— George Butterfield (II Trin) and Sid Robinson (II Trin) will talk on transportation problems in UC, room 33. The Lecture is the fifth in the WUS series "Destination: Europe".

4 p.m. — A Bible study seminar will be conducted by Rev. W. C. Bothwell, University Anglican Chaplain, at Canterbury Centre, 99 St. George St.

4.10 p.m. — SCM will study "The Apostles' Creed" in Vic, room 14.

5.30 p.m. — SCM plans a Wednesday Night Supper Meeting, featuring the third session of Bible study on events from the life of Christ in the SCM Coach-house behind 110 St. George St.

8.30 p.m. — Alliance Francaise de Toronto plans a lecture by M. Gerald Antoine of the Sorbonne on "Claude, Poete Comique ou Cosmique?" at the Sir Daniel Wilson Residence, 73 St. George St. Student admission is 25 cents; refreshments will be served.

"Lost" Collection Found Laval's Art Chief Fired

A valuable art collection, believed lost in transit between Quebec City and Toronto, never left Laval University, it was learned last week.

U of T officials hope to hang the showing of 50 drawings by young Canadians sometime next week for a two-week period.

The collection, sponsored jointly by the National Gallery in Ottawa and the Canadian University Students' Art Committee, was to have been forwarded to Toronto Jan. 6 from Laval University.

When the show failed to arrive here, Murray Ross (IV Arch), U of T CUSAC chairman, instructed Laval to send the show directly to McMaster University in order to avoid disrupting the showing schedule.

McMaster was forced to find a last-minute replacement for the show when it failed to arrive in Hamilton.

Checks through CUSAC representatives at Laval revealed the CUSAC chairman there had failed to forward the show from Quebec City. He was fired for incompetence, and apologized to the Laval students' council.

Ross said last night he hopes to hang the show at U of T before the end of the month. It is now being shown in Ottawa.

Free Love Organizer Revealed As Fiction

EDMONTON—(CUP)—A non-existent University of Alberta freshman met his death here last week to end a hoax that took in the better part of the 4,700 students here.

Dead is 18-year-old John Applear, freshman class president, whose one official duty on campus was to officiate at a freshman rally. He missed it because of a "death in the family."

Applear's name became well-known after he was rumoured to be behind the formation of a campus "Free Love Society."

His final letter in The Gateway prior to the exposure of the hoax announced the Society's opening meeting and warned no alcohol would be permitted.

ALL-DAY MILDNESS

Black Cat PLAIN CORK FILTER

CANADIAN LENTEN BOOK 1959

The Anglican Church of Canada

The Cross, The Eucharist and You

by the Right Rev. M. E. Coleman

An answer to the request from lay persons for clear, deeply doctrinal messages. Meditations for each day in Lent. A guide to a spiritual Lenten pilgrimage.

PRICE: $1.25

available at
CANTERBURY CENTRE, 99 St. George St.

and
ANGLICAN BOOK CENTRE

600 Jarvis Street - Toronto

Telephone WA. 3-0953

HART HOUSE

TODAY:

Library Record Hour: 1.15 p.m. — Record Room
Chess Instruction: 1.15 p.m. — Debates Ante Room
Amateur Radio Club Code Practice Class: 5.10 p.m. — Debates Loft
Glee Club Full Rehearsal: 7 p.m. — Music Room
Bridge Club: 7.30 p.m. — East Common Room
Archery Club: 8.00 p.m. — Rifle Range

TOMORROW:

CHESS SIMUL
7.45 p.m. — Debates Room
FRANK ANDERSON
Chess Master

TICKETS FROM THE HALL PORTER'S DESK

FIVE O'CLOCK RECITAL: RHODA PENDLETON, Soprano.
Women are Welcome to Attend This Concert. 5 p.m. — Music Room.

TICKETS AVAILABLE AT THE HALL PORTER'S DESK NOW FOR THE INVITATION DINNER FRIDAY, 13th FEBRUARY ($3.00 a couple), 6.45 p.m., PRIOR TO THE INTERFACULTY AND INTERCOLLEGIATE QUARTET CONTEST, IN THE GREAT HALL.

FINLAND

The National Union of Finnish University Students has extended an invitation for eight male students of the University of Toronto to spend the summer from early June to late August in Finland. For two weeks at the beginning of the summer the group will be the guests of the Union. The remainder of the time (seven to eight weeks) will be spent in work offering practical experience in a field of the student's choice. This invitation should be of special interest to students in Engineering, Forestry, Architecture and Science.

Those chosen should be prepared to pay about half of their passage expense. All other expenses will be covered by the Union and by earnings. Applicants should enquire at the Undergraduate Office, Hart House, before 5 p.m., Thursday, February 19th.

He says he does it by Steady Saving
at the Bank of Montreal*

*The Bank where Students' accounts are warmly welcomed.

*You'll find these B of M branches especially convenient!

Bloor and Bay Sts.
Queen's Park
St. George and Bloor Sts.

KENNETH A. McNEIL, Manager
JOSEPH BURDOCK, Manager
DWIGHT A. EVANS, Manager

Skule Cannon Home Medsmen get Replica

Skulemen got their treasured cannon back yesterday at a rousing ceremony staged in front of Hart House at 1.15 p.m.

Before a mob of some 200 shouting Meds-men and Engineers Doug Wilson, president of the Medical Society, handed over the 75-pound silver and metal cannon to SPS president Rick Shaeff.

In return Shaeff presented the Medical president with a pint-sized wood and bronze replica of the Skule cannon.

Raising his voice above an outburst of engineering heckles, Wilson said this cannon was not bought with a pound of flesh but with gallons of engineering blood. We intend to fill our blood quota as well.

He claimed the whole stunt had been a publicity gag to help kick off the University of Toronto blood campaign beginning next week and to drum up donations from Engineering and Medical faculties.

Accepting the can, Shaeff said "someone said the cannon had not been touched by human hands, and that's good enough for me."

The medical students went about to add a touch of dignity to the almost solemn occasion.

Earlier in the 20-minute ceremony, an official dug up by the Medical Society and passed as a neutral arbitrator between the two factions, placed in a black bag.

Decked out in an oversized black derby decorated with a skull and crossbones and carrying a bell and a pair of snow shoes, Nick Bruchovski (U Meds) mounted the Hart House steps.

Wilson announced him as "a completely unbiased observer from Switzerland to prevent his getting out of control."

The engineers never gave him a chance. Attempting to stammer out words he was charged with another surge of engineering lows and snowballs.

He stood patiently as the cannon changed hands. Some doctors, med-men in the audience, helped.

The festivities over, Bruchovski presented the students with a med-ski, handed out a can of the "Varsity red."

The crowd of nearly 200 medics broke up, Bruchovski in the lead, followed by a contingent of

Engineers Charge Libel In Varsity

Charges of "libel" and "lifting privileged newspaper copy" were levelled against Varsity editor Doug Marshall last night.

Dave Pinkham Engineering rep to the Students' Administrative Council, told the council last night Marshall had libelled the Engineering Society by saying in an editorial Feb. 8 the society had authorized sending "obscene pornography through the mail."

Pinkham said the society, which meets alternate Tuesdays, has not been responsible for the obscenity. He admitted the letter had been obscene.

Pinkham also accused Marshall of making use of Toike Olke copy against the wishes of Engineering Society president

Rick Shaeff. Toike Olke is a newspaper published by the Engineering Society.

Pinkham prefaced the charges by reading a recent editorial in Toike Olke. The editorial accuses Marshall of indulging in "cheap journalism" throughout the year.

The editorial accused Marshall of over-playing the theft last term of an Engineering Society safe and also of printing "do-it-yourself" instructions of how to cut down the Skule Christmas Tree.

Marshall told the council he had been misinformed about the authorship of the obscene letter. He said he apologized completely if the letter had not been an official product of the Engineering Society. Pinkham said it was not.

The other charge was referred back to the SAC's Publication Commission.

Big Book Loss May Cause Closed-Shelf Wallace Room

There is a "very serious possibility" the Stewart Wallace Room of the U of T library will be switched to a "closed shelf" system next term, Chief Librarian R. H. Blackburn said Tuesday.

This move, occasioned by heavy book losses, would mean students would be denied access to bookshelves and would obtain books from librarians on filling out slips, as first and second-year students now do at the Central Circulation Desk.

Losses from theft of books is running into "thousands of dollars," Mr. Blackburn said, in addition to the loss of their use to students.

Students are being deprived of books through the smuggling out (Continued on Page 6)

A DUBIOUS FRIENDSHIP between the faculties of Medicine and Engineering is achieved by yesterday's ceremonial return of the Meds-swiped Skule-cannon. Left, Engineering president Rick Shaeff takes the cannon from his opposite number in the Medical Society, Doug Wilson. Top, the two clasp hands to clinch the exchange.

Winter Carnival Cancelled, Handbook Format Revised

The Students' Administrative Council last night approved drastic revision of two council activities and heard policy changes for a third.

Council passed a motion by Blue and White chairman Dave Pinkham to scrap the Winter Carnival as it is presently set up. The motion abolishes the Carnival as it is presently constituted, but leaves room for future Blue and White committees or SAC to sponsor a reformed policy for the event.

Publications commissioner Alex Havrillant received council approval for a return to a pocket-sized Freshman Handbook, and abolition of the magazine-style handbook initiated last year.

Havrillant said the pocket-sized handbook would include detailed description of campus clubs, but would drop lists of organization heads.

Club executives would be printed on a separate sheet enclosed in the handbook.

The provision would considerably reduce cost of printing the handbook, he said.

A special freshman issue of The Varsity would bridge the gap between the pocket-sized handbook and last year's magazine-style publication, he said.

Havrillant also announced that since financial support of Jargon, the literary magazine, from professional faculties had been "disappointing", the magazine would be "less and less representative."

"I'm operating on the principle that 'he who plays the pipe calls the tune,'" Havrillant said. Choice of material would now be based more on quality of submitted material, and less on an attempt to represent professional faculties within the magazine.

Finance Commissioner Barry Moore announced the contract for printing Jargon will be awarded to the U of T Press.

No Money

No WUStudent

Students' Administrative Council last night threw out a bid to provide $1,500 for a World University Service foreign scholar to U of T.

Motion to provide the money in the new SAC budget, based on an expected fee increase of $3 per student to SAC, was defeated eight to seven.

Main objections to the idea were that the grant would be in addition to the annual SHARE campaign for WUS. It was argued the grant would then be "compulsory charity."

SAC president Vince Kelly said he could not endorse the grant because the U of T was already "the biggest backer of WUS". He said the university had given $70,000 voluntarily during the last 10 years and could not be expected to provide more.

WUS chairman Sue Evans, who introduced the motion, said the University of British Columbia was the biggest backer of WUS in Canada.

Trinity rep Alec Havrillant said

SAC Gets Estimate

The Students' Administrative Council last night heard an estimate of how a proposed $3 student SAC increase would be used.

Finance commissioner Barry Moore read SAC a break-down of a projected budget including the fee hike.

The budget will be presented to the Board of Governors next week as a part of an appeal for the raise in fees.

Biggest proposed change under the new budget would be a lower price for Torontonensis. Cost of the yearbook would be reduced from $4.50 to $2 if the increase is granted.

The budget also includes a $3,000 surplus which would be used to partially offset an estimated $6,000 deficit this year.

Almost every SAC activity will benefit from the proposed fee raise.

THE THIRD ERNEST DALE MEMORIAL LECTURE

A View of the Theatre from 1946-1959

GUEST SPEAKER — DONALD DAVIS
OF THE CREST

Hart House Theatre
Monday, February 16

At 5 p.m.

ADMISSION FREE

HART HOUSE

TODAY

HART HOUSE DEBATE

"THE LEGAL PROFESSION IS JEOPARDIZING THE ADMINISTRATION OF JUSTICE"

Hon. Visitor: DEAN C. A. WRIGHT, Faculty of Law, U of T.
8 p.m. — Debates Room

PLEASE NOTE: To qualify as a candidate for the Debates Committee in the forthcoming Hart House Election, it is necessary to have participated in at least one Debate during the current year, in one or more of the following capacities; Speaker of the House; Speaker on the Paper; Speaker from the floor; Clerk of the House.

TOMORROW:

The Hart House Quartet Contest will not take place owing to lack of entries. The Invitation Dinner which was to have taken place beforehand is therefore cancelled.

INTERCOLLEGIATE BRIDGE TOURNAMENT: This Friday and Saturday. (8 p.m. Music Room Friday; Debates Room Saturday.

CLOSING DATE FOR ENTRIES IN THE 37th PHOTOGRAPHIC EXHIBITION — 6 p.m. FRIDAY.

SUNDAY, 15th FEBRUARY:

ALL UNIVERSITY RELIGIOUS SERVICE: 11 a.m.—Great Hall. Preacher: REV. CELESTINE FERNANDO, Chaplain, University of Ceylon. Staff, Students and Public cordially invited.

BAROQUE TRIO OF MONTREAL

(Flute, Oboe, Harpsichord)

SUNDAY EVENING CONCERT

9 p.m. — Great Hall

Members may pick up tickets all this week from the Hall Porter's Desk. Women are welcome if escorted by a member.

C.B.C. CELEBRITY SERIES

RUDOLF FIRKUSNY
Piano

Wednesday, February 18

Tickets available in Hart House Rotunda preceding Friday 12-2 p.m. and on Monday and Tuesday from the Hall Porter's Desk. Open to Undergraduates (men and women), University staff and graduate members of the House.

Top In Meds Art Contest —"Rush-Bottomed Chair"

Trophies and other honours were awarded to the winners of the Medical Arts and Letters Society first art and photo contest yesterday.

Other awards were donated by voluntary contributors from private firms.

Top prize in interpretative painting went to Doug Richardson

(I Meds) for his painting "The Rush Bottomed Chair", which judges described as "a great interpretation of a simple theme".

Second prize went to Peter

Dent (III Meds) and third prize to Alex Wright (I Meds). Judges for the group of paintings were Dr. Harvey Agnew, Director of Canadian Physician Art Exhibition, and Professor Charles Comfort, U of T Dept. of Art and Archaeology.

In the field of best color, black and white photos, O.R. McNeill (IV Meds) walked off with first, second and honorable mention, while third prize went to Jacqueline Lelens (I Meds).

Bill MacIntyre (IV Meds), chairman of the Arts and Letters Committee, last night said the trophies would be given out at the Meds At Home at the Royal York Hotel tonight.

He said he hoped the contest would be "an annual affair".

FINLAND

The National Union of Finnish University Students has extended an invitation for eight male students of the University of Toronto to spend the summer from early June to late August in Finland. For two weeks at the beginning of the summer the group will be the guests of the Union. The remainder of the time (seven to eight weeks) will be spent in work offering practical experience in a field of the student's choice. This invitation should be of special interest to students in Engineering, Forestry, Architecture and Science.

Those chosen should be prepared to pay about half of their passage expense. All other expenses will be covered by the Union and by earnings. Applicants should enquire at the Undergraduate Office, Hart House, before 5 p.m., Thursday, February 19th.

WORLD

DAY OF PRAYER

FOR STUDENTS

Sunday, February 15

11.00 A.M.

Great Hall

Hart House

PREACHER

REV. CELESTINE FERNANDO

Chaplain, University of Ceylon

EVERYONE

WELCOME

Special Lecture

THURSDAY, FEB. 12th

"WHY I BECAME A CHRISTIAN"

by Dr. N. Silverthorne (Prof. of Paediatrics at the Hospital for Sick Children)

1.10 p.m. — Room 19

Victoria College

Sponsored by the VCF and SCM

Society of Friends

(Quakers)

Friday, February 13 — 8 p.m.

Public Lecture by Sidney Bailey

"The Uses and Abuses of the United Nations"

Room 64—Royal Ontario
Museum

Bloor and Queen's Park

HAIRCUTS

75c

SATURDAYS 85c

BEN'S BARBER SHOP

652 SPADINA AVE.

Near Harbord St.

Open Daily 9 a.m. to 7 p.m.

Closed Wednesday

O'Keefe

Old Vienna

BREWERY LIMITED

- In 1929, only 4,967,000 cigarettes smoked by Canadians.
- In 1920, only 30% of tobacco smoked in Canada grown here.

- Now over 27 billion cigarettes per year smoked by Canadians.
- Now 99% of tobacco smoked here grown in Canada.

Engineers' Paper Chastises Varsity best in a field of 30 Campus Liberals Champs

An editorial in the Engineering Faculty's undergraduate newspaper yesterday blasted The Varsity as "an example of cheap journalism".

The editorial, appearing in Toike Oike, occasional publication of the Engineering Society, said Varsity editor Doug Marshall "recognizes no code of journalistic ethics" and had published Toike Oike copy "without our permission."

Toike Oike also criticized Varsity coverage of a "moderate and reasonable" appeal by the Engineering dean in September regarding dress in lectures and of the theft of an Engineering Society safe later in the term.

Also blasted were a Varsity editorial calling on students to refrain from Christmas-season acts of vandalism and an issue of the Varsity put out by the Medical Society.

The Varsity, the editorial said, "seized" on Dean R.R. McLaughlin's dress statement "as an opportunity to create sensation and, in the process, completely distorted the intent of the Dean's remarks."

The Varsity "clutched at the theft of a safe from the Engineering Building to fill the void between their myriad advertisements," the statement continued.

The fact that the thieves were legally at the mercy of the Engineering Society, and that the Society chose to be lenient wasn't sensational enough to gain any prominence in their tabloid," it added.

The Engineering publication called a Varsity editorial, calling on students not to harm the Engineering Christmas tree "complete 'do-it-yourself' instructions on how to destroy Skule's attempt to spread good will at Christmas."

"The Varsity's instructions were put to use and the SPS Christmas tree was felled," the editorial continued. "The Varsity had headlines."

Toike Oike continued: "Last week the students of medicine took advantage of Skule's eagerness to assist in publicizing the Blood Campaign."

"We did not suspect that there was a plot afoot to lure the Cannon, undefended, to a place where it could be captured by brute force (two Engineers against as many Medsmen as they could muster)," it added.

The statement stressed that the Cannon capture had involved no risk to the Medsmen and that the Medical issue of the Varsity had been planned in the fall.

Last Sunday, the statement added, "casting aside any scruples which might have deterred him, the editor of The Varsity used the fact that both newspapers are printed by the same firm to gain access to the copy we had deposited with the printer."

The University of Toronto Liberal club has proved itself best in a field of 30 such clubs.

It was awarded a trophy at the 12th annual Canadian University Liberal Federation convention in Ottawa this weekend.

The U of T delegation was the largest at the convention, attended by over 200 delegates from 27 universities and colleges throughout Canada.

Presenting the cup to Toronto President Dick Hamilton, Hon. George Marler, national Liberal vice-president, cited the U of T club as a "model for all other clubs to emulate".

Campus Liberal officials Tuesday attributed the club's victory to a 400 per cent increase in club membership plus the much-improved showing of Liberals in the Model Parliament.

Tom Summerville of Osgoode

Hall, past-president of the U of T Liberal club was elected CULF president and Dean Tower of Carleton was elected secretary in a close contest with Marguerite LeMay (III SMC) of Toronto.

Opposition leader Lester B. Pearson and Liberal member of parliament Paul Martin addressed the convention body at two large banquets in the Chateau Laurier Hotel and also met with Liberal Members of Parliament in a special caucus Friday morning.

Both Mr. Pearson and Mr. Martin accused the present Conservative administration of "a lack of constructive and consistent policy and for constantly acting, not as a government, but rather as an opposition to the opposition".

Mr. Martin will be in Toronto to address the Liberal club in Carr Hotel and also met with Liberal

The Ukrainian Students' Club

presents a

STUDENTS' CONCERT

DATE: SUNDAY, FEBRUARY 15

TIME: 8 p.m.

PLACE: U.N.F. Hall — 297 College Ave.

PROGRAMME: Students' Choir
Soloist — Miss Luba Hanushak
Folk Dancing

Everyone Welcome!

SALE

Up to 50% Reductions on Cocktail Dresses, Wedding and Evening Gowns. Come in Between Lectures, Anytime. Too good an opportunity to miss.

HELMAR

46 St. George St. — WA. 1-5978

"A Tragic Scandalous Lie of Sexual Perversion"

U.C. - St. Michael's

the children's hour

HART HOUSE THEATRE — FEB. 18, 19, 20, 21

U.C. Rotunda — Students Only $1.00 — Carr Hall

DANCE OF THE YEAR FOR GRADUATE STUDENTS

The Valentine Dance

at

THE SIGN OF THE STEER

on

FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 13

Dancing 9 - 1

Supper Included

SEMI FORMAL

$3.00 PER COUPLE

Buy Your Ticket Immediately at 44 Hoskin Ave.

C.B.C. CELEBRITY SERIES

presents

RUDOLF FIRKUSNY, Piano

in the Great Hall, Hart House

FEBRUARY 18th at 8 p.m.

Tickets available in the Rotunda at Hart House, Fri., Feb. 13th, 12-2 p.m. and 5-6 p.m. or from the Hall Porter, Monday, Feb. 16 and Tuesday, Feb. 17.

Men and Women Invited

Free

Frothy-light,

loopy

Kitten

MOHAIR

Light as a handful of mist... colourful as a sun-drenched garden, new Kitten deep-looped mohair sweaters are creating fashion-excitement everywhere! Illustrated: versatile suburban beauty with collar and set-in pockets. $15.95... at all good shops everywhere.

Look for the name Kitten!

WHAT THE CRITICS SAY:

Dean and Farrow have written some engaging songs . . .

"Have Toga, Will Travel" is most successful . . .

— Mavor Moore — The Telegram

Should provide theatre-goers with a pleasurable evening

. . . The Varsity

Will be remembered best at Homecoming Week . . .

Plenty of fun about festivals and tourists . . .

—Herbert Whittaker, The Globe and Mail

Have Toga, Will Travel

NOW PLAYING AT HART HOUSE

Tickets on Sale Now at Hart House Box Office

THE VARSITY

FOUNDED 1880

Published by

The Students' Administrative Council
of the University of Toronto

Toronto 5, Canada

Member Canadian University Press

Editorial and News Office

Basement, SAC Building — WA 3-4742, WA 3-0213

Business and Advertising Manager

E. A. Macdonald — WA 3-0211

The opinions expressed in this paper are those of the editor

Editor-in-Chief: Doug Marshall
Managing Editor: Mark Nichols
Editorial Assistant: Sam Ajzenstat
News Editor: Harvey Shepherd
Associate News Editor: Ed Roberts and Al Walker
Sports Editor: John Brooks
Associate Sports Editor: Dave Griner and Gene Glisky
Publicity Editor: Susie Breslin
Features Editor: Liz Binks
Co-AM&D Editors: Maryann Talbot and Warren Wilson
CUP Editor: Vicky Innes
Press Editor: Mike Cavanagh
Make-up Editor: Nancy Takeuchi
Staff Correspondents: Marg McMeekin and Sheldon Greenberg
Mortician: Roger Wild

Today's staff: Rosey Nerke, Arlene Glickman, Debbie Halper, Sara Swearing, Margaret Tarnofski, Terry Bourke, memories of Sudeki, governments, Mashed Acquisitions by Associate News Editor A. J. Walker, Esq.

opera-film

Better Butterfly

Everyone backstage at La Scala was ill at ease on the night of February 17th, 1904. On the boards was a strange new opera by an eminent composer, but the scanty applause and flippant remarks from the audience at the end of the first act destroyed the company's faith in Giacomo Puccini. In the second act, the axe fell. A grossly overweight fifteen-year-old Geisha girl pushed back a flimsy door and a gust of wind swelled her kimono; the public howled with heavy allusions and a desperately crying Rosina Storchio fled the stage (she was with child by Toscanini, who was conducting).

If we get the facts straight, we will not be dumfounded when we read that Madama Butterfly was laughed off the stage at the first performance, much less surprised that it has endured and has now been packaged in celluloid for mass distribution.

The film version of Madama Butterfly, produced at Rome's Cinecittà, not in Japan at La Hollywood, confirms my theory that opera presents too formidable a "challenge" for any movie producer. An interminable preamble through the streets of Nagasaki at the turn of the century, accompanied by eerie Japanese sounds leads to the film proper. This Nagasaki travelogue together with the usherettes in Geisha costume and the Japan Tourist Association brochure are all very colourful, but one may nastily surmise that all of it is geared to make America cry for playing with atoms.

To set you in the worst mood possible for the film the management of the Odeon Fairlawn theatre pipes in the soupiest Kostelanish arrangement of Un bel dì. No sooner do you think that the opera is on now and nothing can happen when a very well-spoken announcer takes over, with the music turned down, and explains the intricacies of the plot and elaborates on the raison d'être of the Nagasaki travelogue, while the precious detail of Act One slips by.

My general impression of the movie was that someone had found a rather good tape recording of the score and had built a film around it, straining to achieve some concordance. The principals of the singing cast are most adequate, but their acting counterparts' synchronization is noticeably poor. The greatest shortcoming was in the technical side of the movie which, on the whole, seemed most insensitive to Puccini's music. If Puccini had been directing, we would have seen the same lighting patterns and colour blinds, corresponding to his germinal motifs... what a wealth of detail that could be explored in Puccini's score by Japanese producers, whose work has been acclaimed by the film industry. This picture was meant for eyes which never saw a Japanese movie where colour and photography are sharp yet subtle. Here, subtly in colour is achieved by fuzzy indistinct focus.

Giuseppe Campora sings Pinkerton beautifully. None of the strain which was evident in his voice when he last appeared in Toronto can be detected in this version. Mr. Filacuridi, who acts the role has obviously studied Mr. Campora's facial and physical contortions very well, for he not only bears a striking resemblance to the tenor, but imitates his facial gestures perfectly; pity, he did not try to synchronize a bit more. He did not convey, however the supercilious tones of Mr. Campora's voice, when Sharpless chides Pinkerton for what he intends to do; nor for that matter did the acting Sharpless show any displeasure at Pinkerton's plans, making his appearance and purpose a complete flop.

Puccini originally planned a scene in the consul's house later on in the opera in which Suzuki and Cio-cio-san (with her child) explain their grief to Sharpless. Puccini eliminated this plan, stressing that the consul should justify his presence in the opera by admonishing Pinkerton in the first act.

book review

Turbulent Irish Soul

THE FINEST STORIES OF SEAN O'FAOLAIN: Atlantic-Little, Brown, $5.25.

The stories in this collection span the period from 1927 to the present. The early stories, written in the shadow of the revolt against England, are youthful and romantic. Their diction and even their structure is poetic. FUGUE is a good example of this, a wistful story of a young IRA soldier fleeing and hiding from the Tans. The recurring theme of the fugue is the girl he meets twice in his flight and dreams of constantly. To him she becomes a symbol of the Irish land and the peaceful life he hopes someday to achieve. Yet to her, he represents the life and luxury of the city she dreams of reaching after escaping from the barren, hard-worked land. The story seeks intangibles and is the product of a sense of mystery. "What lovely weaving the old Weaver thinks of, as if all will not fray away in the end and moths rise from the eyes of his dears. Even storms at the end crumble in dust." All the early stories are full of the poetic grandeur of the revolution.

Of the later stories, O'Faolain says: "I hope a certain adjustment and detachment shows itself." But he is aware of the dangers in trying to write realistically about "people who, like the Irish of our day, combine beautiful, palpitating tea-rose souls with hard, coolly calculating heads."

In A BROKEN WORLD, there is the same romantic longing for the image or music which must come and wake the sleeping country, but the resurrection sought by the old priest who is searching for the moral unity of a broken world cannot rouse from lethargy the farmer who listens to his story. The vision is found only in a few.

As the book goes on, the symbol of Ireland fades, and O'Faolain becomes more interested in his people as individuals. The shadow of the church in Ireland, in its grossest and finest aspects, pervades them. When the old romantic yearning returns, it is part of the past. In THE END OF THE RECORD, a collector of folk stories comes to a poor house to make recordings of the remembered stories of the inhabitants. The last and finest of the folk tales fades away into madness and the cry of bitterness. The last stories are satirical. O'Faolain is still trying to get free of romanticism. In a story like CHILDBAWN, a study in Irish romanticism, he is able to do this, although a good deal of wormth of feeling remains. The final story, LOVERS OF THE LAKE, is a story of two middle-aged lovers trying to make their peace with their situation. The man is an unreligious surgeon, hard-headed and realistic; the woman is a romantic Catholic trapped in a bad marriage. O'Faolain has been unable to come to terms completely with the Irish nature. But he must be the most genial of faults to be unable to make peace with a romantic Irish soul.

David Helwig

apology

Libel is a harsh word, a word which can lead to court action and after effects far beyond the intentions of the accusers. We have been accused of libeling the Engineering Society by saying the society indulged in the occupation of sending "pornographic obscenities" through the mails in the full knowledge that the mail would be opened in mixed company.

We plead guilty to this charge of libel and apologize sincerely to the Engineering Society for so misrepresenting it.

In fact, the source of our information was wrong. The Engineering Society had nothing whatsoever to do with sending obscenities through the mail.

It was merely some members of the Engineering Society, acting entirely as individuals, who sent obscenities through the mail.

We stand corrected.

out of the black

There was once a time when even the students who thought the campus a bore in the daytime, could find it fairly provocative at night.

But then someone thought of "beautifying our campus" and the only way they could think of was to shine a spotlight on everything in sight.

Just like Hamlet's uncle Claudius, they yelled "give me some light" and started by shining an orange beam on the "vast endowed pile" of University College.

Better than Goethe, who was supposed to have cried for light on his deathbed, they then turned their talents to Simcoe Hall and environs.

But then they went too far. Like God who said "Let their be light," they tackled something too big to handle. They turned a garish white spot on Soldier's Tower.

These days shining lights on things is an expensive project. But this is not the objection. Money spent on adding beauty to the campus is money well spent. The trouble is that the lights, far from "beautifying" anything are making the campus look uglier than its worst critics would have thought it could.

The effect is cheap, vulgar, and crude. That's one adjective for each building so far lighted and as more buildings are lighted each will probably be a new variation on the theme of tastelessness.

All these buildings are marvellously effective when they are allowed to stand by themselves. There is a fine grimness about UC by moonlight, a quiet, middle-class comfort in Simcoe Hall. And as for the Tower, all one has to do to see the deadening effect of the lights is to look at the Tower and then across at the warmth and conviviality of the as yet unlighted portions of Hart House.

If there is money to be spent on beautifying the campus why not something like flower beds? Why not add something instead of ruining what is already there?

The men who are lighting the campus are neither Goethe nor God. For them Othello's line is more like it "Put out the light."

SA

This is just one example of film.

The singing voice of its youthfulness, even if stretching of the imagination, can actually be put.

Motion pictures have for opera; they offer the details unknown to the details possible. The film of this opportunity House Orchestra and Chorus it is definitely worth the folk singing

A Bone

Whatever the music or whatever the torium last Saturday by the audience late Theodore Bikel re-

Mr. Bikel possesses an annoyingly monotone voice itself is not to folk-songs, who can amusement, without stereotyped comment need if it is good case, they merely of respect for the self. At least in and nostalgia, and haiku

日本ノ詩

The haiku is a Japanese verse form of 17 syllables in three lines. The recent publication of a soft cover Introduction to Haiku prompted Time magazine to predict that the form would soon be a fad among college poets.

The AM&D page of the Varsity has always been ready to take a lead from Time magazine, so of our movie reviews realize; so during the next we are running a haiku writing contest. The contest is open to anyone at the University of Toronto.

1. The haiku must have seventeen syllables: first line, 7 in the second, and 5 in the third.
2. Entries are to be submitted to the AM&D page of the Varsity or mailed to the Varsity.
3. The contest will be judged by a distinguished board, not yet chosen.
4. In case of duplication the haiku with the earliest postmark will be accepted.
5. Closing Date: Friday, February 20.
6. Prizes will be announced in tomorrow's issue.

ballet

Odette, Where Is Thy Sting?

Although two-thirds of the audience at the performance we saw were under 12 years old, worse things than the mistreatment of children can be charged against the National Ballet's "Swan Lake".

For one thing there is the ballet itself. Doing any classical ballet presents a problem for a company today. The classical ballet is the most composite of the arts. Somehow, music, pure movement, and pure melodrama are supposed to fuse to form an integrated whole. And the older ballets, whatever their merits, are almost all examples of an incomplete fusion. Half the time we have to watch the melodrama unfold in a spate of embarrassingly trite mime that has nothing to do with the dance. The other half of the time we have to watch the principal characters, watch set dance pieces that have nothing to do with the melodrama. Then once in a while the melodrama and the movement come together in a moment of theatrical magic.

This is roughly what the National Ballet had to cope with. A very fine company can pull it all together. A great dancer can turn the mime into dance, and the pointless set pieces into fine dramatic interludes that play up what is going on. These companies are possibly the reason why the classical ballet still exists. But the National's performance made us wish that the whole ghastly nightmare could be entirely re-choreographed or scrapped entirely.

In the first act the mime was uppermost. After a bit of calisthenics to show how physically fit the royal court is, the prince is accosted by his mother. She wants him to get married. So she does a pitcher's windup with her right arm and pointedly brings her right index finger down on the fourth finger of her left hand. In an incredulous tone the prince points to the fourth finger of his left hand. The mother nods and again goes through her routine. Alright says the prince, waves his arm in the air and once more indicates the crucial finger. The Princess-Mother, highly gratified leaves. By now Earl Kraul as the prince feels the need of a drink, but instead of just taking one he goes to his old tutor, cups his hands and brings them to his mouth indicating his wishes. The old tutor thinks this an excellent idea, so he cups his hands and brings them to his mouth. Then all the assembled courtiers cup their hands and bring them to their mouths. By this time we were beginning to feel the need of a drink. But just at this point somebody sees some swans winging their way across the backdrop. Everyone on stage goes through some bow and arrow motions, and runs off to the hunt.

Now this kind of mime hinges vitally on how it is carried off. For instance Jacqueline Kings as the Princess-Mother carried it off beautifully with great dignity and repose, but the rest, maybe because they do not believe in it themselves, looked ridiculous.

In the second act the short-comings were more the company's than the ballet's. In the central role of Odette, the Swan-Princess, Lillian Jarvis danced with a good deal of competence but somewhat less sensitivity and like most of the company she seemed to tire by the end of her longer sequences. Earl Kraul however danced much more convincingly than he had mimed earlier. In the fine pas de deux of the second act, the first time in the ballet that the dance and the drama fuse, these two dancers almost rose to its magic. Yves Cousineau as the evil magician Von Rothbart flailed about picturesquely but was hardly very sinister.

The third act was rather pleasant, but not as part of the ballet. In miniature form it represented everything that was wrong with the whole production, the ridiculous mime, the set pieces that the company could not accommodate to work into the fabric of the whole, and a rare dancer whose hip movements made us suspect she was coming to herself and whose mechanical movements bore out our suspicions. Even Angela Leich, who was in the most part a captivating Odile got a bad case of the shakes in the middle of one of her most difficult movements and gave us a few frightening moments until Mr. Kraul rescued her.

It is a shame that not until the fourth act can much be said for this Swan Lake. But the fourth act was not merely good, it was practically a miracle. Everything began to work. The mime began to mean something. Miss Jarvis and Mr. Kraul both went beyond competence to great sensitivity. No one got tired. Every movement meant something. Even the sets, which, as in most ballets looked like a collage of scrap paper began to make sense. That act and the Apotheosis following it was worth the price of admission.

Probably no great generalization about the National Ballet can be made from Swan Lake. Every time I am tempted to call them "bait and scent" or breath, or advise that they stop doing this kind of thing I think of the last act. Maybe the persons of the melodrama overwhelmed them. Or maybe it was a last minute pep-talk in the shower room.

SAM AJZENSTAT

kind of insensitivity which ran throughout the

Mosucci is remarkably suited to the role, for at times somewhat characterless, but no one would make one believe that the frail, self-effacing of those voluminous notes.

been acclaimed as the perfectionist medium of the side of the production on opportunity for details which composers have often wished to put in so far as it does not take advantage; the soundtrack of the film is beautifully by Oliviero de Fobritis (with the Rome Opera and the recording is quite passable. All in all, student admission price. Elmo Ciprietti

pick with Bikel

Bikel, as an actor, whatever the present vogue told to like, the folk-music concert at Eaton Auditorium was a dreadfully boring affair. The enthusiasm shown in the saving grace of being spontaneous. If the best of folk-music, it is indeed a dead form of art. Only decent voice, a pseudo-sophisticated presence, delivery, and a great deal of followers. There are many folk-singers, and even singers of feeling and raise the music above the level of the gifted as Bikel. The aggravating custom of ten numbers is a sophistication the music does not need. When the comments are labored, as in Bikel's performance, the performer's blatant showmanship, and lack of a most glaring fault, however, was the music. Three numbers there was an appeal to tradition from should have stopped there. These first three Hebrew folk-songs were interesting, and charming.

Soon Bikel's limitations become increasingly apparent; the Spanish as well as the Gypsy songs were frightfully similar — not because of musical heritage, but because of Bikel's incapability to render them faithfully. It seemed that a "Russian" atmosphere prevailed in every other tune, even a Mexican song got this treatment. The Russian songs proper were innocent and cute, but not really Russian enough.

Ironically, Mr. Bikel seemed to be aware of some of his own limitations. Introducing a Spanish Gypsy tune, he remarked: "To sing this and not to be a Spaniard is a sin — not to be a Gypsy is unforgivable." It was.

The occasional moments of humor were few, unless you cared to laugh at the vaudeville-like guitar and mouth-organ act, or an American-Norwegian "Oleanna", sung partly with a Mexican-Franco inflection. Folk music is fashionable now, but does that include bad folk music?

The next meeting of the IN Group is at Mason Hall when the Weavers will be visiting. To join us?

Peeter Sepp

Kay Ambrose's set design - Act III of "Swan Lake"

Goreography needs tightening . . .

The choreography of Frederick Ashton and Anthony Tudor floated the National Ballet through two-thirds of Saturday night. They thundered upon the hell of the meeting and parting of WINTER NIGHT, a modern ballet by Walter Gore. A portrayal of a woman's feelings as she is forsaken for another woman, Gore's ballet seeks to represent the passion of love, despair and complex suffering. The obvious indecision in approach and style overshadows the whole production's indecision of what this should really be. The lesson that came with the sugar-coating of LES RENDEZ-VOUS and OFFENBACH IN THE UNDERWORLD is that good choreography must underline good ballet.

I seem to be in disagreement here with last week's ballet reviewers, one who stressed the need of more psychological ballet, the other who found in WINTER NIGHT parallels to the romantic experience.

LES RENDEZ-VOUS has ubiquitous charm. It serves gaily as a certain raiser of intricate delight. The arch firmness of the choreography was interpreted most ably in the "pas de Quatre et de Six". David Adams in his variation and in the "Sortie" gave, next to Celia Franca, the most perfect performance of the evening. Angela Leich as "Isabelle" perhaps could learn to play with greater elegance and gentility, as her slut-like approach to all roles seems out of place in the "dancer d'esole". The freshness of the very youthful corps doubly points up Miss Leigh's loose deportment. In general the setting and costumes made this ballet a sweet confection.

OFFENBACH can stand as a comparison to both other ballets. It has little more to say than LES RENDEZ-VOUS. Yet Tudor's choreography slackens at times to very mundane work, while Ashton maintains the ballet divertimento by his inventiveness and authority. But Offenbach's music is gorgeous, the production, by Kay Ambrose, sublimely shoddy, and the story, about Lautrec's cafes, "There is neither a sad ending nor a happy (ending) but only a closing time." This is T.S. Eliot's before he went west.

OFFENBACH compares to WINTER NIGHT in comprehension of purpose. The first has it, the second has not. The can-can girls may be only 17, but there's naughty blood in them all. In WINTER NIGHT they look serious and act vague — scarcely a substitute for true psychological ballet. This interpretation of romantic agony as vagueness seems to me to drastically misunderstand the Rachmaninoff Second Piano Concerto for its essence is heart's sorrow, not vagueness. Celia Franca's interpretation of the forsaken Felice was penetrating when her portrayal was clearly delineated — then her measured tension meant something. However, even Miss Franca (looking too Giselle-like in Miss Ambrose's indeterminate costumes) could scarcely combat the array of ill-conceived steps and patterns. Lack of insight and lack of expression on Mr. Gore's part led to frustrated choreography, half-symbolic, half impressionistic, softly kept within a semi-classical lingo. The flat backdrop and lack of imaginative lighting heightened the lack of elemental grandeur and anguish. Of the many moments of truth, two of them came off — Miss Franca's stoic exit and her exclusion from the marriage (circle of youth, summer and light). (The latter truly thrilling).

Still the Varsity urges the university to support the National Ballet — they merit. (There are also special prices on certain days for U. of T. students).

ALISON CUNNINGHAM

Book-smuggling A Cause

(Continued from Page 1)
of Wallace Room books for extended periods of time and the hiding of books in the Room itself, in addition to outright theft.

The library, Mr. Blackburn said, is also disturbed at the amount of "marking and mutilation" of books.

Mr. Blackburn said, "I believe a great many students would welcome" the move to a closed-shelf system. It would mean more work for the library staff, he said, but it would provide better service for the students.

The system would deprive students of direct access to books, he said, but "direct access isn't much good if somebody has got there before and hidden or stolen the book."

Students who have abused Room Privileges "have done everybody a great disservice," he added.

There is no way to prevent book thefts under the present system "short of an X-ray machine," Mr. Blackburn said.

Many smuggled books are returned in the Spring, he added, but "a book returned in the Spring is not much consolation to a class in February."

It is impossible to replace missing books in time for other students to use them, he said. "Many books are in demand for a few weeks, then sit for a year," he explained.

The hiding of books by students early in the day can mean the use of a book is lost to others for a couple of days if the student forgets it, he said.

The library also suffers loss through the ripping of pictures and other sections from books, he said. Guilty students can occasionally be tracked down, he said, but the only possible hope in most cases is an appeal to the "decency" of students.

"We're a service department," he said, "not a police department."

Heavy losses of coats through theft are also being experienced in the library, Mr. Blackburn added. Coat thefts are being experienced in other campus buildings, he said.

The library office has a large collection of mislaid glasses, purses, notes and other paraphernalia, he said.

Ubyssy Editors Go

VANCOUVER — CUP — The Editor-in-Chief and City Editor of The Ubyssy, the University of British Columbia's student newspaper, were yesterday suspended from the staff of the paper.

Alma Mater Society President Cuuk Connaghan announced the suspension of Editor Dave Robertson and City Editor Kerry Feltham.

The two were dismissed for participating in a "student prank involving the theft of a picture," he said.

Here and Now

TODAY

The Graduate squaredancing session will not take place today.

12 noon — VCF will study the Bible in the School of Nursing, room 116.

12:15 p.m. — The Holy Eucharist will be celebrated in Trinity College Chapel.

1 p.m. — VCF will study the Bible at U.C. College in room 111.

1:15 p.m. — VCF will study the Bible at Victoria College in room 21.

4 p.m. — Copper Room Discussion Group will sponsor a discussion on Prison Probation in the Wymilwood Copper Room.

4:10 p.m. — Dr. Sidney van den Bergh will lead a seminar on the "Structure and Evolution of Galaxies" in the McLennan Laboratory, room 135.

— Kenneth Hood, home secretary of the Latin American Mission, will speak at a VCF Missionary meeting in Wymilwood.

FRIDAY

8 p.m. — Wycliffe College is holding its annual Wycliffe Missionary Night in Sheraton Hall, Wycliffe College. Main speaker will be the Rev. David Luck, of Baring College, Amritsar Diocese, India. Other addresses, displays, and information will deal with mission fields throughout the world. Everyone is welcome. Refreshments will be served.

Fire Angus Staff Quits

WOLFVILLE, N.S. —CUP— For the second time in a week the editor of Acadia University's campus newspaper has been suspended.

Editor Donald Angus, suspended last Thursday for publishing an article described by university authorities as "blasphemous", was reinstated last weekend. But yesterday the Student Judiciary Committee announced that Angus had been "Permanently suspended".

A meeting of the university's Student Council last Friday overthrew the original decision of the Judiciary Council that Angus be suspended and his resignation requested.

No reason was given for the renewed decision of the Judiciary Council, a subsidiary of the Student Council, to suspend Angus, this time for keeps.

The writer of the controversial article, Robert Fiander, was barred from the campus for the remainder of the year by Acadia President Watson Kirkconnell.

But President Kirkconnell said the 27-year old Fiander, a fourth-year Arts student, would be able to complete his course by correspondence.

Angus' suspension touched off a mass resignation by Athenaeum staffers. All but two of the paper's 22 staffers resigned in protest against the suspension of their editor.

"Our resignation will remain effective until such time as the decision of the student judicial committee is revoked and the original editor-in-chief is returned to office", the staff said in a signed petition submitted to college authorities.

The article, entitled "Paradoxically Speaking" was published in the Jan. 30 issue of The Athenaeum.

Editor Angus earlier said he had examined Fiander's article before publication and understood it perfectly. The charge that it was "blasphemous" was "ridiculous", he said.

YES, VIRGINIA, there are more than DRUMS in the

BLUE and WHITE BAND

HEAR THE REST OF THE ENSEMBLE AT

Hockey Game Friday, 8 p.m.

SPORTS SCHEDULES

Week of February 16th

HOCKEY (Balance of regular schedule)
Mon. Feb. 16	1:30 Sr. SPS vs U.C. I	Brewer, Borthwick
	1:30 U.C. II vs J. SPS	McCulloch, Blute
	6:30 Knox vs For. B	McElroy, Crawford
Tues. Feb. 17	1:00 SPS IV vs St. M. B	Bunt, Quinn
	4:00 Pharm vs For. A	Downey, Cader
	6:30 Arch vs Wvc	M. Elgott, Crawford
Wed. Feb. 18	8:00 Dent C vs Trin. D	Stinson, Quinn
	8:15 SPS VI vs Trin. C	Reimer, Sadowy
Thur. Feb. 19	6:00 Med III vs Dent B	McCulloch, Crawford

WATER POLO
Mon. Feb. 16	1:00 SPS I vs U.C.	M. Boase, Bonnema
	6:30 St. M. A vs Med. II	Jany, Nobeit
Tues. Feb. 17	1:15 Lat vs Fur	Jany, Nobeit
	4:00 Trin B vs St. M. C	Jany, M. Basse
Wed. Feb. 18	6:15 U.C. vs Med. I	Bonnema, Moens
Thur. Feb. 19	1:00 Vic vs Dent	Jany, Moens
	8:15 SPS II vs SPS. IV	Robert Bonnema
	7:30 SPS III vs Law	Robert Bonnema
Fri. Feb. 20	1:45 Pharm vs Arch	J. Boase, Thesling

SQUASH (Balance of Regular Schedule)
Mon. Feb. 16	1:00 Sr. SPS A vs Trin. A
	5:30 Trin. B vs Med. III Yr
Tues. Feb. 17	6:20 St. M. A vs Arch
	7:00 Dent E vs Vic II
Wed. Feb. 18	1:00 Pre-Med II vs SPS V
	5:40 Dent D vs U.C. III
	7:10 Dent C vs Trin. D
Thur. Feb. 19	Group Playoff (10 Med I Yr vs Trin C
Thur. Feb. 19	Group Playoff (if necessary) 6:20 U.C. II vs Med. III Yr

WATCH ATHLETIC WING BULLETIN BOARD FOR PLAYOFF SCHEDULE
BASKETBALL—MAJOR LEAGUE
Mon. Feb. 16	1:00 SPS C vs Vic. II	Goldenberg, Mandel
	4:10 Vic. IV vs St. M. D	Mau berg, Fueman
Tues. Feb. 17	1:00 St. M. A vs Vic I	Goldenberg, Kerner
	6:30 Dent I Yr vs Med. III	G. dley, Richardson
	7:30 Dent A vs U. II	G. dley, Richardson
Wed. Feb. 18	8:30 U.C. V vs SPS E	G. dley, F. charldson
	1:00 SPS IV vs SPS B	Fueman, Feller
	6:30 Dent III vs St. M. F	Mandel, Marchut
	7:30 Dent IV vs St. M. E	Mandel, Marchut
Thur. Feb. 19	8:30 SPS VII vs St. M. F	Mandel, Marchut
	1:00 SPS A vs Trin	Grossman, Kerner
	3:30 Law A vs Arch	Fueman, Treffer
	4:00 Vic III vs U.C. IV	Linden, Bugarski
	6:30 Pharm. B vs Sr. Med	Linden, Bugarski
	7:40 Sr. SPS vs Trin	Linden, Bugarski
Fri. Feb. 20	1:00 SPS III vs Jr. SPS	Morlarty, Grossman
	6:30 Med IV vs SPS VIII	Richardson, Kolodzie

BASKETBALL—MINOR LEAGUE (HART HOUSE)
Mon. Feb. 16	1:00 III Metal vs U.C. Soos	Thompson
	4:00 Vic. V vs St. M. Gable	Shafir
	5:50 I Mech vs St. M. Rapsavages	Shafir
	6:10 IV Civil vs Med III Yr A	Shafir
Tues. Feb. 17	1:00 St. M. Ponds vs U. C. V	Pearl
	6:30 II Eng. Bus vs Vic. Middle Hse	Newman
	7:30 U.C. Loudon vs U. C. I	Newman
Wed. Feb. 18	8:30 Knox B vs Law B	Newman
	1:00 III Elec vs Pre-Med II A	Wilkinson
	5:00 U.C. Metcures vs Med III Yr B	Stein
	6:30 IV Mech vs Med IV Yr A	Stein
	7:00 Mu vs For B	Kol dze
Thur. Feb. 19	3:00 I Eng. Bus vs U.C. Hutton	Kolkdzle
	1:00 St. M. Giv. Rob. vs I Civil A	Pearl
	6:30 II Mech vs Med III Yr C	Jensen
	7:30 Pharm Autons vs For. B	Jensen
	8:30 Wye B vs Pharm. Mortars	Jensen
Fri. Feb. 20	1:00 St. Grol vs IV Grol	Clarke
	5:00 III Mech vs Med I Yr	Stein

BASKETBALL—MINOR LEAGUE (VIC GYM)
Mon. Feb. 16	4:00 U.C. Sammys vs Vic. Gators	Foster
	5:00 I Mech vs I Eng. Phys. C	Foster
	6:00 St. M. Wimps vs I Eng. Phys. D	Foster
Tues. Feb. 17	4:00 Vic. Sammys vs St. M. Martins	McGrath
	5:00 St. M. McNulty vs Pre-Med I D	McGrath
	6:00 St. M. Quigleys vs Pre-Dent A	Marchut
	7:00 Eng. B vs Pharm. Cautons	Marchut
	8:00 U.C. McCaul vs Vic. South. Hse	Marchut
Wed. Feb. 18	4:00 St. M. C & F vs Pre-Med I B	Samson
	5:00 U.C. McCaul vs Pre-Med I C	Samson
	6:00 I Chem vs I Eng. B	Newman
	7:00 St. M. Steinwarks vs U.C. Taylor	Newman
Thur. Feb. 19	5:40 St. M. Wimps vs Pre-Med I A	Lubin
	6:00 I Civil B vs I Eng. Phys. D	Lubin
	7:00 For. C vs Pharm. J. Pests	Samson
	8:00 Trin C vs St. M. Coopers	Samson

UNIVERSITY HEALTH SERVICE

SALK POLIO VACCINE

Men Only

All male students who received their first Salk Polio vaccine injection on or about January 15th are asked to report to the Health Service

TODAY — 10.00 a.m. to 3.00 p.m.

TO RECEIVE A SECOND INJECTION

These students are reminded that a single dose of the vaccine offers very little protection against Polio and it is most important to receive the first two injections within the recommended time interval.

GAMES TODAY
HOCKEY
1:30 Vic. I	vs	Sr. SPS	Reimer, Borthwick
4:00 St. M. B	vs	V.C. III	Blutt, Bunt
WATER POLO
1:40 Med. III	vs	SPS. III	Odell, Robert
4:00 Arch	vs	U.C.	M. Boase
6:15 SPS IV	vs	Vic.	Bonnema, Watkin
7:00 SPS V	vs	St. M. C	Bonnema, Watkin
7:45 Wye	vs	Pharm.	Bonnema, Watkin
SQUASH
1:00 U.C. II	vs	Jr. SPS
BASKETBALL MAJOR LEAGUE
1:00 Vic. IV	vs	SPS. VI	Godley, Treffer
4:00 Vic. I	vs	U.C. I	Bugarski, McGrath
6:30 Dent. I Yr.	vs	U.C. V	Richardson, Linden
7:30 Jr. SPS	vs	Dent. A	Richardson, Linden
8:30 Pharm. A	vs	For. A	Richardson, Linden
BASKETBALL MINOR LEAGUE (HART HOUSE)
1:00 Med. I Yr.	vs	Vic. Visions	Jensen
6:30 IV Metal	vs	I Eng. Phys. A	Newman
7:30 U.C. Wallace	vs	III Metal	Newman
BASKETBALL MINOR LEAGUE (VIC GYM)
4:00 U.C. Sammys	vs	St. M. Martins	Clarke
5:00 St. M. Quigleys	vs	I Elec. B	Clarke
6:00 I Chem	vs	St. M. Coopers	Marchut
7:00 U.C. Taylors	vs	U.C. McCaul	Marchut
8:00 Vic. North Hse.	vs	St. M. C & F	Marchut

There's Something Special about du MAURIER

The Exclusive Millred Filter Tip, the most efficient filter yet developed, lets you draw free and easy, for full smoking satisfaction du MAURIER combines the finest Virginia tobaccos to give you perfect mildness and smoothness. Once you smoke du MAURIER you'll make the distinctive red and silver package your favorite always.

du MAURIER

A Really Milder High Grade Virginia Cigarette with the EXCLUSIVE "Millred" FILTER TIP

ATTENTION

All Students and Faculty

You are cordially invited to attend a film and lecture on "The RCAF in the Changing Defence Picture", to be given by Air Commodore J. B. Harvey, of the RCAF's Training Command.

PLACE: Howard Ferguson Hall, University College.

TIME: 7.30 p.m.

Date: Thursday, 19th February.

Refreshments Will Be Served

PLAN WATER CARNIVAL

Swim Star(lets) Galore Coming For Program Here In March

By JOHN BROOKS
Varsity Sports Editor

The greatest water carnival in North America in the last 10 years takes over the Hart House pool on March 6 and 7. To add a bit to what the man once said:

"The joint will be jumpin' with stars."

Don Harper, Manuel Sanguily, Bill Yorzyk, George Breen, Janet Medland, Johnny Collins and a beautiful 18-year old blonde by the name of Carin Cone—those are the names.

Tickets for the mammoth carnival will go on sale tomorrow afternoon by all members of the senior and intermediate swimming teams, and by sport staffers of The Varsity.

Included on the program will be the following attractions:

- Clown diving by Don Harper, winner of a silver medal at the 1956 Olympic Games in Melbourne, Australia.

- Varsity students Joe MacInnis and Terry Godsall attempting a world aqua-lung endurance record of two days under water.

- Toronto Aquatic Club (Hungarian), the Canadian water polo champions.

- Oakwood Swimming Club, the provincial synchroized swim champions.

- Record attempts and speed demonstrations by the above-mentioned stars.

Each swimmer attending the meet will perform on both nights. The aqua-lung endurance test will probably be scheduled to end at the close of the Carnival on its second night.

The idea of holding a carnival was hatched by Toronto coach Bill Yorzyk some weeks ago. Tuesday night, the Athletic Directorate gave its blessing to the event.

Immediately, the wheels began to roll. Tickets are coming off the press today, and a full-scale publicity program has been launched.

Said Coach Yorzyk of the carnival:

"I have been attending these carnivals in the U.S. for 10 years, and I have never seen an array of talent to match the performers we have obtained."

"Toronto itself has never seen anything like it."

Blues Shine At US Meet

Tough international competition at the Michigan State relays was highlighted by impressive displays from representatives of Varsity's track team.

Ken Money, clearing the high jump bar at 8'4" became the first Canadian ever to win the high jump at the relays, held in Lansing, Michigan, and drawing top competitors from all parts of North America.

Money represented Canada at the 1956 Olympic Games.

Jan Roos and Jim Snider gave their best performances to date in the one mile run and 600-yard jaunt, respectively. Roos finished in 4:27.9 minutes, and Snider in 1:16.0 minutes.

Roos, Snider, Nels Van Loon and Kyle Baumanis sparked in the relay events, finishing strongly behind record-setting Western Michigan.

In indoor track events here, Roos raced to victory in the senior two miles, finishing ahead of Dick Hamilton in 9:49.8 minutes. Peter Bing captured the junior event in 11:58.0.

Snider captured the 220-yard dash in 25.6 seconds, outdistancing Stu Irwin and Van Loon. Rick Burns was the junior winner in 26.5 seconds.

Meet Produces Mat Champions

By MIKE CHYKALUK
Varsity Staff Reporter

The Varsity wrestling team declared their champions at last Saturday's meet held at Hart House. The cream of the mat—bone-benders produced some glorious excitement with several surprises.

Dave Dunbar produced perhaps the biggest upset when he won the 191-lb. title, decimating Rod Carrow. Carrow had previously defeated Herb Brown.

Another Frank Brown, away job-hunting in Labrador, defaulted the heavyweight crown to Bob Sibthorpe.

Fred Ledvinka pinned Larry Argue to win the 177-lb. division. In the 167-lb. class Roger Doner took only one minute to flatten Roy Sinkus.

Don Shepley also pinned his opponent, William Craven, to cop the 157-lb. laurels. Tony Barone shaded Ken Deer.

In the 147-lb. class while Ken Brown (no relation) won a very close decision over Art Beattie.

Andy Higgins claimed the 130-lb. honors on default on one would dare wrestle him). Meantime, Don Bonister rounded out the team roster when he flattened Bob Appichbaum.

Though anyone can still challenge the team champion, it is doubtful whether anybody will at this late date. The Intercollegiate senior finals are scheduled for the 27 and the 28 of this month.

Results of the preliminaries follow:

147 lb. Tony Barone pinned Bob Patchett.

167 lb. Roy Sinkus pinned T. Newberry.

177 lb. Roger Doner pinned G. Armstrong.

191 lb. Dave Dunbar pinned H. Shepley.

191 lb. Rod Carrow decimated Herb Brown.

BILL KENNEDY

DAVE STEPHEN

"Bear" Tops Scoring Stephen, Casey Sign

The injury to Varsity centre Bill Kennedy has thrown the runaway Intercollegiate scoring race back into a turmoil that has several players bunched around the 14-17 point area.

Kennedy has eight goals and 17 assists for a league-leading 25 points, trailed by team-mate Mike Elik with 17 points, the same total as Montreal's Yves Laurendeau.

Elik, of course, has left college play, and Kennedy may not see action again with Blues this season. That theoretically makes Laurendeau the "leader" with 17 points.

Close behind the lanky Carabin winger is linemate Victor Bedard, with a goal and eight assists for 16 points. He's tied with Varsity's Ron Casey, whose goal and assists per game clip gives him eight and eight for eight games.

Varsity's goaltending pair of Bob Giroux and Ray Dunn continue to lead the netminders, with a combined goals-against average of 3.25. That compares with the Montreal totals of 4.13 for eight games.

In penalties, McGill defensemen Terry Dingle continues to hold a wide margin as the league bad man. Dingle has collected 68 minutes, including two majors, a misconduct and two match penalties.

In the Varsity camp, signings were the order of the day in recent hours, with Dave (Red) Stephen, Ron Casey putting then John Henrys on dotted lines, and several other Blues considering the move.

Stephen and Casey will join Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen of the OHA Senior A loop, and chances of travelling to the 1960 Olympics with the Dutchies appear good for the Varsity pair.

Dunc Brodie and Kennedy are dickering with Whitby Dunlops, and one or both of them may join Wren Blair's Dummies before the season ends.

And just when Lorry Stacey will depart for Chatham Maroons is Coach Jack Kennedy's latest headache. There has been suggestion the hard-hitting safeguard may report to Maroons before the college season ends.

	GP	G	A	Pts	IM
KENNEDY (T)	8	8	17	25	6
ELIK (T)	8	3	7	17	27
Laurendeau (M)	8	10	7	17	10
Bedard (M)	6	1	9	16	2
CASEY (T)	8	8	8	16	16
Farmer (M)	8	6	9	15	10
Lundy (L)	6	6	8	14	0
L. Arsenault (L)	6	4	10	14	2
NEALE (T)	8	7	2	14	28
Duggan (L)	8	7	6	13	2
MACDONALD (T)	8	4	9	13	15
Raymond (L)	5	7	5	12	12
STACEY (T)	8	8	4	12	21
ROTH (T)	8	1	5	6	11
Landreville (M)	8	5	6	11	0
WILLIAMS (T)	2	4	7	11	4
Theriault (M)	2	6	6	11	4
Rowland (L)	6	1	9	10	12
NEALE (T)	8	4	6	10	10
STEEPLY (T)	8	1	9	10	2
MURRO (T)	6	2	7	9	27
St. Jean (M)	8	0	9	9	22
Archer (L)	8	0	7	8	0
MILLS (T)	6	4	4	8	14
Monahan (M)	7	3	3	7	8
STACEY (T)	8	3	4	7	28
F. Laroche (L)	3	1	5	6	0
Lamont (L)	3	3	3	6	6
Blanchette (L)	5	4	2	6	19
Wright (L)	5	3	3	6	6
Saunders (McG)	5	3	3	6	6
Bourneau (L)	5	2	3	5	8
LeBlond (L)	5	4	1	5	4
O'Connor (McG)	5	0	4	4	8
PROGOS (T)	8	2	2	4	8
Kilham (McG)	8	0	4	4	8
Hutchison (McG)	7	0	3	3	2
LeBlond (L)	6	0	3	3	17
McGill (McG)	8	0	3	3	2
LeBlond (L)	2	0	2	2	4
AVEL (T)	2	0	2	2	4
Gibson (McG)	7	0	2	2	4
Vander (McG)	8	1	1	2	0
LeBlond (L)	7	1	1	2	64
FLINCH (T)	7	0	2	2	4
Matte (McG)	3	1	0	1	2
Pelletier (McG)	3	1	0	1	2
P. LeBlond (L)	4	0	1	1	2
Beland (McG)	4	0	1	1	2
Held (M)	5	0	1	1	8
Lamont (L)	6	0	1	1	2
LeBlond (L)	6	0	1	1	2
Young (L)	6	0	1	1	8
Dufour (L)	6	0	1	1	10
Barrie (McG)	7	0	1	1	10
Gibson (McG)	8	0	1	1	8
LeBlond (L)	1	0	0	0	2
LeBlond (L)	1	0	0	0	2
LeBlond (L)	4	0	0	0	8
D. LeBlond (McG)	4	0	0	0	8
LeBlond (L)	6	0	0	0	8
SULLIVAN (T)	8	0	0	0	2
LeBlond (L)	8	0	0	0	2

	GP	G	A	Pts	IM
COLON (T)	2	3	0	250	0
BEAN (T)	6	21	1	350	0
TORONTO
TORONTO	8	26	1	325	0
Bourret (M)	3	12	6	400	2
Schneider (M)	5	21	1	39	10
M. G.H.	8	2	5	38	0
L. G.H.	8	0	1	47	4
L. G.H.	8	0	0	483	0
B. G.H.	8	21	9	888	0

The Scoreboard

INTERCOLLEGIATE

HOCKEY

	P	W	L	T	F	A	Pts
TORONTO	8	7	1	0	68	25	14
Laval	6	5	1	0	39	29	10
Montreal	8	2	5	1	38	19	6
M. G.H.	8	0	8	0	13	71	0

The 1960 Montreal 'A' Laval
Toronto-McGill at TORONTO.

BASKETBALL

	P	W	L	T	Pts
Assumption	7	6	1	0	12
Windsor	8	5	1	0	10
Queen's	6	3	2	0	6
TORONTO	5	2	3	0	4
McGill	8	1	5	2	2
McMaster	6	1	5	0	2

Friday, TORONTO at Western;

McMaster at McGill

Saturday TORONTO at Queen

McMaster at Queen

Sports' Parade 40 Years Ago

From The Varsity Files
February 12, 1919

On Monday afternoon at Central "Y", the largest crowd of the season witnessed the final game in the Sifton Cup Basketball Series. Junior Meds and Dents were the contending teams and although Meds won by the score of 52-11, the game was fast and interesting throughout.

Both teams had many supporters on hand and their yelling fairly shook the walls of the building.

On the Dental defence Poag did nearly all the effective work as McLaurin persisted in "getting" his man. His illegal holding, hooking and tripping earned for him the disapproval of the crowd and he should have been banished from the game in the first half.

Several fistic encounters were staged among players and spectators, resulting in all the spectators being ordered to the gallery by the "Y" officials.

Coles had to referee a hard game and great credit must be given him for the way in which he handled the game, meting out as near as he could justice to all.

... and in this corner

by sharon milgram

It is too bad that what could have been one of the best, if not the best, girls' hockey game of the season, had to be practically ruined by such poor officiating.

When Vic I. and St. Hilda's I met for the first time this season both teams were previously undefeated. The game shaped up as a preview of the girls' hockey final. But if the play-off is anything even resembling last Monday's game, then there had better be some changes made.

The game started out calmly enough. Both teams were skating fast and trying hard... one may even say too hard. So what if there were a few off-sides? After all, it is pretty hard for ONE REFEREE to spot each play correctly all the time.

What did it matter if there was a little bodychecking? It occurs continuously when the boys play. Maybe the referees became so enthralled with the game that for a moment he forgot that there was a difference in the boys' and girls' hockey rules. Maybe the referee never did know that there was a difference in the first place.

In fact, the latter is quite possible. Not only did the referee in this particular game make a mess of the officiating, but other referees in other games have done just as bad a job. I am mentioning this game as an example because the lack of control in it was especially noticeable.

The hard checks thrown or attempts to throw them, the tripping and the slashing, were only some of the rule infractions that were constantly occurring. Anybody who knew anything about the game, whether boys or girls, would have noticed the most obvious infractions.

I don't know what the referees think their job is, but in case they think it is to skate up and down the ice in order to keep the players company, then somebody ought to set them straight. They are out there to officiate an interfacuity sport known as hockey.

Some of the girls might find the game a little different if some of the rules were enforced. Why, as a result of better officiating some great female penalty killers might develop. They would have to be cause if the girls continued to play as they have been, the teams would almost always be playing one or two men, pardon me, women short.

There is, of course, another alternative. The girls could start playing hockey as it is supposed to be played. This I think would be a great idea.

Let's not wait until a player gets a broken arm or leg or a carved-up face before changing the style of play. There is enough chance of injury when the game is played cleanly without adding that extra chance by body checking and other infractions of the rules.

So, how about the referees taking their jobs a little more seriously and the girls abiding by the rules and regulations? After all, there are such things as preventive medicine and preventive dentistry, why not preventive destruction of girls' hockey?

Rumored Dissension Ebbs Wycliffians To Meet Hunt

Rumored dissension at Wycliffe College over the appointment this week of Canon Leslie Hunt as principal appears to be subsiding according to reports The Varsity received last night.

Senior Student Charles Ledger described student reaction to the appointment as "impossible to gauge so far".

"Students are waiting to meet with Canon Hunt although such a meeting has not yet been approved," Ledger said.

He said students were not acquainted with the new principal, who has not been connected officially with the college previously.

The Wycliffe Theological Society last night sent a congratulatory letter to Canon Hunt, promising "their support and prayers."

Canon Hunt, who succeeds Dr. Ramsay Arncliffe as principal this September, is warden of the Anglican Church Army and rector of the Church of the Epiphany. He received his Doctorate of Divinity at the college this week.

"The appointment did not come as a complete surprise to students," Ledger said. "His name had been mentioned previously as a candidate."

Ledger denied reports that students had placed a tape recorder in a meeting room last week where the appointment was being decided.

"There was no tape made of that meeting," he said. "And I would rather not comment further on the matter."

Staff dispute at the announcement was also hotly denied by Dean of Residence Rev. W. Prior, who had been rumored as threatening to resign over the decision.

"I have no intention or reason to resign," Dean Prior said. "And I can see no reason why such a rumor should be started.

"I consider Canon Hunt's appointment a very interesting one. He is a first rate administrator, and has done well in his previous posts. We feel he will put the college on the map."

Western Weekend Deadline Extended

Delegates to University of Western Ontario exchange weekend next week will be subsidized for all but $5 of their expenses, Week-ends chairman Dave Lee announced last night.

Deadline for application for the exchange is 5 p.m. Friday in the Students' Administrative Council office.

Four U of T students will be sent to the conference, which includes panels, discussions and social activities with delegates from Canadian and American universities. Transportation expenses and part of an $8 registration fee for delegates will be supplied by SAC.

Professor: I'm going to drop this half-dollar into the solution. Will it be dissolved?

Scholarship student: No.

Prof.: Very good. And how did you know?

Student: Because if it would, you wouldn't drop it in.

BE DIFFERENT

Say it with RECORDS

...on Valentine's Day

Capitol Records proudly presents

RECENTLY RELEASED HI-FI ALBUMS

T-1115

W-1120

T-1124

T-1118

ADDITIONAL NEW ALBUMS

SALUTE TO THE SMOOTH BANDS — Fred Martin T-1116
AFRICAN JAZZ — Les Baxter T-1117
DANCING ROOM ONLY — Guy Lombardo T-1121
THIS THING CALLED LOVE — Tommy Sands T-1123
PRAISE HIM — Fred Waring and His Pennsylvanians T-1122
MISTER PIPE ORGAN — Eddie Dunstetter T-1128
ITALIA MIA — Pino Calvi, his piano, with orchestra T-10199
ST. PATRICK'S NIGHT IN DUBLIN Recorded "live" in Ireland T-10201

T-10188

G-7152

P-8462

W-1069

W-1109

G-7148

P-8464

TYPING

Theses, Essays, Notes, Charts, French, German, Latin, English. Prices Upon Request.

Appt. 12
21 AVENUE RD.—WA 2-7624
MRS. M. D. STOTT, B.A.

GOOD HAIRCUT

RIGHT NEAR HERE
4 BARBERS—NO WAITING

600 University Avenue
Just below College
In the Basement
Open Monday through Friday
8 a.m. to 6 p.m.
ONLY $1.00

TYPEWRITERS

$1.00 A WEEK BUYS ...
... $1.50 A WEEK RENTS

Get a free typing course and a liberal trade-in allowance for your old typewriter when you buy a new modern machine from us.

Phone HO. 1-1843 Today

CLASSIFIED ADS.

$1 DOWN BUYS ANY MAKE
Brand new typewriters. $59 up. Some models $30 off. Free home demonstration. Free typing course. 1959 models rented, lowest rates. 375 Jane-Humber, RO 6-1103.

TYPIST (Electric)
Fast, accurate, personalized service. Theses, essays, letters, dictation. Reasonable rates. Irene Kenyon, 146 Bernard Avenue, WA 3-4011.

WANTED
Accurate manuscript typist. Acquainted with contemporary literature. 6-8 hours daily for approximately 2 weeks. Rate of payment open to discussion. RU 1-3477 evenings.

FURNISHED APARTMENT TO LET

Available March 1st to June 15th. Walking distance from University. Call after 7 p.m., WA 2-2338.

TUTOR IN MATHEMATICS
Honour Maths and Physics graduate will coach in undergraduate mathematics including calculus, geometry, differential equations. Individual instruction. WA. 2-0805.

LOST
Large Carlingford brooch. Museum Theatre, Thursday, Feb. 5. Dianne, HO. 6-4812.

A & A RECORD BAR

351 YONGE ST., Toronto (EM. 4-6832 - EM. 4-6053)

The ONLY Record Bar That is Open From 7 a.m. to 12.00 Midnight, Every Day of the Week, Including Saturday

We Have the Largest Open Counter Display of Long-Playing Records in the City

COMING TO GRIPS

with the role of the legal profession at last night's Hart House debate. Mike Sherman (III UC, above) said: "The laws are guides to the administration of justice, not its body."

Law Dean C. A. Wright (right) described law as largely a "creative" profession. Legal education, he said, is "not for the service of the profession but for the service of the public."

R. A. Little (not shown) said lawyers can state with Lincoln: "I may move slowly, but I never move backwards." (VSP Drummond)

House Says Lawyers AlWright

With a defence of the traditions of the past, the U of T's law dean helped last night's Hart House debaters throw out a suggestion that "The Legal Profession is Jeopardizing the Administration of Justice."

But the Law Faculty's Dean C.A. Wright had one of his own staff to contend with ... Prof. Bora Laskin, who supported the Ayes from the floor.

Supporting the question, which was thrown out 30-47, were debaters Mike Sherman (III UC) and Mike Rasminsky (IV UC). Robert Little (I Law) and James Coleman (I Law) spoke for the Noes.

Dean Wright said: "You can either have justice as a discretionary measure or you can have justice by law." He stressed: "If you're going to have justice by law, you're going to have lawyers."

Prof. Laskin blasted the legal profession for allowing such "social issues" as labor relations and penology "fall into the hands of people who are less competent to deal with them than the organized legal profession."

Kicking off the debate, Sherman said justice is not synonymous with law, despite the "blind, dogged faith" of many lawyers. He said the present two-sided "adversary theory" of trials is "rather like a prize fight" and added lawyers have "failed to recognize their duty to the public."

Little led the Noes with a denial of Sherman's charges and praise for the conservatism of the legal profession. That profession, he said, must stay with the principles of the times.

Rasminsky called for the legal profession to pay greater attention to the principles behind laws.

"The legal profession must be concerned with how the law is made," he said, "and it isn't."

Coleman retorted: "Legal procedures are essential to the administration of justice." Lawyers, he said, "have often found that their client was humanity and their brief was liberty."

Dean Wright said the legal profession must preserve the lessons of the past and apply them to the problems of the future.

"The great problem of legal administration as a means to the administration of justice is to achieve change," he continued. Change, he added, can either be violent or "by legal means under the direction of the legal profession."

Lawyers, he said, do not think in terms of whether justice and law can be equated. "Lawyers," he stressed, "assist in deciding issues."

Law will always lag slightly behind the popular feeling of justice, he concluded. This, he said, is "simply to make sure you are not throwing overboard anything that has been fought for for 3-4,000 years."

Prof. Laskin described the legal profession as: "a windmill that travels in a chosen orbit, kicks up a great deal of wind and feels that by standing in the same place indefinitely it is helping in the administration of justice."

New social issues, he said, are "built up by social pressures despite the legal profession." But, he said, it is "the duty of the organized legal profession" to help solve them.

THE VARSITY

Vol. LXXVIII — No. 76

Friday, February 13th, 1959

Acadia Discipline Board Bows Out

WOLFVILLE, N.S.—CUP—The tortuous Acadia University controversy over the publication of an article described as "blasphemous" in the campus newspaper took a strangely ironic turn last night as the entire membership of the student judicial committee resigned.

Tuesday night the committee reversed last Friday's decision by the student council and permanently suspended Athenaeum editor Donald Angus for publishing the article.

Committee President Ray Tonge of Saint John, N.B., said the decision was made "because of the students' attitude towards us and the publicity given by the press."

Immediately following the resignations university president Dr. Watson Kirkconnell announced the dissolution of the student committee. The committee's duties will now be handled by the university's Board of Governors, Dr. Kirkconnell said.

The committee, formed 10 years ago, became embroiled in the controversy over a week ago when it suspended Editor Angus and requested his resignation. A meeting of the student council last Friday overturned the decision and reinstated Angus.

Following Angus' second and final suspension yesterday all but two of the 22 staff members of The Athenaeum resigned in protest.

The staffers said their resignation would remain effective "until such time as the decision of the student judicial committee is revoked and the original editor-in-chief returned to office" in a petition they submitted at the time of their resignations.

The article, published in the Jan. 30 issue of the weekly newspaper, was written by fourth year Arts student Robert Flander. Flander has since been expelled from the university but is being permitted to finish his courses by mail. The article, entitled "Paradoxically Speaking" was branded "foul blasphemy" by Dr. Kirkconnell.

Editor Angus earlier said he examined Flander's article before publication and had understood it perfectly. The charge that it was "blasphemous" was "ridiculous," he said.

Spencer Pans Russian Plan

By KAY MCCOOK
Varsity Staff Reporter

Dulles said "No".
Adenauer said "Nein".
De Gaulle said "Non".
And Prof. R. A. Spencer, of U

of T history department, said "impossible" to Krushchev's proposal to turn Berlin into a neutral city.

"The Berlin crisis is probably insoluble", Prof. Spencer told a meeting of the U of T United Nations Club yesterday.

He proposed military disengagement as the only possible basis of negotiation.

"The Russians are not going to give something away for nothing", Prof. Spencer continued. "Western policy must be firm, yet flexible; we must try to make the Russians commit themselves. Violation of agreements is bad for neutral opinion."

Berliners are more prepared for a blockade today than they were in 1948. They have built up food and fuel stocks and airports are being made ready, he said.

"Krushchev has done us a service. He has made us realize that the stalemate can't continue indefinitely," Prof. Spencer said.

The U.N. can do nothing because it is an issue between the great powers of the Security Council, he concluded.

Courses Abroad

World University Service has announced a new comprehensive, inexpensive program for summer study at European universities.

Programs offered cost from $740-$800 and from 18-36 days, including return flights by BOAC and tuition and living costs during the courses.

Courses offered are: Language and Literature in Vienna, Cannes, Nice, Sorrento, Barcelona; Art and Architecture in Vienna, Prague, Rome, Venice, Naples, Florence, Copenhagen, Stockholm and Barcelona; Music at Salzburg and Passau Festivals; painting at Castiglione, near Pisa.

Air tickets are valid for one year, and a Pay Later plan is available.

Full details and application forms are available at the WUS office, 2 Wilcocks St.

Dissenters Damned

Secular Education Scored

An embarrassed Senate Club last night defended secular education, and went down to defeat before two Trinity debaters. A sparse house at Brennan Hall divided 19-6 against the resolution "That education should be completely secularized."

Gerald Wright (I Trin) speaking for the negative said: "The same misplaced caution that is today shown towards sex and sex education is preventing a forthright attitude on the matter of religion". He said: "The system of education that would exclude the teaching and influence of religion is not adapted to form the minds of students of today and tomorrow."

Thomas McNulty (I SMC), narrowing the view of education, said for the government "Its purpose is to train man to understand his age and the world he lives in." Moral instruction, but not religious training, will be necessary for the fulfillment of the state's primary concern in the education of its members; the development of good citizenship.

A speaker from the floor suggested that the two most prominent examples of complete secularized education are Harvard and Soviet Russia.

News Snaps

Editors to be Tried . . .

The Editor-in-Chief and City Editor of The Ubyssy are to be tried for allegedly stealing a picture from the Student's Union Building at UBC.

Dave Robertson and Kerry Feltham were suspended from the paper Wednesday by Alma Mater Society President Chuck Connaghan for their connection with the theft, described as a "student prank".

Ceylonese Priest . . .

A Ceylonese priest who has achieved international acclaim as a Christian leader will preach at the fourth Hart House all-University Church service this Sunday.

Rev. Celestine Fernando, an Anglican, will deliver the sermon at the 11 a.m. service, to be held in conjunction with the World Day of Prayer for Students.

Floating Crap Games . . .

Fraternities are floating crap games and should be located next to Alcoholics Anonymous, an East Annex resident charged Tuesday.

Howard Black of Lowther Ave. made the charge at a meeting to discuss the rezoning of the Annex area immediately north of Bloor St. to permit fraternity houses.

Individual Roles . . .

Four U of T staff members and a journalist will lead discussion groups at a World University Service Seminar at Caledon this weekend on "The Role of the Individual in International Affairs". Deadline for applications, which may be submitted at the SAC or FROS offices, is 5 p.m. today.

Summer Courses . . .

Dr. C.C. Goldring, former Metro Toronto director of education, Saturday recommended preparatory summer courses for bright high school students entering university. The summer classes should provide a background for university courses, he said in an address to Toronto secondary school teachers.

Here and Now

TODAY

1.10-2 p.m. — Philosophy Prof. E. L. Fackenheim will speak to SCM and FROS on "Is there a religious revival in Canada" at 3 Willcocks St.

3 p.m. — SCM will study "The Life of Jesus" in the SCM office, Hart House.

SATURDAY

9.15 p.m. — Dr. J. Allen Hynek, associate director of the Smithsonian "Institute Astrophysical Observatory and head of the U.S. optical satellite tracking program, will address the Royal Canadian Institute on "Earth Satellites: Frontiers in the Conquest of Space" in Convocation Hall.

SUNDAY

9.15 a.m. — A Canterbury Corporate Communion is planned in Trinity College Chapel.

4-6 p.m. — The Rev. Celesto Fernando, Chaplain to the University of Ceylon, will be special guest at a Canterbury Centre tea, 99 St. George St.

8.30 p.m. — Rev. Fernando will speak again to SCM in the coachhouse, 110 St. George St.

PARK ROAD BAPTIST CHURCH

1 BLOCK N. & E. OF BLOOR-YONGE

Minister: Rev. MURRAY J. S. FORD, M.A., B.D.
VICTOR E. GRAHAM, Organist

SERVICES AT 10:45 a.m. and 7:30 p.m.

A Cordial Invitation to all Students to Attend Inspiring Services

HILLEL

Tonight, Friday, February 13th, 8.30 p.m.
Paper By David Varadi

Sunday Evening, February 15th, 9.00 p.m.
RABBI JORDON PEARLSON

Spiritual Leader, Temple Sinai, Toronto, on
"REFLECTIONS ON REFLECTIONS"

CANADIAN LENTEN BOOK 1959

The Anglican Church of Canada

The Cross, The Eucharist and You

by the Right Rev. M. E. Coleman

An answer to the request from lay persons for clear, deeply doctrinal messages. Meditations for each day in Lent. A guide to a spiritual Lenten pilgrimage.

PRICE: $1.25

available at
CANTERBURY CENTRE, 99 St. George St.
and
ANGELICAN BOOK CENTRE

600 Jarvis Street - Toronto

Telephone WA. 3-0953

ROYAL ONTARIO MUSEUM
BLOOR STREET AND AVENUE ROAD

MASKS

THE MANY FACES OF MAN

FEBRUARY 11TH TO APRIL 5TH
ADULTS 50¢ / STUDENTS 25¢
ACCOMPANIED CHILDREN FREE

TUESDAY TO FRIDAY 10 A.M. - 7 P.M.
SATURDAY 10-5 / SUNDAY 2-5

French Club Backing Montreal Radio Relay

Toronto's 52,000 French-speaking residents may soon be able to hear radio programs in their native tongue.

U of T French Clubs are circulating petitions among U of T students urging that a relay station be set up in Toronto to transmit French programs from Montreal.

Campaign for French programs was started by Mme. M. Sanouillet of the University College French department, editor of the French-language newspaper Les Nouvelles Francaises de Toronto.

Petitions will be forwarded to the CBC.

French programs would "give access to varied manifestations of French and French-Canadian Cultures" with a "subsequent strengthening of Canadian unity", the petition reads.

The petition adds that the French programs should be relayed on an independent wavelength "without inconvenience to other listeners".

Copies of the petition are available in the Students' Administrative Council office for student signatures.

Photo Deadline Today

Hart House photographers who hope to win prizes in the House Photo Contest must submit their entries today, contest officials said last night.

Judges will decide on winning entries Sunday. Awards will be presented at a preview showing Monday night open to entrants and members of the Hart House Camera Club.

The exhibition will open to male students Feb. 17. Dates when women are permitted to view the show will be announced shortly, officials said.

Entry forms may be obtained from the Hart House porter, who will receive all entries.

Society of Friends

(Quakers)

TONIGHT — 8 p.m.

Public Lecture by Sidney Bailey

"The Uses and Abuses of the United Nations"

Room 64—Royal Ontario Museum

Bloor and Queen's Park

University

Lutheran Chapel

SUNDAY SERVICE — 11 a.m.

THURSDAY SERVICE—8 p.m.

Student Club, every 2nd and 4th Thursday at 7.45 p.m.

610 SPADINA (below Harbord)
WA. 2-1884 — WA. 3-6840

ST. ANDREW'S United Church

117 Bloor E., near Yonge St. Subway

Minister:

REV. WILLIAM BRIGGS, M.A., B.D., Ph.D.

Organist and Choir Director: EDGAR GOODAIRE

11 a.m.—"The Cross and Daily Life"

7.30 p.m.—"The Day of Judgment"

Wed. 8.00 p.m. — LENTEN STUDIES

Students cordially invited to attend

Trinity United Church

427 Bloor St. W at Walmer Road

Rev. J. Robt. Watt, BA, BD, Minister

John W. Linn, Organist and Choirmaster

11 a.m. — "Why Be Earthbound"

7.30 p.m. — "My Problem Is . . ."

(3) "I'm Not Really Humble"

8.30 p.m.—Fireside Hour Evening Series based on problems confronting many

Students are cordially invited to attend all services

Trinity College Chapel

WEEKDAY SERVICES

7.30 a.m.—Holy Eucharist
8.45 a.m.—Mattins
6.00 p.m.—Evensong

Tuesdays and Thursdays —

12.15 p.m.—Holy Eucharist

Wednesdays — 8.10 a.m. Holy Eucharist

Sunday Services

8.00 a.m.—Mattins

8.15 a.m.—Holy Eucharist

9.15 a.m.—Holy Eucharist

6.30 p.m.—Evensong

EVERYBODY WELCOME

Knox Presbyterian Church

Spadina and Harbord

Services 11 a.m. and 7 p.m.

Young People's — 8.30 p.m.

"The Christian and Science" with Dr. Bob Jervis of the U.

of T. Chemistry Department

ST. PAUL'S AVENUE ROAD UNITED CHURCH

121 AVENUE RD.

(2 blocks north of Bloor)

Minister

Rev. T. W. HAZELWOOD, B.A., B.D., D.Th.

Student Minister—David Gourlie

SERVICES: 11 a.m. and 7 p.m.

"THE FRIENDLY CHURCH"

THE CHURCH OF THE REDEEMER

At the Head of the Campus

BLOOR and AVENUE RD.

Rector: Rev. Owen P. Prichard, B.A., L.Th.

8 a.m. & 11 a.m. — Holy Communion

7 p.m. — Evening Prayer

Preacher at 11 a.m. & 7 p.m.—The Rector

9 p.m. — Interdenominational Youth Fireside

Wednesday, 12.15 p.m. — Holy Communion

8 p.m. Lenten Service

Organist—A. McKinlay, Mus. Bac.

Bloor St. United Church

300 BLOOR STREET W.

Ministers

Rev. Dr. Ernest Marshall Howse

Rev. J. Stanley Kennedy

Organist and Choirmaster

Frederick C. Silvester

11.00 a.m.

Choosing Our Home

Dr. E. M. Howse

7.00 p.m.

Part One "SAUL"

G. F. Handel

Bloor Street Choir

The Campus Club will meet following the Evening Service.

All students welcome.

Rosedale Presbyterian Church

Mt. Pleasant Rd. (2 blocks north of Bloor, 2 blocks east of Yonge)

Minister: Rev. E. S. MACKAY, M.A.

STUDENT AND COLLEGE'S SUNDAY

11 a.m.—Preacher: Walter McLean, B.A.

7.30 p.m.—Evening Worship beginning with a Lenten series

"The Way of the Cross"

8.30 p.m.—Senior Youth Group

WORLD DAY OF PRAYER

FOR STUDENTS

Sunday, February 15

11.00 A.M.

Great Hall

Hart House

PREACHER

REV. CELESTINE FERNANDO

Chaplain, University of Ceylon

EVERYONE WELCOME

Through Forty Turbulent Years

Dr. H. Bennett

An Academic Career Recalled

By TERRY BOURKE
Varsity Staff Reporter

A lot happened in the last 40 years. Man has struggled through a depression, fought a depression, fought a second World War, seen the splitting of the atom, and taken his first step into space.

The era ushered in television, intercontinental ballistic missiles, supersonic airpower, and the hula hoop.

Somewhere in between the Charleston and rock and roll the inevitable process of education has rolled along.

At the University of Toronto, Dr. Harold Bennett has been part of that process.

This week as Dr. Bennett steps down from his post as the principal of Victoria college, he says farewell to over four decades in the teaching profession.

Good-byes are always hard to say. But for the Doctor it's a little easier. During his 44 years as a professor he has accumulated more happy memories than most men acquire in several lifetimes.

A short, trim, robust man with greying features and sparkling eyes, he smiled when he said, "If I had the chance to live my life over again, my choice would still be the same."

Born in London, England in 1890, he arrived in Canada 12 years later where he began work at a construction firm in Calgary. Persuaded by friends to go east he ended up studying at Victoria college. He graduated in 1915 as top man in the honours class.

Refusing to confine himself to academic studies, he walked off with a tennis championship in 1914. He edited the Acta Victoriana and went on to be named outstanding undergraduate at Vic in 1915.

A lieutenant during the First World War, Dr. Bennett told of his army experiences. "I was the only one who knew how to ride a dispatch bike so they used me to haul whiskey from the base to the colonel's headquarters."

Craving that whiskey over rut-eaten roads was more hazardous than laying cable behind the enemy lines.

Recalling his first teaching assignment, Dr. Bennett said he was "frozen stiff" when confronted with his class.

"All teachers fear the day some student comes up with a question he is unable to answer. I was no exception. I never bluffed. Students have unannounced ways of finding out whether you are on the up and up or not."

He agreed with Claude Dettell that students should be more angular. "However," he said, "students should not be encouraged to be angular just for the sake of doing so."

Asked if today's student is much different from his counterpart of the 20's, the doctor leaned back in his chair, and taking off his glasses said: "Students never really change."

He admits present-day students "never had it so good". He thinks most universities are growing too big and nearing the danger point where all forms of "personal contact between staff and student are being wiped out."

The Doctor has seen 8,000 Varsity students come and go. Looking back, he said his chief impression over the years has been

"the many warm friendships made from working with young men and women in the college."

He was appointed principal in 1951. He had some regrets. "I seemed to lose touch with the students and also the many college board meetings I had to attend were a pain in the neck."

After earning his Ph.D. in classics he headed for the United States where he taught for 14 years. Comparing the two educational systems he said the American student "is more easy-going in his attitude toward studies."

Commenting on the growth of U of T, he said, "The University has changed so much since I first arrived that I doubt a grad of 1920 would recognize the place."

After he leaves the college he plans to spend his time reading, giving occasional lectures, and having long extensions on his bed.

The professor says the modern day student's life is better or ganized than in the past. "Individualism is being discouraged and conservatism stressed as the pass word for any student who wants to plan a secure future." There aren't many "types" left at universities these days, he added.

Mentioning his retirement, Dr. Bennett said when he arrives in heaven he knows "there will be no more partings; but he can only pray there will be no rare meetings."

Dr. Harold Bennett retires this week for a well deserved rest. He has served his students and his staff well. He is more than an individual. He is a tradition. Three generations of Victoria students will remember him as a symbol of the "educational process."

Late for an "meeting" after the interview, he disappeared into the conference room only to appear seconds later. Smiling broadly he looked up and said, "I'm late. They don't want me Good."

AV Records

Long-playing records of AVR production numbers may be available if more applications come in. AVR producer Bill Lord said last night.

The records should cost less than $4 each, he said. "We have to cut at least 50 disks to make the scheme economically feasible. At the moment we have application for 30."

Students wishing records of the show should contact Lord or apply at the Students' Administrative Council office today.

TYPEWRITERS

$1.00 A WEEK BUYS . . .
$1.50 A WEEK RENTS

Get a free typing course and a liberal trade-in allowance for your old typewriter when you buy a new modern machine from us.

Phone HO. 1-1843 Today

ATTENTION All Students and Faculty

You are cordially invited to attend a film and lecture on "The RCAF in the Changing Defence Picture", to be given by Air Commodore J. B. Harvey, of the RCAF's Training Command.

PLACE: Howard Ferguson Hall, University College.

TIME: 7:30 p.m.

Date: Thursday, 19th February.

Refreshments Will Be Served

The Young People of St. George's United Church (corner Latta and Dupont) present

THE BOW AND ARROW Fling

Saturday, Feb. 14th — 8:30 p.m. - 12

$1.75 Per Couple — Semi Formal

ALL STUDENTS WELCOME

The Ukrainian Students' Club presents a

STUDENTS' CONCERT

DATE: SUNDAY, FEBRUARY 15

TIME: 8 p.m.

PLACE: U.N.F. Hall — 297 College Ave.

PROGRAMME: Students' Choir

Soloist — Miss Luba Hanushak

Folk Dancing

Everyone Welcome!

The Canadian Association of Social Workers
and

The Social Planning Council of Metropolitan Toronto INVITE YOU TO

CAREER NIGHT

Tuesday 150 Beverley St.
February 17th, 1959 One Block North of
at 8 p.m. Dundas St.

FIND OUT WHAT SOCIAL WORK IS! — WHAT SOCIAL WORKERS DO!

Co-Ed Queen

She's the queen of the campus, and of course she favors you know what . . . the cold crisp taste of Coca-Cola. She knows that anytime, everywhere, Coke is the real refreshment. We don't say that the secret of her success is Coca-Cola . . . but it helps!

ED REALLY REFRESHED... HAVE A COKE!

SAY "COKE" OR "COCA-COLA"—EOTH TRADE-MARKS MEAN THE PRODUCT OF COCA-COLA LTD.—THE WORLD'S BEST-LOVED SPARKLING DRINK.

FIRST CLOSED BY POLICE

the children's hour

HART HOUSE THEATRE — FEB. 18, 19, 20, 21

Carr Hall — STUDENTS $1 — U.C. Rotunda

tin-can values

The daily newspapers are not getting very excited about it, but all this week a long, bitter battle has been raging in Montreal. The combatants are Britain and the United States. The booty they are quarreling about is a standard short-range navigation aid.

Briefly, the battle line has emerged with the two nations drawn up behind two radically different standards. Britain is loyally devoted to a navigation system called DECCA. The United States is fervently backing a modification of the navigation system they currently use called VOR/DMET.

Upon the International Civil Aviation Organization's decision rests several million dollars, much national pride and the safety of all future civil aviation passengers.

Two committees, composed of delegates from 30 countries, have been drawn up to decide the issue — and even then the debate may not have been settled.

The United States has indicated that even if the ICAO decides to adopt the British system as a standard, American authorities will stick to the VOR/DMET system and require all foreign aircraft entering the United States to be equipped with VOR instruments.

This could lead to costly duplication of electronic devices which civil airlines can ill afford.

The British, fighting for prestige, claim the Americans are sacrificing standards of safety and efficiency to preserve an investment in the VOR system which runs into hundreds of millions of dollars. They accuse the United States of conducting a ruthless drive to protect their investment without regard to which is the best system.

The British claim their system is not only the most efficient at the present, but it will also stand up to the heavy pressure of the future. Airways of tomorrow, crammed with jet traffic, will need a precision in navigation which will not be produced by VOR instruments, the British delegates say.

With the electronic experts of two nations lined up against each other and saying contradictory things, it is far, far beyond our limited ability to make any judgments. But we sincerely hope somebody can.

Our machine-gear society has long prided itself on the theoretical ability to decide important scientific issues by debate, experimentation or rigorous testing programs conducted with that impartiality which is supposed to guide all empirical exploration.

Quarrels still result. No one is, or ever will be, sure whether the Avro Arrow or the American F-106 is the better aircraft, any more than anyone can ever be sure whether Pal or Gillett razor blades produce a smoother chin.

But when the safety of countless thousand human beings is at stake, as it is in Montreal this week, the opposing parties should reject emotional interests of nationalism or economics, and settle the dispute by the most objective and rational means at their disposal.

It would be tragically indicative of our tin-can values if a plane-load of passengers should die just because the aircraft's navigation aid happened to be 'Made in England' or backed by American capital.

AVR Again

Rome Revisited

Swinging into its fourth performance last night, the All-Varsity Revue was a toga with much smoother seams and cleaner hems than the garment dangled before the audience's faces last Monday.

The main improvement comes in the first act. Writers Dick Dean and Stan Farrow, forced to feed information through to the audience before the plot could be developed, originally gave us four scenes of male song and dialogue before the first pretty female leg was allowed to tap the Hart House stage. Heavy with corny jokes and straight information, the act was dull and despondent, rolling irregularly like some clumsy ionic column down the Vestal temple steps.

A few judicious cuts, a little trimming and the telescoping of two scenes into one have changed all this. The act still has its heavy moments, but altogether it is far smoother, and judging by last night's audience, more entertaining.

As could be expected, all the leads have much more confidence and sureness than they did last Monday. Timing has improved, and lines once delivered with tentative indecision now have the quality and punch behind them to push the show beyond the footlights and into the audience's laps — which in the case of the Vestal chorus, is where we want it.

Ruth Ann Scott as Julia and Sandra Stevenson as Lucia still shine as the show's brightest assets. But it is no longer true to say the rest of the cast are swinging on the hems of their delightfully frail gowns.

Miss Stevenson, with bright, dancing eyes and a naughty, coy grin is the most amusing musical comedienne to prance across the Hart House stage in years, while Miss Scott, with her enchanting voice, proved a perfect contrast.

"Have Toga, Will Travel" is certainly not the best show ever to be produced on this campus. Its book is still weak and the choreography is interesting but not scintillating. But the score is excellent, the pace spontaneous and the cast spirited and enthusiastic. With most of the bumps knocked out of it, it cannot fail to be entertaining.

—Doug Marshall

Our Readers Write:

Battle of Bikel

Dear Sir:

Peeter Sepp has done it again. He has managed to write a review of a programme such that it appears as if he did not attend it, fell asleep before it began, or just lacks the qualities suitable to a proper appreciation of the offerings. Otherwise I cannot imagine what could have inspired him to write as he did concerning Theodore Bikel's concert of folk-songs.

I attended that concert, as Mr. Sepp may have done, and found not only an amazing variation among Mr. Bikel's selection, but a versatility in the performer that, in itself, would have kept the evening from being a "dreadfully boring affair". Mr. Bikel is a fine actor, a world-traveller, a master of intimacy even in a setting as impersonal as Eaton Auditorium.

This is, of course, my own impression of the quality of his performance, but I have reason to believe that it was a fairly widespread impression. The people around me felt it, especially a gentleman of somewhat advanced years who was so enraptured by the Yiddish and European selections that Mr. Bikel sang, that he found it hard to restrain his own desire to hum along. At the same time, this gentleman was as enthusiastic about the Scottish and Irish songs and the American Civil War ballad, Two Brothers, despite the fact that they were not of the tradition in which he was raised.

But this type of approval was not peculiar to the section of the theatre in which I was sitting. The comments to be heard in the lobby at intermission and after the programme, and the enthusiastic and spontaneous applause that followed each of Mr. Bikel's offerings were most articulate spokesmen for his vast appeal.

What I find so inconceivable is how Mr. Sepp could have been so imperceptive as to equate the style inherent in Mr. Bikel's renditions of a Mexican and some Russian folk-songs. This remark is so far beyond my comprehension that I can attribute it only to a possible jading of Mr. Sepp's musical ear. And as for the charge that the Russian songs weren't "Russian enough", I believe such a charge should be levelled against the Russians themselves, but Mr. Bikel cannot be held responsible for that.

What amazed me was Mr. Bikel's ability, despite his native accent, to effect the accents required by his songs. His Scottish and Irish dialects were remarkably good and his attempt at the Norwegian accent was as precise as I have ever heard. Again, either Mr. Sepp is imperceptive or ultra-perceptive. The former, I think.

There were moments in which I might have felt a bit of a let-down. After all, Mr. Bikel is not a god and he is subject to error. I believe his attempts to display his prowess as a harmonist and a one-man band were in poor taste, but it is a failing he realized and which was not intense enough to detract from the generally high tone of his performance.

Speaking as a member of the "IN Group", I thank Mr. Bikel for a most enjoyable evening. And I thank Mr. Sepp for this opportunity, no matter how negatively offered, to express my appreciation of a fine performance.

Marv Schiff,
Phil and Eng IV
University College

THE EMBLEM

An essay in E flat minor, dedicated to the Native Sons, to non-native sons and to the sons of the natives.

Effluence! It is exuded extravertically, it has elapsed egotically: it is evocatively extended.

Either elation or elision
emaciates and embarrasses.
The emblem, encore, exhausts the Englishness, and the enigma, exasperates the eremites.

Do entreaties equalize the ethnological?
Does etiology evanesce?

Evade not this event:
evil evokes and exacerbates.
And enjoy this enactment:
to enkindle the Easter embrace,
to elucidate, to effuse, to effulge, to embellish the escutcheon and to clope with Elysium;
to emanate elixir, to energize, to engage,
to enlarge and to encompass.
And to experience endlessly, and to extol.

Philomythes.

THE VARSITY

FOUNDED 1880

Published by

The Students' Administrative Council
of the University of Toronto
Toronto 5, Canada

Member Canadian University Press

Editorial and News Office

Basement, SAC Building — WA 3-8742, WA 3-5113

Editor-in-Chief
Managing Editor
Editor-without-portfolio
News Editor
Associate News Editors
Sports Editor
Associate Sports Editors
Publicity Editor
Features Editor
Co-AM&D Editors
CUP Editor
Photo Editor
Make-up Editor
Staff Cartoonists
Mortician

Doug Marshall
Mark Nichols
Sam Aizenstat
Harvey Shepherd
Ed Roberts and Al Walker
John Brooks
Dave Guiner and Gene Glicky
Susie Breslin
Liz Binks
Marian Talbot and Warren Wilson
Vicky Innes
Mike Cavanagh
Nancy Takeuchi
Marg McMeekin and Sheldon Greenberg
Roger Wild

Today's Issue: Bill Musgrove, Kay McCook, Debbie Halper, Bob Pinto, Moishe Reiter, Terry Bourke, Morgan Tamplin, Earl Foley, Vince Kelly, Mary Hull, Joe Gill, a tape recorder, a galaxy of hitherto-undiscovered voices and Radio-CVAR.
Photography this Issue: Laurie Drummond

A MASKED BALL

This is 1959—and the Royal Ontario Museum presents a new and dramatic exhibition—Masks: The Many Faces of Man.

Man has used masks for some 15,000 years, and the present exhibit covers a period of over 3,000, and consists of examples collected from all corners of the globe—The New World, Oceania, Africa, The East near and far, and Europe.

The mask has four fundamental purposes, all of which possess a parallel in modern life. The first is the achievement of a personality transformation or modification by the person who wears the mask in conjunction with a costume. The mask however is the essential element, for its features represent the being or spirit imagined to be present. While the mask itself represents a new being, it only finds meaning when used in association with some ritual, for the new being must perform. Great emphasis is placed on tradition, convention, and symbolism in primitive ritual. This same emphasis permeates behaviour patterns in modern society. The dramatic mask developed from the mask used in ritual performances, and was used by the ancient Greeks in their plays, which were originally religious rites. The use of the Greek mask was revived for the Stratford Festival production of "Oedipus Rex" in 1954, and the Oedipus robe and mask can be observed in the exhibition. The mask of the old man presented on the left of this review is an eighteenth century example of the dramatic mask used in the Japanese Noh plays.

The second use of the mask is found in the preservation of personality, a practice exemplified by Pre-Columbian and Egyptian mummification. The practice originates in the belief that if the dead are to continue to live, their personalities must be continually revitalized. Death masks are still made, but more frequently personality preservation is achieved through busts and statues.

The third use of the mask is that of concealment for either frivolous or serious purposes. Exhibited examples of these are found in the secret society ritual masks of the North-west Coast Indians. Children of modern society still use such masks to obtain the perennial jelly-bean at Hallowe'en.

The fourth use of the mask was that of protection, either through complete facial coverage, or symbolic representation on warrior shields and spears. Masks used in this way were meant to frighten the observer, and thus ward off evil spirits. The modern protective mask is a utilitarian device used in the battles of fire and men.

The basic uses of the mask are elaborated upon in the well-designed catalogue, and mention is given to the use of the mask as decoration. Although a sense of humour and aesthetic appreciation preserve the ornamental mask, their original significance is obscured.

Undoubtedly the determining factor in the success of the exhibition lies in the primeval quality of the display designed by Harley Parker. The depth of the jungle is achieved by darkened lighting effects, and the mystery by recordings of drums and chants: all provide a mysterious interlude in time and space.

The Canadian public owes much to the inspiration of Mr. Theodore Heinrich and to all those who helped to make it a reality. Liza Wilson Exhibition Dates — February 11 - April 5.

Hours — 10 a.m. - 7 a.m. Tuesday to Friday.

10 a.m. - 5 p.m. Saturday.
2 p.m. - 5 p.m. Sunday.

The AM&D section's pet project for this month, its haiku-writing contest, will award prizes for the best three entries. The prize, like the judging panel, has not yet been chosen, but aspiring young writers may be assured that whatever it is, it will be worth many yen.

Bravi's greet Toronto Choir's Requiem

"It is more than a book, it is a consolation for mankind," wrote Verdi about Alessandro Manzoni's "I Promessi Sposi". The composer's admiration for his literary counterpart of the ottocento amounted to hero worship; in one of his letters Verdi writes: "How I envy my wife because she saw that great man." When Manzoni died Verdi was disconsolate, and when the grief wore off slightly he resolved to write a Requiem, which he felt would outlast all his other works, not because of its merit, but because of the illustrious man to whom it was dedicated.

The Requiem has been little understood and has often been abused by insular liturgists with thirteenth-century minds. The work is undeniably operatic; in fact it has sometimes been referred to as "Verdi's best opera"; but it was never intended as liturgical music. However, after the performance at Massey Hall on Wednesday night, a couple of thousand people will avow that it provides an overwhelming aesthetic and religious experience.

The Toronto Mendelssohn Choir trained by Frederick Silvester, and the Toronto Symphony Orchestra, under the baton of Walter Susskind, worked many hours to achieve an insight into this masterpiece — and the results were more than satisfying. The Requiem is the most difficult work that the choir has tackled in years; the fugal passages of the Sanctus and the finale are treacherous rapids, and the choir showed great skill in navigating them. Lillian Weichel, soprano, Irene Looseberg, mezzo, Richard Cassilly, tenor, and Donald Gramm, bass, were the four soli.

The marking word which appears most often in Verdi's score is "cupo" — hollow, mournful, etc. A persistent flaw throughout the performance was the overlooking of this word by orchestra, chorus and soli at different times. The muted cello opening should sound as if the orchestra were in a large, deep grave, with the audience peering over the edge—all this is contained in the word "cupo".

In the a cappella passages of the Introit the choir display, besides its precision, its anglicized Latin. The clear, powerful attack of the basses in the Te Deum showed the superiority of that section of the choir.

Mr. Cassilly's first lines afforded him an opportunity to display at considerable volume his beautiful tenor voice, when he soared above orchestra and chorus in the Kyrie. Not until later did the other soli come close to equalling Mr. Cassilly's performance in the first part of the work. Later on in the Offertory quartet he seemed unable to vary the quality of his tone to correspond to the text and constantly seemed to be forcing his voice, which was entirely unnecessary.

The Dies Irae is by far the highlight of the work, awe-inspiring, hair-raising and ear-splitting! The solidity and power which filled the performance is a tribute to Mr. Susskind. At the end the hall was filled with gasps for breath. The orchestral playing was excellent—especially the strings—sliding downward in a chromatic rush as if the wings of angels were brushing past, borne on fierce gusts of air and startled by claps of thunder, the beats of the great drum.

The bass, Donald Gramm was always in excellent voice and control, except for his failure to observe the "cupo" marking at the beginning of his famous solo, the Mors Stupebit; the word Mors is repeated three times at the beginning and end, and not once did he deepen or vary his intonation.

Lillian Weichel, the soprano, produced some of the most beautiful, soaring high notes in the performance, but her lower register was often inaudible. Mezzo-soprano, Irene Looseberg did exceedingly well in the Liber Scriptus during which the Dies Irae reappears in a difficult and startling transition.

Webber,

CURRENT AND CHOICE

RHOA: Last concert for this season, The Royal Conservatory Opera School Chorus joins Boyd Neel to perform Bach's "Peasant Cantata" and Schubert's Mass No. 2. Student tickets, at $1.00 apiece, may be obtained at the hall porter's lodge or at the door. These concerts will be continued next year, and nominations are open for next year's executive. Those interested should contact John Runge at HU. 1-6972. Elections will be held later this month.

UT Film Society: There will be no showing this Sunday. Instead, I VITELLONI will be shown February 22. DAY OF WRATH is scheduled for March 22.

Dale Memorial Lecture:

Donald Davis of the Crest Theatre will deliver this year's lecture on the Canadian Theatre 1946-1959 in Hart House Theatre, Monday, February 16 at 5 p.m. Admission free.

Baroque Trio of Montreal:

will present works by Purcell, Bach, Telemann and Handel in the Great Hall, Hart House, Sunday, February 15, 9 p.m.

Hollywood String Quartet:

At the Conservatory Recital Hall tonight and tomorrow night, 8:30 p.m. Program will include Haydn, Kodaly, Mozart and Brahms.

The Children's Hour:

Both the UC and SMC Theatre Guilds have united to present Lillian Hellman's controversial thriller of lesbianism in a girls' school from February 18-21 at Hart House Theatre. Student tickets are $1.00 apiece.

HAIKU: The Varsity Haiku contest runs until Friday, February 13. See box 1.

sorry to spoil your fun, but . .

Re: yesterday's "Coreography" review; having seen Angela Leigh perform a very delightful, chaste Chiorina in LE CARNAVAL, I am astonished at the glib phrase, "the slut-like approach to all (her) roles." Perhaps the reviewer is basing this observation on personal knowledge of Miss Leigh; not having any such relationship, I can only disagree violently with such sweeping generalization.

Also, much as the editors of the AM&D page are grateful that Mr. Elmo Ciprietti has returned to the fold, we cannot let him escape with at least one serious error in his review of "Madama Butterfly". If Mr. Ciprietti had studied the activities of the opening night of the opera more carefully, he would have noticed that Arturo Toscanini did not conduct the premiere, that in fact he had refused to have anything to do with the opera, which he felt a very inferior Puccini work. An expectant father conducting a performance in which his mistress was starred may make a good story, but one which is after all, stranger than truth. WWW

The above picture features the soprano, Luba Hanushak, who will be the soloist at the Ukrainian Students' Concert on Sunday, February 15th. The concert will be held at the Ukrainian National Federation Auditorium (297 College St.) at 8 p.m.

The Ukrainian Students' Chorus made their most recent appearance at the International Students' Festival. Under the direction of the Rev. Sahajdakivski, the Chorus will perform a large selection of Ukrainian songs — many of these folk songs — and a poem by the great Ukrainian poet, Taras shevchenko, set to music.

The attractive soloist, Miss Hanushak, is already known to Toronto audiences for her performances in this season's Opera Festival and most recently she was seen in the outstanding television production of Benjamin Britten's "Peter Grimes".

Swim Carnival Tickets . . .

Plans for the Varsity swim team's Water Carnival on March 6 and 7 are moving well. Coach Bill Yorzyk reported yesterday, with the tickets ready to go on sale this afternoon.

The following faculty and college representatives will have tickets, and these may be purchased any time from 6:30 p.m. today on:

Skule, John Ridpath; Trinity.

Ron Walbank; Medicine, John Gossage; Architecture, Alex Chin; Victoria, Dave Harvey; University College, John Deacon; Pharmacy, Dave McIntyre; St. Mike's, Mike Mungovan; Nursing, Art Blinner; Dentistry, Mike Stupicic.

In addition, a block of tickets will be placed in the Students' Administrative Council building, and will be available there from 9 a.m. Monday.

The Carnival, which is expected to run about two hours, will be held in the Hart House pool. Each performer coming to the event will be on the program each night.

Among those attending: Manuel Sanguily, Carin Cone, Don Harper, Bill Yorzyk, Johnny Collins, Janet Medland and George Breen. There will be water polo, aqua-lung demonstrations, and synchronized swimming, as well.

The Sports Editor played "hockey" (with a tennis ball, yet) at 1 a.m. this fine Friday. He will not be at the meeting today. He may not even be out of bed. He may not even be looking for a job, there aren't any. If any staffers come down looking for the Sports Editor, he ain't. They've buried him with his blasted tape recorder.

EATON'S

shows the freshest 'one-upper' in Spring wind-breakers — its trim male styling a fine result of the bur-inspired "Velcro" closure.

The "Velcro" closes quickly and firmly as a bur, without the delays and protrusions caused by buttons . . . stays that way until you're ready to unbur it. Wash or dry clean. Three iridescent shades: charcoal, navy or bronze. "Velcro" nylon-tape "burs" should last as long as the sturdy rayon-satin lined, nylon-and-cotton shell. Sizes 38 to 46.

each 27.50

Phone UN 1-5111

Men's Clothing
Eaton's Main Store
Second Floor Dept. 229

Judo Tournament

Tomorrow morning, University of Toronto's five man judo team leave for Kingston, to participate in the first competition of its kind Varsity athletes have ever carried the blue and white colors.

The tournament, held under the auspices of Queen's University judo club, will host clubs from Ryerson, McGill, Queens and Toronto. Although this will be strictly an exhibition tourney, all wins shall be tabulated and a winning club declared.

The Varsity is represented by Tony Grey (green belt), Jack Wojciechowski (green belt), Keith Norris (green belt), Ray Blomme (orange belt) and Gord Germaine (orange belt).

The U of T club has been active for well over a year, and has finally gained recognition from the athletic directorate. Unfortunately, however, no funds will be forthcoming this year, so that all expenses incurred this trip are being shared by the enthusiastic and devoted members of this relatively new campus sport.

Coaching the club this year is a well known figure in Canadian judo circles, Frank Hatashita holds a fourth degree belt in judo (a sixth degree belt is a high as the best in the world usually obtain), was twice all-Canadian judo champ, and is at present involved in organizing judo clubs across Canada.

An energetic and dedicated executive of the Varsity club is busily arranging for a return tournament here in Toronto, and if all goes well, an intercollegiate league is hoped for next year.

GAMES TODAY

HOCKEY	8:00 Vic. IV	vs.	SPS. VII	McEligott, Cunn
	12:30 Dent. A	vs.	Tin. A	Downey, Brewer
	1:30 SPS VI	vs.	UC III	Downey, Brewer
WATER POLO	1:00 Med. II	vs.	SPS. II	J. Base, The Inch
	BASKETBALL MAJOR LEAGUE
	1:00 SPS. VIII	vs.	UC VI	Fireman, T. effer
BASKETBALL MINOR LEAGUE (HART HOUSE)	1:00 I CIVIL A	vs.	Tin. B	Denov

WOMEN'S ATHLETICS

VOLLEYBALL

All the games are at L.M.
Mon. Feb. 16 5-6 St. Michael's I - St. Hilda's I
6-7 St. Hilda's I - Pharm
7-8 Vic III - Meds
Tues. Feb. 17 5-6 St. Michael's II - Vic III
7-8 U.C. - FOT I
Wed. Feb. 18 5-6 Vic IV - Pharm
Thurs. Feb. 19 5-6 U.C. - Vic I
Since this is the last week of games before the play-offs, I would like to thank all the players and managers for making this an enjoyable season.—Juta Lau

HOCKEY

Week of Feb. 16th	Visiting	Home Team
Mon. Feb. 16	Nursing	Vic II
	St. Hilda's I	UC I
Tues. Feb. 17	St. Hilda's II	Meds
Wed. Feb. 18	POT II	Pharm
Thurs. Feb. 19	PHE	St. Mike's

ALL-DAY MILDNESS

Black Cat PLAIN CORK FILTER

UNIVERSITY BLAZERS

Custom Made

Especially Priced for Students
$27.50

Fine Flannel Worsted Trousers
$16.50

Business Hours: 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.
Monday through Saturday

Suits made to measure
latest styles and design

PARNES Clothing Co.

706 QUEEN STREET WEST

EM 6-2025

Sample at S.A.C. Office

EXPORT "A"
CIGARETTES

O'Keefe
Old Vienna
BREWERY LIMITED

- In 1921, 264,879 Canadian babies born
- In 1926 only 17.8% Canadian babies born in hospitals

- In 1956, 450,739 babies born in Canada
- Over 85% of Canada's babies born in hospitals

Blues Are Going Going, Going Gone

Almost

By GENE GLISKY
Associate Sports Editor

GO BLUES GO is a chant that began when Whitby paid us a visit back in the good old days. So the Blues went, and are still going.

Mike Elik went to Cleveland. Bill Kennedy is going to Whitby. Harry Neale is going to Sudbury. Ron Casey is going to Kitchener. Waterhouse and even maybe the Leafs yet, while Dave (our Red) Stephen, is going to Kitchener. Waterloo. Coach Jack Kennedy is going, going, going.....nuts?

They are going to play hockey. What else? But before you ardent Varsity hockey fans have kittens, rest assured. None of them intend to leave until the Intercollegiate season ends. Phew!

Blues take on the highly consistent McGill Redmen in an 8 o'clock thriller at the arena tonight. Redmen have been consistently clobbered in every game to date, although they've shown signs of life in the latter two.

The backbone (to hear McGill say it) of the Redmen's defensive system is goalie Alex Herron. The child prodigy has let in 71 goals in eight games. Aiding Herron in this courageous effort is veteran captain Terry Dingle who has amassed 68 minutes in penalties in eight games.

Blue are going into this contest minus two regular forward stars. Injured, are Bill (Bear) Kennedy, and John (Captain) Macdonald. Kennedy, although skating about in his Olympic Drinking Team sweater, is refraining, on doctor's orders, from any body contact. Macdonald is still limping badly following an injury in the last Whitby contest.

Up front Blues have completely revamped lineup. Stephen has been moved up to center between Brodie and Casey.

Grant Mills has been switched from left wing to center between Tom Watt and Don Fleming.

Terry Wensley, the right winger with the locks of a movie idol, has been recruited from the Rinkies. Autographs after the game girls!

Only the sprightly kid-line goes into action unscarred and undaunted. Howie Roth, Doug Williams and Jim Brooks are still buddies.

Buffalo Bounces Blues Rinkies Downed Also

By WELDON THOBURN
Varsity Staff Reporter

University of Toronto lost two exhibition basketball games Wednesday night to highly-rated University of Buffalo. Varsity seniors were defeated 63-38 and the Intermediates were outpointed 77-40.

Kuadowski was high scorer for the American team with 14 points. Luckily for the Blues, Tontillo, a potential all-American forward and Buffalo's leading scorer, had a bad night, gathering only one point on a free throw.

The experienced team from across the border had full control of the play throughout the game. Toronto's guards, who usually account for a good portion of the Blues' points, were checked so closely that they had trouble shooting at all.

Golding, as usual, was high man for U of T with 16 points. However, his check was also scoring quite regularly.

Four Intermediates were used by coach John McManus in the senior encounter. Mike Muir, an impressive half with the football Rinkies last fall, managed to score two baskets.

Toronto was handicapped by the absence of four players, including Curt Russell with a badly sprained ankle. Dalt White will be pleased to know that he will be fully recovered by next September.

Buffalo wasn't taking any chances of men fouling out early or being injured and lined their bench with 11 reserves.

The Intermediates were similarly outclassed by the taller and more experienced U of B Freshman team. Toronto didn't fare too badly considering that the American team uses Athletic scholarships to lure the best players from upper New York.

The two teams travel to London tomorrow and Windsor Saturday. Western, only two points behind the leading Lancers in the Senior division, won't be easing up and the Blues will have to be on their toes to stay in the game. Similarly, Assumption Lancers will be intent on keeping first place in their hands.

U of T's hopes for a basketball title now rest on the shoulders of the Intermediates. With a double win this weekend they could clinch a tie for first place with Assumption.

Senior Game

Toronto (38)—Menzel, 1; Potter, 3; Richman, 7; Norman, 4; Maguire, 3; Goldring, 16; Muir, 4; Ouchterlony; Mine, Jack.

Intermediate Game

Buffalo (67)—Lewis, 6; Roinski; Robee, Masotti, 10; Kuadowski, 14; Walker, 4; Kirchberger, 5; Norton, 2; Hailing; Tontillo, 1; Mallow, 11; Schaper, 4; Dubois, Pomplonski, 3; Parr, 2.

Toronto (40)—Schaefer, 6; Kostyk; Muir, 5; Jack, 8; Miner, 6; McEneaney, 4; Crouse, 4; Ouchterlony; Probert; Patterson, 4.

Buffalo (77)—Shoshko, 20; Chavon; Filipiuk, 8; Herring, 6; Gunn, 16; Thiele, 7; Fulton, 4; Monksch, 4; Farness, 6; Witkonski, 4.

Sports' Parade 40 Years Ago

From The Varsity Files
February 13, 1919

Why do women differ from men in their keenness? I guess I've been trying to answer this all year, but to show you there really is a problem, here's how it looks:

Starting in the Intercollegiate level, every year the men have an increasing number of participants trying out for teams. This fall, at least 60 men were out practising football for over two hours a night. Of course, this means that more players have to be cut, but it also means that you're getting better players. I guess the results prove that.

But regardez les femmes. There certainly isn't any great excess of people floating about the swimming pools, or on the basketball courts. Intercollegiate hockey has disappeared; fencing is nearly out of sight, too; almost all you have to do to make the swim team is turn out to practices.

It's the same story on the Interfaculty level. Even the lower level of Inter-year sports adds no attraction.

The men even have extra odds 'n ends, like midnight games at the Arena. Have you ever heard of the Mad Hatters, or the BHAAA? Probably not, but believe me, they have more fun in their activities than even THEY ever expected. And all they are is a group of guys interested in hockey, or a "house" forming an Amateur Athletic Association. This would be non-existent and beyond thought in women's sport.

What's the matter, ladies? The Pharmacy women have enthusiasm. The gals in PHE have enthusiasm. Sure, that's their course, but ask them how they like it. And ask the men how they like all their activities. They love it!

The only real excuse for non-participation is "I don't want to". And this is what I don't understand. All it is, is a bunch of pseudo-sophistication, College "airs". Wake up, oh "elevated" ones. That's not what's going to get you a man — or a degree — or anything, for that matter.

I guess I just don't understand female apathy. It's like beating your head on a brick wall.

... and in this corner

by pam hill

BLUES' defensive stalwart Neil Munro's protruding eyes and tongue evidence his concentration as he picks the puck off the boards. Blues meet McGill tonight at eight o'clock in the arena.

Intermediate Swimmers Defeat TCS Handily

University of Toronto Baby Blues handed Trinity College School, of Port Hope, its first swimming loss in over two years and shattered a 22-meet win streak for the TCS crew. Final score was 40-28.

Varsity captured both relay events, taking the 200-yard medley in 1:57.8 minutes, and the 200-yard sprint in 1:47.2. George Milne was the only Baby Blue to swim on both quartets.

Nick Thierry was on the medley team, and also captured the 200-yard backstroke, finishing half a second ahead of Trinity's Davis in 66.5 seconds.

Art Binner won the 50-yard freestyle, outdistancing Bannerman and Vanstone of TCS to the wire. Binner covered the distance in 25.7 seconds.

Joe Jany was another individual standout for Varsity, swimming on the medley relay team, and racing to victory in the 50-yard breaststroke event. Jany's time was 34.6 seconds, two full seconds ahead of team-mate Ken Currie.

200-yard medley relay: 1. Toronto (Thierry, Jany, Milne, Moore), 2. Trinity. Time, 1:57.8.

200-yard freestyle: 1. Warner (TCS); 2. Ashenbush; (T) 3. Thompson (T). Time, 2:10.0.

50-yard freestyle: 1. Binner (T); 2. Bannerman (TCS); 3. Vanstone (TCS). Time, 25.7.

50-yard butterfly: 1. Milne (T); 2. David (TCS); 3. Wil (T). Time, 29.1.

100-yard freestyle: 1. Warner (TCS); 2. Ashenbush (T); 3. Moore. Time, 56.5.

200-yard backstroke: 1. Thierry (T); 2. Davis (TCS); 3. Patterson (T). Time, 66.5.

50-yard breaststroke: 1. Jany (T); 2. Currie (T); 3. Conlan (TCS). Time, 34.6.

200-yard sprint relay: 1. Toronto (Milne, Binner, Schaefer, Patterson); 2. Trinity. Time, 1:47.2.

Point Totals: 1. Toronto 40; 2. Trinity 28.

Late Goal Puts Victoria In Playoffs

A breakaway goal with less than two minutes left in the game gave Victoria a 3-2 win in a group 1 hockey game yesterday, and clinched the third and last playoff spot for the Red and Gold.

Peter Godsoe was the marksman who climaxed an uphill struggle for Vic as they battled to eliminate the Engineers.

Just three minutes earlier, Bill Griffin had tied the game at 2-2 with a 60 footer that the SPS goalie never saw.

The two late goals turned a terrific performance by Don Keenan in the Engineers' nets, despite being badly outplayed, the Skule team had managed to hold a 2-1 lead almost to the end.

Patterson and Gray scored for SPS while Doidge tallied the first Vic score.

Keenan was largely responsible for the close score. With any luck at all, Vic would probably have won by 6 goals.

SPS Sixths bowed to Vic Fourths 26-25 in a major league basket ball contest. McElhenney led the winners with 13 points; Armitage tallied 13 for Skule.

In minor league action, Vic Victors defeated Meds 1st yr. 34-21. Smith scored 16 for the winners.

SPS III walloped Meds II 9-3 in water polo action. Lewis (4), Bulley (3), Kovacs and Ridler scored for the winners; Partek, Spooner, and Goldman hit for the losers.

Jr SPS defeated UC II 3-0 in squash action.

Gael Gals Net Victors

Queen's University was host for the Women's Intercollegiate badminton tournament last week-end. Although Toronto has held top spot in this realm in past years, they had to succumb to the home team and second place this year.

Pat Wood and Dorothy Vernon played in the doubles and won three out of five games.

The big word this week-end is "volleyball". The team is hosting McMaster, Western, McGill, O.A.C. and Queen's for the Intercollegiate tourney. Games are being played at the Teacher's College tonight and tomorrow morning, with a banquet-luncheon to celebrate the affair.

College Editors Speak...

CUP Roundup

By VICKY INNES
Varsity CUP Editor

Because the university is, by definition, a "seat of higher learning", extra-curricular activities often take a back seat to academic work.

But for a few days every year, student politicians let loose their pentup feelings in a torrent of activity channelled into an institution known as Model Parliament.

The Mount Allison Argosy, Events took a new turn at Queens' University when the three national political parties withdrew from this year's Model Parliament because two new parties were formed.

"Their course of action . . . shirks their basic responsibility, that of rationally disseminating and synthesizing a sensible national policy," said the Journal about the action.

"Costumed dancers, vulgar flags, binocular wielding M.P.'s and vile abductions marked last year's Model Parliament which comprised only the three."

The Ryersonian claimed "student disinterest was to blame for the emergence of the degenerate one-party acclamation" of last year's election.

Gateway editors at the University of Alberta believed brass bands and kick lines have their place on the political scene. Campus politics "may retain all of the intrigues and most of the policies of serious, "practical" politics, but "will never be without its farcical side".

But after all, said the Brunswickian, quoting Lawrence A. Kimpton, chancellor of the U of Chicago, "sedition is for sissies, and in great universities, chaos must continue."

HART HOUSE

TODAY:

LIBRARY RECORD HOUR: "THE LADY'S NOT FOR BURNING" 1.15 p.m. — Record Room.

CLOSING DATE FOR ENTRIES TO THE 37th PHOTOGRAPHIC EXHIBITION TO BE HELD NEXT WEEK IN THE HART HOUSE ART GALLERY — TODAY, 6 p.m.

SUNDAY, 15th FEBRUARY:

ALL UNIVERSITY RELIGIOUS SERVICE, 11.00 a.m., GREAT HALL. PREACHER: REV. CELESTINE FERNANDO, CHAPLAIN, UNIVERSITY OF CEYLON. WORLD DAY OF PRAYER FOR STUDENTS.

BAROQUE TRIO OF MONTREAL
(Flute, Oboe, Harpsichord)

THIS SUNDAY IN THE GREAT HALL, 9.00 p.m.
TICKETS AVAILABLE TO ALL MEMBERS OF THE HOUSE FROM THE HALL PORTER'S DESK. WOMEN ARE MOST WELCOME IF ESCORTED BY A MEMBER.

NEXT WEEK IS NOMINATIONS WEEK IN THE HART HOUSE ELECTIONS. PICK UP NOMINATION FORM AND FULL INFORMATION ABOUT THE ELECTIONS FROM THE UNDERGRADUATE OFFICE.

THE THIRD ERNEST DALE MEMORIAL LECTURE

"A View of the Theatre from 1946-1959"

GUEST SPEAKER — DONALD DAVIS
OF THE CREST

Hart House Theatre
Monday, February 16

At 5 p.m.

ADMISSION FREE

Counsellors

Camp Arowhon

Algonquin Park

HU. 7-0311

The Modern Sound of Jazz

HOUSE OF HAMBOURG

New Location — Ward-Price Galleries
23 Grenville Street
(One block north of College between Yonge and Bay)

TONIGHT—MIDNIGHT to 4 A.M.
Butch Watanabe Ron Rully
Bill Britto Ed Bickert
Jimmy Coxon Don Thompson
Jack Lander

SATURDAY, MIDNIGHT to 4 A.M.
Norm Amadio Butch Watanabe
Alex Lazaroff Harold Holmes
Ed Bickert Jack Lander
Don Thompson

SUNDAY NIGHT
9 P.M. TO 12:30 A.M.
Jerry Toth Roy Smith
Ron Rully Ed Bickert
Jack Lander

Free Parking Opposite
Information and Reservations
WA. 3-6068

CLASSIFIED ADS.

$1 DOWN BUYS ANY MAKE
Brand new typewriters. $59 up
Some models $30 off. Free home demonstration. Free typing course
1959 models rented, lowest rates
375 Jane-Humber, RO 6-1103.

TYPIST (Electric)
Fast, accurate, personalized service. Theses, essays, letters, dictation. Reasonable rates. Irene Kenyon, 146 Bernard Avenue, WA 3-4011.

WANTED
Accurate manuscript typist. Acquainted with contemporary literature. 6-8 hours daily for approximately 2 weeks. Rate of payment open to discussion. RU 1-8977 evenings.

FURNISHED APARTMENT TO LET
Available March 1st to June 15th. Walking distance from University. Call after 7 p.m., WA 2-2338.

TUTOR IN MATHEMATICS
Honour Maths and Physics graduate will coach in undergraduate mathematics including calculus, geometry, differential equations. Individual instruction: WA. 2-0805.

LOST
Large Carington brooch. Museum Theatre, Thursday, Feb. 5. Dianne, HO. 6-4812.

NORTH TORONTO
Attractive 3-room flat equipped with modern stove and refrigerator. Close to transportation and new Dominion Store. Baby welcome. HU. 3-6655.

C.B.C. CELEBRITY SERIES

presents

RUDOLF FIRKUSNY, Piano

in the Great Hall, Hart House

FEBRUARY 18th at 8 p.m.

Tickets available in the Rotunda at Hart House, Fri., Feb. 13th, 12-2 p.m. and 5-6 p.m., or from the Hall Porter, Monday, Feb. 16 and Tuesday, Feb. 17.

Men and Women Invited

Free

J. Paul Sheedy's* Hair Looked Fowl Till He Pecked Up Some Wildroot Cream-Oil!

One day Sheedy's best friend decided to set him straight. "Paul", he said, "people are starting to make yokes about your sloppy appearance. There's no eggcase for such messy hair. Here you've got a built-in comb and still your hair's a fright." "I know", clucked Sheedy, "wattle I do about it!" "Get yourself some Wildroot Cream-Oil", advised his friend. So Sheedy got some and now his hair looks eggactly right all day. . . near but never greasy. Follow Sheedy's eggxample. Get a bottle or tube of Wildroot Cream-Oil. Guaranteed to make your hair look healthy and handsome!

*of 131 So. Harris Hill Rd., Williamsville, N. Y.

Wildroot Cream-Oil
gives you confidence

student travel

EUROPE

1959

Conducted Tour Sailings . . .

June 16, 19 and July 10

Ask for descriptive folder

UNIVERSITY TRAVEL CLUB LTD. UTCL

president: G. H. LUCAS

57 Bloor St. W., Toronto, WA1N4-9291

big, bulky BAN-LON

Big jumbo-knit BAN-LON with pearly pie-plate buttons . . . big style with flaring Queen Anne collar, wide contra-knit collar edging and front panel . . . no pilling, no stretch or shrink . . . hand-finished . . . in a rainbow of sparkling spring colours. $15.95 AT GOOD SHOPS everywhere.

Look for the name Kitten!

UBC Editors Waiting For Verdict on Theft

VANCOUVER—CUP—A University of British Columbia student court met Thursday to decide the fate of two student editors who stole a painting from the student union building last November.

But Editor-in-Chief Dave Robertson and City Editor Kerry Feltham of The Ubcyssey will have to wait until next Thursday to learn the court's decision.

The two were formally charged with "conduct unbecoming a student" in connection with the disappearance of the painting.

The painting, one of a collection hanging in Brock Hall, the student union building, was removed by Robertson and Feltham Nov. 3 as "a prank to show how easily the paintings could be taken from the building."

Other object of the theft was to see how long the disappearance would go unnoticed.

The painting remained in the Ubcyssey office for three days and was then removed for safe keeping to an apartment shared by Robertson and Feltham until such time as it could be returned.

The painting's absence was officially discovered Nov. 27 and the R.C.M.P. and insurance company were notified.

The pair testified at their trial they had delayed in returning the painting "until they could find a way of doing it undetected."

"The possibility of leaving it somewhere on campus came up but was discarded because we feared it might be stolen or damaged," they said.

At tip to three councillors Feb. 5 led them to the pair's apartment, where they discovered the painting.

Robertson and Feltham immediately resigned pending investigation of the case.

The case was taken to a student investigation committee who referred it to the student court.

Feltham is also Western representative to the Canadian University Press Consulting Committee.

LIT UP as part of the campus limelight scheme is Hart House Soldier's Tower, towering over university grounds in its new mantle of white. (Varsity staff photo)

THE VARSITY

Vol. LXXVIII — No. 77

Monday, February 16th, 1959

Delegates Meet Here

University Radio Possible

By BILL MUSGROVE
Varsity Staff Reporter

Plans for a national university radio hookup are to be formulated at a conference beginning this morning in Hart House.

Forty delegates from 13 Canadian universities will attempt to focus the idea into reality during the two-day conference.

The plan germinated when Memorial University of Newfoundland's Student Council adopted a motion by MUN student Dave Warren proposing formation of a Canadian Association of Universities across Canada.

Present plans call for a weekly program originating in one of the Canadian Broadcasting Corp.'s production divisions with a CBC producer co-ordinating the different regions at a national level.

"The National Federation of Canadian University Students and the World University Service of Canada have endorsed the plan and the CBC has shown interest", Warren said.

Purpose of the association would be "to give the general public a better insight into Canadian universities and into Canadian university education", he added.

The program would consist of weekly news reports sent to the production centre by closed circuit.

"The general format would be similar to that now used in 'News Roundup' or 'Trans-Canada Matinee' with material drawn from all Canadian universities," Warren said.

Universities represented at the conference are: Memorial; Dalhousie (Halifax); Assumption (Windsor); Saskatchewan; Manitoba; British Columbia; Carleton (Ottawa); Sir George Williams (Montreal); Western (London); Queens' (Kingston); and Toronto.

Campaign Starts

Red is in.
Whatever your political tendencies are, this is the week to be red. Bleed for the University of Toronto blood campaign.

Schedule times for donors are almost completely filled, but if you have not yet made an appointment, drop into the School of Nursing on St. George St. any time between 9:30-11:30 and 1:30-4 this week.

They should be able to accommodate you.

1,500 pints of blood are needed, and campaign chairman Charlotte

Hubbell said last night she is confident U of T students will fill their quota.

Here is today's schedule:
9:30-Mech. Eng., IV; 9:45-Mech. Eng., IV; Forestry IV; 10-Chem. Eng., IV; Appl'd Geol., IV; 10:30-SMC, I; 11-Pharm., I; 11:15-POTS, 11-4; POTS H-4; 11:30-Eng. Phys., IV A&G; 1:15-Chem. Eng., 11; 1:30-Chem. Eng., 11; Civ. Eng., 1:45-Wycliffe; 2:24-SMC, 11; 2:45-Emmanuel, I, 1; 3-Appl'd Geol., 11; 3:15-POTS 1&11, 1&2; 3:30-Eng., 1; 3:45-Emmanuel, 11; 4-Emmanuel, 1&11; Min. Eng., 11;

Tuesday: 9:30-Eng. Phys., IVS; UC; 9:45-Eng., 1A; 10-Eng. & Bus., 11; 10:15-Eng. Phys., IV M&T; VIC; 10:30-VIC; Public Health Nurs., Advanced 10:45-11, 15-Arch., 11; 11:15-POTS, 11, 1&2, 11:30-POTS, 11, 1&2, 1:15-1:45-Dents, 11; 1:45-Arch., 11; 2:215-Pre-Dents; 2:30-3-Arch., 11; 3-Eng., 1C; 3:30-Eng., 11; 3:45-Mech. Eng., 11; SMC, 11; 1C; POTS, 11, 3; 3:30-Mech. Eng., 4-SMC, 11; Eng. & Bus., IV, 2.

$300 Coat Gone

A valuable fur coat and two wallets stolen from the Trinity College women's common room last week, are still missing.

The muskrat coat, valued at $300, belonged to Sandra Stephenson (III Trin), star of the All-Varsity Revue.

The robbery took place between 3 and 4 p.m. Wednesday afternoon. The two wallets, containing over $15 each belonged to Jane Saunders (II Trin) and Patricia Mollison (I Trin).

"An empty wallet, thought to be one of the two stolen, was found on a Bloor Street car," said Miss Saunders' mother last night. Police have been notified.

West's Problems

Solution Offered

A brilliant Ceylonese minister last night told a Student Christian Movement Fireside meeting the West as such has no answer to offer to the problems of the East—but Christianity has.

Rev. Celeste Fernando, Anglican chaplain to the University of Ceylon, said Christians in Ceylon as well as the rest of the world should stand out more.

Mr. Fernando, who delivered the sermon at yesterday's Hart House church service marking the "World Day of Prayer" for Students, attributed Christianity's failings in the East to the same causes as its failings in the West. The religion, he said, has not been understood because it has not been proclaimed. Where it has been proclaimed, it has been understood, he added.

It is difficult, he said, to generalize about what would be a "Christian" approach to Eastern political problems. Christians are not generally successful in Eastern politics, he said.

To be a Christian in the East, he said, is "dangerous". In most areas, for instance, a Christian could not be elected to political office, he said.

The impression Easterners get of North America from Hollywood and the United States State Department, he said, is far different from the picture they get when they come here.

Rev. Fernando (Photo by Schrieder)

Realtors May Endow Chair In Economics

Prof. V. W. Bladen, head of the U of T's Political Economy Department, last night said there has been "nothing official" received by the university concerning a proposal made last week that the Toronto Real Estate Board endow a U of T lectureship in land economics.

The proposal was put forward last Tuesday by Murray Bosley, immediate past-president of the Canadian Association of Real Estate Boards and a past president of the Toronto Board, to the Board's annual general meeting.

Mr. Bosley also suggested that the board should offer scholarships to university students.

Observers found that realtors reacted more favorably, on the whole, to the suggestion of a chair than to that of scholarships.

Harry McArthur, a past-president of the Board, said he hopes a real estate degree will be offered at the university fairly soon. "The government won't take the initiative, but if we start, it may snowball," he said.

U of T economics professor J.S. sales service.

SMC's Dedicated Men Will Go To Montreal

The hit St. Mike's show, "The Dedicated Men" will journey to Montreal next weekend to take part in the McGill Winter Carnival.

About 20 SMC students will go to McGill to reproduce a re-written version of the Mickie's nightclub scene. The 10-minute excerpt will form part of a show including skits from West Point, Wellesley, Vassar, Cornell, Western and McGill.

The SMC excerpt has been re-written to include a song by Ruth Mackenzie. The steel band and marimba sequence will also be included in the skit.

Other leads taking part in the McGill performance include Robin Barren, Paul Hyrinkiu, Sheila Kelly, Marg Hamilton, Ray Buncie and Tom Sutherland.

Officials still have no word from the Canadian Broadcasting Corp. and Kitchener and Hamilton television stations, which requested tape-recordings of the show.

The cast will record the show tonight at station CKFH. Recordings of the show will sell for $3. About 300 orders have been obtained so far, and orders will be received in the SMC coffee shop, officials said last night.

Scientist To Explain "Human Engineering"

A former U of T student now directing psychological research for the Defense Board will speak on campus tomorrow.

Dr. C. H. Baker, chief of Applied Experimental Psychology at the Defence Research Medical Laboratories, Downsview, will speak to the Mathematics and Physics Society on "Human Engineering" in room 135, Physics building.

Following graduation from the University of British Columbia, Dr. Baker obtained his master's and doctorate degrees in Experimental Psychology at U of T. He was associated for two years with the Medical Research Council at Cambridge, Eng., and now heads the Human Engineering Institute at McGill University.

Dr. Baker's talk will deal with the relationship between man and machine, and the study of adapting machines to the abilities of the operator. Everyone is welcome.

SPECIAL MEETINGS

TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 17th
CHRISTIANITY AND SOCIETY —

Dr. A. B. B. Moore — 4:10 p.m. — Music Room, Wymilwood

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 19th

THE NECESSITY OF DECISION — Mr. Tony Capon
1:10 p.m. — Room 19, Victoria College

Sponsored by the VCF and SCM

VIC ELECTIONS

Tuesday, February 17

For the Following:

V.C.U. EXECUTIVE

5T9 PERMANENT EXECUTIVE

E.A.C. REPS

MOSS SCHOLARSHIP CANDIDATE

Polls situated in Alumni Hall and the main hall of the Economics Bldg., POLLS OPEN 8:30 a.m. TO 2:30 p.m.

(Campaign speeches in Alumni Hall at 1:05 p.m. Monday, Feb. 16)

Group Of Five Reformed, Opposition Group Forming

University of Toronto's outspoken art society, the Group of Five is back on its feet after three weeks of stagnation.

But the group now boasts a new membership and the former members plan to form their own society.

"There were certain matters of doctrine upon which I found no club loyalty," said club president Ladd Vormitag last night.

"It was this that caused an internal turmoil and brought about dissolution of the old club," he said.

Vormitag said that it was "essential that an organization be such as ours present a united front to the world." He added that interpretation of Nathaniel West's "Time of the Locust" had precipitated the uproar leading to the break-up of the club.

"Our membership is now made up chiefly of first-year Medical students," Vormitag admitted.

Meanwhile, second-year English student Cyril Starbuck, a former member of the Group of Five, said last night he is re-forming the core of the "old Group" into "a new, vital group, unhampered by the egomaniacal selfishness of one shoddy dilettante."

Starbuck admitted he was referring to Vormitag.

"The dissolution of the old group was caused by one thing," Starbuck said. "The obnoxious despotism of the president that could only be tolerated for so long."

Starbuck said the new group is as yet unnamed, but will begin activities sometime next week.

Ladd Vormitag told The Varsity he had spent several days on Toronto Island after the break-up of the club.

"I needed some time to think about the terrible decay that imposes a frightening melancholy on our times to the detriment of all art," he explained.

The remaining two weeks before his return to campus were spent in Montreal where he assisted the McGill Daily newspaper news staff in return for a place to sleep.

TUESDAY LECTURE SERIES

"PROPHETIC PROFILES"

Prof. C. H. Bedford, Slavic Studies, will speak on

"DOSTOIEVSKY"

Room 8, U.C. — 5-6 p.m.

Presented by the Student Christian Movement

HILLEL

Thursday, February 19, 1:00 p.m., U.C., Room 37

Prof. Northrop Frye, Chairman,
Dept. of English, Victoria College

on
"THE ROLE OF SUBJECT-MATTER IN THE AESTHETIC JUDGMENT"
Everybody Welcome

SALE

Up to 50% Reductions on Cocktail Dresses, Wedding and Evening Gowns. Come in Between Lectures, Anytime. Too good an opportunity to miss.

HELMAR

46 St. George St. — WA. 1-5978

Player's Please

THE MILDEST BEST-TASTING CIGARETTES

FINLAND

The National Union of Finnish University Students has extended an invitation for eight male students of the University of Toronto to spend the summer from early June to late August in Finland. For two weeks at the beginning of the summer the group will be the guests of the Union. The remainder of the time (seven to eight weeks) will be spent in work offering practical experience in a field of the student's choice. This invitation should be of special interest to students in Engineering, Forestry, Architecture and Science. Those chosen should be prepared to pay about half of their passage expense. All other expenses will be covered by the Union and by earnings. Applicants should enquire at the Undergraduate Office, Hart House, before 5 p.m., Thursday, February 18th.

Notes on any subject are easier to write, easier to read when you use

CAMPUS SCHOOL SUPPLIES

Clean, crisp paper for every student need.

W. J. Gage

GAGE STATIONERY

A DIVISION OF W. J. GAGE LIMITED

TORONTO • MONTREAL • WINNIPEG • VANCOUVER

Recruit For Frontier

Representatives of Frontier College will lead a recruiting meeting today at 1:15 p.m. in the Hart House Music Room to talk to possible candidates for the College staff.

Prospective teachers must be willing and able to work on heavy labor crews during the day and teach in the evening. Frontier College representatives will interview all candidates Monday afternoon and Tuesday.

The recruiting meeting will include showing of a National Film Board movie on Frontier College, talks on aspects of the job, and arranging a schedule of interviews for prospective teachers. All interested students are invited.

TYPING

Theses, Essays, Notes, Charts, French, German, Latin, English, Prices Upon Request
Apt. 12
21 AVENUE RD.—WA 2-7624
MRS. M. D. STOTT, B.A.

ORGAN RECITAL

DOUGLAS ELLIOTT

TODAY

Convocation Hall — 5 p.m.

TYPEWRITERS

$1.00 A WEEK BUYS . . .
... $1.50 A WEEK RENTS

Get a free typing course and a liberal trade-in allowance for your old typewriter when you buy a new modern machine from us.

Phone HO. 1-1843 Today

CLASSIFIED ADS.

$1 DOWN BUYS ANY MAKE Brand new typewriters. $59 up. Some models $30 off. Free home demonstration. Free typing course. 1959 models rented, lowest rates. 375 Jane-Humber, RO 6-1103.

TYPIST (Electric) Fast, accurate, personalized service. Theses, essays, letters, dictation. Reasonable rates. Irene Kenyon, 146 Bernard Avenue, WA 3-4011.

Portrait Of A Painter:

And The Story Of His Murals

By JOHN ROBERT COLOMBO
Varsity Staff Reporter

Prerequisites: One artist; one wall; anywhere between $1 and $10,000.

Ingredients: Gypsum, gesso, pigments, eggs; sponges and assorted hog-hair brushes; a wall projector, the ability to improvise and a good deal of patience.

The Result: A mural like the one currently being painted by the Toronto artist, Eric Aldwinckle, at the York Township Hydro System building in the East end of town.

"Murals are wonderful," says Aldwinckle. "This is always the main problem: once mural colors cannot be removed or reworked as easel art. The artist must work quickly and carefully."

Mr. Aldwinckle went on to explain that these colors are composed of regular dry pigments which are mixed with the yokes of fresh eggs and water. "One must work with the colour with speed; it cannot be stored or the eggs go rancid. Egg-base is used because it is the purest base of all, with colour-fast purity and permanence."

The fourth stage "pulls together" the painted mural. Within a few weeks, Aldwinckle will be ready for this. It consists of applying subtle highlights with oils. Then there is the fifth and final stage, that of spraying the mural with a white lacquer. This protects the mural and permits the wall, when dirty, to be washed with ordinary soap and water.

Aldwinckle, who is no novice as far as the arts are concerned, has done two previous murals at Toronto's Sunnybrook Hospital. He was born in England 50 years ago and came to Canada at the age of 13. He worked with a local art firm but during the depression, at the age of 20, began to freelance.

He has freelanced ever since, except for three years as a vice-principal of the Ontario College of Art, where he was also principal of the division of design which he helped form. Today he works in a large apartment-studio in Rosedale, although he has never formally studied art.

Some of his larger contracts include the design of the Massey Hall for Architecture, the sign for the Vancouver International Festival, and the design of the Stratford Shakespearean Festival. He is well-recognized as a typographer and is responsible for "most of" the format of "The Eighth President," the Bissell book published by the University of Toronto Press.

Eric Aldwinckle is a man of few theories. It is difficult to quote him on his own work or on the work of his contemporaries. While he knows just about everyone who is painting in Canada, he feels that Canadian artists are "inclined to copy one another."

But Aldwinckle feels that art is somehow didactic. While it is meant to be enjoyed, it also teaches. There is always something more in an Aldwinckle work than there appears to be. Instances of this are the Tarot-theme in his Games Room mural in the Sunnybrook Hospital and the half-concealed figures in his present mural.

He enjoys quoting remarks made to him while he paints by "members of the great mass" as they pass to pay their hydro bill. But ultimately, when perched upon his scaffolding mixing gesso or colors, or painting with his broad brushes and thick paint, Eric Aldwinckle is oblivious of all in art.

For he feels, as he expresses it, like an actor on his private stage.

Within a few days the outline has dried and the sketched mural is ready for the difficult task, the application of colour.

THE ARTIST AT WORK, Eric Aldwinckle, left, mixes the tricky substances that compose the mural he is seen, right, working on by means of a scaffold. (Varsity staff photo by Colombo)

Will Show The World

POTs Hold Open House

By SALLY BAMBRIDGE
Varsity Staff Reporter

Students in all faculties will this week have an opportunity to inspect the techniques and equipment used in physical therapy.

The School of Physical and Occupational Therapy is holding an open house as part of an effort to "educate the public" in their relatively little-known work.

Sandra Hudson, POT president last night said: "Even a lot of doctors don't know much about physical and occupational therapy and they are the ones who send people to us for rehabilitation."

"We are very enthusiastic about our work, and we want to show everyone just what it involves", she said.

The open-house will feature many displays and demonstrations of new equipment used to strengthen muscles weakened by fractures, deformities, and disease.

Patients from Sunnybrook Hospital and Lyndhurst Lodge will assist in the demonstrations. Students say the patients are most willing to take part.

In fact one amputee who came last night to demonstrate the use of his artificial limbs liked the job so well that he volunteered to return and assist this year.

Occupational therapy, which deals with the teaching of occupational skills to assist patients to become more independent will have a place in the open house.

There will be displays of weaving, sewing, and use of tools. These are media which often seem trivial to students—especially when they see a POT student in the library sewing a place-mat.

Few people realize the importance of such activities in the mental and physical rehabilitation of handicapped children and adults.

It seems there is a lot more to Physical and Occupational Therapy than meets the public eye.

The open-house, besides giving the public a chance to view the work of the therapists, gives graduates a chance to catch up on new trends and methods.

As part of a campaign to increase the number of graduates, grade 13 girls from the city's high schools are invited to the demonstration.

The POT staff and students are hoping to interest these girls in the work. Graduates are in very great demand, especially in smaller cities.

The open house will be held at 6 Devonshire Place, on Thursday and Friday this week from 7 to 10 p.m.

Vic Studentdom Goes To Polls

About 1,400 Victoria College students will go to the polls tomorrow to vote for student government officials for the upcoming year.

And there's a strong possibility that the vote, forecast as "massive", will be counted on IBM machines, officials said last night.

Stew Bell, Mike Howarth and Norm Williams have all shown their hats into the ring for the presidency of the Victoria College Union, while Mary Hull and Judy Sparrow have been nominated to contest the position of associate president.

Five positions have already been filled by acclamation. They are: Ted Tory, Vice-President; Elizabeth McCullough, Secretary; Jerry Collins, Social Director; Murray Corlett, Publicity Director; and Stan Dubas, male Students' Administrative Council representative.

Allison Dingle, Marilyn Hughes and Fiona Williams are all running for female External Affairs Commission representative and Glen Guest and John Wood have come forward to contest the male seat on the commission.

Graduating students will also vote for their permanent class executive. Dave Silcox and Doug McDermid are running for the presidency, while David Green and Sally Potter are contesting the associate presidency.

Student Dead

A first-year University of Toronto engineering student, Lynton Trehear, 17, died suddenly last Friday night.

He died at his parents' home, 1328 Seagull Ave., Clarkson. Funeral services will be held Tuesday afternoon at 1:30 p.m. Burial will be at the Clarkson Cemetery.

Manitoba Profs Claim Fallout Affects Milk

WINNIPEG (CUP)—Three University of Manitoba professors say a five-fold increase in strontium-90 radioactive fallout has made Manitoba milk unsafe for consumption—and two of them are feeding their children powdered milk from Ontario.

Professors F.M. Kelly and B.G. Hogg say the Ontario milk has a lower fallout count—but Dr. D.G. Brown, Ontario deputy minister of health Friday said the fallout content of all foods including milk is well below the danger mark.

The two scientists and Prof. M.

E. Kettner said the fallout in milk tested in Winnipeg had increased four-fold between March, 1957 and March, 1958 according to a Dominion Bureau of Statistics report.

The professors said they had made no tests themselves.

Professors Hogg and Kelly, who say they are themselves drinking Manitoba milk, express concern that other foods may be similarly contaminated.

The high increase in Manitoba over the rest of Canada may be due to local effects from atomic tests in Nevada they say.

THE VARSITY

Member Canadian University Press

Editorial and News Office

Basement, SAC Building — WA 3-6742, WA 2-8113

Today's Issue: Sally Bambridge, Bill Musgrove, Jayne Nesbitt, Dave Hailton, Mary Anderson, Riko Field, C.J. Varsity Staff
 Reporter Walt MacLean of the hard-knock school of journalism, a long list of Victoria student politicians who meet their electorate tomorrow.

Photography This Issue: Marv Schrieder.

clog in a gas-jet

In a country where no provincial ministry is considered at all active unless it has some sort of scandal to keep the opposition occupied, Ontario Premier Leslie Frost's troubles over Northern Ontario Natural Gas burn a rather weak flame.

Indeed, until a week ago, we would be inclined to say that they were generated by a great deal of natural hot air. When the scandal first began to singe the public interest, Mr. Frost acted with a swiftness which maintained his honesty but betrayed his imagination. Other premiers in less placid provinces would have let things roll on for quite a bit longer. No harm could be done, and for once the legislature would attract something more than academic interest from the electors.

But Mr. Frost would have none of this. A true-blue Tory of the British school, he lined up his ministers, issued an ultimatum and in no time at all had three resignations lying on his desk. The scandal died; everybody seemed happy. Justice had been done and the great, gleaming river of Ontario politics seemed destined to roll on undisturbed until the next scandal should ruffle its waters.

Then one of the ministers forced into retirement deemed it necessary to indicate that all was still not as it should be. What Mr. Philip Kelly hoped to gain by dragging the issue into the limelight again, cannot be surmised. Perhaps he was feeling bitter. Perhaps he merely wanted to focus attention on Queen's Park. Perhaps he felt that justice demanded he should speak. No one will ever know.

At any rate, he achieved the second of these aims. With wild, whooping cries of delight, the dozen-odd opposition members in the provincial legislature threw themselves into the fray and demanded explanation from Mr. Frost's government.

Explanation came in the form of a statement from the Attorney General. Mr. Kelso Roberts informed a rapt and attentive legislature that he had investigated the scandal and though money had indeed been made out of the Northern Ontario Gas deal, there was no evidence of bribery or corruption in the Frost ministry.

Finally, and with complete disregard to the fact that so much excitement might prove fatal, the CCF leader politely asked Mr. Frost if he would convene a Royal Commission to investigate the matter fully and clear up all doubts.

Mr. Frost's reaction to this proved rather strange. Rising with Churchillian grace to the occasion he announced that he would have nothing to do with Royal Commissions but would rather submit the matter to the highest authority of all—he would go to the people.

And it is here, we feel, that Mr. Frost has made his only mistake.

Mr. Frost has confidence in the people, and with his government holding 84 of the legislature's 98 seats, he has every reason to believe his confidence is not misplaced.

Nor is there any reason to believe the people have lost confidence in Mr. Frost. His record is good and his handling of the present scandal in its initial stages could not in any way be condemned.

But this is not the point. The point is there has been a logical request for a full, impartial investigation of a matter which has disturbed the opposition. Until such an investigation is conducted, the people will have no information upon which to make their judgment and the opposition will never be satisfied.

Mr. Frost's obvious course is to place all the facts before the people by means of a Royal Commission and then, and only then, to let the electorate make its decision.

Mr. Frost has violated one of the basic tenets of good government. Democracy rests on a well-informed public. When the public is not only ill-informed but is denied information, democracy crumbles.

A reader writes:

Fatal Etiquette

Dear Sir:

It is a very rare opportunity indeed to be able to witness the complete change of a social custom which has been adhered to for many generations. Any alterations occurring in social manners usually do so over a period of many years, the effect being that one never really experiences the change himself but is one of a long succession of people on whom the transformation manifests itself. Thus the "change" is known only in the sense that one remembers the custom as it was before it evolved into its more useful form. I believe, however, that with the institution of the "Ontario Point System" for safer driving, we shall within a short period of time, actually "see" the entire change of one of our strongest and most universal customs. I have no doubt that our own children will benefit by listening to the first-hand account of the change of this custom — that of aiding our driver sex into and out of the automobile, our most popular mode of transportation.

Having assisted my lady-friend into the front seat of the car, from the curb side of the car, I proceed to enter from the opposite side. This, although formerly an example of etiquette, is lately a violation of the traffic law which awards two points to my driving record for opening the car door "into the traffic". It can easily be seen, that by obeying the old social custom, and consequently disobeying the new traffic law, I could easily lose my driver's licence on a single night.

No one can deny that the new law is a good and necessary one. There is no doubt in my mind that it is here to stay. How then are we males to exhibit both social suavity and respect for the law, when we have in our company the girl we wish only to please. A number of solutions have been presented to me, of which the following are two: having been escorted to the car door, on the curb side, the girl opens the door and helps her escort into the car, whereupon she herself enters and pulls the door closed behind her, or else, allow the boy to assist his date in entering the car (from the curb side, of course). Then he enters by the same door, climbs over his friend and assumes his position behind the steering wheel. When exiting the vehicle the reverse procedures would obviously be applied. These two solutions, both having solved the problem, would no doubt be quite acceptable to the male half of the partnership. Feeling, however, that the female half would be imposed upon, I have deliberated at length and am pleased to announce that, through the frustrating process of "trial and error", I have come up with what I believe to be a very practical solution to the burning problem that will eventually involve our city. Having assisted his friend into the car (from the curb side, of course), the boy enters the car through the rear door (on the same, curb side). He then proceeds to climb over the front seat and assume his position beside his charmed and enchanting date. Thus he has violated no traffic laws, and has acted with the utmost chivalry. His partner has not been imposed upon, but in fact, has been treated with extreme courtesy. As the result of this action, there will be less traffic violations and boys will exhibit that added touch of etiquette which could mean so very much. Besides, they will have the opportunity to satisfy that inborn desire to exhibit their gallantry and manliness, by showing their athletic agility in vaulting over the front seat to assume a dignified position commanding the respect of both the vehicle and the partner.

This may well be the only example to be seen by us of the effect of a law of necessity forcing the evolution of a new law of social custom. I cannot help but foresee in this, one of the strongholds of modern social etiquette, and a means whereby one can strengthen the bonds of friendship and admiration between himself and his lady.

Robert Gardner.
2nd. Premeds.

Caledon Weekend

Views of the World

By Paul Druckman

Wonderful things can happen when students from many different countries and cultures take a weekend off to sit down and exchange views. Unfortunately such opportunities are rare but a weekend for this purpose does exist.

Every year the host committee whose job it is to promote contact between Canadian and foreign students sponsors a weekend seminar. Seminar is too formal a word, for the weekend takes place at Caledon Hills and the atmosphere is anything but formal.

Twenty Canadians and twenty foreign students, along with four professors, journey to the farm on a Friday night and by Sunday afternoon have experienced three days which none of them are likely to forget.

After the initial shyness and strangeness has broken down (this happens very quickly while they cook supper over the rather expensive stove), they settle down to the object at hand—to make friends with people they don't usually get a chance to meet. Let me stress this aspect because the fact is generally not recognized that one in twelve students at this University is from a foreign land.

These students are anxious to meet Canadians just as many Canadians want to meet them. However, the chances to do so are limited and when an occasion does present itself the results are gratifying and appreciated.

The actual program, then, is designed to enable these new-found friends to cement their relationships. There are two discussion periods on Saturday. Four groups are made up, each one led by a professor. This year's topic is "The Role of the Individual in Today's Government" and the four professors are Dr. Edmund Carpenter, Professor Bruno Morawetz, Dean Ian Macdonald and Dr. Jacob Markowitz.

After these group talks there is plenty of time for skating, sleighriding, singing, dancing, toasting marshmallows and inevitable sauna baths.

Sunday morning the whole group meets for a general discussion. After this, there remain only the dishes of the last lunch and the goodbyes.

In one short week-end you will have made lifelong friends and you will have heard different and interesting views. The return to those pre-exam blues is a little easier to take after a stimulating weekend.

Yes, wonderful things can happen when we take time off to sit down and talk. The dates are Feb. 20-22 and application forms are available at the SAC office. Anybody interested may apply with no qualifications necessary.

TINT—TORONTO

Yes! You too can own an old master! Be one-up on all your friends — for ten dollars per square inch, you can help buy Tintoretto's now-famous 16th Century masterpiece, "Christ Washing His Disciples' Feet", now on display at the Toronto Art Gallery.

The painting was recently uncovered, coated with the grime of centuries, by the British art dealers, Thomas Agnew and Sons. Many patrons of the Art Gallery may well wonder why such labor was expended for such a fantastic product.

Its merits and demerits apart, the Tintoretto will cost the Gallery over $105,000. That is the reason for their requesting patrons to buy sections of the painting. So buy to-day and avoid the rush. Think of the pride you'll feel when you point out "your" square inch of "Christ Washing His Disciples' Feet".

GISELLE

In a performance of Giselle, one anticipates from the ballerina an expression of the appealing flat-footed shyness in the heroine, pleasantly incongruous with her lyric desire to dance; one anticipates the soul overwhelming the technique; and, from the second Act, the "classicism" of the ballet blanc.

Actually, this is not classical ballet; it is romantic as it is obvious in Act I. The German forest, snow-capped mountains, little hut, harvest season, untainted young things, peasants dancing. The German flavour typically overcasts the romantic mood. Then the Willis, supernatural beings in the Slavonic vernacular. But lines of white ladies are also romantic, not classical; Giselle is a classic of a romantic ballet.

One's anticipation of the ballet blanc (in Kay Ambrose's green dresses) was rewarded Friday night. The corps is fine, along with the fine and accurate dancing of Jacqueline Irvings and Jocelyn Terrell. Angela Leigh as the Queen of the Willes danced well, and technically well, which was a relief after the heroine.

Miss Franca's genius as a dancer is one of the soul; it must be for it isn't one of superb technique. This has always been so and yet her spirit of dancing has triumphed. See Winter Night. See past performances of Giselles. But on Friday night, somehow, Miss Franca didn't carry it. One has faith that she can, and yet she didn't. Ulanova so well achieved that childishness. But as for the mad scene, it is Miss Franca's own precedent that I recall. At any rate, it was rather more of a strain than usual, watching to see if she would get through those petits tours. The moments that were lovely in Miss Franca's Giselle, the moments of the expression of love, say, were just too small in stature.

The National Ballet does have a time getting men dancers! Thank heavens for those few hangers on like Harold da Silva. But David Adams is in a different class. One both breathed easy during his tours en l'air and got from him the couple of dramatic moments in the evening, after Giselle's death, and before his own collapse. However even he had a few awkward movements in Act I, this particular evening.

On the whole, Act II was an improvement on Act I — the women being featured without the men, and the corps being as important as the solo performers.

Chalk up another Gaia Performance and there you have it.

Mary Anderson

drips, bubbles, shapes sans form

Currently showing at Toronto galleries are four collections of abstract paintings by young Canadian artists. In retrospect, one must admit that, for the most part, the works are reminiscent of Eliot's lines "shape without form; shade without colour; paralyzed force; gesture without motion".

The best show in all respects is that at the Society of Co-operative artists. An invitation abstract exhibition, it is representative both of the works of the individual artists and of the various contemporary schools. The three panels exhibited by Ross Coates show the most diversity of style. His "Woman on the Beach" is a pleasant, but not outstanding example of the semi-representational abstract and is executed with competence in his handling of paint qualities. His two abstracts "Aspect of Chartres" and "Afternoon at the Alhambra" are more successful with a better feeling for colour and form. The two paintings of Robert Hedrick are among the best of the show, reflecting a more thoughtful approach and a high technical ability. Hedrick's "Still Life" is one of the few paintings in the exhibition with a finished quality, a welcome relief from the emotional orgasms of many contemporaries. "Heat Wave" is a more spontaneous work and is a large panel painted in yellows.

Bernard McLaughlin seems to be simply carrying on the Jack "the Dripper" Pollock school. Dennis Burton shows his usual competence, but betrays his lack of ideas in the repetitive quality of his work. Michael Snow has submitted two interesting examples of his studies in colour, "Earth Song" and "Monarch". The most striking painting in size, if nothing else is "Horizontal Architecture" by Tom Hodgson, which demonstrates his ability to cover large areas very vividly.

For a survey of the painting of young Canadian artist this exhibition is well worth seeing, and will be open next weekend at the Society of Co-operative Artists on Cecil Street, west of Beverly.

The first one-man shows of D.M. Houston at the Park Gallery and George Wallace at the G.C.A. are both of questionable value. George Wallace is a seasoned Irish painter of some repute in the British Isles, having exhibited there widely. He has an intellectual appeal, attempting philosophically to represent the elements of subject and work from these elements outward. The result in his oil paintings is a cold analytical quality, heightened by his repetitive use of greys and blues. The watercolours and lithograph-pastels are more successful, for Wallace seems more at ease in these mediums. "The Executioner" and "The Island" both seem to successfully capture the element for which Wallace searches.

The Houston exhibition sadly falls prey to the malady of first shows: that is the artist's compulsion to exhibit all the work he has done in the last two years without discrimination. The result is a feeling of crammed canvases, where the good must be weeded from the bad, and there is some good. Here again the water colours show more mastery than the oils and tend to be more representational. In his oils Houston needs more feeling for paint quality and tends to become messy in his use of colour. "Stone Fence" and "Turbulent Stream" are among the best in the show. "Blue Valley", which is his largest canvas, seems overworked in relation to its oil sketch. The other works tend to be too similar in the overuse of a bubble-like technique. However, Houston has a competence which shows promise if he develops his ideas and experiments in different styles.

The last and most disappointing exhibition is that of Graham Coughtry at the Greenwich Gallery. Coughtry seems to have suffered from too much early praise and is resting on his laurels. The main paintings of the exhibition are the series of five portraits, which seem to be vague faces devoid of individual personality. The other paintings are little more. "Reckless" being the only one, which creates a feeling or conveys any idea at all. Coughtry should make a better effort.

ANNE BLACKMAN

High-class highbrow

Making their first appearance in Toronto, the Hollywood String Quartet gave a series of three concerts during this past week at the Royal Conservatory of Music. The chamber ensemble, now in its eleventh season, made its international reputation in 1956 at the Edinburgh Festival, in Europe and England. The group consists of Felix Slatkin, Paul Shure, first and second violin, Alvin Dinkin, viola, and Eleanor Aller, cello. I should like to discuss in detail the programme of Friday night.

Mozart's Quartet in B flat is the fourth of a set of six dedicated to Haydn. It was through Haydn's invention of a new and free instrumental polyphony, that Mozart was released from the influence of Bach's strict polyphonic style. In these quartets we have a curious juxtaposition of contrapuntal and chordal textures. The same animation which dominates Mozart's operas is to be found in these works. On several occasions, especially in the imitative sections, the Quartet reached that feeling of unity which is the ideal of ensemble performance; at other times they were sadly disconnected.

The Quartet, Opus 10 by the contemporary Hungarian composer, Kodaly, was written in 1918. This work has a strange, subdued atmosphere with melancholy folk tunes set to irregular rhythms. It betrays the influence of Bartok in some of the string techniques, such as "sliding" from one note to the next. This quartet seemed more suited to the nature of the Hollywood ensemble. The whimsical tragical quality of the first and second movements was excellently achieved.

Plagued by the shadow of Beethoven's classical genius, Brahms did not publish the Opus 51 quartets until he was forty-one. One of these works, in A minor, concluded the programme. It is characterized by that bold, angular quality, so typical of Brahms. It is a difficult quartet, and the Hollywood ensemble must be admired for their efforts. They certainly had the spirit, if not always the polish.

The Quartet certainly seemed to be more at home and at their best with the contemporary composers, and perhaps the highlight of their three concert's was Prokofiev's Opus 92, which they played on Thursday. However, their opening number, a Beethoven quartet was unfortunately not so successful. Another very interesting feature on their programme was Bartok's Third Quartet on the final evening. We should be very grateful to the ensemble for giving us the opportunity of hearing such high-standard performances of these contemporary works.

I feel without doubt that the Hollywood Quartet is one of the best I have ever had the pleasure of hearing. The skill of the members, especially the violinist and the cellist, is indisputable. I look forward to their return and hope, in the meantime, that Toronto audiences become more aware than they seemed to be this evening of the beauty of chamber music.

Daphne Stephens

Cagers Drop Two Thrillers

Special To The Varsity
WINDSOR, Feb. 15 — The University of Toronto basketball Blues lost a close overtime thriller 86-82 here last night to the league-leading Assumption College Lancers. Windsor had little trouble with the Intermediates, winning 85-46.

Friday night in London told a similar story for the Seniors. In the last two seconds of play, Western stole a 50-49 decision from Toronto. The Purple and White registered their second win of the evening 48-47 in the Intermediate warmup, by scoring on a cheap technical foul in the dying seconds of the game. Blues' Bill Paterson was called for accidentally striking the referee with the ball after a basket.

Last night centre John Dacyshyn led Blues' scoring with 26 points. Windsor's Gene Rizak collected 25, a far cry from his record 44 of last week. Toronto checked Assumption closely, but Rizak and Jerry Kotwas, the Lancers' two American imports, proved to be too effective. Toronto, by the way, played without the services of their import, injured Curt Russell.

In the Intermediate game the Purple Raiders completely outclassed the Rinkies. Windsor forwards Bruce, Dunnion and Reynolds hardly gave Toronto a chance to see the ball.

The low-scoring affair in London Friday was highlighted by close checking and fast court play. Captain Ruby Richman thrilled the fans with his accurate shooting from outside the key.

Toronto's hustle caught the second-place team from London sitting down, and Western's coach John McManus was ruling that he had only dressed seven men for the encounter.

The Senior Blues meet YMHA Seniors Tuesday night at 7; the location being the Bloor and Spadina gym.

Senior Games
TORONTO (49)—Menzel, 2; Potter,

4; Richman, 11; Norman, 6; Stulac, 8; G. Linn, 1; Dacyshyn, 10; M. Linn, 5; Eccleston, 3.
WESTERN (58)—Hodgson, 19; Simpson, 7; M.J. Davy, 9; Borkin, 8; Lawson, 8; Bouc, 2.

TORONTO (82)—Menzel, 5; Potter, 4; Richman, 15; Norman, 3; Stulac, 11; Goldring, 13; Dacyshyn, 26; Magee, 5; Eccleston, 3.
A. SLAMPTON (86) Rizak, 25; Innocente, 14; Francoeur, 3; Kotwas, 26; Nickson, 9; Girard, 3; DeVriendt, 6.

Intermediate Games
TORONTO (47)—Schaefer, 14; Kos-tyuk, 8; Muir, 10; Miner, 6; Jack, 9; Ales, 1; M.J. Davy, 4; Ouchterlony, 1; Prubst, 4; Peterson, 3.
WESTERN (48) Batchelor, 13; McLachlan, 7; Cox, 5; Mast, 1; Coull, 10; Zidar, 3; Omerod, 3.

TORONTO (48)—Schaefer, 11; Kos-tyuk, 8; Muir, 10; Miner, 6; Jack, 9; Ales, 1; M.J. Davy, 4; Ouchterlony, 1; Prubst, 4; Peterson, 3.
WESTERN (48) Batchelor, 13; McLachlan, 7; Cox, 5; Mast, 1; Coull, 10; Zidar, 3; Omerod, 3.

THE THIRD ERNEST DALE MEMORIAL LECTURE

"A View of the Theatre from 1946-1959"

GUEST SPEAKER — DONALD DAVIS
OF THE CREST

Hart House Theatre
Today at 5 p.m.

ADMISSION FREE

GAMES TODAY

HOCKEY	12:30	St. SPS	vs	U.C. I	Brewer, Borthwick
	1:30	U.C. II	vs	Jr. SPS	McCulloch, Blute
	5:30	Knox	vs	For. B	McElligott, Crawford
WATER POLO	1:00	SPS I	vs	UC	M. Boase, Bonnema
	1:00	St. SPS. A	vs	Trin. A
SQUASH	1:00	Trin. B	vs	Med. III Yr.
BASKETBALL MAJOR LEAGUE	1:00	St. SPS	vs	Vic. III	Goldenberg, Mandel
	4:00	Vic. IV	vs	St. M. D	Mausberg, Fireman
BASKETBALL MINOR LEAGUE (HART HOUSE)	1:00	II Metal	vs	U.C. Socs	Thomson
	4:00	Vic. Victors	vs	St. M. Gables	Shafir
	5:00	II Mech	vs	St. M. Rapsavages	Shafir
	6:00	IV Mech	vs	Med IV Yr A	Shafir
BASKETBALL MINOR LEAGUE (VIC GYM)	4:00	U.S. San. mys	vs	Vic. Gators	Foster
	5:00	I Arch	vs	I Eng Phys. C	Foster
	6:30	St. M. Wimps	vs	I Eng Phys. D	Foster

GAMES TUESDAY

HOCKEY	1:00	SPS. IV	vs	St. M. B	Brunt, Quinn
	5:30	Church	vs	For. A	Lowney, Cader
	6:30	Arch	vs	Wye	McElligott, Crawford
WATER POLO	5:30	St. M. A	vs	Med. II	Jany, Nobert
	7:15	Law	vs	For.	Jany, Nobert
SQUASH	5:30	St. M. A	vs	Vic Arch
	7:15	Med. II	vs	Vic II
BASKETBALL MAJOR LEAGUE	1:00	St. M. A	vs	Vic I	Goldenberg, Kerner
	6:30	Dent. I Yr.	vs	Med. III	Godley, Richardson
	7:30	Dent. A	vs	U.C. II	Godley, Richardson
	8:30	U.C. V	vs	SPS. E
BASKETBALL MINOR LEAGUE (HART HOUSE)	1:00	St. M. Points	vs	II Civil	Pearl
	6:30	II Eng. Bsc	vs	Vic. M. dle Hse	Newman
	7:30	U.C. London	vs	II Chem.	Newman
	8:30	Knox B	vs	Law B	Newman
BASKETBALL MINOR LEAGUE (VIC GYM)	4:00	Vic. St. niles	vs	St. M. Martins	McGrath
	5:15	St. M. McNulty	vs	Pre-Med. I D	McGrath
	6:30	St. M. Quigleys	vs	Pre-Dent A	Marbut
	7:00	Ennals, B	vs	Pharm. Catons	Marchut
	8:00	U.C. Montreal	vs	Vic. South H	McGrath
INDOOR TRACK	5:00	440 Yds	-	Shot put - Relay (4 x 6 lap)

Editor—Students' Handbook

Applications for the position of Editor of "The Students' Handbook, 1959-60", will be received by the undersigned until 12 noon, Friday, February 20th.

A. E. M. Parkes,
Associate Secretary.

Bankers are human, new study shows

In a recent nationwide survey, using the latest scientific sampling techniques, it was discovered that bankers are human—or at least that's what 9 out of 10% Canadians think. We are even credited with being friendly, helpful, trusting, honest and happy.

At the BNS we are more than a little proud of this recognition, for we feel that the BNS has pioneered in this development. BNS people have been known to smile at customers—even at college students. We say good morning regularly—every 24 hours or so. There is even a BNS Vice President who whistles while he works.

But don't just take our word on BNS human-ness. Drop around at one of our nearby branches and see for yourself. Whether you come for scientific observation... for a chequing or savings account... for a Scotia Plan loan... or for some friendly financial advice, you're always welcome.

The BANK of NOVA SCOTIA

Park Plaza Hotel Branch: R. S. Pettit, Manager
Bloor & Spadina Branch: G. R. Dickie, Manager
Bloor & Yonge Branch: C. K. Collison, Manager

Jargon Happy

About 75 separate entries for publication in Jargon are now in the hands of faculty editors, editor John Robert Colombo said last night.

The manuscripts will be reviewed by an editorial board next weekend and will be sent to the U of T Press within two weeks, he said.

The magazine should be "less than 15 per cent reprinted", and will concentrate on quality rather than representation, he continued.

All poetry manuscripts will be reviewed by Miss Jay Macpherson, Victoria College lecturer. Prof. Hugo McPherson will judge prose entries, and Prof. Milton T. Wilson will handle critical essays.

NEW AT...

Stowe
VERMONT
7 DAYS
UNLIMITED
SKIING!
only $35

SKI CAPITAL OF THE EAST!
7 continuous Days UNLIMITED Use of ALL LIFTS in Stowe at both Mt. Mansfield & Spruce Peak areas. $35 Adults; $25 children under 14. Extend beyond 7th day pro rata. Good any time during skiing season. Offered those staying at member lodges of Stowe-Mansfield Assoc.
Information, FOLDERS, Reservations:
STOWE-MANSFIELD ASSOC.
Stowe Vermont AL 3-7652

- Toronto's first omnibus carried six passengers
- The first electric car in Toronto appeared on Church Street on August 15, 1892
- The last horse-drawn trolley ran on August 31, 1894

O'Keefe
Old Vienna
BREWERY LIMITED

and NOW

- The TTC was incorporated in 1920
- In 1956 it operated 1,623 vehicles
- The TTC carried over 303,800,000 passengers in 1956

STEPHEN SPARKS 11-2 WIN

Ol' Redhead Nears Century Club With Sparkling Four Goal Show

By GENE GLISKY
Associate Sports Editor

Breathing a sigh of relief, McGill Redmen played their last game of the season against Varsity Blues at the Arena Friday night, bowing humbly to an 11-2 trouncing.

It was Red Stephen night all over again, as the almost doc made his second debut of the season at center, sinking four goals and assisting on another. The Blues' ace has 94 scoring points in his Varsity career, needing only six more to join the century club.

Doug (Pappy) Williams scored two goals, while Ron Casey, Dunc Brodie, Neil Munro, Grant

Mills, and Frank Sullivan garnered singles. Lorry Stacey led the Varsity blueliners, assisting on four markers. Sullivan, over and above his first goal of the season, added an assist and a fight to his credit.

Jim Grant scored both goals for Redmen, with scrappy Bruce Hutchison assisting on both.

Brodie's goal at 6:10 of the third period was the most colorful of the night. Big Nails snagged the puck at center ice, powered his way around the McGill defence, and let go with one of his famous low, hard ones to catch the corner of the net at an almost impossible angle.

The farewell handshakes at the end of the game bring home the rather startling fact that the end is near for one of the greatest Varsity hockey teams in history.

Since Laval and Montreal battled to a 4-4 draw last Thursday, a Varsity win over Laval this Friday, (last home game of the season in league play) will make only one win on the road necessary for Blues to clinch the title.

Just jots; McGill pressed team manager Steve O'Farrell into harness. We hear Blues manager Dave (anything you can do I can do better) Gawley is scrapping the rust on his bob skates.

Welcomed McGill Daily sports-writer Fred Seligman at the game (again). Must be nice to work for a rich paper!

McGILL — Goal, Herron; defense, Richard, Dingle, Laroche; forwards, Giffith, O'Farrell, Molson, Vanpelt, Bazzi, Grant, Hutchison, Killen, Peters.

TORONTO — Goal, Dunn, defense, Stacey, Sullivan, Munro, Neale, forwards, Stephen, Casey, Brodie, Williams, Roth, Brooks, Mills, Watt, Fleming, Wensley.

OFFICIALS — Referee, Gord Fervae; Linesmen, Bill Naylor and Bob Nadin.

First Period
1—Toronto, Stephen (2nd) 10
2—Toronto, Williams (5th) 18:46
(Stacey, Roth) 18:46
Penalties: Fleming (holding) 5:46; Neale (boarding) 7:30; Brodie (elbowing) 15:10; Dingle (tripping) 19:56.

Second Period
3—Toronto, Casey (9th) 11
(Stephen) 11
4—McGill, Grant (1st) 8:08
5—Toronto, Stephen (3rd) 10:15
(Williams, Roth) 10:15
(Munro) 13:03
6—Toronto, Stephen (4th) 19:50
(Stacey, Sullivan) 19:50
Penalties: Roth (high - sticking) 4:57; Giffith (tripping) 18:55.

Third Period
8—Toronto, Sullivan (1st) 2:25
(Brooks) 2:25
9—Toronto, Brodie (8th) 6:10
10—Toronto, Stephen (5th) 6:25
(Brodie) 6:25
11—Toronto, Mills (5th) 8:55
(Wensley, Stacey) 8:55
12—Toronto, Williams (6th) 13:42
(Stacey) 13:42
13—McGill, Grant (2nd) 14:35
(Hutchison, O'Farrell) 14:35
Penalties: Sullivan (roughing) 9:03; Bazzi (roughing) 9:03.
Shots on goal: 10 3 10—23
By McGill 17 27 29—73
By Toronto 17 27 29—73

Queen's Takes Judo Contest

University of Toronto judo club fought their way into the finals, before bowing to a more experienced Queen's squad at the judo tournament held in Kingston Saturday afternoon.

The five man Varsity squad defeated the highly touted Ryerson club 20-10 in the semi-final round. Queen's eliminated McGill in their bouts.

The Queen's club, now in existence for three years, beat Varsity 25-10 in the finals.

The tournament proved highly successful. A trophy is being arranged for next year, with five tournaments (including Assumption) to be fought, one in each representative university, to declare a winner.

A return bout with Ryerson is also arranged for this year.

Swim Blues Wallop McGillmen 61-25 In Kingston Meet

Special To The Varsity

KINGSTON, Feb. 15 — University of Toronto Blues overcame the Department of National Defence and McGill Redmen in a dual swim meet at Royal Military College here yesterday afternoon.

Confused by military orders from RMC ("the public address system will be checked at 1430 hours"), dampened by a lack of towels (army stores are closed Saturday), Blues took their troubles out on the Redmen.

Conceding only three firsts on the 10-event program, Varsity swept both relays, added six seconds and four thirds and trounced Ross Firth's McGill crew, 61-25.

Dick Pound captured the 100-yard and 220-yard freestyle, and Intercollegiate champion Cameron Grout snared first place in the 50-yard freestyle. Those were McGill's only moments.

Toronto coach Bill Yorzyk was Blues' lone double winner, taking the 200-yard butterfly and 440-yard freestyle, as well as joining Bob Fisher, John Deacon and Wait Unger on the 400-yard medley relay team.

Varsity's Dave Harvey and Bill Sims finished one-two in the diving, apparently indicating Toronto will have little difficulty picking up eight points in that event come the finals at McGill Feb. 28.

Fisher, Canadian champion in the 200-yard backstroke, outdistanced team-mate John Ridpath to the wire, while former Dominion record-holder Deacon ousted Alex Chiu, also of Toronto, in the breaststroke.

(Western's Peter Bell set a new Canadian record for the 200-yard breaststroke last night in London, covering the distance in 2:24.6 minutes, 1.9 seconds faster than Deacon's mark).

Rams Defeat Rinkies In Rough 4-2 Game

Ryerson Rams, of the Ontario Intercollegiate Athletic Union, trounced Varsity Baby Blues, 4-2, in a bruising exhibition battle Friday afternoon at Varsity Arena.

Rams led, 1-0, at the end of the first, and outscored Varsity 2-1 in the final frame after each team had netted a pair in the middle period.

Bill Patterson, Ken Knightly.

Carnival Tickets On Sale Today

Advance sale tickets for the University of Toronto swim team's Water Carnival, to be held in Hart House March 6 and 7, are available at 1 p.m. today from several outlets.

The tickets may be purchased for the single $1.25 price from any member of the senior or intermediate swim team, from the Hart House ticket office, or from the Student's Administrative Council Building.

Tickets may be bought for either Friday or Saturday night, and Coach Bill Yorzyk has advised early purchase due to limited seating capacity.

Merl Kurzel and Ron Hall tallied the Ram goals, while Gord Frey and George Hicklen lit the lamp for Baby Blues.

Referees Bill Naylor and Bob Nadin called a total of 10 penalties, seven of them against Varsity, in a game which dwelled heavily on bodychecking and bruising contact.

RYERSON — Goal, Broad, defense, Geramio, Jewell, Smerchinski, Kyriakopoulos, McCharles, Phillips, Hall, Knightly, Hess, Patterson, Kinoshane, Taylor, Byrdon, Coffey.

Varsity — Goal, Fleming, defense, Simpson, Mann, Lawell, Loughwell, forwards, Griffin, James, Warren, Randle, Gatten, Finlay, Wensley, Frey, Hicklen, Gow.

OFFICIALS — Bill Naylor and Bob Nadin.

First Period
1—Ryerson, Patterson 5:30
Penalties: Loughwell (charging) 9:41; Geramio (interference) 10:45; Hicklen (hooking) 19:41.

Second Period
2—Ryerson, Knightly 7:39
4—Varsity, Frey (Manley) 10:45
Penalties: Coffey (hooking) 5:17; Wensley (high-sticking) 8:03; Loughwell (elbowing) 12:31; Patterson (high-sticking) 12:31; Gatten (charging) 13:30; Coffey (interference) 16:20.

Third Period
4—Ryerson, Kurzel 4:47
(Byrdon, Patterson) 4:47
5—Ryerson, Hall (McCharles) 2:47
6—Varsity, Hicklen 13:58
(Randle, Warren) 13:58
Penalties: Lou (kneeing) 5:29; Loughwell (elbowing) 10:45.

Squash Blues Win Title Trip McGill, Western

Varsity's Intercollegiate squash team captured the college title on Friday, but Toronto entry Morley Smith failed in a bid to wrest the singles' championship from McGill.

Montrealer Dave Pemberton-Smith won the singles' crown in an all-McGill final after Ross

Adair defeated Smith, 15-13, 15-8, 15-11, Saturday morning.

All matches were held at the Carlton Club, after Western had protested the use of the Hart House courts, as was originally planned. The university courts are below regulation size.

Varsity's John Ireton, Witold Weynerowski and Smith each won two matches to lead Toronto to the team championship. Adair and Pemberton-Smith were double winners for McGill.

The final team totals read seven victories for Varsity, six for McGill, and two for Western. The Mustang wins came from Jim Coons and John Bassett.

Team Matches
Adair (M) def. Massey (T), 15-6, 15-8, 14-15, 15-12, Coons (W) def. MacIntosh (T), 17-14, 15-12, 10-15, Weynerowski (T) def. Meighen (M), 15-14, 13-15, 15-9, 15-13, Ireton (T) def. Roman (W), 15-9, 15-12, 13-14, 15-13, Meighen (M) def. LaFleur (M), 18-14, 15-13, 15-6, Adair (M) def. Proctor (W), 18-13, 15-5, 15-7, Pemberton-Smith (M) def. MacIntosh (T), 15-11, 15-13, 15-12, Meighen (M) def. Allen (W), 15-9, 15-12, 15-7, Ireton (T) def. Drummond (M), 15-12, 15-12, 18-15, 15-8, Pemberton-Smith (M) def. Coons (W), 15-12, 15-10, 17-15, Massey (W) def. Proctor (W), 15-11, 15-11, 12-15, Weynerowski (T) def. Allen (W), 15-11, 15-7, 15-15, Drummond (M) def. Roman (W), 15-10, 15-8, 15-12, Meighen (T) def. LaFleur (M), 15-6, 18-17, 15-8.

Semi-final
Adair (M) def. Smith (T), 15-13, 15-9, 15-11.

Final
Pemberton-Smith (M) def. Adair (M), 15-9, 15-8, 15-8.

The Scoreboard

INTERCOLLEGIATE

HOCKEY

	P	W	L	T	F	A	Pts
TORONTO	9	8	1	0	29	28	16
Laval	7	5	1	1	45	33	11
Montreal	9	3	0	1	42	37	7
McGill	9	0	0	0	16	82	0

Friday's Results

Friday—McGill at Montreal; Laval at TORONTO.

BASKETBALL

	P	W	L	T	Pts.
Assumption	8	7	1	0	14
Western	7	6	1	0	12
Queen's	7	4	3	0	8
TORONTO	7	2	5	0	4
McGill	7	2	5	0	4
McMaster	8	1	7	0	2

Friday's Results

Friday—McGill at Western; Queen's at McMaster.

Saturday's Results

Assumption 88 TORONTO 82
Queen's 58 McMaster 54

Future Games
Friday—McGill at Western; Queen's at McMaster.
Saturday—Queen's at TORONTO; McGill at Assumption.

Western Cops Volleyball

By PAM HILL
Varsity Staff Reporter

Teams from Western, U of T, Queen's, OAC, McMaster and McGill played a round-robin of volleyball games here on Friday night and Saturday morning, finishing in that order.

Western has been on top for the past four years. Varsity has moved from fifth to second place in that time.

It seems logical that next year Toronto should have top place.

A match consists of two out of three games, each game being a 12-minute period. There must be at least a two-point lead at the end of a game.

Western took all their games in "two straight". The Varsity girls gave them their toughest and closest game in years — scores were 16-10 and 19-4, both for Western.

Varsity also won all their games

(except the one loss to Western) in two straight.

The finishing order saw many unexpected upsets, particularly for Queen's, McMaster, and OAC. Viyu Canep (captain) and Mary Lou O'Hagen, Jula Laul (president) and Linda Krus, and Judy Canfield and Signy Paulson teamed up for beautiful set-ups and spikes for Toronto.

All the games were very good, clean and exciting. Varsity coach, Mrs. G.A. Vernon, said that the whole calibre of volleyball is much better. New rules now insist upon the single volley, and a six-membered team.

Also this week-end, Intercollegiate fencing took place in Montreal, with McGill and Toronto competing. The only information available on this is that Joan Davies won all four of her rounds, and U of T came first. This is certainly changing the precedent of McGill holding the championship for so many years.

At Collingwood, 30 co-eds braved the miserable weather to compete in the Interfaculty skiing tournament.

About 15 ladies competed in two (supposedly three) runs of the slalom course. Results: first—Helen Weider, Victoria; second—Judy Smith, PHE; third—Sally Hueston, St. Hilda's.

All round, a fairly successful week-end for the U of T. women in the world of sports.

Now there's only the Intercollegiate Basketball left — for the 27th of February at Western, — and of course the Interfac hockey and volleyball.

Teacher Invasion Friday

More than 850 Toronto secondary school teachers will invade the University of Toronto campus for a Back-to-University Day Friday.

The teachers will attend lectures in all 28 divisions of the Faculty of Arts. Special lectures will also be given.

They will be welcomed in Convocation Hall by President Claude T. Bissell and by Dean Moffat S.A. Woodside of the Faculty of Arts.

The proceedings are sponsored by the Professional Development Committee of the Ontario Secondary School Teachers Federation.

The teachers will observe educational methods practised on campus, and will then return to 14 district high schools for further discussion.

At least one arts professor is known to have requested students to refrain from skipping his Friday classes.

Visiting teachers will also view the U of T Biology Club's quad-demonstrations set up by the Biennial Zoological Conversation. The exhibition will feature a giant The show will fill the Biology building Feb. 20-22. Classes in the Congress, as well as displays and building Friday will be cancelled.

Dale Lecture Today

Donald Davis, noted for his work with the Crest Theatre and the Stratford Shakespearean Festival, will deliver the Dale Memorial Lecture today at 5 p.m. in the Hart House Theatre. Subject of the free lecture will be "The Canadian Theatre, 1946-1959."

The Dale Lecture is presented annually by Hart House in memory of Professor Ernest Dale, who died in the theatre five years ago.

Prof. Dale was professor of Classics at the University of Toronto, as well as president of the Shakespeare Fellowship.

He was active in campus theatre as an actor and director, and was for the last nine years of his life chairman of the Board of Syndics.

here

TODAY

1-2 p.m. — VCF will study the Bible in room 103, Conservatory, and in room 213, Anatomy building.

— Candidates for the VCU executive, EAC, Moss scholarship (Vic), and the 5T9 permanent executive, will meet at an election assembly in the Vic Alumni Hall.

1.10 - 2 p.m. — SCM will study the gospel of St. John in the Hart House chaplain's office.

4.30 p.m. — Prof. M. M. Kirkwood will give a public lecture on "The Last Puritan among the Novels", in Trinity's convocation Hall.

TUESDAY

8.30 a.m.-2.30 p.m.—Polling booths will be set up in Alumni Hall and the Economics building for Vic elections.

1-2 p.m. — VCF will study the Bible in room 116, School of Nursing and room 111, UC.

1.10-2 p.m. — Prof. A. J. Coleman of the mathematics department will speak to SCM on "Fear of Death" in room 103, School of Nursing. Everyone is welcome.

— SCM plans a "Prof. Talk" in the SCM office, Hart House. Bring your lunch.

8 p.m. — Dr. C. H. Baker, chief of Applied Experimental Psychology at the Defence Research Medical Laboratories, Downsview, will speak to the Maths and Physics Society on "Human Engineering" in room 135, Physics building. All are welcome.

— The Canadian Association of Social Workers and the Social Planning Council of Metropolitan Toronto will sponsor a "Career Night", with information on social work and social workers at 150 Beverley St., one block north of Dundas St. All are welcome.

WEDNESDAY

1 p.m. — Dunc Edmonds will speak on travel in France in room 33, UC. The lecture is the sixth and last in the WUS series, "Destination: Europe".

3 p.m. — The U of T Outing Club plans a general meeting in Carr Hall Auditorium, SMC. Program includes election of a new executive and two technicolor films on skiing in the Swiss Alps. All are welcome.

and now

SCANDAL IN A SMALL TOWN

U.C. - ST. MIKE'S DARE TO PRODUCE the children's hour the children's hour

the children's hour

HART HOUSE THEATRE — FEBRUARY 18, 19, 20, 21

Students' Reduced Rate Tickets at

CARR HALL

ONLY $1

U.C. ROTUNDA

'Nensis Deadline Near

Torontonensis Editor Sandra Whittall has warned all groups concerned to meet their deadlines, which are quickly approaching.

Various groups have different deadlines. All submissions for campus clubs, student governments, residences, and campus publications were due Feb. 13. Deadline for material on student activities and sports is Feb. 27.

"Material must be submitted by these deadline dates in order to maintain the production schedule", the editor said. "No refunds will be given to those organizations which do not submit their material by the deadline", she added.

The editor will be in the 'Nensis office all day today to help anyone with difficulties regarding their material.

It is essential all material be in on schedule because the editors require four weeks to edit and lay out the various sections, Miss Whittall said.

CANADIAN LENTEN BOOK 1959

The Anglican Church of Canada

The Cross, The Eucharist and You

by the Right Rev. M. E. Coleman

An answer to the request from lay persons for clear, deep doctrinal messages. Meditations for each day in Lent. A guide to a spiritual Lenten pilgrimage.

PRICE: $1.25

available at

CANTERBURY CENTRE, 99 St. George St.

and

ANGLICAN BOOK CENTRE

600 Jarvis Street - Toronto

Telephone WA. 3-0953

HART HOUSE

MONDAY:

Sing Song: 1.25 p.m. — East Common Room
Art Library: Curator on duty at 1 p.m.
Glee Club Full Rehearsal: 5 p.m. — Great Hall
Revolver Club: 7.30 p.m. — Rifle Range

WEDNESDAY:

NOON HOUR CONCERT — PHYLLIS RUNGE, PIANO, 1.30 p.m. — East Common Room

THURSDAY:

EXPLORATION SOCIETY OPEN MEETING:

MR. BRISTOL FOSTER
WILL SHOW A MOVIE ON HIS JOURNEYS IN AFRICA
ALL ARE WELCOME, INCLUDING WOMEN
8 p.m. — Music Room

C.B.C. CONCERT

RUDOLF FIRKUSNY, Piano

WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 18 — 8.10 p.m.

In The Great Hall

FREE TICKETS FROM THE HALL PORTER

FRONTIER COLLEGE NOTICE

Meeting of All Applicants For

SUMMER AND/OR WINTER STAFF

jobs in Music Room of Hart House, Monday, 1.15 p.m., February 16th.

For further information call Mr. Ernie Halse, University Employment Service.

ALL-DAY MILDNESS

Black Cat PLAIN CORK FILTER

Frothy-light,

loopy

Kitten
MOHAIR

Light as a handful of mist . . . colourful as a sun-drenched garden, new Kitten deep-looped mohair sweaters are creating fashion-ecitement everywhere! Illustrated: versatile suburban beauty with collar and set-in pockets. $15.95 . . . at all good shops everywhere.

Look for the name Kitten!

Plan Student March On Duplessis

MONTREAL—CUP—Plans for a student march on the Quebec Legislature initiated by two Quebec university newspapers were Monday deemed "most ill-advised" by the McGill students' council president.

Roy Heenan, McGill president, said the action "at this time" might destroy a "favorable climate of opinion which has grown in support of students and universities."

The march, the editors said, would express disapproval of a $10,000,000 student loan fund announced by Quebec Premier Maurice Duplessis in January. The editors say the fund is "inadequate".

Paul Cléche, editor of Le Courrier, a newspaper of Laval University, Quebec City, called the march for March 5 National University Student Day. In a front-page statement, Gilles Tessier, editor of the University of Montreal's Quartier Latin, Thursday called upon students to join the demonstration "in collaboration, if possible, with McGill and Sir George Williams."

Paraphrasing Cléche's statement, Tessier said: "This show of protest (is) essential to excuse the weak-willed declarations of the university presidents after their interview with M. Duplessis."

"These declarations never represented student opinion. That meeting was always considered a monumental farce," the statement continued.

The Association of Quebec University Students, represented by student presidents of Quebec's six universities, fought for almost a year before they were granted an interview with the premier early in December.

Hints of the loan fund had been given during the summer in an interview with an independent group of students called the University Action League.

Heenan last night said: "Rather than take hasty action, rather ill-defined aims I would like concentrated planned action, which might be long-term, with the specific and definite aim of forcing a solution to the government grants problem."

"It is preferable to bring pressure on this than to have a march on Quebec to express dissatisfaction with a bill which, in spite of many defects, is a step forward," Heenan added.

McGill's Committee on Education unanimously endorsed Heenan's stand. The student committee was recently formed to advise the president on campus opinion, especially with regard to the cause of student education in Quebec.

New Editor for Acadia Angus Case Not Dead

WOLFSVILLE, N.S.—CUP—A fourth-year Acadia University arts student was unanimously elected editor of the Acadia Athaenium by the newspaper's staff yesterday.

Phillip Roberts, a 1959 Rhodes scholar and former associate editor accepted the position of editor, but said he was "not pleased with the decision" of the Student judiciary board two weeks ago to suspend editor Donald Angus from participation in the affairs of the Athaenium.

Roberts said he would back any movement to have Angus' case carried to the Acadia administration in an attempt to clear the ex-editor's name.

Twenty of 22 Athaenium staff members resigned last week after Angus was suspended for the second and final time by the student discipline committee. The staffers said their resignations were effective "until such time as the original editor-in-chief is returned to office."

Angus was accused by the committee of "betraying the trust of the student union by using the Athaenium to serve his own ends" in publishing an article by student Robert Flender. He was given 14 demerits by the committee, one less than is necessary for automatic expulsion from Acadia.

Staff members retracted their resignations after it was learned editor Angus had left the university because of academic difficulties.

BACK to the wall and fully believing in the justice of his cause is SAC Engineering rep Rob- in Beamish who last week drained a pint of blood from his system to kick-off the student blood campaign. Beamish should be taking his punishment lying down, but we think he looks braver this way up. (Varsity staff photo by Hatcher)

Downhill

Blood Drive On

The University of Toronto blood campaign is sliding downhill to meet the fate of Share, United Appeal and other charity drives on the campus this year.

There was a lack of donations to the money drives, and now there is a scarcity of blood.

The Red Cross expects 2,500 pints of blood to flow at U of T this week, at the rate of at least 350 pints per day.

On Monday there were 178 donations and yesterday only 164 appointments were kept.

Red Cross officials are "quite disturbed." They are relying heavily on student donations.

Campaign chairman Charlotte Hubbell said last night, "Student service representatives are phoning all the time for more room in the schedule, but those donors enrolled are not keeping their appointments at the clinic."

"After all their wild protestations, only 50 per cent of the Engineers kept their appointments on Monday," she said. "Only seven of the students from St. Michael's College donated, of the 75 enrolled as donors."

"University College hardly seems aware there is a blood campaign on. There has certainly not been any publicity in that college," said Miss Hubbell.

Engineering, the largest faculty, is leading in the race for the Blood Cannon with 114 donations, while Physical and Occupational Therapy, a relatively small faculty has contributed 59 pints of blood.

U of T has three days left in which to fill its quota. You do not have to have an appointment to donate blood.

The Red Cross has concentrated its equipment at the School of Nursing on St. George St. On Thursday and Friday they will also be at Knox College.

They expect results. A big push can put the U of T blood drive over the top.

The blood clinic is in operation every day this week from 9:30-11:30 a.m., and from 1-4 p.m.

Student Artists Ignored in Plan

The U of T Advisory Committee Report on Student Aid Monday came in for some criticism from one of the three founders of Canada's only year-round repertory theatre.

Delivering the annual Dale lecture, Donald Davis of Toronto's Crest Theatre expressed concern over the results of the plan, which makes little provision for financial aid to third-class students.

"Unconsciously, perhaps unwillingly," he said, universities have become Canada's only "breeding-ground" for the creative artist.

"Such people," he continued, "are not necessarily first-class students."

He called for universities to continue to make some provision for the creative artist, at least until such time as special schools can be established to encourage this type of individual.

Today, he said, in both the United States and Canada the "new property" or new play is being stressed to the exclusion of great acting and directing.

Meanwhile, he said, the new plays are being shown to the exclusion of the classics.

The Canadian Broadcasting Corporation yesterday "flatly rejected" proposals for a national university radio program put forward by the Canadian Association of University Broadcasters, but the student broadcasters decided to form their organization anyway.

CBC representatives at a two-day conference in Hart House termed the project "impractical because of regional loyalties."

E. G. Hallman, a director of the CBC's National Network, said "The contents of the program must appeal to the public in general and not only to students."

"One aspect of this problem involves national continuity. For example, a CBC broadcast on wheat farming will not find interest in British Columbia," he said.

"Another aspect is regional loyalties: Newfoundland is an entity, the prairie provinces are another, and the situation here in Ontario is best described as 'impossible'," he continued.

Mr. Hallman also said the CBC entertained doubts about the quality of material which would be submitted and about the percentage of students who would actually listen to such a program.

At the same time he left the door open for further action.

The CAUB will go to its individual members' student councils to get approval for the organization and will then concentrate on building up the organization on the local levels.

CAUB will hold a conference next October, at the same time as the National Federation of Canadian University Students holds its annual conference, and at that time will reapproach the CBC.

To aid in this scheme CAUB elected a slate of officers to hold office until the conference next October.

Dave Warren of Memorial University of Newfoundland was elected president.

Will Go Ahead Anyway

CBC Shuns College Radio

Vic Coeds Alerted For Evacuation During Fire

Fire has threatened Victoria College Women's residences for the second time this term.

Early Monday morning, residents of the Vic residences on Bloor St. were told by firemen to gather their most valuable possessions and assemble in their respective common rooms.

Women in Waldie House and Addison House were told they might have to evacuate if the fire spread at 4:40 a.m.

By 5:15 a.m. the fire was under control. Several construction shacks around the new residence had burned to the ground but other buildings were untouched.

The force of several explosions of unknown origin had blown the roofs off the shacks during the fire.

Earlier this term Loretto College's new residence was also damaged when a small heater overturned and burned construction materials.

Late Bulletin

OTTAWA, Feb. 17 (CUP) — Important statements concerning Canadian universities and civil defence will be made public soon, unofficial sources here say.

The statements are expected to boost civil defence planning on several campuses. No positive indications are available yet from the Department of National Defence, the sources say.

Farewell For Bennett

Retiring Victoria College Principal H. Bennett and Mrs. Bennett were guests of about 120 Victoria College students at a farewell banquet Monday night in Burwash Hall.

A friendly atmosphere prevailed as students paid tribute to Dr. Bennett for his contributions to Vic in his tenure of office.

Sue Evans (IV Vic) gave a brief farewell address to Principal Bennett who has held the office since 1944.

Dave Silcox (IV Vic) presented flashbacks on the career of Dr. Bennett as student and professor.

Principal Bennett received a flight-bag from the students of Vic. Mrs. Bennett was presented with a bouquet of roses.

Hart House Library Evening

THURSDAY, FEB. 26 AT 7.30 p.m.

IN THE HART HOUSE LIBRARY

Speaker: PROFESSOR NORTHROP FRYE
on "CANADIANS AND LITERATURE"

Members Only

Police Privileges Under Attack At Annual Law Panel Tonight

Police privileges will come under fire in the Hart House Debates Room at 8 p.m. tomorrow.

A legal forum on "Police and the Public" sponsored by the U of T Law Club will be chaired by Toronto barrister John Brooke, who recently took a case involving alleged police abuses to the Supreme Court.

Panel members are: the Hon. A. Kelso Roberts, Q.C., M.P.P., and Attorney General of Ontario; J. Mackie, chief of Metropolitan Police; Sidney Katz, associate editor of Maclean's magazine and author of the Maclean's article

"Why We Hate the Police"; Toronto barrister Patrick E. Hart. A club spokesman last night said panel discussion will center around what privileges police should enjoy in modern society, and whether the police have exceeded or abused these privileges.

Club member Gaby Warren (II Law) mentioned recent cases involving false arrest, misuse of firearms, intimidation of suspects and petty theft involving police officers make the topic "exceptionally timely".

All students and the general public are welcome to attend the panel, Warren said.

HILLEL

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 19, 1.00 p.m., U.C., ROOM 37

Prof. Northrop Frye, Chairman
Dept. of English, Victoria College

"THE ROLE OF SUBJECT MATTER IN THE AESTHETIC JUDGMENT"

Everybody Welcome

Command Ball

The University Naval Training Division's Command Ball aboard HMCS York will be Friday, February 27, 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Tickets, may be obtained from any UNTD mess committee representative.

Collegians Debate Here

High school students from the United States and Canada will battle for the Hon. Paul Martin Trophy this weekend at the St. Michael's College International Speech Festival.

Competition begins Friday evening with three rounds of debating and continues Saturday morning with contests in extemporaneous speaking, original oratory and oratorical interpretation and humorous oratory.

Contest is sponsored by the Basilian Fathers and the SMC Senate Club and is administered by the Club.

Mr. Martin, a St. Mike's graduate who donated the trophy to the Festival in 1956, will open the meet at 7 p.m. Friday in Carr Hall. He will also present the trophy at the closing banquet Saturday night.

Guest speaker at the banquet will be Mr. A.K. Jean, assistant to the American Consul-General to Canada who will speak on "Some Aspects of Canadian-American Relations."

Among the 17 teams expected to participate in the Festival are teams from St. Catharines, New York, Hamilton and Chicago.

All are welcome to attend the competitions.

The Ukrainian Students' Club PRESENTS

Annual Graduation Banquet At The SEAWAY

DATE—Wednesday, February 25 TIME—6.30 p.m. (BAR)
PRICE—$8.00 Per Couple (students) 7.00 p.m. (DINNER)
$10.00 Per Couple (non-students) DRESS: Semi-Formal
FOR TICKETS PHONE — PETER McDERMICK, RO. 7-1507

FINLAND

The National Union of Finnish University Students has extended an invitation for eight male students of the University of Toronto to spend the summer from early June to late August in Finland. For two weeks at the beginning of the summer the group will be the guests of the Union. The remainder of the time (seven to eight weeks) will be spent in work offering practical experience in a field of the student's choice.

Those chosen should be prepared to pay about half of their passage expense. All other expenses will be covered by the Union and by earnings. Applicants should enquire at the Undergraduate Office, Hart House, before 5 p.m., Thursday, February 19th.

BOX OFFICE OPENS TOMORROW

Christopher Fry's Translation
of Giraudoux's

TIGER AT THE GATES

Directed by Robert Gill

Saturday, Feb. 28th, to Saturday, March 7th, at 8.30 p.m.

HART HOUSE THEATRE'S FIFTIETH ALL-UNIVERSITY PRODUCTION

Same Special
Student Rate $1.00

Two Tickets Only
On Each A.T.L. Card

EATON'S

In Spring a co-ed's fancy turns to . . . studying and vacations! Both call for comfortable casuals like this duo. Wide-wale cotton corduroy tapered slims are paired with a "Gleneaton" washable English wool flannel shirt, styled in the classic manner. Slacks in greens, brown, black, grey, sand, burgundy. Sizes 12 to 18, each 16.95

Shirts in blue, yellow, red. Sizes 12 to 20

Eaton price, each 7.95

Phone UN 1-5111 Sportswear
Eaton's Main Store
Fourth Floor, Dept. 246

MEN OF THE UNIVERSITY!

RUN or NOMINATE your friends

for Hart House Committees:

HOUSE LIBRARY MUSIC ART DEBATES SQUASH

Nomination Forms available in the Undergraduate Office and from the Hall Porter

Nominations Close Friday at 6 p.m.

Talk, Travel And Tension For Students At Brussels

Bob Caplan, I Law, was one of four Uof T students chosen to act as guides last summer at the Canadian Pavilion of the Brussels World Fair. Two of the four remained in Europe after their duties with the government ended. All four man-

SO FEMININE was Bob Caplan's reaction to Brigitte Bardot. Here Caplan, Henry Hammond (Harvard) and Kibbe Fitzpatrick (Yale), take time out from duties at the Brussels World Fair to talk to the French beauty.

the world at the Fair.

Caplan met many students from other countries at the Fair. "I took out girls from Czechoslovakia, Turkey, Brazil, France, Israel and even Canada", he says. He and two American students met Brigitte Bardot as part of a publicity stunt for the Fair.

The Canadian students had "quite an esprit de corps", especially in disagreements with the administration. "You develop quite a sense of humor working for the government — you need it", Caplan says.

At one point friction between government and guides reached such a height that the National Federation of Canadian University Students offered to mediate. "But there were so many reporters around all the time, that doing anything about it would have been treason", Caplan says.

Caplan will talk about his summer at an open meeting of the External Affairs Commission in Falconer Hall tomorrow night. The meeting begins at 8 p.m. and refreshments will be served.

Vic Election:

Bell Big Winner

Stewart Bell, III Vic, was elected president of Victoria College Union as Vic students went to the polls yesterday.

Judy Sparrow was elected associate president; Virginia Lomas, female Student Administrative Council representative; Barbara Buchanan, Vic Women's Athletic Association president; Allison Dingle and John Wood, External Affairs Committee representatives.

In by acclamation are: Ted Tory, vice-president; Jerry Collins, social director; Murray Cullough, Secretary and Stuart Dubas, male SAC representative.

Elections were also held for permanent executive of 5T9 with Doug McDermid being chosen President.

Sally Potter, Associate President; Jean Samells, Social Director; Bette Pinkham, Secretary, rounded out the 5T9 executive.

An about-normal 38.5 per cent of Vic students cast their votes in the elections.

University College will hold their elections today for EAC and SAC representatives. Linda Silver and Barbara Leamen are in the running for the Female SAC position while Mike Sherman has been elected by acclamation for male representative.

Running for the position of female EAC representative are Ruth Kelleman and Linda Farnack. Male contestants are Fred Gans and Tom Schatzky.

here

TODAY

1 p.m. — Dunc Edmonds will talk on travel in France in room 33. UC. The lecture is the sixth and last in the WUS series "Destination: Europe".

1-2 p.m. — VCF will study the Bible in room 32, Electrical building.

— Dr. W. S. A. Dale, curator of the Art Gallery of Toronto, will be special guest at a Canterbury Centre luncheon. Bring your lunch or buy it there.

4 p.m. — The Rev. Wm. Bothwell will lead a Bible study seminar at Canterbury Centre, 99 St. George St.

4:10-5 p.m. — SCM will study "The Apostle's Creed" in room 14, Vic.

5:30 p.m. — SCM plans a special Wednesday Night Supper-meeting on work camps with slides and discussion of plans for 1959 at the coachhouse, behind 110 St. George St.

— The Rev. D. H. Rayner will speak at a supper meeting at the School of Missions, 97 St. George St.

8 p.m. — The U of T Outing Club plans a general meeting in the Carr Hall auditorium. SMC Agenda includes films, refreshments and election of a new executive.

THURSDAY

1:10-2 p.m. — The Blind Dog Society plans a special meeting in the North Committee Room, Hart House.

7-10 p.m. — Physical and Occupational Therapy students begin a two-day Open House, with demonstrations of therapeutic techniques and new therapy machines, at 6 Devonshire Pl.

PUBLIC LAW FORUM "THE POLICE AND THE PUBLIC"

PANELLISTS:

HON. A. K. ROBERTS

E. PATRICK HARTT

Attorney-General of Ontario

Barrister

JAMES MACKIE

SIDNEY KATZ

Toronto Chief of Police

Associate Editor of Maclean's

Moderator — J. W. BROOKE, Barrister

DEBATES ROOM — HART HOUSE

Tonight at 8 p.m.

This Summer

attend the

7th WORLD YOUTH FESTIVAL

VIENNA, AUSTRIA, JULY 26 - AUG. 4

post festival visits possible

SPECIAL 4 WEEK PLANE TRIP

all inclusive cost — approximately $600

By Boat — to Sept. 16 — Approximately $800

Register Now

Canadian Festival Arrangements Committee

P.O. BOX 57, POSTAL STATION "E", TORONTO 4

A. V. R. — 1960

The Students' Administrative Council and the A.V.R. Committee would be happy to receive material for the 1960 All Varsity Review.

Ideas and material may be submitted in outline form, and all material will be treated in a confidential fashion.

Submission and enquiries should be addressed to:

Irving Goldberg,
Chairman, A.V.R. Committee,
S.A.C. Office.

A TRAGEDY OF TWO TEACHERS

U.C. - ST. MIKE'S DARE TO PRODUCE

the children's hour

HART HOUSE THEATRE — FEBRUARY 18, 19, 20, 21

Students' Reduced Rate Tickets at

CARR HALL

ONLY $1

U.C. ROTUNDA

60 VOICES FROM GREENVILLE, PENNSYLVANIA

THIEL CHOIR

SUNDAY, FEBRUARY 22, 8.00 p.m.

GREAT HALL — HART HOUSE

Free-will Offering

Sponsored by the Lutheran Students Association

NAVY BALL

U.N.T.D. COMMAND BALL

ON BOARD H.M.C.S. YORK

Friday, February 27

2100 - 0100

"MAINBRACE WILL BE SPLICED"

Tickets $5.00 — Available in the S.A.C. Office

Feb. 18-25, 1-2 p.m.

EVERYBODY WELCOME

Kitten

big, bulky BAN-LON

Big jumbo-knit BAN-LON with pearly pie-plate buttons... big style with flaring Queen Anne collar, wide contra-knit collar edging and front panel... no pilling, no stretch or shrink... hand-finished... in a rainbow of sparkling spring colours. $15.95 AT GOOD SHOPS everywhere.

Look for the name Kitten!

how 'bout that?

When the Board of Broadcast Governors was set up last year its purpose was basically to allow for more competition in the field of Canadian television.

It is now acting to reduce competition in the field of Canadian radio. This year for the first time the BBG has summoned seven stations to a hearing in which they will be expected to give reasons why their licenses should be renewed.

Two of the stations are CKEY and CHUM operating from Toronto. These stations broadcast 24 hours of news and rock and roll music daily.

Two years ago the Fowler Royal Commission on Broadcasting, the commission that brought the BBG into being, accused most Canadian radio-stations of "stupefying mediocrity". In the case of CKEY and CHUM this is possibly true. But fortunately it cannot be sufficient reason for revoking their licenses.

It is a democratic rule of long standing that the governing body must follow the will of the people, not lead it. This is often a shame. It can mean that a mediocre public has the sovereign right to demand mediocre politics, mediocre economic organization and even mediocre entertainment.

Luckily for democracy, however, most governments find ways to subvert the disadvantages of majority rule. Politicians can be counted on to find subtle means of leading rather than following the desires of their constituents. But they must be subtle if they are to work in the framework of democracy.

Now, assuming for the moment that CHUM and CKEY actually are stations of "stupefying mediocrity", by no means a foregone conclusion, just what subtle move can the government make to do something about it?

The only thing the government can do to lead public taste in a way commensurate with democracy is to start a radio station of its own. And this is exactly what it did more than two decades ago.

The Canadian public paid its money (for a radio license) and took its choice.

During this period, that is, the government was not only following the public desire by allowing generally free broadcasting but was also subtly leading that public by the example of a very fine radio network.

Taking licenses away from private radio stations, on the other hand is going far beyond the limits within which the government can lead public taste.

Setting up the CBC was positive construction of a very progressive kind. Refusing the Canadian public the right to switch to another program, even one playing rock and roll, if it wishes, is negative destruction of an extremely reactionary sort. As long as the government is merely providing an alternative, it is well within its rights. But when it judges that its people shall be allowed to hear only what it thinks is right, it is in way over its head.

The great mass of people that listen faithfully to stations like CKEY and CHUM do so for more reasons than "stupefying mediocrity". CHUM especially is built mainly on a high degree of listener feedback, and informal personality broadcasting of a sort against which the BBG has no right to make a judgment.

There is only one principle that will give the Canadian people the kind of programming it wants plus the kind it should have: anyone, including the government, who can afford to, should be allowed to open a radio or TV station.

Meanwhile if the Board of Broadcast Governors really wants to do something positive about ending "stupefying mediocrity" it might start improving its own television service. SA

Ins and outs of

In and Out

Below, Mark Nichols, who is In as a managing editor but Out as nearly everything else except as a collector of early neo-classic snuff-boxes, describes for the illinformed and thus automatically In students of this university just what it means to be Out.

Ours like any other, is an age of standards. It is only in our time, however, that the blessing of a truly well-graded scale of standards has come into existence which allows us to shove people into various boxes that ascend in a distinct calibration from nowhere to somewhere.

We refer, of course, to the delightful new game of In and Out, an art distinction, segregation and discrimination that had its ancestry in one-upmanship, borrows its milieu from Jules Pfeiffer's sickness, and has the great merit of harming nobody.

Of course, it may lead to a nervous breakdown here and there, but generally speaking the movement is not yet widespread enough to have become the genuine social force it deserves to be.

The Varsity, therefore, undertakes here to set forth a list of In and Out rules for University of Toronto students. We hope the delineation of these distinctions will clear up a lot of misunderstandings and put a lot of people in their places.

Before we begin, however, it is necessary to make a few preliminary observations.

It is possible, for instance, that since the movement has had a vogue in the United States, In and Out may actually be Out by now. This, however, is too horrible to contemplate and so we suggest that even if In and Out is out, there is no reason to believe that In and Out is not so far Out that it is In. A purist, of course, could argue that to suggest that In and Out is so far Out that it is In is an Out argument.

Our answer to that is that purists are Out themselves. And that is the miracle of the game. You make the rules yourselves. If you're In, that is.

This should give you some idea of what we're about, so we may proceed.

Art and Archeology students, to begin with, are Out. This should silence a lot of critics. Architecture students are also Out, just to be on the safe side. And so are arty medical students.

Desert boots, corduroy pants, anything remotely, ivy league, duffel coats, Mexican jewelry, "kaki pants" plaid watch bands, four button jackets, crew-cuts, beards, and tatoos are Out. Charcoal gray suits, plaid shirts, pin-stripe pants, saddle shoes and argyle socks are all In. Moustaches are so fantastically out, it's just possible they might be In again, but we don't recommend anyone take the chance.

Perhaps it's trite to mention the next items, but in the interest of thoroughness, we have to point out that paper-back books with the exception of obscure French children's books are extremely Out, and so are bull-fight posters, Brentanno's reproductions, wild-flowers, prints of Cezanne or Picasso, any kind of jazz, and Bartok.

In however, are old rock and roll records, paintings by Grant Wood, stiff-cover collections of Mark Twain, southern Baptism and Platonism.

Guitar-playing is terribly Out. Flamenco is ever so Out, but the jew's harp is In and so are player pianos.

Being beat, hip, neurotic, existentialist, or Zen Buddhist should be Out forever but probably won't be. The bourgeoisie is very In again and the aristocracy is making a good comeback for the simple reason that luxury will always be In.

For motoring fans, almost everything is Out, though, there is some hope for 1938 Packards in mint condition. Most sports cars are Out, so are Italian motor scooters, 1940 Fords, and small European cars; Bicycles and '56 Cadillacs in bad shape are In.

For hobbyists, if any have survived the current Outness of hobbies, butterfly collecting and English cigar box-collecting are In. Records, small books of reproductions are out, but erotica, hamsters and Roman coins will always be In, thank God.

Getting back to campus, where this treatment properly belongs, UC is the only In college. Pharmacy and OCE are the only In faculties, though it's hard to say why. Freshman and fourth-year honor students will always be Out, of course, but graduate students who flunk out of SGS are extremely In.

All college literary magazines are Out and Jargon probably will be soon. Trinity's Salterae is very In for the obvious reason that it's bad and the Hillelite is In.

The Varsity is Out, of course, and always will be. But reading the sports page of The Varsity in the Hort House Map Room with the Cambridge Ancient History on your lap is In.

With Spring coming (which ought to be Out, but can't really be regulated), we should mention that idyllic love affairs are Out. Necking in Maths and Physics lectures is In, though, but looking deep into eyes in coffee shops is unforgivable and so is coffee, for that matter.

Going to university is probably Out too, but our ethnocentrism forbids our admitting it. The Ontario College of Arts is so Out that there's a strong possibility it might be In. Guelph Agricultural College is terrifically In for a while, and flunking out of McGill is coming back In.

Generally speaking, Ontario and Toronto in particular have been so Out for so long that they should be coming In, but that just can't happen. For really In living these days, Greenwich Village is the place, so there.

Mark Nichols

THE VARSITY

FOUNDED 1850

Published by

The Students' Administrative Council
of the University of Toronto

Toronto 5, Canada

Printed by Canadian University Press

Phone: 591-1111

Resident SAC: Lind 12 — WA 5-0742, WA 5-0713

For more information on this paper, try the "1" in the editor.

Today's Issue: Jayne Nesbitt, who did some more fine work on "Earl" who ran in his usual fine form; Bill Musgrave, efficient as always; the 1958 Women's Peace; Lead Vorn tag, and this all by only nineteen days! Don't wait, hope for the future, and read this paper. Don't wait.

Imagination and fantasy in fairy tale.

THE NUTCRACKER, a ballet reconstruction of childhood's fantastic dreams, opened the third week of the National Ballet's sojourn at the Royal Alex. It was a joyful presentation with greater technical care on the part of the whole company. Such a ballet aims at entertainment so charming and naive that the simple gaiety of the dancers eradicates the entertaining 'per se'. We are reminded of Christmas tree candles, innumerable oranges and toffees, and we dream of being amidst the most beautiful fairy-tale people. As an introduction to theatre for children, this would be the ballet. We should be able to feel the spontaneity of a childish reaction mirrored by the dancers on stage.

Miss Franca's knowledge of pantomime, mimicry and drawing-room ballet made the first Act most successful in achieving this feeling. The choreography cunningly involved group after group, while busy flirtations, games and port-drinking were carried on simultaneously. The hive of activity of an English children's party ended with bed-time. It just happened, of course, that we go into Clara's imagination, which being lively, showed the audience some pleasant ballet.

Rudolf Firkušný, celebrated concert pianist, will appear at tonight's International Artists Series in the Great Hall, Hart House.

"Time" Flags . . .

ALL ROUND THE FLAG, BOYS (Odeon-Carlton) is pretty funny up to a point. Unfortunately, the point arrives about 30 minutes after the picture begins and the show goes on for another 45.

Adapted from Max Shulman's wacky romp through suburbia, FLAG recounts the mis-adventures of the unhappy marital union of an overactive libido (Paul Newman) and a hyperconscientious committee-woman (Joanne Woodward). When wifey Joanne shows more interest in the community's garbage disposal system ("garbage-disposal-wise, new vistas are being opened to us") than her husband's animal comforts, hubby Paul falls prey to the local Circe (Joan Collins), as flashy a chassiss as ever filled out a pink nightie. Soon, however, the Army (Jack Carson) arrives to set up a missile base and the film unwisely abandons a charming triangle in favour of a much too improbable Pentagon.

This rather tenuous story line has its moments, but they are few and far between. Under Leo McCarey's leaden direction, the slapstick humour does not slap, but the bedroom innuendo does titillate. McCarey, apparently has not learned that farce, like soufflé, cannot be warmed over.

Woodward as the well-shaped pillar of the community and Paul Newman as her frustrated hubby hom it up in a delightfully wacky style; and Joan Collins is as humourously provocative a temptress as ever conned another girl's man. Jack Carson turns in some rather well-executed pratfalls.

Generally, however, the humour flags, that flew in the book, have been lowered to half-mast in this film adaptation.

Ted Schafer

special student rate

The York Concert Society are offering special rates for students for their series of five concerts: $4.00 per concert, and $20.00 for the series. These tickets can be obtained through the SAC.

At the opening concert on Feb. 25th, Dr. Heinz Unger will be presented with the Mahler Medal, in connection with the first Canadian performance of Mahler's Symphony No. 1. This first prize is a memorable occasion for among former winners of the Mahler Medal are such great names as Bruno Walter, Leonard Bernstein, Wilhelm Furtwängler and Otto Klemperer.

Among the artists appearing with this concert are Maria Canals, Morton Shuman, Greta Kautz and Boris Minkus. Programmes include works by Brahms, Mahler, Beethoven, Mozart, Bach, Mendelssohn, and Prokofiev. For names in Canada.

The second and third act, one a mock battle, the other a visit to the Snow Queen, were a pleasant contrast to each other. The difficulty of maintaining unity throughout a four-act ballet was not completely overcome, as was proved by the overall effect. The National has not yet achieved the perfect degree of assurance and necessary enthusiasm. The corps, however, in Act III, was quite dazzling. Technically and poetically they danced en masse with exact tightness.

The grand finale in the palace of the Sugar Plum Fairy was quite overwhelming due to Lillian Jarvis' performance. With an astounding interpretation of the Sugar Plum Fairy, which brooded on a Firebird, Miss Jarvis danced some of the most beautiful ballet we could ever desire. Her irritation at the beginning of the pas de deux with Nutcracker Prince (Earl Kraul) suddenly seemed to transform her somewhat mediocre opening into a performance nothing short of dynamic—the result was excellent. Miss Franca's choreography (after L. Ivanov), because of its superb delineation of clear purpose, allowed Miss Jarvis ample scope to show off her ability to great advantage.

Miss Franca's ability at choreography and directing of a character ballet came across again in this act—the three male Russian Bouffons being more roisterous than anyone else. The handling of the candy-cane mirlitons was reversely excellent, especially at the end of the act, where they helped to achieve one of Miss Franca's spectacular tableaux. Special mention of Barbara Malinowski's Clara; the orchestra and the dancing of Sally Braylet, who shows more of the Franca line than most members of the corps, and one has a work of delightful imagination.

(N.B.) The Nutcracker will be performed again on Saturday afternoon and evening this week.

Allison Cunningham

Foundering on the "Rock"

"Thunder Rock" is such a bad play one wonders why it was produced at all.

"Thunder Rock" is the story of David Charleston's last month on an isolated lighthouse in Lake Michigan. A famous pre-war journalist, Charleston has fled to the lighthouse when he found that "I had lost my professional objectivity I was beginning to care."

A plaque telling of the wreck of a ship, load of European immigrants in 1849 fires his imagination, and he brings six of the immigrants to life in his mind. He conceives of them as happier people than his contemporaries; as hopeful representatives of a Golden Age of innocent pioneering.

But as they achieve a more and more independent life, they show him that their world looked just as hopeless to them as his looks to him. Armed with this inspiring message, Charleston leaves the lighthouse to help do his bit towards a brave new world. The message, as one of the immigrants, Dr. Kurz, puts it, is that "sooner or later everything will work out alright." You can't keep the good old human race down.

Now, if everything is going to turn out all right what contribution can the individual make? In one of the silliest moments in the play (also the climax), Dr. Kurz communicates to Charleston the great social message that if Darwin had not produced an evolutionary theory, if Brahms had not composed, and if there had been no great works of art, science, or literature, sooner or later, someone else would have accomplished all these things. "This then is the great law of the universe," he says, "do it sooner," chants Charleston. He has been converted, and with the gospel of sooner or later ringing in his ears, he goes out to help start the Second World War sooner than it otherwise would have started.

Of course, great plays have been made out of trite, naive philosophies before. A great playwright can rise above his own philosophy. But what finally dooms "Thunder Rock" is that playwright Ardrey displays no theatrical talent whatsoever. And the Cres's production does no good either. In spite of bad reviews Bob Goulet, as Charleston, makes the best of a bad job. Among the rest only Hugh Webster, as the captain of the "ill-fated Land O'Lakes" and Jim Beggs as Mr. Briggs rise above the level of stereotyped caricatures that Mr. Ardrey provides them.

Although the programme lists George Keathley as director the direction seems to owe more to the Dramatists Playwrights Service Inc. As a matter of fact Michael Johnston's excellent set did much more than the direction to suggest atmospherically the situation of the characters. Sam Aizenstat lesbianism in hart house

The scene below is from the forth-coming Hart House production of Lillian Hellman's "The Children's Hour." "The show only UCC-SMC would dare to present."

Directed by William Davis (this year's Dale Award winner), and comprised of a superlative cast from both St. Michael's and University Colleges, "The Children's Hour" promises to be every bit as great a success as their last joint production of Michael Gazzo's "A Hattal Of Rain."

Set in a girl's school in a small town, USA, the plot deals with the conflicts that arise from a charge of lesbianism levelled against two of the schoolteachers (played by Sylvia Pegis and Jan Hughes).

The play opens tonight at Hart House Theatre and continues until Saturday. Tickets at $1.00 apiece ($1.50 to outside patrons) may be purchased at the box office, or from representatives in both the colleges.

Engineers, Redmen Lead Indoor Track

Skule and University College, paced the winners at yesterday's indoor track program, picking up 12 and 10 points, respectively. SPS had a first, third and two fourths, while Redmen garnered a first, second and third.

Van Iterson nosed out Bing in the junior 440-yards, with Hodgkins third and Csongradi fourth. Victoria's Snider captured the senior 440-yards, followed by Hamilton (Trinity), Van Loon (UC) and Brace (SPS).

Redmen, aided by recruits that included wrestler Andy Higbbs, took the 4 x 6 lap relay in 10:12 minutes. It was UC's first relay victory in indoor trials this season.

Total points for the day, besides Skule and UC, saw Victoria pick up five and Trinity three.

The relay was delayed 10 minutes as both UC and Skule found themselves short of team members, and a recruiting campaign had to be carried out before the starting gun.

Skule finally entered the event with two sprinters forced to run distance laps.

Matmen Crush Aggies

Last Saturday, the U of T wrestlers travelled to Guelph for an exhibition meet with OAC. The Seniors flailed the farmers to the tune of 25-14 but the intermediates lost 25-20.

All but three of the evening's matches ended in pins. Roger Doner, looking better each time out, flattened OAC's Gord Bowlers in just over a minute to claim the honors for the shortest contest.

In two of the evenings most exciting matches, Varsity's Andy Higgins and Ken Brown also sent their opponents to the shower room early.

Ken Deer pulled a Frank Meriwell finish in the 147-pound class when he survived two near falls, then came back and pinned George Hyatt. The intermediates gave up 20 points on defaults, but staged a determined uphill struggle to come within five points of tying the Aggies. In the 137-pound class thriller, Andy Beattie had to be exceptionally brilliant to pin his Guelph foe.

Rod Carrow and Larry Argue also registered intermediate pins while Herb Brown picked up five points for a default. Both teams are putting on the finishing touches to the season's hard labour when they tangle with the U of Buffalo contingent this Saturday at Hart House. This will be the last exhibition of the year.

Next weekend they play for keeps (we hope) when they again go to OAC for the inter-collegiate meet.

With outstanding talent such as Roger Doner, Frank Brown, Fred Ledvinka and Andy Higgins their hope of returning with the silverware is brighter than it has been in years.

Irish Ahead In Reed Race

In Interfaculty hockey action UC's trounced Sr. SPS 5-1. Gatten and Wensley scored two each for UC while Yates added a single. Gray was the lone marksman for SPS.

Jr. SPS gained revenge for the Skulemen by defeating UC II by a 6-3 margin. Stee fired three goals for the winners, with Miller, Freison and Simpson collecting one each. Spence, Adams, and Jacobson countered for UC.

In basketball activity, SPS C defeated Vic 3, 44-23. Leading point getters for SPS were Sian-kee (15), Heller (18) and Cwir-enko (8). Dauphinee and Tait scored seven each for the losers.

Metallurgy III's, playing with only four men, defeated UC Socs 59-22. Bracken (20), Lubeck (15), Arthur (14) and Wilcox (10) scored all the points for the four-man contingent, while Elgie led UC with ten.

Water Polo saw UC I and SPS tie 4-4. Hall garnered all four for UC while Thesingh with two and Binner and Wilkes with one each accounted for SPS scoring.

Squash pits saw SPS A defeat Trinity A 2-1. Robb and Ingram scored for SPS. Ross won for Trinity.

The following are the Feb. 11 standings in the I.A. Reed trophy race. Included are fall term corrections where the point revision is retroactive.

DIVISION I
St. Mikes	9128
SPS	8674
Medicine	7788
Trinity	7556
UC	6547
Dentistry	4299
Vic	4139
DIVISION II
Wycliffe	7561
Forestry	3656
Law	4807
Knowl	4681
Architecture	4509
Pharmacy	4437
Emmanuel	4374

THE CAMPUS CO-OPERATIVE RESIDENCE INC.

requires a Summer

General Manager

The term of employment will be from mid-May to mid-September. Salary: $250 per month, plus room and board.

Apply in writing stating qualifications to the C.C.R.I., 32 Sussex Avenue, by March 14th.

Nobody Gave A Hoot For J. Paul Sheedy* Till Wildroot Cream-Oil Gave Him Confidence

"Wise everybody avoid me so?" h-owed J. Paul. "Because you're such a ruffled old bird", replied his best buddy. Well that really opened Sheedy's eyes. He took a taxi-dermist down to the store and pecked up a bottle of Wildroot Cream-Oil. Now he's the picture of confidence because he knows his hair always looks its best from morning till night. So if people have been hooting at your messy hair, screech for a bottle or tube of Wildroot Cream-Oil. It's guaranteed to keep your hair neat but not greasy. And all the gals will go out of their way to beak to you.

*of 131 So. Harris Hill Rd., Williamsville, N. Y.

Wildroot Cream-Oil gives you confidence

WOMEN'S ATHLETICS — VOLLEYBALL

The game between Vic IV and Pharm. scheduled for today, 5-6, is cancelled, and will be played next week.

GAMES TODAY

HOCKEY
8:00 Dent. C	vs Trin. D
8:00 SPS. VI	vs Trin. C
WATER POLO
4:00 Trin. B	vs St. M. C
6:15 U.C.	vs Med. I
SQUASH
1:00 Pre-Med. II Yr. vs SPS. V
5:40 Dent. D	vs U.C. III
7:00 Dent. C	vs Trin. D
BASKETBALL MAJOR LEAGUE
1:00 SPS. IV	vs SPS. B
6:30 Dent. III Yr. vs SPS. G
7:30 Sr. SPS	vs St. Med.
8:30 SPS. VII	vs St. M. E
BASKETBALL MINOR LEAGUE (HART HOUSE)
1:00 III Elec.	vs Pre-Med. II A
5:00 U.C. Mercuries	vs Med. III Yr. B
6:00 IV Civil	vs Med. III Yr. A
7:00 Music	vs For. B
8:00 IV Eng. Bus.	vs U.C. Hutton
BASKETBALL MINOR LEAGUE (VIC GYM)
4:00 St. M. C & P	vs Pre-Med. I B
5:00 U.C. McCaul	vs Pre-Med. I C
6:00 I Chem.	vs I Elec. B
7:00 St. M. Stein's.	vs U.C. Taylor

DIVISION I

HOCKEY PLAYOFF SCHEDULE

GROUP PLAYOFFS:—

Thur. Feb. 19 1:30 U.C. III vs St. M. C Brewer, Borthwick
Thur. Feb. 19 6:30 Arch vs Wye McEligott, Brunt
The 6:30 game will only be necessary if Wye wins over Arch in last regular game.

DIV. I:—

Game 1 Fri. Feb. 20 12:30 SPS. VII vs Dent. A Reimer, Borthwick
Game 2 Fri. Feb. 20 1:30 SPS. IV vs SPS. V Reimer, Borthwick
Game 3 Mon. Feb. 23 12:30 Vic. I vs U.C. III or St. M. C
Game 4 Tues. Feb. 24 6:30 U.C. I vs Winner (1)
Game 5 Mon. Feb. 23 1:30 St. M. B vs Jr. SPS
Game 6 Tues. Feb. 24 1:00 St. M. A vs Winner (2)
Game 7 Wed. Feb. 25 12:30 Trin. A vs Winner (3)

Semi-finals Fri. Feb. 27 12:30 and Tues. Mar. 3 1:30
Winner (4) vs Winner (5)
Mon. Mar. 2 12:30 and Thurs. Mar. 5 12:30
Winner (6) vs Winner (7)

Finals Mon. Mar. 9, Wed. Mar. 11 and Fri. Mar. 13, 12:30 p.m.

DIV. II—Semi-Finals

Fr. Feb. 27 4:00 and Thurs. Mar. 5 4:30
Emman or Pharm vs Arch or Wye
Wed. Feb. 25 4:00 and Mon. Mar. 2 5:30
Emman or Pharm vs Knox

Finals—Mon. Mar. 9, 4:30, Thurs. Mar. 12, 5:30 & Mon. Mar. 16, 4:30

FURTHER REFEREE ASSIGNMENTS WILL BE ANNOUNCED LATER.

1858

BREWERY LIMITED

1958

Blues Climbing Ladder In Hockey Point Race

Varsity Blue centres Bill Kennedy and Mike Elik, neither of whom is currently active with Jack Kennedy's pennant-bound Blues, continue to run one-two in the intercollegiate senior hockey scoring race.

McGill Captures Ski Championship

McGill University dethroned defending champion Laval to win the Intercollegiate ski championship at the University of Montreal. Topono placed third, followed by Queen's, Carleton and Montreal, in that order.

Varsity's Raimo Repo captured the cross-country event, while veteran Fred McNutt placed second in the jumping event. Final point totals were: McGill, 565; Laval, 532; Toronto, 526; Queen's, 513; Carleton, 481; and Montreal, 386.

Varsity's seven-man team included: Repo, McNutt, Pete Hamilton, George Weider, Mike Wilson, Walter Borland and Fred Tahte.

The Scoreboard

INTERCOLLEGIATE

HOCKEY

	P	W	L	T	F	A	Pts
TORONTO	9	8	1	0	79	28	16
Laval	7	5	1	1	43	33	11
Montreal	9	3	6	1	42	37	7
McGill	9	0	9	0	16	82	0

Future Games
Friday—McGill at Montreal; Laval at TORONTO.

BASKETBALL

	P	W	L	T	Pts
Assumption	8	7	1	0	13
Western	7	6	1	0	12
Queen's	7	4	3	0	8
TORONTO	7	2	5	0	4
McGill	7	2	5	0	4
McMaster	8	1	7	0	2

Future Games
Friday—McGill at Western; Queen's at McMaster.
Saturday—Queen's at TORONTO; McGill at Assumption.

Kennedy, sitting out two weeks with a head injury, remains atop the pack with eight goals and 17 assists for 25 points, eight better than Elik and three other players with 17.

University of Montreal winger Yves Laurendeau, and Blue forwards Dunc Brodie and Ron Casey each have 17. Laurendeau leads the league, along with Elik, in goals with 10, while Kennedy's 17 assists is far ahead of his nearest rival.

Brodie, Casey and Dave Stephen made the greatest advance last weekend, picking up six goals three assists against McGill Redmen. Stephen jumped from 17th to ninth in point standings.

Sports' Parade 40 Years Ago

From The Varsity Files
February 18, 1919

Varsity's all-star basketball team defeated Broadview in one of the fastest games ever played in Broadview "V". The Broadview team has not as yet met its match in the Intermediate OBA (Ontario Basketball Association) series and is considered one of the best in the city. Owing to the superior team play of the champions of the blue and white and the phenomenal shooting of Urquhart and Coles, the final score, 27-21, gave victory to the Varsity men.

The team is practicing hard and will before long be ready to meet Queen's and McGill.

Next Friday the Varsity hockey team will try conclusions with Victoria at the Arena, between 1 and 2 p.m. Although an unfortunate time, all Vets should make it a point to be present. The result of the game is not of vital importance; but it is the general feeling that the Vets would just as soon occupy second place in the series as third. So turn out and boost your team.

McGill rearguard and captain Terry Dingle added a minor penalty to his league-leading total, and has now watched 70 minutes worth of hockey from the penalty box.

Brodie, with 30 minutes — all on minors — is Dingle's closest rival as league badman. Dingle has had a misconduct, two majors and two game penalties.

In goal, Varsity's Bob Giroux and Ray Dunn continue to pace the netminders. Giroux has permitted five goals in two games for a 2.50 average, while Dunn is close behind with 23 in seven games and a 3.29 average.

	GP	G	A	Pts	PM
KENNEDY (T)	8	17	25	6
ELIK (T)	7	10	17	17
Laurendeau (M)	8	10	17	17
CASEY (T)	9	8	17	16
BRODIE (T)	9	8	17	16
Edmund (M)	6	7	9	16	2
Stéphane (M)	8	6	9	15	10
STEPHEN (T)	9	5	10	15	2
KL. Arsenault (L)	6	4	10	14	2
KL. Arsenault (L)	6	4	10	14	2
WILLIAMS (T)	7	6	8	11	4
ROTH (T)	9	9	5	14	21
McDonald (L)	6	7	6	13	2
MACDONALD (T)	8	4	9	13	15
Raymond (L)	5	7	5	12	12

	GP	G	A	SO	AVG	PM
GIROUX (T)	2	5	0	2.50	0
DUNN (T)	7	23	1	3.29	0
TORONTO	9	28	1	3.11	0
McBourget (M)	3	12	0	4.00	2
McShoener (M)	5	21	1	4.20	2
McGILL	9	37	1	4.11	4
Lebrun (L)	7	33	0	4.71	0
Herron (McG)	9	82	0	9.11	2

*Does not include Laval-University of Montreal game of Thursday, February 12, played in Quebec City.

Fencers Retain College Crown

University of Toronto fencing Blues overwhelmed McGill Redmen, 20-7, and the University of Montreal, 22-5, to capture their fifth consecutive Intercollegiate championship. The matches were played in Montreal.

The final scores in the round-robin tournament were: Toronto, 42; McGill, 20 and Montreal, 19. Not only did Varsity sweep the foil, epee and sabre events, but the individual title was decided between two Blues.

Henry Sara defeated footballer Sandy Bell for the sabre title, while Howard Tate topped Marty Nash for the epee crown. Sara was beaten in the foil final by Tate.

Tate also captured the George Tulley Trophy, awarded for skill, style and sportsmanship, keeping the cup in Toronto for another year.

Sport-full Weekend Approaches With Hockey, Cage Highlights

The final heavy sports weekend of the year is upcoming Friday and Saturday, with Intercollegiate senior basketball and hockey providing the highlights.

Friday night, Laval University Rouge et Or pay their final visit of the season in what has become the year's crucial hockey game.

A Toronto victory would put Blues seven points ahead of Rouge et Or, and mean Varsity would need only a tie in their two remaining games to be assured of no worse than a tie for the title.

A Laval win, however, would move them only three points back of Varsity, and place Blues' title hopes in jeopardy. Varsity completes the season on March 6 and 7 against Laval and Montreal in Quebec.

Saturday night, Queen's Golden Gaels, currently one of the hottest senior basketball teams, pipes into Hart House for battle with Varsity's hot-and-cold cagers. Blues, eliminated from the college race, have nothing but prestige and lost pride to gain from a win, and will be going all out to bounce the Tricolor.

Queen's have been receiving great play from veteran Greg Stone, and Varsity's ability to hold the high-scoring cager in check will have a great bearing on the final outcome.

Gaels tripped Toronto, 69-56, at Kingston in an earlier game this season. The senior battle starts at 8 p.m., with Don Lipke's Baby Blues hosting Queen's Comets in the preliminary.

All proceeds from the Athletic Night Saturday will go to the Physical and Health Education Alumni Association, which annually sponsors a Hart House athletic night.

Other highlights on the Saturday program include wrestling, swimming, movies and dancing in the main gym following the senior basketball game. (See Friday's Varsity for full details.)

Toronto's final home basketball game is carded for February 25, when John Metras leads his second-grade Western Mustangs into Hart House. A Varsity win would virtually knock Mustangs out of the race, and give Assumption the title.

by
john brooks

varsity sports editor

A famous butterfly, an organized club without a charter, and a collection of to-hell-with-the-decision athletes are in the process of bringing this university a "first" in Canadian athletic history.

On March 6 and 7, representatives of the upper echelon of world swimming ranks cross the 49th parallel and descend on our cold and conservative capital (of Ontario, blue laws and political squabbles, that is).

They will be met by those nondescript entities mentioned in the first paragraph and, somewhat later, by what promises to total over 1,000 enthusiasts.

The occasion, of course, will be the University of Toronto swim team's first annual Water Carnival, the finest such event held in North America since the war.

The whole idea came from none other than Bill Yorzyk himself (well, I don't care what you think, Mother, he is a butterfly) and shot forth into public recognition last week. But the plans had been formulating for a long, long time.

The first intimate disclosure of a possible Carnival came on January 23, with Yorzyk, John Ridpath and Joe Macinnis engaged in conversation on a bus coming home from a meet against Western.

On February 3, the wheels began to roll. The Toronto Swim Club held its first meeting at the Warren Avenue home of Canadian Olympic competitor Virginia Grant. One week later, the Athletic Directorate gave its blessing to the Carnival.

The gentlemen (okay, Mother, I exclude myself) who sit on the Directorate admitted surprise at the project presented to them by Coach Yorzyk, and realized the Carnival to be far too promising a project to reject.

Their surprise would probably have been even more noticeable had they known exactly what was in process outside their doors as they discussed the finer points and then gave the Carnival unanimous approval.

Fifteen hundred tickets were rolling off the press, over 1,000 handbills were in preparation, arrangements had been completed for bleachers to cover four sides of the pool, and the imported stars had already stated their willingness to come.

Publicity arrangements had been finalized, and the whole plan, approval hard-set behind the scenes, prepared to blast forth once approval had been received. The gamble paid off.

Refusal by the Directorate would have been a blow, not only to the swim enthusiasts who had worked so long and faithfully to launch the Carnival, but to Canadian swimming in general.

Always a sport which has ridden in a back seat in our country, swimming has received a blessing in disguise, in the person of William A. Yorzyk. Bill has suddenly brought the sport before the public with unprecedented glory and interest is booming.

Not only that, but he has placed his good standing with the American Athletic Union in severe jeopardy, particularly by his plan to take Varsity swimmers Bob Fisher and John Deacon to the U.S. for personally-supervised training this summer.

"Quite frankly, I don't care what they (the AAU) think. I know they won't be happy with my activities up here, but that's the least of my worries right now," he said.

"This Water Carnival will be the biggest thing this campus has seen in a good many years, and certainly the greatest shot in the arm that could be given to Canadian swimming."

Tickets are now available, and if early sale can be taken as any indication, those who wait much longer to purchase theirs will find themselves out of luck. Seating capacity is severely restricted by the size of the Hart House pool.

Fortunately for the swimmers, they have picked a weekend when hockey and basketball are either finished or playing away, and, at present, there appears to be no campus activity which will conflict with the Carnival.

Support of the student body is, needless to say, vital. If the students themselves give sanction to the Carnival by their attendance, it could well turn into an annual event that would bring world-wide recognition to this university as a swim-crazy college.

And it could bring the famed Jon and Lisa Konrads to a second annual Carnival in 1960. But a great deal of the success depends on Jack and Jill Student.

Attending the Carnival would be a simple and enjoyable way of thanking Bill Yorzyk for his contribution to our University, and giving him reason to believe these 18-hour days are worthwhile after all.

... and in this corner by pam hill

Coaches, trainers, managers, etc., have a much bigger job on their shoulders than we realize.

They're working with a very select group of persons: those who are interested in a particular sport.

There are two kinds of athletes in sports: the one who is completely dedicated to the one sport and the one sport only, and the other who is dedicated to sports in general.

The first "type" trains rigorously, adheres strictly to "no alcohol", "no heavy partying", "no smoking", "no fried foods", "10 hours sleep", etc. ad infinitum. The second "type" works out as best he can sleep, etc. ad infinitum. The second "type" works out as best he can sleep, etc. ad infinitum. The second "type" works out as best he can sleep, etc. ad infinitum.

The latter is the athlete. It is precisely this that makes a winner a champion.

Immanuel Kant maintains that if we have the potential of being something, we must fulfill this potential. If an athlete has the potential of being a champion, he should become a champion.

But for some, becoming a champion involves eating, sleeping, drinking, thinking, talking — living that particular sport.

But I feel that everyone also has a potential of being happy, and living life to the lees. One should also develop this potential.

The coach must know his trainee. Just as in the competitive event, you give it all you've got, you fatigue yourself, BUT, you don't exhaust yourself, burn yourself out to the extent that you're no good for another event.

Coaches admit that they have had runners do a better time at 17 years than Herb Elliot did at 17. Roger Bannister admits the fault of exhausting himself to unconsciousness the first time he broke the four-minute mile.

What happens to the runners? They're burned out. They're no good for another fast race. Bannister regrets the way he ran that first race.

And here the coach comes in. He must allow his competitor neither to let life pass nor to "burn himself out". The sport must not become an end in itself.

Here at the University of Toronto, I venture to say that 90% of the athletes are of the superior type. They know how to train hard at the time, keep their conditioning up, yet they also not only look at but enjoy life.

A tip of the hat to all the Bill Yorzyks, Timmie Reids, Sue Evans, Janet Medlands on campus.

Also a tip of the hat to all the Dalt Whites, Jack Kennedys, Mickey Barnetts, etc. on campus.

And believe me, there are many of both around.

Entrants Make Record In Hart House Contest

A record number of entrants in the Hart House Photography Contest shared 42 prizes and honorable mentions at an exhibition preview Monday night.

Out of 205 pictures entered, 60 photographs were accepted for hanging in the show. About 50 out of 285 color slides were also chosen for exhibition.

Judges called the entries "a very fine effort", and praised the "excellent calibre" of pictures.

The exhibition will hang for two weeks in the Hart House Art Gallery, and will be open for viewing from 10 a.m. - 10 p.m. to Hart House members. House women are permitted to see the exhibition will be announced later.

The National Federation of Canadian University Students' Photo Contest exhibition arrived in Toronto Sunday night, but will not be shown here, contest chairman Ron Carr said last night.

Photographs have to be forwarded to Montreal Friday, Carr said. Decision not to hang the show was also made because it conflicts with the Hart House exhibition, and the "quality of the Ncus exhibition in relation to the Hart House show doesn't make it worth hanging", Carr said.

Top place winners in the Hart House contest included a Senior Award to Bev Burwell (SGS) for "The Searcher" and a Junior Award to Don McKinnon (II SPS) for "Day in Central Park".

Winner of first prize in color slides was Bill Kantymir (IV SPS) for "Treasure Trove Fantasy", and Ron Carr (I Meds) won the Karsh Trophy for "Leap" and the photographic essay prize for "Rugger's Rugged".

Other winners included, Senior Award, second prize Dave Sprott; honorable mentions, Bill Kantymir (2), Dave Sprott (3).

Eight Will Visit Finland eight-year-old tradition

House will travel to Finland this summer, as the third student exchange.

After the Second World War, Finland was forced to deprive students of essentials such as adequate housing, which students in Canada take for granted, in order to pay war reparations.

The active student union at the university in Helsinki determined to build their own residence several miles from the university.

To raise funds, they flew across Canada on a singing tour which included a stop at the University of Toronto.

Here they were offered aid, and the following summer a group of students went to Finland where they laid the foundations for a Finnish "sauna" or steam bath.

This exchange of students between the two countries has continued since 1951. This year eight students from the U of T will work in Finnish business concerns.

It is an excellent opportunity for engineering and science students, but arts students will also benefit from such a summer, officials say.

Private business concerns in Canada will pay half the travelling expenses of the group, and the Finnish hosts will provide for the students during the orientation period.

It is expected the group will leave about June 1. Applications will be accepted at the Undergraduate Secretary's Office until 5 p.m. this Thursday.

Choose Exchange Trio

Three U of T students have been chosen to attend an exchange seminar at University of Western Ontario next weekend.

The delegates are: Carole Ann Mason (II Mod. Hist.); Eleanor Crothers (I Gen); Fred Zemans (III Poli Sci & Ec).

The three will leave Friday morning to join delegates from Canadian and American universities in a round of panels, discussions and parties. They will return to Toronto Sunday afternoon.

Editor — Students' Handbook

Applications for the position of Editor of "The Students' Handbook, 1959-60", will be received by the undersigned until 12 noon, Friday, February 20th.

A. E. M. Parkes,
Associate Secretary,
Students' Administrative Council.

SALE

Up to 50% Reductions on Cocktail Dresses, Wedding and Evening Gowns. Come in Between Lectures, Anytime. Too good an opportunity to miss.

HELMAR

46 St. George St. — WA. 1-5978

HART HOUSE

Nominations for Hart House Committee elections close this Friday. Information brochures and nomination forms available at the Undergraduate Office

HOUSE
LIBRARY
MUSIC
ART
DEBATES
SQUASH RACQUETS

These are the six committees which must be elected on March 3. Eight places must be filled in the five standing committees and four in the squash committee.

ACT NOW

Faculty or College sponsorship is not at all necessary. Telephone WA. 3-9504 for further information.

WEDNESDAY, 18th February:

Art Library: 9 a.m. in the Art Gallery

ART GALLERY: EXHIBITION OF PHOTOGRAPHS. Open to women from 12 noon to 6 p.m. today.

INDUSTRIAL FILM: "SONG OF THE CLOUDS" — A Shell Oil Film, 1.15 p.m. — Music Room.

NOON HOUR CONCERT

PHYLLIS RUNGE, PIANO
1.25 p.m. — East Common Room

LEE COLLECTION: Open to men and women from 5 to 6 p.m. (Access through the Reading Room).

Amateur Radio Club: Theory Class in Debates Loft — 5.10 p.m.

Revolver Club: 7.30 p.m. in Rifle Range

Table Tennis: 7 p.m. — Fencing Room

TOMORROW:

EXPLORATION SOCIETY OPEN MEETING

MR. BRISTOL FOSTER WILL SHOW A MOVIE ON HIS JOURNEYS IN AFRICA. ALL ARE WELCOME (including women)

8 p.m. — Music Room

THIS SUNDAY:

Visitors' Sunday in Hart House. All members of the University Community are invited to bring their friends to Hart House from 2 to 5.30 p.m. Tea is served in the Great Hall from 3.00 to 4.30 p.m.

Fake Strike

READING, Eng. — Several Reading University professors have admitted aiding students in a kingsized prank.

A rich diamond strike that had Britons readying their shovels last week turned out to be publicity for the Reading Rag Day Carnival. Several valuable fragments of rough diamond crystal were supposedly found in the Thames Valley where geology students had been excavating.

TYPEWRITERS

$1.00 A WEEK BUYS . . .
$1.50 A WEEK RENTS

Get a free typing course and a liberal trade-in allowance for your old typewriter when you buy a new modern machine from us.

Phone HO. 1-1843 Today

CLASSIFIED ADS.

$1 DOWN BUYS ANY MAKE
Brand new typewriters. $59 up
Some models $30 off. Free home demonstration. Free typing course
1959 models rented, lowest rates
375 Jane-Humber, RO 6-1103.

TYPIST (Electric)
Fast, accurate, personalized service. Theses, essays, letters, dictation. Reasonable rates. Irene Kenyon, 146 Bernard Avenue, WA 3-4011.

ACCOMMODATION AVAILABLE
For male or female student at the Campus Co-Operative Residence Inc. Phone WA. 1-2520.

UNIVERSITY BLAZERS

Custom Made

Especially Priced for Students
$27.50

Fine Flannel Worsted Trousers
$16.50

Business Hours: 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.
Monday through Saturday

Suits made to measure
latest styles and design

PARNES Clothing Co.

706 QUEEN STREET WEST
EM 6-2025
Sample at S.A.C. Office

ALL-DAY MILDNESS

Black Cat PLAIN CORK FILTER

Abracadabra

Foolish boy—the best way to make a bottle of Coke disappear is to drink it! Yes, swallow after swallow, that cold crisp taste is so deeply satisfying . . . and the lively lift is so bright and cheerful. So open sesame! Just uncup the bottle and get ready for The Pause That Refreshes!

BE REALLY REFRESHED . . . HAVE A COKE!

SAY 'COKE' OR 'COCA-COLA'—BOTH TRADE-MARKS MEAN THE PRODUCT OF COCA-COLA LTD.—THE WORLD'S BEST-LOVED SPARKLING DRINK.

CONDEMN UG

—See below

Why, tell us, why...

THE VARSITY

... does everything happen at once?

Vol. LXXVIII — No. 79

THE UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO

Thursday, February 19th, 1959

Civil Defence Priority Given Universities in Federal Plan

Stand Third On List After Gov't, Industry

OTTAWA, Feb. 19—(U.P.)—Universities have been given priority in a new comprehensive civil defence plan outlined here today.

Complete details of the new plan, released jointly through the Department of National Defence and the Department of Health and Welfare, are not available.

It is known, however, that Canadian universities stand third on the list after federal and provincial governments and key industrial areas.

Federal Civil Defence Headquarters, under the Health and Welfare department since 1951 has forwarded requests to administrations of all Canadian universities calling for immediate details of civil defence programs, if any.

Health and Welfare minister Waldo Montieth said the new civil defence program was born out of committee sessions "held all last month".

He said there was no indication the program was being initiated because government officials "feared another war".

"Recent tension over Berlin may have prompted the move," he said, "but this has been in our minds for some time."

Mr. Montieth said the university section of the plan had been released in advance "because we need certain statistics involving the co-operation of universities".

The announcement made public already, the report said, "Universities are not isolated from target areas; they are in the heart of the country."

It is not known here what move university administrations will make to comply with CD Headquarters request. Several universities, including McGill and Toronto, have evacuation plans based on preliminary details drawn up during the Second World War.

The new plan is based essentially on "development and testing of plans for the orderly evacuation on short notice... should the possibility of nuclear attack be imminent".

The short 275-word statement made only brief references to the over-all plan, expected to be released early next month.

POSSIBILITY that University College's familiar spot on campus may soon look like this, is raised by the report of a city works department inspector who yesterday labelled five parts of the old college as "structurally unsound."

Estimated Two Million Required For "Critical" Structural Repairs

University College is virtually "falling down", it was learned yesterday, and college officials are faced with the prospect of collecting an estimated $2,000,000 to prop the building up again.

City building inspector J. Lester Randolph told the University administration yesterday that "structural weaknesses in at least five major parts of the college building proper" will make necessary extensive repairs within the year.

Mr. Randolph, who late last year flatly condemned as unsafe the main building of Upper Canada College, said the UC buildings can be repaired. He hinted, however, that unless repairs are begun at once, the city will order demolition.

A crew of seven city inspectors under the direction of Mr. Randolph worked through the week inspecting the building after a report from city fire inspectors last month listed the college as "unsafe."

Mr. Randolph told The Varsity last night that "while the danger is not liable to cause immediate upset, we cannot, in the light of recent events, allow continued use of the building while it is in its present condition."

Mr. Randolph said he was referring to the case of Upper Canada College, where "an immediate danger to life" was found by city inspecting crews.

University officials last night declined to make official comment on the city report.

Principal F.C.A. Jeanneret, however, estimated that the report indicated some $2,000,000 would be needed to put the ancient building into "safe condition."

"There have been previous indications of this condition," the principal said last night. He said that during installation of the Jeanneret Memorial Window in the college's West Hall workmen had commented on the unsound state of the walls and ceiling construction.

"We never dreamed it was this bad," he added.

The principal said that no accurate estimate of cost could be made until a consulting architect was called by the college to assess the situation. The $2,000,000 estimate was made on the basis of unofficial reports from the city inspectors.

University College's rotunda, the well-known "Cloisters" on the west, and the entire East wing and West Hall were cited in the report as "critical areas."

The Junior Common Room, certain basement areas and six specified classrooms were listed as "potential danger areas."

Mr. Randolph said that structural dangers were largely due to wood-decay, stone-rot and faulty construction that was "due to the perpetually moist Toronto weather."

He said that wood and stone decay in the Rotunda construction constituted one of the worst menaces discovered by inspectors. "Left alone for another year, I should think that whole area would at some point fall in," he said last night.

"There is no reason for panic," he added. "Our report has not condemned the building, merely pointed to the extraordinary danger inherent in certain places."

Principal Jeanneret said a canvass of alumni for funds was one way in which the expected mammoth repair bill could be met.

"I'm not at all sure how much we can expect to get from the university, even though we are the university's arts college," he said.

"This is really a matter for Simcoe Hall," he added. "I suppose that the university administration will ask us to confer with our alumnae societies and present an estimate of the sum needed before a university grant is made."

The announcement made public

Mock Evacuation Called At Noon Today-Bissell

A mock evacuation of all U of T students and faculty personnel will be conducted at 12 noon today, president Claude Bissell announced last night.

The mock evacuation, based on U of T's Second World War plans, comes fast on orders from Ottawa's federal civil defence headquarters asking details of present civil defence capabilities.

Decision to carry out the evacuation came after a hurried Caput meeting yesterday afternoon. Metropolitan Toronto civil defence officers will guide the evacuation and make notes to be forwarded to defence headquarters.

"Full co-operation from all members of the university, unless engaged on essential work, is necessary to make the operation worthwhile," president Bissell said.

He said Deans and heads of departments should receive notice of the operation by this morning.

The evacuation plan, first drawn up in 1940 but never tested, calls for evacuation of personnel to the Orillia area. Only the initial stages of the operation will be conducted today, the president said. Details of the plan are printed in the centre pages of today's paper.

Under the plan, the campus is divided into five sectors. Each sector has an assembly centre. In a real attack, personnel would meet at the assembly centre and wait for civil or army transport which would take them to the evacuation area.

President Bissell said no transport would be available today to the university's estimated 16,000 personnel.

"The principal aim of today's operation is to test the old evacuation plans and see if they can be adapted to the present size of the university. The important element is time. All university members should co-operate to the fullest, nothing else."

in this respect," he said. Enrolment of the university has almost doubled since 1940.

The president outlined the following instructions:

... At 12 noon all students and faculty members will proceed to the assembly centre of the sector they are in at the time.

... Upon arriving, they will wait, in orderly fashion, until they are dismissed by a civil defence instructor.

... After dismissal, personnel will proceed back to classes.

... If properly conducted, the entire operation should not take more than 25 minutes.

The president said there might be a siren available for today's operation, "but since there are no air raid sirens in the university area, personnel must proceed on time. All university members, the 12 noon class bell if they hear our objection

In case of war, we learned today, the universities of Canada will be saved.

Part of the reason they will be saved is so that they can continue the work that will be used to doom others.

If the civil defence program reported in this paper proves nothing else it proves that, the new tuition plan notwithstanding, the universities are irretrievably a part of their community. And when that community is so bent on its own destruction and the destruction of all else that is good that it will rather bury itself in bomb shelters than take active measures to ensure world peace, the universities must follow suit.

If morality goes no further than self-preservation, then the civil defence plan is all that we need.

But to some of us pushing the button that brings death to others is just as bad whether we do it from a position of safety or one of danger.

If any student of this campus is interested in the possibility of saving his life even when that life has become a barbaric parody of itself bereft of all dignity and compassion, we suggest that he take part seriously in the civil defence exercises today.

We, for our part, will not. Some weeks ago we published an editorial suggesting an active civil defence program at this university.

Now that it is before us, we humbly change our minds. SA

THE VARSITY

FOUNDED 1880

Published by
The Students' Administrative Council
of the University of Toronto
Toronto 5, Canada

Member Canadian University Press

Editorial and News Office:
Basement, SAC Building — WA 3-8742, WA 3-8113
Business and Advertising Manager
E. A. Macdonald — WA. 3-6221

The opinions expressed in this paper are those of the editor.

Editor-in-Chief Doug Marshall
Managing Editor Mark Nichols
Editor-without-portfolio Sam Ajzenstat
News Editor Harvey Shepherd

Today's Issue: Beverly Nykor, Debbie Halper, Jayne Nesbitt, Terry Bourke, Warren Peace, Riho Pild, and thanks to the staff for coming through in the emergency after our friends in Ottawa came up with their surprise package late last night.

E. A. C. MEETING

THURSDAY, FEB. 19, at 7.30 p.m.

FALCONER HALL

Special Speaker: MR. BOB KAPLAN

—1958 DELEGATE TO WUS SUMMER SEMINAR IN GHANA
—STUDENT GUIDE AT BRUSSELS WORLD FAIR

OPEN TO ALL STUDENTS

Not Necessarily E.A.C. Reps — Free Refreshments to Follow

If you have questions about the Canadian organization at the World's Fair—this is your chance!

TOMORROW NIGHT

The Army, Air Force MILITARY BALL

GREAT HALL, HART HOUSE — 9 p.m.

Newman Club

RETREAT

FRI., FEB. 20 — 8 p.m. and
SAT., FEB. 21 — 9 a.m. to 5.30 p.m.

ELECTION DANCE

SUN., FEB. 22 — 9 p.m.

ORCHESTRA — REFRESHMENTS

#9 St. George St.

BOX OFFICE OPENS TODAY

Christopher Fry's Translation
of Giraudoux's

TIGER AT THE GATES

Directed by Robert Gill

Saturday, Feb. 28th, to Saturday, March 7th, at 8.30 p.m.
HART HOUSE THEATRE'S FIFTIETH ALL-UNIVERSITY PRODUCTION

Same Special
Student Rate $1.00

Two Tickets Only
On Each A.T.L. Card

A TRAGEDY OF TWO TEACHERS

U.C. - ST. MIKE'S DARE TO PRODUCE

the children's hour

HART HOUSE THEATRE — FEBRUARY 18, 19, 20, 21

CAIR HALL

Students - Only $1

U.C. ROTUNDA

versity has been concerned is in the field of radiation. Professors from the department of Physics have been instructing volunteers in radiation monitoring, the use of geiger counters and the dangers of radioactive fallout.

"We certainly welcome this move," said Reg Johnston, Chief Instructor for this is a gag issue

HOCKEY GROUP PLAYOFFS
1.30	U.C. III	St. M.C.	Brown, Barthwick
WATER POLO
1.45	V	Med. III	J. F. F. Watkin
6.15	SFS. II	vs	Dent
7.00	SFS. III	vs	SFS. IV
SQUASH GROUP PLAYOFFS
1.05	M. & Yr.	vs	Trin. C
6.20	Trin. B	vs	Med. III Yr.
BASKETBALL MAJOR LEAGUE
1.40	SFS. A	vs	Dn.
4.00	Vb. III	vs	U.C. IV
5.30	Prin. B	vs	Enlan. A
7.30	Dent. IV Yr.	vs	St. M. F
2.20	Lawn A	vs	Lawn B
BASKETBALL MINOR LEAGUE (HART HOUSE)
1.00	St. M. Gr. Robt.	vs	Civil A
6.30	Tr. Mech.	vs	Med. III Yr. C
7.00	H. Me. A.	vs	St. M. Rep. Me. A.
2.30	Vb. B	vs	Phys. M. Me. A.
BASKETBALL MINOR LEAGUE (MC GYM)
5.00	St. M. Wm. A.	vs	Pre-Med. I A
6.00	I. Civil B	vs	Eng. Phys. D
7.00	F. C	vs	Phys. P. Me. C.
8.00	Trin. C	vs	St. M. Coopers
			Sutton
			Lubin

WATER POLO
Mon, Feb 24	1.59	Vic	vs	SFS III	M E B & Bonhomme
Tue, Feb 24	1.59	SFS II	vs	SF, M C	J. Bosse, Warklin
	1.59	Ford I	vs	M C A	J. Bosse, Warklin
	7.15	Pet	vs	Wye	Jenny, Mer-
Wed Feb 25	0.15	Ard	vs	Med I	Jenny, Fenneau
	0.15	Med I	vs	Thresh	J. Bosse, Thresh
Thu Feb 26	7.35	Nero II	vs	Dent	Warklin, N o r t
	7.60	SFS IV	vs	Med III	Warklin, N o r t
	7.65	Proch	vs	Proch	Warklin, N o r t
F Feb 27	.00	Proch A	vs	SFS I	Jenny, M. Bosse
BASKETBALL—MAJOR LEAGUE
Mon, Feb 24	1.15	SF M C	vs	SFS IV	G H Inberg, Godfrey
	1.15	Trin	vs	Krner, Eucoski	Krner, Eucoski
Tues Feb 24	2.00	C U I	vs	SF SFS	M G L & O'Gradyman
	2.40	V V	vs	SF M D	McCarthy, McGrath
	2.40	St. J	vs	Krner	Lind A, Krner
	2.40	SFS VI	vs	SFS D	Linda A, Krner
	2.40	SFS I	vs	Dent II Vi	Glut A, Kelnor
Wed Feb 25	1.00	SFS I	vs	SF M C	R J Cardon, R J Cardon
	1.00	SFS I	vs	Eucoski	McCarthy
Thur Feb 26	1.00	SFS SFS	vs	SF M A	McCarthy, Grossman
	1.20	Eucoski A	vs	Wye A	R J Cardon, Maushier
	2.00	A	vs	R J Cardon	R J Cardon, Maushier
	3.50	Med III	vs	C U C I	R J Cardon, Alabaster
	7.00	C U H	vs	SFS III	Krner, Goldenberg
F Feb 27	1.30	SFS G	vs	SFS II	Teifer, McGrath
	7.00	C U V	vs	SFS V	Teifer, McGrath

We have curling ice arranged. Would those men interested in knock-out play-downs to determine which rink will represent the University of Toronto at the Intercollegiate Bonspiel at O.A.C. sign up in the Athletic Office. Entries limited. Sign up by 1 p.m. Tuesday February 27th. Meeting in Staff Room, Hart House 5 p.m., Feb. 28.

MONDAY FEB 23	12.30 - 1.30	Yates, B. & P. W.
	1.30 - 2.30	M. G. G. G. G. G. G. G.
TUESDAY FEB 24	1.00 - 2.00	B. G. G. G. G. G. G.
	2.30 - 3.30	E. G. G. G. G. G. G.
WEDNESDAY FEB 25	12.30 - 1.30	G. G. G. G. G. G.
	4.00 - 6.00	T. G. G. G. G. G. G.
FRIDAY, FEB 27	12.30 - 1.30	G. G. G. G. G. G.
	4.00 - 6.00	G. G. G. G. G. G.

[illegible] embarks on Queen's Park Cres. provincial legislature

CIVIL DEFENCE ORGANIZATION CENTRE

Seek A Vampire For U of T Veins

The flow of blood at the University of Toronto has clotted before the vein was punctured.

Red Cross officials made a desperate plea yesterday for donations, after students had given only 356 pints of an expected 1,000.

Yesterday there were only 248 donations made at the clinic in the School of Nursing on St. George St. Total U of T quota is 2,500 pints.

U of T blood is needed for heart operations scheduled next week. Up to 25 pints may be used in a single case of heart surgery.

Campaign chairman Charlotte Hubbell said last night, "People just don't seem to be aware a blood service cannot be run like United Appeal. You can cut corners when there is a shortage of money, but you can't budget blood."

"If there isn't the blood available, people will die. Pledged U of T blood is scheduled for use next week," Miss Hubbell said.

Over 1,200 pints can easily be taken in at clinics at the School of Nursing and Knox College today and Friday, she said.

Those who cannot attend these clinics are urged to donate at the regular clinic at 67 College St. on Friday, Monday or Tuesday.

These donations will be credited to U of T totals, and are officials' only hope of pushing donations over the quota.

Nursing leads percentage donations with 60 per cent. Forestry is second with 45 per cent, and Physical and Occupational Therapy is next at 39 per cent.

The Faculty of Engineering, with a total enrolment of 1,980 has made 142 donations for 7.2 per cent. They are in sixth position.

University College, the largest arts college, has made only 41 donations to stand in thirteenth place with 2.5 per cent. Physical and Health Education and Knox College have reported no donations.

The Faculties of Medicine, Dentistry and Pharmacy have also made donations at the clinic on College St. These donations have not been obtained for inclusion in percentage totals.

Katz Favors Looser Law For Prostitution, Gambling

A prominent Canadian journalist came out in favour of the liberalization of Toronto laws on prostitution and gambling last night at a panel discussion in Hart House.

Mr. Sidney Katz, Associate Editor of Maclean's Magazine, was speaking on a panel including Hon. A. Kelso Roberts, Attorney General of Ontario; James Mackey, Metro Toronto Chief of Police; E. Patrick Hartt, barrister, Moderator was barrister John W. Brooke.

Mr Katz said in France a few years ago the houses of prostitution and gambling were closed down by the authorities. "As a result the crimes involved in these practices surged overnight."

He said these facilities were filling "a social need in the community." Katz said such institutions under the cautious eye of "the proper medical and police authorities and supervision were much safer than the underhand and unsafe methods now practiced."

Shifting to the topic of wire tapping Police Chief Mackey said it was the only way police could "uncover any forms of organized gambling known to be going on in the Toronto area."

He said it was well known certain individuals gain a legal charter from the Ontario government for modest gambling on a charitable basis and then use it for illegal gambling.

Attorney-Gen. Roberts agreed wire tapping was "a malicious practice" but he said in cases where it was impossible "to gain proof against a suspected individual or organization, wire tapping practice should be used as a last resort." At all other times it should be controlled, he added.

Commenting on public relations between the police force and the community Hartt said because the modern officer is "highly trained and using extremely dangerous equipment he should be taught how far he can go in law action before he infringes on the right of private citizens."

Defending his officers the police chief said the force has been relentless in its efforts to educate the officer in the sphere of public relations.

Katz claimed the law is lagging behind the "vast strides in the field of science". Calling drunken driving one of the most serious of all social crimes, he advocated laws be passed which would "force all drivers suspected of drinking to undergo a scientific drinking test."

"Without scientific, objective proof it is impossible to prove a man is drunk and make it stick in court," he said.

The journalist said more intimidation is going on in "police back-rooms than the authorities care to admit." He said the reason for many complaints against police action is because of "psychological and physical pressure".

MEMBERS of last night's Hart House Law Panel, from left, Toronto chief of police, James Mackey; Maclean's magazine associate editor Sidney Katz; lawyer John W. Brooke (moderator); lawyer E. Patrick Hartt; and Ontario Attorney General Hon. A. K. Roberts.

Here and Now

TODAY

12-1 p.m. — VCF nurses will study the Bible in room 116, School of Nursing.

12-15 p.m. — The Holy Eucharist will be celebrated in Trinity College Chapel.

1 p.m. — Delegates to the WUS Caledon Weekend will meet in room 57, UC.

1-2 p.m. — VCF will study the Bible in room 111, UC.

4 p.m. — Prof. Leonard C. Jackson from the Royal Military College will speak at a Department of Physics lecture and tea on "Helium Films" in room 135, McLennan Laboratory.

— The Hon. Paul Martin will speak to the U of T Liberal Club in Carr Hall Auditorium, SMC, on "The Middle East". All are welcome.

7-10 p.m. — Physical and Occupational Therapy students begin a two-day open house at 8 Devonshire Place.

8 p.m. — The Christian Science Organization plans a regular meeting in the UC Women's Union, 79 St. George St.

FRIDAY

7-30 p.m. — The Biology Club opens a three-day quadrennial Conversation with 150 exhibits, movies and demonstrations in the Biology building, Queen's Park.

West Indian Students' Association

Presents FEDERATION NIGHT
AT HOWARD FERGUSON AUDITORIUM
On Friday, February 20

An exciting program of creative dancing, Calypso, Drama, Folk Singing, etc., BEGINS AT 8 p.m. SHARP, to be followed by dancing till 1 a.m.

MEMBERS $1.00 NON-MEMBERS $1.25
EVERYONE WELCOME

$E = mc^2$ or in other words
BLUE and WHITE BAND
PLAYS AT THE
HOCKEY GAME — FRIDAY 8 p.m.

Hart House Library Evening

THURSDAY, FEB. 26 AT 7.30 p.m.

IN THE HART HOUSE LIBRARY
Speaker: PROFESSOR NORTHROP FRYE
on "CANADIANS AND LITERATURE"

Members Only

HART HOUSE

TODAY:

ART FILM: 12.30 p.m. — Music Room

CHESS INSTRUCTION: 1.15 p.m. — Debates Ante Room

RECORD ROOM INSTRUCTION: 5.15 p.m. — Record Room

ARCHERY CLUB: 8.00 p.m. — Rifle Range

EXPLORATION SOCIETY OPEN MEETING. MR. BRISTOL FOSTER WILL SHOW A MOVIE ON HIS JOURNEYS IN AFRICA. ALL ARE WELCOME (including women). 8 p.m. Music Room.

THIS SUNDAY IS VISITORS' SUNDAY IN HART HOUSE — 2 - 5.30 p.m.

NOMINATE NOW FOR HART HOUSE ELECTIONS

FORMS AND INFORMATION — UNDERGRADUATE OFFICE, HOUSE, LIBRARY, MUSIC, ART, DEBATES AND SQUASH COMMITTEES TO BE ELECTED.

NOMINATIONS CLOSE TOMORROW — 6 p.m.

Trinity College French Club

presents extracts from TOPAZE
by Marcel Pagnol

Cartwright Hall—St. Hilda's
8.30 p.m. TONIGHT

TYPEWRITERS

$1.00 A WEEK BUYS . . .
. . . $1.50 A WEEK RENTS

Get a free typing course and a liberal trade-in allowance for your old typewriter when you buy a new modern machine from us.

Phone HO. 1-1843 Today

CLASSIFIED ADS.

$1 DOWN BUYS ANY MAKE

Brand new typewriters. $59 up. Some models $30 off. Free home demonstration. Free typing course. 1959 models rented, lowest rates. 375 Jane-Humber, RO 6-1103.

TYPIST (Electric)

Fast, accurate, personalized service. Theses, essays, letters, dictation. Reasonable rates. Irene Kenyon, 146 Bernard Avenue, WA 3-4011.

ACCOMMODATION AVAILABLE For male or female student at the Campus Co-Operative Residence Inc. Phone WA. 1-2520.

BUILDING TO LET

Suitable as fraternity house. Completely furnished. University district. Telephone WA. 3-5678.

FINNISH EXCHANGE

APPLICATIONS MUST BE RECEIVED
BY 5 p.m. TODAY

at the Undergraduate Office, Hart House

HILLEL

Today, Thursday, February 19, 1.00 p.m., U.C., Room 37

PROF. NORTHROP FRYE

Chairman, Dept. of English, Victoria College, on
"The Role of Subject-Matter in the Aesthetic Judgment"

Everybody Welcome

(and the station-wagon set) SHELANTEX

by

Kitten

With a glance at the '20's' Shetlantex sweaters by Kitten dramatize the Fall fashion scene . . . shaggy-knit and bulky-looking in a blend of imported merino wools and kid mohair, blended with pure Shetland wools full-fashioned and hand-finished. In beautiful soft heather-toned colours . . . at good shops everywhere! Sizes 34 to 40. Pullover, price $10.95. Cardigan, price $11.95.

Look for the name Kitten

Shuffle Catalogue

The entire classification system of the U of T library is to be revised within the next ten years, Chief Librarian Robert Blackburn announced Tuesday.

In a letter to the university teaching staff, Mr. Blackburn said the Library Committee of the University Senate has unanimously called for the library to "proceed with all dispatch" to carry out the partial reclassification necessary for adoption of the Library of Congress classification system.

During the changeover, Mr. Blackburn said, "there will be certain inconveniences" to users. There will be two arrangements of books on the shelves, and it will be necessary to consult two catalogues.

The university library's present classification system, under which books are catalogued according to a simple index code, is used only at Toronto.

The Library of Congress system, fast being adopted as a universal cataloguing system, is based upon a more elaborate index code, which allows a much more accurate classification of books.

"The object of the major changes which we are about to introduce is to meet the needs of our rapidly expanding University," Mr. Blackburn said.

OUT is what the catalogue drawers spell, and out they will go when the library completes reclassifying its more than one million volumes.
(Varsity Staff Photo by Staines)

THE VARSITY

Vol. LXXVIII — No. 80

Friday, February 20th, 1959

-VSP Hatchers.

Wire Tapping Proposal Vetoed By Faculty, Student Spokesmen

A suggestion made in Hart House last night that rigidly-controlled wire-tapping might be used to get information on suspected gambling operations has drawn reproach both on and off campus.

During a Law Club panel discussion, Metropolitan Toronto Police Chief James Mackey said provincial charters originally issued to social clubs now cover large-scale crime operations.

He said police wire-tapping—strictly controlled by the Attorney General's department—could give police a weapon against gamblers and all other facets of organized crime.

Several gambling rings have been stopped in recent years by undercover men. "But it takes a lot of time," he said.

Prof. A. R. M. Lower of Queen's University said if he had a choice between wire-tapping and large-scale gambling, he would choose the latter.

If the province allowed wire-tapping, he said, "there would be no limit to the degree the police would invade our liberties."

Toronto Mayor Nathan Phillips said wire-tapping is a "foul means" of obtaining evidence, characteristic of "police states".

Ontario's Attorney General Kelso Roberts said: "I am absolutely against wire-tapping."

But C. R. Magone, a former Deputy Attorney General and now a departmental consultant, said: "I think there is a place for wire-tapping." Of course, he said, a Federal act would have to be changed to permit the practice.

On campus, J. A. Wright, president of the U of T Law Club, said the question is "difficult."

"It is definitely an invasion of privacy," he said. "You've got to balance that against the section of the people who want to get information."

It would be a "definite advantage" to police in prosecuting criminals, he said. But from any other point of view, there's not much justification", he added.

Jim Macdonald, president of the Varsity Christian Fellowship said: "I don't feel wire-tapping by anyone can be sanctioned."

"I don't feel anyone has the right to listen in and eavesdrop," he said. "I don't believe the end justifies the means."

Eul Foley, a student at the Pontifical Institute of Medieval Studies added: "I don't like it. It's about as immoral as lie detectors."

Another student, who said he would never have dealings with the gambling clubs "except for an occasional big prize-fight" said police would "probably be within their rights in doing a little wire-tapping."

But, he said, "any decent cop knows where the bookmakers are." He said he suspected the police let gambling institutions operate "so long as they don't bother anybody."

Turn Backs On Civil Defence

By AL WALKER
Varsity Staff Reporter

University of Toronto students yesterday exhibited a certain reluctance to be evacuated.

In spite of a detailed evacuation plan published in The Varsity, to all appearances endorsed by President Claude T. Bissell, less than 100 students turned up at their sector embarkation points.

Although prodded on by a loud explosion, a shrill siren and civil defence pamphlets and posters conveniently placed by Varsity reporters, the students could not be forced into the sub-freezing weather to take an active part in the annual Varsity gag issue festivities.

Shortly after the issue appeared, students were seen carefully studying the plan and choosing their sectors. Words such as "I suppose we'll have to stand out in the cold for an hour" were heard in the various student gathering places all over the campus.

But by noon, when the siren pealed out its strident call, the word had apparently gotten around. "This is a gag issue," cunningly concealed in a third-page article had given the show away.

Anxious UC students were observed watching for giant fissures to appear in the walls of their college, falling for another gag story for a short time at least.

Little interest was shown in the siren. Two Varsity staffers, one dressed in a conspicuous Metro Civil Defence coat with "RESCUE" in letters two inches high on the back leisurely strolled out onto the front campus just before noon. They set up the siren, and sharp at noon it began to wail.

Students hurrying to lectures ignored them completely, and the pair moved to the back campus, arriving at 1207 hours according to the official log, where they cranked the siren feverishly for another 45 seconds.

The uniformed man then went to sector embarkation point "Eddy" and found three shivering students, a typical turnout.

The siren was hidden in a UC Residence room, and was later secretly returned to Civil Defence officials.

HH Disqualifies Coed Candidate

Hart House officials got a rude shock last night when they discovered one candidate running for election to the House Committee on a "girls in Hart House" platform is a co-ed.

Miss Joan Weisfield, running under the name of "Tyke 'J.' Weisfield", said on her application "I want to see greater women's participation in House activities. I feel that this will give a more popular, and democratic program".

Miss Weisfield is automatically disqualified from the race.

Second-year Henry Goldbach said last night the hoax was perpetrated "to wake up the members of Hart House to the fact that elections are not just a thing to be taken passively".

Goldbach said there would have been a very good chance for Miss Weisfield to be elected by acclamation to the House committee if officials had not discovered the gag. She would probably not have appeared for campaign speeches, he said.

"I'm sure she would have won", Goldbach said. "There's something to be said against the idea of Hart House for men only".

The discovery lowers nominations to date to a total of 22. At least 50 nominations are necessary before an election can be called. House Committee secretary Peter Brawley said last night. Nominations close at 6 p.m. tonight.

Some faculties are not yet represented in the nominations, Brawley said. Hart House Warden Joseph McCulley is authorized to fill positions by mandate if an insufficient number of nominations are received.

Hart House is "one of the few

College now stands at 1,104 pints.

As the campaign rolled into its final day, Red Cross officials yesterday issued a desperate plea to students for a better showing at clinics.

Campaign chairman Charlotte

Hubbell said both clinic staffs and student representatives are pulling their weight. "Only the students can make the campaign a success", she said.

Lowest returns so far have been recorded at St. Michael's and University Colleges. "Students from those two colleges should be stung up", Miss Hubbell blasted.

She said there seem to be weird stories circulating at these colleges that giving blood is a "gruesome ordeal".

The whole process takes less than 20 minutes. Before and after filling a pint bottle with their blood students are treated to cokes, coffee and cookies. The staff of nurses is especially trained to make the process painless.

Miss Hubbell said present returns are so far below last year's "it is a disgrace". Blood authorities are disappointed in the "low regard U of T students have for their fellow men," she said.

The Faculty of Engineering leads totals on a pint basis with less than 200 contributions. The faculty's enrolment touches 2,000. Nurses lead the list on a percentage basis with 60 per cent of the school's enrolment donating so far.

Chairman Hubbell said clinics can "very easily take in 1,000 pints of blood" today. Only hope of reaching the quota now lies in the slim chance that students will donate at the 67 College St. clinic today, Monday and Tuesday.

The School of Nursing clinic is open today from 9:30-11:30 a.m. and 1-4 p.m. Knox College will be open for contributions from 10-11 p.m. and 2:30-4:30 p.m.

Not Bloody Much

Blood Pulse Little Faster

The pulse of the U of T blood campaign beat a little faster yesterday, but not much.

The campaign flowed 474 pints nearer its 2,500-pint goal. Grand total from donations at clinics at the School of Nursing and Knox

College now stands at 1,104 pints.

As the campaign rolled into its final day, Red Cross officials yesterday issued a desperate plea to students for a better showing at clinics.

Campaign chairman Charlotte

Hubbell said both clinic staffs and student representatives are pulling their weight. "Only the students can make the campaign a success", she said.

Lowest returns so far have been recorded at St. Michael's and University Colleges. "Students from those two colleges should be stung up", Miss Hubbell blasted.

She said there seem to be weird stories circulating at these colleges that giving blood is a "gruesome ordeal".

The whole process takes less than 20 minutes. Before and after filling a pint bottle with their blood students are treated to cokes, coffee and cookies. The staff of nurses is especially trained to make the process painless.

Miss Hubbell said present returns are so far below last year's "it is a disgrace". Blood authorities are disappointed in the "low regard U of T students have for their fellow men," she said.

The Faculty of Engineering leads totals on a pint basis with less than 200 contributions. The faculty's enrolment touches 2,000. Nurses lead the list on a percentage basis with 60 per cent of the school's enrolment donating so far.

Chairman Hubbell said clinics can "very easily take in 1,000 pints of blood" today. Only hope of reaching the quota now lies in the slim chance that students will donate at the 67 College St. clinic today, Monday and Tuesday.

The School of Nursing clinic is open today from 9:30-11:30 a.m. and 1-4 p.m. Knox College will be open for contributions from 10-11 p.m. and 2:30-4:30 p.m.

(Continued on Page 12)

A Study Circle for Students
Young and Old

An Introduction to Marxist Economics

Every Saturday, Commencing
Feb. 21, 3 p.m. to 5 p.m.

Auspices The Socialist
Educational League

569 Yonge Street—WA. 3-5174

ST. PAUL'S AVENUE ROAD UNITED CHURCH

121 AVENUE RD.
(2 blocks north of Bloor)

Minister
Rev. T. W. HAZELWOOD,
B.A., B.D., D.Th.,
Student Minister—David Gourlie

SERVICES: 11 a.m. and 7 p.m.
"THE FRIENDLY CHURCH"

Monday, Feb. 23, 1 p.m. Varsity Christian Fellowship Lecture

J. H. GERSTNER, Professor of Church History,
Pittsburgh-Xenia Seminary, will speak on

"CHRISTIAN APOLOGETICS"

Room 71, I.C. — 1 p.m.

OTHER LECTURES TO FOLLOW:

TUESDAY, FEB. 24 — "The Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship
—it's History and Work".

WEDNESDAY, FEB. 25 - FRIDAY, FEB. 27 — Tony Capon will speak on "Spreading the Faith".

Rosedale Presbyterian Church

Mt. Pleasant Rd. (2 blocks north of Bloor, 2 blocks east of Yonge)

Minister: Rev. E. S. MACKAY, M.A.

Public Worship — 11 a.m.

Evening Service — 7:30 p.m.

Continuing with the Lenten Series

"The Way of the Cross"

8:30 p.m. — Senior Youth Group

HILLEL

TONIGHT, FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 20, 8:30 p.m.

MR. SYDNEY HARRIS, Chairman, Joint Public Relations Committee of the Canadian Jewish Congress and B'nai B'rith, on

RELIGIOUS EDUCATION AND
THE PUBLIC SCHOOLS

Sunday, February 22

RABBI ZALMAN SCHACHTER, at 3:00 p.m. and 8:30 p.m.

Kitten

big, bulky BAN-LON

Big jumbo-knit BAN-LON with pearly
pie-plate buttons . . . big style with flaring Queen
Anne collar, wide contra-knit collar edging and front panel . . . no pilling, no stretch or shrink . . .
hand-finished . . . in a rainbow of sparkling
spring colours. $15.95 AT GOOD SHOPS everywhere.

Look for the name Kitten!

Reformation Urged Of National Unemployment

HAMILTON—CUP—A complete revamping of Canada's policies for coping with unemployment was urged here by Professor John S. Morgan, acting Director of the University of Toronto's School of Social Work.

Dr. Morgan told an educational conference sponsored by the Ontario Federation of Labor the Unemployment Insurance Fund has been abused by governments in order to conceal their lack of policies to meet basic social and economic issues.

The existing program of merely attempting to find jobs and fill vacancies was just not good enough to meet modern industrial conditions, he said.

In criticizing the use of the UIF to evade tackling basic issues, Prof. Morgan said extension of seasonal benefits has become ludicrous, considering that in 1958 the "season" lasted for seven months.

Bloor St. United Church 300 BLOOR STREET W.

Ministers

Rev. Dr. Ernest Marshall Howse

Rev. J. Stanley Kennedy

Organist and Choirmaster
Frederick C. Silvester

11 a.m.—BURIED RELIGIONS

Dr. E. M. Howse

7:00 p.m.—THE FIRST

COMMENDMENT

Dr. E. M. Howse

The Campus Club will meet following the Evening Service.
Bill White will conduct the singing.

Trinity United Church

427 Bloor St. W at
Walmer Road

Rev. J. Robt. Watt, BA, BD,
Minister

John W. Linn,
Organist and Choirmaster

11 a.m.

"Are You Worth Believing In?"

7:30 p.m.

MY PROBLEM IS . . .
(4) "I Can't Forgive. I Hate Some People"

A series of sermons based on life's problems

Full Choir

8:30 p.m. — Fireside Hour
A Warm Welcome to all
Students at these Services

PARK ROAD BAPTIST CHURCH

1 BLOCK N. & E. OF BLOOR-YONGE

Minister: Rev. MURRAY J. S. FORD, M.A., B.D.

VICTOR E. GRAHAM, Organist

SERVICES AT 10:45 a.m. and 7:30 p.m.

A Cordial Invitation to all Students to Attend Inspiring Services

Here and Now

TODAY

1:10-2 p.m. — Anyone who missed the Fennell-Morawetz debate on whether Christianity has come to the end of the road can hear a tape recording of it in the SCM Coachhouse behind 110 St. George St.

1:10-2 p.m. — The SCM Current-Events Group will hear Father Dorsey of St. Michael's College speak on "The Catholic Church in Canada" at 3 Willcocks St., FROS office.

3 p.m. — SCM will study "The Life of Jesus" in the SCM Office, Hart House.

7-10 p.m. — This is your last chance to come to the Physical and Occupational Therapy "Open House", 6 Devonshire Place.

Trinity College Chapel WEEKDAY SERVICES

7:30 a.m.—Holy Eucharist

8:45 a.m.—Mattins

6:30 p.m.—Evensong

Tuesdays and Thursdays —

12:15 p.m.—Holy Eucharist

Wednesdays — 8:10 a.m. Holy

Eucharist

Sunday Services

8:00 a.m.—Mattins

8:15 a.m.—Holy Eucharist

9:15 a.m.—Holy Eucharist

6:30 p.m.—Evensong

EVERYBODY WELCOME

ST. ANDREW'S United Church

117 Bloor E., near
Yonge St. Subway

Minister:

REV. WILLIAM BRIGGS,
M.A., B.D., Ph.D.

Organist and Choir Director:
EDGAR GOODAIRE

11 a.m.

"The Christian's Cross"

7:30 p.m.

"Prophecy and its Fulfillment"

Students cordially invited
to attend

7:15 p.m. — Every SCM member is urged to attend the SCM Assembly in the SCM Coachhouse. Prof. Coleman's new training plan will be discussed.

SATURDAY

8:15 p.m. — Dr. David A. Keys, Scientific Advisor to the President of Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd., Chalk River, will address the Royal Canadian Institute on "Modern Developments in Nuclear Power" in Convocation Hall.

SUNDAY

9:15 a.m. — Canterbury Corporate Communion will take place in Trinity College Chapel.

8 p.m. — The 60 voices of the Thiel Choir from Greenville, Pennsylvania, will sing a cappella in the Hart House Great Hall.

8:45 p.m. — Alan McLachlin will lead a discussion on modern art at an SCM fireside which will conclude with coffee. Fireside is in the SCM Coachhouse behind 110 St. George St.

MONDAY

1:10-2 p.m. — SCM will study "The Gospel of St. John" in the Chaplain's office, second floor, Hart House.

8 p.m. — Ukrainian Students' Club will hold a general meeting in the UC Women's Union Theatre, 79 St. George St.

— The Italian Club will hold a social evening in the Vic Union Music Room.

The SCM will hold its annual meeting Friday, March 6. Pick up your ticket or say whether you will come at the SCM office, Hart House.

University Lutheran Chapel

SUNDAY SERVICE — 11 a.m.

THURSDAY SERVICE—8 p.m.

Student Club, every 2nd and 4th Thursday
at 7:45 p.m.

610 SPADINA (below Harbord)
WA. 2-1884 — WA. 3-6840

THE CHURCH OF THE REDEEMER

At the Head of the Campus
BLOOR and AVENUE RD.

Rector: Rev. Owen P. Prichard,
B.A., L.Th.

11 a.m.—Holy Communion

11 a.m.—Morning Prayer

Preacher—The Rector

Sermon—"The One Sufficient

Sacrifice"

7 p.m.—Evening Prayer

Preacher: Rev. W. J. Evans, L.Th.

Wednesday, 12:15 p.m.—Holy

Communion

8 p.m.—Lenten Service

Address by the Rector.

"Answering People's Questions"

Organist—A. McKinlay, Mus. Bac.

Of Special Interest To Students

DR. JOHN GERSTNER

Professor of Church History at Pittsburgh-Xenia Theological Seminary

● Saturday, February 21 — 8 p.m.
"Apologetics For Today"

● Sunday, February 22 — 11 a.m. and 7 p.m.
Worship Services

● Sunday — 8:30 p.m.
"Jonathan Edwards"

KNOX PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

SPADINA AND HARBORD

Man, Mammal and Bird

By MORGAN TAMPLIN
Varsity Staff Reporter

The largest open house at the University this year starts at 7.30 p.m. tonight for a three-day stand at the Biology building.

It's the "Zoology Conversazione" or "Conversat" which is held every four years by the U of T Biology Club to acquaint the public with new developments in zoological research.

Two hundred students and staff members connected with the Zoology Department have been planning and working since September to put on a display which incorporates over 150 separate exhibits into an exhibition covering seven fields of zoology.

"For some reason, the conversat seems to excite the biologists," said John Heddle (II Trin) who is in charge of the show. "They are always extremely generous."

Although some 5,000 people are expected to view the displays today and over the weekend, one of the most important delegations of visitors arrived Wednesday morning from the Fisheries Research Board at St. Andrews, N.B.

The delegation is headed by an impressive marine figure, the Ten Ridged Welk, and includes some prominent starfish from the Echinodermata family, some scallops and a number of clams, although the latter will not be taking part in any of the discussions. Even some hermit crabs joined the group after much persuasion.

The Maritime visitors will spend most of their time in the invertebrate section of the Conversat to answer any questions people may have about their varied interests. Some of the shellfish are prominent in the restaurant business, but visitors are cautioned to use tact when discussing this subject with them.

Sociologists in the University have expressed a desire to confer with representatives of some model communities which have come down from the OAC at Guelph. They will have a chance to see the commune system first hand, as adapted by groups of ants, carpenter beetles and wasps.

All these communities can be seen in the Entomology section of the show.

With the Darwin centennial coming this year, the directors made Evolution the theme of the Conversat. One entire exhibit is devoted to this subject, and is presided over by a 14 foot-long pterodactyl. Not content with biological evolution, the exhibitors have turned to demonstrating the evolution of automobiles as well.

Related to evolution, but covering three rooms in itself, is the Genetics section. Families of the fruit fly will be in the display, to show the invaluable service they have performed in the study of genetics.

Single cells will also be on display under microscopes and there will be demonstrations of the effects of radiation on them. In the same room with the cells will be the more complex, man-made tools of zoology.

One of the largest rooms in the display will be devoted to the Vertebrates. A study of the reactions of fish in specially prepared samples of water should prove especially interesting to all anglers.

Birds play an important part in this part of the Conversat. Sample recordings of their songs will be played and certain exhibits will explain how they are able to fly long distances.

As the conversat is a "once in four years event", no one even remotely interested in living things around them should miss the opportunity of seeing it.

The Conversat is open this weekend at the following times: Friday, Feb. 20, 7.30 p.m. - 10.30 p.m.; Saturday, Feb. 21, 10.00 a.m. - 6.00 p.m.; Sunday, Feb. 22, 2.00 p.m. - 5.00 p.m.

CONVERSAT'S PTERODACTYL duly impresses Biology Club's President Sandra Bracken (III Vic).
(Varsity Staff Photo by Stabins)

The Naval Ball

Place — H.M.C.S. YORK

Time — FRIDAY, FEB. 27 — 9 p.m. to 1 a.m.

Tickets: S.A.C. Office 1 - 2 p.m.

All True Mariners Welcomed

A. V. R. — 1960

The Students' Administrative Council and the A.V.R. Committee would be happy to receive material for the 1960 All Varsity Review.

Ideas and material may be submitted in outline form, and all material will be treated in a confidential fashion.

Submission and enquiries should be addressed to:

Irving Goldberg,
Chairman, A.V.R. Committee,
S.A.C. Office.

PROVINCIAL TEACHERS' COLLEGES

ONE-YEAR AND TWO-YEAR COURSES leading to an Interim Elementary-School Teacher's Certificate, valid in the elementary schools of Ontario, are offered at Teachers' Colleges in Hamilton, London, New Toronto (Lakeshore), North Bay, Ottawa, Peterborough, Stratford, and Toronto (951 Carlaw Avenue, Toronto 6). Note: (Inquiries regarding the Lakeshore Teachers' College should at present be directed to the Toronto Teachers' College.)

ACADEMIC REQUIREMENT FOR ADMISSION: One-year Course: B.A. degree or standing in eight Grade 13 papers, one of which shall be English Literature or English Composition.

Two-year Course: Secondary School Graduation Diploma of the General Course.

TERM OPENS SEPTEMBER 8, 1959. Candidates will attend the Teachers' College in the district of their residence. Write to the principal for a copy of the descriptive booklet "Teaching in the Elementary Schools of Ontario".

INTERVIEWS WITH APPLICANTS are conducted by Committees of Selection. Applicants desiring interview should write to the principal of their nearest Teachers' College.

HART HOUSE THEATRE'S FIFTIETH ALL-UNIVERSITY PRODUCTION

Christopher Fry's Translation
of Giraudoux's

TIGER AT THE GATES

Directed by Robert Gill

Saturday, Feb. 28th, to Saturday, March 7th, at 8.30 p.m.
Box Office Open 10 a.m. - 6 p.m. — WA. 3-5244

Same Special
Student Rate $1.00

Two Tickets Only
On Each A.T.L. Card

A TRAGEDY OF TWO TEACHERS

U.C. - ST. MIKE'S DARE TO PRODUCE

the children's hour

Hart House Theatre — Tonight and Tomorrow Night

CARR HALL Students - Only $1 U.C. ROTUNDA

ALL-DAY MILDNESS

Black Cat PLAIN CORK FILTER

EATON'S

Travel
in Style!

Go anywhere, anytime, in any weather... fashionably! Rain-resistant cotton-knit, with splashy check-board checks, matching cotton poplin trim. Patch pockets, double-breasted styling, rayon-satin lining. Checks of predominantly black, blue and brown, in sizes 8 to 18.

each 29.95

PHONE UN. 1-5111
Misses' Coats—Dept. 344
EATON'S—Main Store
Fourth Floor.

Mohammed

Cairo to Huntsville

Toronto's WUS Egyptian

—VSP Stabins.

Ali

Three months ago a young man stepped off a Dutch Airlines plane in Montreal, and with faltering, text-book English obtained directions for the TCA flight to Toronto.

Roughly 20 hours before he had left the University of Cairo and embarked on a study leave in Canada under the auspices of World University Service.

Now settled in the "nice but noisy" Devonshire House, Mohammed Ali Dokainish, 23, speaks near-fluent English and

By LIZ BINKS
Varsity Features Editor

is well on his way to earning an MSc in Mechanical Engineering by the spring of this year.

"After only three months, it is hard to pass judgment on a country", he says. "But I find life at this university very stimulating and the facilities for my work better than any I have ever known."

"In Cairo there are 20,000 students at the largest of the city's two universities. There are about half the number of professors in proportion."

Mohammed, who was 15 when he entered Egypt's most important faculty had to obtain at least 70 per cent to be accepted. From then on fees amounted to no more than $75 a year.

"The government pays for all education up to the secondary school level", he said. "In university it pays almost all—but you have to have very high marks to get in."

But until a few years ago all education in Egypt was optional. "When I went to school there were four stages in education — none of them compulsory", he said.

Government measures for compulsory education have improved the situation somewhat, Mohammed feels. But with 25,000,000 people to educate the problems are still vast.

"We have only four universities — two in Cairo, one in Alexandria and one in Asyot in northern Egypt. The last one teaches the practical sciences only," he said. "So you see, there is still much to be done."

His loyalty to Egypt is unswerving. "Nasser is a great ruler and has served my country well," he said. "He is very popular in Egypt. There is no more trouble there any more. Everything has settled down and my people are intent on expanding their industry."

Now on sabbatical leave, Mohammed will return to his lectureship in Cairo after obtaining his Ph. D. here.

His impressions of Toronto so far? "Everything seems to be controlled by advertising... The city is very attractive but the buildings seem small for so large an area. In Cairo, which is half the size, most of the buildings are 15 storeys high... Living expenses are high but salaries seem pretty good... I think it is excellent that students have the opportunity to work in the summers."

"I think I shall enjoy my stay in Canada very much. It is good to know about a foreign country, its problems and its customs. This summer I hope to see a little more of it. So far I have only been to Huntsville!"

SALE

Up to 50% Reductions on Cocktail Dresses, Wedding and Evening Gowns. Come in Between Lectures, Anytime. Too good an opportunity to miss.

HELMAR

46 St. George St. — WA. 1-5978

Strog
says...

"When you kill time time kills you"

It is the height of irony that the customary gift to a retiring worker is a gold watch with which to keep track of the many idle hours confronting him. Nowadays there are more of these hours facing the retired man than ever before. In our own time, modern medicine has increased the life span by more than 20 years. That's an awful lot of time to kill — even by listening to the ticking of that lovely gold watch.

But the attitude towards old age is beginning to change. Those gold watches are coming in handy, because old age is no longer catching us unawares. Without advance planning, the gift of time can be just so many dull hours to endure. But with planning, those hours can be lived to the full, and enriched by hobbies and travel.

Make good use of your gold watch. Be financially prepared to enjoy a useful period of retirement. Your NALAC representative can give you information about NALAC's Lifetime Income Plan, which provides you with a regular cheque every month of your life, from the retirement day you specify. Or, if something should happen to you, your family receives a regular monthly income. Start now to plan a confident tomorrow.

Confidently.

H. P. Skoglund,
H. P. SKOGLUND,
President

...insure confident living
NORTH AMERICAN
Life and Casualty Company

LIFE • SICKNESS • ACCIDENT • GROUP

CHARLES E. REA — Toronto Manager
47-49 LaPlante Ave. Phone EM. 6-1691

Victoria College Liberal Arts Club

PRESENTS

Jane Mallett

Famous Canadian Comedienne, Giving a Demonstration-Lecture on

"THE ART OF THE MONOLOGUE"

Wed., Feb. 25 at 8.30 p.m.

MUSIC ROOM — WYMILWOOD

Everyone Welcome — Refreshments

MASSEY HALL, MARCH 13

AMERICA'S MOST POPULAR FOLK SINGERS

TICKETS: $3.00, 2.50, 1.50
ON CAMPUS FROM:

School of Architecture LARRY LEDERMAN
Music MARILYN REYNOLDS
U.C. HARVEY SOKOLOFF
Nursing ROSALIE MEDNICK
Pharmacy JERRY BAIN
or JERRY GRAY—RU. 1-9808

SNACK BAR

He says he does it by Steady Saving
at the Bank of Montreal*

*The Bank where Students' accounts are warmly welcomed.

*You'll find these B of M branches especially convenient
Bloor and Bay Sts. KENNETH A. McNEIL, Manager
Queen's Park JOSEPH BURDOCK, Manager
St. George and Bloor Sts. DWIGHT A. EVANS, Manager

TYPEWRITERS

$1.00 A WEEK BUYS ...
... $1.50 A WEEK RENTS

Get a free typing course and a liberal trade-in allowance for your old typewriter when you buy a new modern machine from us.

Phone HO. 1-1843 Today

UNIVERSITY BLAZERS

Custom Made

Especially Priced for Students

$27.50

Fine Flannel Worsted Trousers

$16.50

Business Hours: 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Monday through Saturday

Suits made to measure

latest styles and design

PARNES Clothing Co.

706 QUEEN STREET WEST

EM 6-2025

Sample at S.A.C. Office

It's Fun to

DANCE

AT

Mart Kenney's Ranch

EVERY SATURDAY

CANADA'S FINEST

BANDS

Special Student Rates

$1.00 per person

Reservation, And

Information

AT. 8-1282

THE VARSITY - a weekend review

A Home for Johnny

By TERRY BOURKE
Varsity Staff Reporter

Johnny is 12 years old. He has brown wavy hair, jet black eyes, and a face sprinkled with a thousand freckles.

Just south of the Ivory Tower gates, Johnny lives in one of the most congested and run down areas in Toronto. His community is on the brink of becoming a slum. Society has labelled him "a kid from below the tracks."

Johnny is growing up in a jungle of concrete and asphalt. Each day he is greeted by shabby decaying houses, dirty bleak factories, cheap pawn shops, flop houses, and garbage-littered, treeless streets.

Seven days a week he hears nothing but honking cars, roaring trucks, rattling trams, shouting street peddlers, and the ceaseless racket of the business district. This is Johnny's world.

is needed for family support. Chances are he will never see the inside of a high school, let alone university.

At the age of 12 when most children have few worries, Johnny has more problems than most people come across in half a life time. In short, Johnny was never given a square deal in life.

His parents are poor. Money But a key group of hard driving people are working around the clock to unlock for Johnny and many others like him an undreamed of world giving him a share of the better things in life.

The group is a force of Toronto social workers and volunteer members from student and faculty bodies at the University of Toronto. Base of operation is the University of Toronto settlement house on Grange street, below Dundas.

A city can be cold and cruel. New Canadians are subtly frowned on and turned away because of prejudice. Old and lonely people become lonelier in the midst of seething city activity. And underprivileged children are forgotten. But Toronto has a heart.

Between Dundas and Queen, Spadina and Elizabeth streets the settlement acts as that heart. Day in day out, it pumps out good will and encouragement to a range of individuals aged 6 to 60.

Wherever a social problem is involved, whether it's concerned with a new immigrant struggling to adapt himself to Canada or an old couple with time on their hands, the doors of the settlement are always open with help and consolation.

Present location of the settlement is a dingy, dilapidated, red brick building. The smell of age strikes you when you enter. The paint is peeling off the walls and the floors are dirty and worn with time. Rooms are small and facilities generally inadequate to care for the large number of people who participate in the house programs.

But this is due to change. In the next few weeks members of the settlement house will shift to a sparkling new ultra modern $800,000 building. Program director at the settlement Vivienne Durden, called it a "dream come true after nine long years of waiting."

The new settlement house is the product of combined efforts from three groups. The city constructed and donated it. The United Appeal will pay the staffers. And the settlement itself will raise money to provide furnishings.

The University Settlement began in 1910 as the branch of U. of T. president William Falconer. Wishing to impress students with the seriousness of social distress, he conceived the idea of a benefit organization where students could assist in social work.

The idea caught on. Since then U of T students have joined the settlement as volunteer instructors, and leaders; others have raised funds and repaired buildings. Some students sponsored plays and dances and donated profits to the settlement.

A well lit art studio, a photography laboratory, wood working shops, music rooms, kitchens, modeling shops, numerous lounges and class rooms are scattered throughout the new building.

The new settlement boasts the only swimming pool in Toronto with a folded deck roof, similar to the Queen Elizabeth building at the Canadian National Exhibition. The roof cuts out echoes and the need for burdensome pillars. A huge gym occupies the rest of the center.

The center will continue to offer, on an expanded scale, opportunities for the New Canadians to learn English. Besides, music courses, craft

NEW BUILDING costing $800,000 will house University of Toronto Settlement.

Varsity staff photo by H. H. H.

classes, and a group Services Department will be available to all.

The center is nondenominational. It is a place for adults and children to gain warmth, fun, and companionship. They learn new skills and develop their talents. For new Canadians it is a chance to learn the customs and mannerisms of Canada.

Miss Durden said the house is a "stopping off" place for the immigrant. "Here he learns how to speak and write English and merges himself into the Canadian society before moving to another part of the city."

Children like Johnny and the teen-age set have a chance to express themselves. "Teen-agers, especially ones living in this community, have loads of problems. With trained leaders these juveniles find answers to their problems at home, in school, or at work."

She said recreation and amusement were not the main goals of the center. "The basic object is to teach the children and also many of the adults how to plan their future and make decisions for themselves."

Carol Stone, settlement representative on the Students Administrative Council, said she was "highly pleased" with contributions for the center she received from U of T. Over two years the university has raised $3,000 of a $5,000 goal to buy materials and machines to equip the new settlement.

Last year $2,640 was collected by donating profits from $500 has been raised this year.

For Johnny, the new settlement will be a home away from home. He will no longer roam the streets looking for trouble. For once he has some privileges.

For the immigrant it is a chance to learn about the business of being a Canadian, for other citizens a place to be useful, for all the opportunity to live like decent human beings.

By LIZ BINKS

Junior has never had it so good as he's having it these days. Not only is every household littered with books and magazines on child care and development, not only are public discussion groups held to help inexperienced parents indulge their children, but now the furniture manufacturers have joined in with another of many suggestions for making baby feel wanted.

An expensive suggestion, mind you, but well worthwhile. With a blare of subliminal trumpets, one company took an entire newspaper page a few weeks ago to usher in "a new era of elegance for baby."

Baby, sparkling crown on head in a rarefied cloud of butterflies and dewdrops, was depicted pulling his stork-like steed to a grinding halt before a mahogany trimmed crib which, complete with mattress, cost only a little over $100.

Beneath, to give reassurance of sound sleeping and solid comfort in the dangerous adolescent years to come, were sketches of a youth bed, chest of drawers and night table, all mahogany trimmed with contrasting pastel shades. Totaled up, these glorious objects for temper tantrums and artistic experiments in those growing years would come to roughly $260.

We had no difficulty believing the advertisement when it told us that this new era of elegance for baby was "one of unsurpassed luxury ... to make the most fastidious ruler of your domain coo with pride and joy ... and gracious living as never before for the nursery..."

And that's not all. There were prams too, superb prams, each model named after a ballerina. This is no doubt intended to keep pace with the current child craze for ballet — a craze beautifully illustrated at almost any performance of the National Ballet you want to attend this month.

Without sparing the adjectives, the advertisement went on to tell us about "these masterpieces of grace and classical elegance". Lumped modestly under the general term "royal carriages", they were described as marvels of exquisite detail and construction. Unique with fibre-glass body and individual plate for inscription of the family name, they were indeed, "fit for a little prince or princess."

They ought to have been. After a two month's wait for delivery from England, they only cost an even $300.

With all this build-up, we feel sure parents can impart some of their enthusiasm to junior who will feel properly grateful and well-loved with his possessions. We hope he does, anyway. Then it won't matter as much when his parents can't afford to send him to college.

• — a special report on —

The U of T Settlement

NEW CANADIANS, as well as young Johnnies, take advantage of the Settlement's many services.

Varsity staff photo by H. H. H.

gag

Yeah, it was a gag.

It flopped, but not completely. For an hour or so yesterday morning there were quite a few students wandering around this campus cursing the powers that be for ordering them into the open on one of the coldest days of winter.

We, for our part, never seriously considered The Varsity could herd the 16,000 diverse and scattered personnel at this university into six regulated bands. Greater and more authoritative powers than we have tried before, tried many times, and always failed.

Yeah, it was a gag. But nobody was hurt, nobody was seriously offended, and we had a lot of fun doing it.

And if Ottawa thinks, as it could well think, that it came a bit near the bone or perhaps anticipated some future civil defence program, then we may even have achieved something positive.

Who knows when the bombs will fall?

gagged

There was one story in yesterday's paper which was not a gag.

The story dealt with the U of T blood campaign. It told how 1,000 students had volunteered to give a pint of blood, had made appointments with the two blood clinics on campus to do so—and how only 356 of them had actually taken the trouble to fulfill their obligations and keep their appointments.

What the story did not say, because it is unofficial and because the Toronto General Hospital does not want to condemn the university wholesale, is that two major surgical operations had to be cancelled this week because the hospital had been so naive as to expect U of T students to keep their word and honor their quota.

Toronto students have excelled themselves in complacency this year. Never before in our memory have they been so fashionably unconcerned with the world around them.

The United Appeal campaign fell $1,000 short of last year's total and students managed to keep their money in their pockets with more ease and less conscience than ever before. The World University Service's SHARE campaign never even got off the ground. By that time students had so perfected the gentle art of selfishness that there was even some cool praise from official quarters for our fixed and balanced principles.

But proud as we were of these new-developed monetary talents amongst our brethren, we cannot help but feel small twitches of shame after the latest exhibition. Blood is not money. You can sell blood, if you are morally and physically bankrupt enough to ask money for saving somebody's life, but few people even in our society recommend it.

Blood is not money. It costs you little or nothing to give it. It may mean everything, including life itself, to another human being.

Blood is not money. Once given, it does not last very long. Its value completely deteriorates after two weeks. Thus it is necessary to arrange blood campaigns in advance and to schedule operations in expectation of the quota being realized.

Toronto hospitals were depending on U of T blood for more operations next week. Most of the operations are heart surgeries. Up to 25 pints of blood may be used in a single case of heart surgery.

But it looks like many hopeful patients have depended upon the university in vain. With only one more day to go, U of T students have donated less than half of their pledged quota of 2,500 pints.

The consequences may be tragic, but at least the student body of the University of Toronto has proved to the world that, while it may be perfectly capable of keeping its money, it can at least be depended upon not to keep its word.

Will all great Neptune's ocean wash this blood Clean from my hand? No, this my hand will rather
The multitudinous seas incarnadine,
Making the green one red.

—Macbeth

The Film: The Res

By WARREN W. WILSON

The 'twenties and 'thirties were a time of maturation and consolidation of the liveliest of arts, the motion picture. Scarcely thirty years old, movies had in this relatively short period of time achieved an acceptance and affection seldom rivalled in any other art medium.

The great figures of the early days of the business — Porter, Griffith, Chaplin, and even Cecil B. DeMille—had each in their turn lifted the motion picture from a mere series of images filmed from life to an art form, and one of the most popular and enduring art forms ever invented.

In particular, David Wark Griffith (whose two major films, BIRTH OF A NATION, and that oversized spectacular, INTOLERANCE, are still cited with reverence as classic of the film medium, made the most significant contribution to film art. He did not use radically new techniques; the close-up, the pan, the dissolve, even rudimentary editing, had all been developed in the early days of the cinema. Griffith's chief claim to fame lay in his utilising these basic techniques in a revolutionary manner; each shot, each effect, was there because it had to be there. Add to these a particularly brilliant flair for imaginative editing, and you have most, though not all, of D.W. Griffith's undoubted genius.

In Russia, his influence was even greater. Lenin, seeing that the film medium was ideal for spreading propaganda to a far greater section of the population than any other medium, fostered schools of cinematic technique throughout Russia. In classes, Griffith's INTOLERANCE would be screened, dissected, and reassembled in different shape, and the results analysed. Two of the greatest film directors the Soviet Union has produced, Pudovkin and Eisenstein, unashamedly proclaimed their indebtedness to the great American director. Thus it was that screen masterpieces such as MOTHER, STORM OVER ASIA and BATTLESHIP POTEMKIN, emerge, not as accidental products of erratic geniuses, but as meticulously planned works of intellects completely attuned to the film medium.

POTEMKIN was produced in 1925. In this same year, the "spoiled brat of an industry" in Hollywood was being taken in hand by banking magnates. The major film studios needed readily available liquid assets in their struggle to buy up large theatre chains, and the banks were only too eager to encourage such ambitions, while they strangle-hold on a far less profitably industry.

The Wall Street merchants cast for some gimmick with which to attract vaster and vaster hordes of customers. Since Will Hays had abolished film censorship in five states, titillating bedroom scenes presented themselves as a possible solution. The American war screen, which had reflected isolationist policy by escaping contemporary problems to the peaceful and uncontroversial of the great classics—THE SCARLET LEADER, THE HUNCHBACK OF NOTRE DAME, THE PHANTOM OF THE OPERA, in which the hero appeared as impossibly idealised objects of purity and innocence—way to more lurid and harrowing of fallen women. MALE AND MALE, GREED, THE MERRY GOLF, and A WOMAN OF PARADISE exploited the commercial possibilities of sex to the full. But the banks were not fully taken in.

Finding that it was not a lion that grossed $750,000,000, the star, the producers began to look for a new name. As Louis B. Mayer wrote in "Sight And Sound": "Everything was set for the office treasure where the heart lay, when they were with the realization that the heroine with youth, beauty, sensuality enough to make a sympathetic, to be beautiful, a female's picture still showed a tug showing marriage fighting for her virtue as Stroheim's direction in THE WIDOW, had proved the value of transmuting established new gold. The world was taken a whirl with Edna Florence Vidor and Aileen was too remote and majestic for the public. The passion being worked over by three years, was dead at the And the producers were tresses out of their minds Barbara La Marr in 1925 make her sympathetic, the rose between the teeth of most celebrated screen Wilson, to make her Finally, Hollywood of the screen greats — With a face of a Madonna, being of soul qualified to American public (and none of her affairs in the box-office began killing. Sex was less in most, so everyone thought. Two major events

THE VARSITY

FOUNDED 1880

Published by
The Students' Administrative Council
of the University of Toronto

Toronto 5, Canada
Member Canadian University Press

Editorial and News Office
Basement, SAC Building — WA 3-8742, WA 3-8113
Business and Advertising Manager
E. A. Macdonald — WA 3-8221

The opinions expressed in this paper are those of the editor

Editor-in-Chief: Doug Marshall
Managing Editor: Mark Nichols
Editor without portfolio: Sam Aizenstat
News Editor: Harvey Shepherd

Today's Issue: Kay McCook, Jerry Bourke, Morgan Tompling, Jayne Nesbitt, Charlotte Huobell, Bill Barrick, Earl Foley, Debbie Halper, Peter Bawley. Masthead Additions: Not by Al Walker who suffered the most unkind cut of all. Photography This Issue: Andy Stabins.

at Quebec labor

Asbestos Remembered

By VICKY INNES
Varsity CUP Editor

the traditional day of bad luck with little notice, at the end of Toronto. But in the early 13th century occasioned the most important historical event in Quebec's Labor movement.

It was the beginning of the Asbestos strike. The strike at the time it marked the beginning of the Management relations.

in the McGill Daily, changes was examined by the union, management and the community. This article reprints the demands of the union.

er wrote of the demands of the union.

claiming a base rate of 35 per cent and a 15 cent increase in the cost of living. The strike lasted five weeks.

and an unstable post-war economy both played a role in the controversy, Pelletier maintains. Other factors were the force of public opinion on the question of industrial hygiene and the "dynamic" Canadian Catholic Confederation of Labor.

"All these circumstances were so blended as to form a highly explosive compound", Pelletier says.

"Quebec remembers the Asbestos strike, not only for its lasting effects which are still felt in the labor section of the province, but because the community as a whole played a part in it."

Roger Provost, President of the Quebec Federation of Labor represented the Union's point of view.

Since the Asbestos strikers lost their case in Court, he writes, the Quebec labour movement learned they were "up against a two-party union-busting regime; that there was no use looking for individual scapegoats, be it the Prime Minister himself; that they had to get united and strong... that they had to jump into the political arena, in co-operation with the other laborious groups of society, instead of letting two professional fatties stage a faked show for which we, the people, had always been the suckers.

Twenties and Thirties

Less Years

the motion picture industry — the first was the arrival of sound; the second was the Depression. Contrary to popular belief, sound films were not a novelty in the late 'twenties. Edison, the founder of the new art, had devised a method of synchronizing the aural with the visual, and others had elaborated on the method. But these early attempts had created no great impression on the public. The fact that the films did not rely on the spoken word was a reason for their initial success, and the gradual maturation of the silent film technique had increased the audience's acceptance of this convention.

Nevertheless, improved electronic resources made it possible to synchronize word with image to a far greater degree than before thought possible. Sound-on-film became the vogue. Hundreds of actors, whose voices did not suit their appearance were forced out of work, to be replaced by established stage artists. The old masters — Chaplin, Rene Clair, Dreyer, struggled on to perfect their now outdated silent films. Finally, with regret, almost, they bowed to the supremacy of the new cult, and turned reluctantly to sound.

Nor was it hard to see why they should so dread the new film. Dialogue became paramount; action and poetry in image were negligible.

Then the Depression struck. Wall Street was amazed at the continued prosperity of the movies, for in these bleak times, the masses flocked to the local cinema. But their patronage helped to reshape the type of film they were seeing. They wanted to escape from reality, but they were just as pleased to see misery lotter than theirs. Encouraged by the Roosevelt administration, Hollywood provided its public with studies of the criminal in society, with the sin and redemption of the saintly prostitute, with nostalgic portrayals of the American family. And of course, with spectacular musicals with a much needed message of hope.

To an audience disenchanted with the mores of a financially stable class society, these buoyant, optimistic musical documents provided a soothing balm. Even Steinbeck's starkly realistic study of dispossessed farmers trying to obtain work in an alien environment THE GRAPES OF WRATH, was given a hopeful ending to go with the spirit of the times. The scenes at the government-run camp, managed by a gentleman vaguely resembling the great F.D.R., may strike us as ludicrous today, but obviously had a tremendous impact on the pre-war generation.

With the approach of the Second World War Hollywood's products took on an ominous note. Films now began to extol America's power to resist an enemy in case of invasion. Of course, true to the non-intervention policy of the government, these movies adamantly refused to take any interest in the fate of European powers, but contained a none too subtle warning to the Axis coalition to maintain a "hands off" policy, or else.

The Second World War, of course, changed the motion picture scene and ushered in the period with which we are more familiar. It is still perhaps too early to evaluate the latest manifestation of the cinematic art, even if time and space permitted such an analysis. Instead, let us try to briefly evaluate the more readily noticeable effects of the 'twenties and 'thirties on the contemporary scene.

In these days of crisis, with the new mass monster, television, threatening the film industry, it is far too simple to dismiss the products of our forbears as worthless trash. We tend to talk glibly of radical new advances in cinematography — of stereophonic sound, of technicolor, of the wide screen and of 3-D. We forget that most of these developments occurred in these seemingly remote times. Mention has already been made of sound. Experiments with color were even being made in the days of Griffith, when tinted stock was the rage.

Technicolor per se was already being exploited in THE PHANTOM OF THE OPERA (1924) and THE BLACK PIRATE (1926). And are not Magna-Scope and the Triptych method examples of wide screens? What's more, they were used with far more intelligence than now, to heighten a psychological effect. Thus, in an early MCGY DICK, false panels at the sides of the screen open up as the boat moves off from the Pequod in pursuit of the whale, to give an effect of vast distance. When the whale attacks, the screens close again, as if to engulf the hapless souls within rigid confines. Similarly, in NAPOLEON, two cameras flash their images on two screens at either side of the main screen; thus, we get an immense panorama of the French armies at Austerlitz, with a close-up of their leader in the centre foreground. As for 3-D, it has proved a gimmick of so little popularity, that it can hardly be termed a radical new development at all.

Looking back at these unsettled times, we must forever acknowledge the great debt we owe to the film makers and stars of this period; they too had their crises to face. And armed with this knowledge, we must stubbornly refuse to lightly pass off their art form into which so much blood and tears have been poured in order to

"For those who thought those denials of our democratic rights were peculiar to the Province of Quebec, the CBC strike — which was strictly under Federal jurisdiction, came as a reminder that any capitalist political party turns out to be anti-labor as soon as it gets in power.

"As a matter of fact," he continues, "the only difference in the attitudes of the Dielenbaker Government and the Duplessis Government toward Labor is that the first one gives us the cold shoulder and the second one adds a slap in our face when we make use of our democratic right to make representations to them."

The Labor laws, he states, "are full of loopholes intended for union-busting employers." A long list of "unsatisfied demands" await to be granted by the government.

These requests, most of which "are intended for the majority of the people of this Province and have been made by other groups of citizens as well," include Briefs on Education, Health-Insurance and Unemployment.

Industry's case was presented by J.J. Gagnon, Manager of the Industrial Relations Division, Aluminum Co. of Canada.

The aim of the Corporation, according to Gagnon, is "to satisfy the demands of the shareholder, the customer, the employee and the community." Industry must provide leadership and "maintain two-way communications" with employees.

"The public expects stability of employment, employees expect human satisfactions and industry to provide goods at reasonable prices."

To establish these conditions, two ideal foundations are needed, he maintains: "free labor and free management," free within the social and economic and legal structure which in our society is changed by evolution rather than by revolution.

Discussing management-employee relations, he says management is "concerned with the full utilization of talents at all levels and their conservation as far as is practicable. Companies tend to regard employees as their most valuable asset. Because of this, new techniques have been adopted and ways and means of doing things have been overhauled.

"While management is struggling with this problem, management's prerogatives to do so are being challenged by organized labor."

Gagnon lists six areas in which labor has encroached on "management's ability to manage."

1. Because collective bargaining now covers an increasingly large group of employees in the industrial hierarchy, the possibility exists of a future "unionization at all levels of the industrial ladder."

2. With the tendency towards co-administration of certain functions formerly the responsibility of

3. The scope of bargaining territory, is constantly expanding and union contracts are becoming more and more comprehensive, covering matters which should be limited to wages and hours of work.

4. The union is now a more important factor in the economic life of the country. It is now a more important factor in the economic life of the country. It is now a more important factor in the economic life of the country.

5. The union is now a more important factor in the economic life of the country. It is now a more important factor in the economic life of the country. It is now a more important factor in the economic life of the country.

6. The union is now a more important factor in the economic life of the country. It is now a more important factor in the economic life of the country. It is now a more important factor in the economic life of the country.

7. The union is now a more important factor in the economic life of the country. It is now a more important factor in the economic life of the country. It is now a more important factor in the economic life of the country.

8. The union is now a more important factor in the economic life of the country. It is now a more important factor in the economic life of the country. It is now a more important factor in the economic life of the country.

9. The union is now a more important factor in the economic life of the country. It is now a more important factor in the economic life of the country. It is now a more important factor in the economic life of the country.

10. The union is now a more important factor in the economic life of the country. It is now a more important factor in the economic life of the country. It is now a more important factor in the economic life of the country.

11. The union is now a more important factor in the economic life of the country. It is now a more important factor in the economic life of the country. It is now a more important factor in the economic life of the country.

12. The union is now a more important factor in the economic life of the country. It is now a more important factor in the economic life of the country. It is now a more important factor in the economic life of the country.

13. The union is now a more important factor in the economic life of the country. It is now a more important factor in the economic life of the country. It is now a more important factor in the economic life of the country.

14. The union is now a more important factor in the economic life of the country. It is now a more important factor in the economic life of the country. It is now a more important factor in the economic life of the country.

15. The union is now a more important factor in the economic life of the country. It is now a more important factor in the economic life of the country. It is now a more important factor in the economic life of the country.

WARREN WILSON

SEX AND PHOTOGRAPHY

TEBALDI

The "Boneless" Touch

Rudolf Firkušny, guest pianist in a series of CBC concerts in the Great Hall, presented a programme, Wednesday evening, of Scarlatti, Schubert and Beethoven. For the most part Firkušny produces brilliant pianoforte sound of the first order, but occasionally some which is not as good.

As in the case of the three D Major sonatas which opened the programme. Composed as a triptych, the sonatas exemplify various facets of Scarlatti's art — the first's advanced dissonances and curious scale passages, the second's bristling technical difficulties, and the third's galloping metre. With the exception of the opening sonata, Firkušny's approach was heavy-handed, due to noisy pedal action and over-percussiveness. Though all the notes were in their right place, the Hall's acoustics and too much pedal blurred what might have been crisp articulation.

Firkušny was stronger in the Schubert A minor sonata, Op. 143, which ended the first half. The first movement is typical of Schubert's unsuccessful earlier attempts at larger forms, with its comparative lack of potential thematic material, tiresome repetition of motifs, misdirected lyricism and major-minded modal alternations. On paper, the whole affair is quite dull, but Firkušny brought it to life and gave it meaning. In the second movement's chordal melody, with its strange little unison responses, we had lovely pianissimo singing tone and the last movement's rush of sound was effective though the metre was at times incertain.

The second movement was devoted entirely to the works of Beethoven, two sonatas and a set of variations. The Waldstein Sonata was the highlight of the evening. The opening of the first movement and the minor episodes in the last were taken at a fearful clip, but the whole was admirably controlled and energetic. Here speed was not used for its own sake but rather as an expressive device. The slow episode, which biographers suggest describes Beethoven's expression of feeling of a sunrise over the Swiss Alps, provided that heavenly feeling of anticipation for the moment of the entire recital, the horn call of the rondo-finale's opening theme. The coda entrance of this theme above Beethoven's favorite trill was exquisite.

The early sonata, Op. 10 no. 3, is Beethoven's herald of great things to come. Written in 1798 when his deafness was becoming more apparent, the second movement, largo con moto, is an expression of profound melancholy. Firkušny captured some of this with sensuously shaped melodic contours. Yet he was too free with Beethoven's meticulously marked text and dynamics, and the gigantic climax of the movement was built up too soon. The opening scrambling of sounds in the development section evidenced an extreme tempo in the first movement, but the last two were properly resilient, particularly the fourth with its effects of whimsical humor.

The seldom-played ten variations on a theme by Galieri exhibited to advantage Firkušny's leggiero, "boneless" touch, a feature which prompts one to regret the lack of impressionistic music on the program.

Bill Aide

The Evil That Little Girls Do

With THE CHILDREN'S HOUR Lillian Hellman has joined Eugene O'Neill in a play of unnatural love and unexplained, even inherent evil set in New England. But unlike O'Neill, the locale is such a minor part of the play as to be almost unnoticed and the only important insights we gain into the characters are told us rather than shown.

In the first act Karen's fiancé, Dr. Cardin (Marv Schiff) asks, "Aren't you taking it too seriously?" and Martha answers: "You stay around kids long enough and you won't know what to take seriously, either." Unfortunately, Miss Hellman can't assume that her audience is plagued by a life around kids, and until we are gradually told by the two teachers just how much they have struggled for their school and the threat that small things have been, we find it difficult to take their concerns seriously.

The first act is both the most and the least satisfying. It opens with a most convincing scene of an undisciplined reading class in the living room of an old farm house which serves as the school. The success of this scene is undoubtedly due to the director's (Bill Davis) fine blocking—the quickness of the lines, and the generally fine acting of the seven students (who in their girl's school dresses actually look like they were recruited from a local school). The less satisfying aspect of the act is due to the play itself, which never involves us in the problems of the two teachers. Martha Dobie's sudden blow-up with her aunt, a has-been actress who has been taken in as a dramatics teacher, strikes us as an instance of the instability of a frustrated, aging teacher.

The second act is undoubtedly the highlight of the play, both as a play and for acting. Mary's sister (Nancy Tilford) with her grandmother, in which she is insidiously loving and evilly inventive in her story, is excellent. And for the first time in the play we are drawn into the action, but unfortunately so, for this is not Mary's play. Rather it belongs to the two teachers, and when we are left with their problem in the third act, we must again begin to identify almost new characters, as though we were watching a new play. But in the Third Act, because of the convincing acting of Sylvia Peggis and Jan Hughes, we are soon involved in the spirit of a story, which is very reminiscent of Beckett's ENDGAME. What are they to do now that they are dangerous freaks in the community? Go for a walk? No, they will be seen. Eat? No. A shower perhaps? Yes, a shower every day at six gives some purpose to life.

The first scene of the second act, which was ably performed by Mary and Mrs. Tilford, was one of the finest in the play. Deborah Schwartz's acting, except for a few times when she was concerned with other things and her voice tended to become young, was excellent. The scene was marred by an unfortunate bit of directing at its close. As Mrs. Tilford is trying to decide whether or not to act on her granddaughter's story, the lights suddenly dimmed on all but the table with the telephone. The idea—to focus all attention on Mrs. Tilford and her conflict, to highlight the importance of the final decision—might have come off if the light change had been made very gradual, almost imperceptible. But the sudden change made us aware of a deliberately dramatic technique.

The most dramatic point of the play, and the point at which the play probably should have ended, was the end of the second scene of Act II. Rosalie Wells had previously been forced into "vassalage" by Mary—she was sworn into corroborating anything Mary might say. Rosalie lies about the teachers and breaks down sobbing on the couch. Miss Orban's performance in this scene, her only important moment, is certainly the finest and most professional in the play.

The third act is dominated almost completely by the two teachers and Dr. Cardin. Perhaps Dr. Cardin had been played as a quiet, tweedy small-town doctor, many more of his lines would have been credible. From the mouth of a slick, obviously urbane person, many of his lines sounded anachronistic. In a scene of tension, when the light was high and he had a blackish face, Marv Schiff was most successful. When he was indignant, hesitant to speak, or half-hurrying Karen, he was believable, but when we saw him making small talk, discussing the teachers' false hair attack, or talking to Karen and Martha as if they could go away to the beach and sail off fresh, he was unbelievable. In the third act as he was back and forth from Karen to William, trying to assure them that they could forget all the trouble, what could have been reassuring parts to play his and embraces with Karen took on aspects of a Catholic Mass as they clutched each other's arms and brushed cheeks.

If the playgoer can find an answer for why this disconnected and intellectually empty play was produced, the evening can be a most entertaining and dramatically satisfying one. Certainly St. Michael's and University College should be able to give more support to their play on Friday and Saturday than they did on opening night, which had a pitifully small audience.

Earl Foley

Nabukov By Rubokov

Lolita, the confession of a suave, aging European's lust for a young girl, can best be described as a detailed sex novel done up in a package of fancy language.

Humbert Humbert is the suave European who has a mad love affair at the age of 14 with a young girl. Unable to consummate his love at this time, he spends the rest of his life seeking a young maid who closely resembles his Annabelle to fill the great void left in his life by this unfortunate affair.

At the age of 38 he finds and fulfills his longing in the person of 12-year-old Deloras Haze (his Lolita). The rest of the novel is spent in describing in great detail their next two years of aimless wandering in a forest of distorted love until Lolita runs off with another middle-aged man.

The novel ends with Humbert Humbert in a "psychopathic cell" awaiting trial for the murder of Lolita's second seducer.

The characters in this novel are for the most part stereotyped figures straight out of American middle class society of whom the author is obviously contemptuous. Only Humbert Humbert and Lolita are real and vibrant, Humbert the man of extreme desires and sensuous nature, Lolita, young, effervescent, selfish, spoiled. He the smoldering volcano of constant passion, she the young nymphet who excites and maddens the soul.

The author slices himself open and reveals a ghastly interior and for the lovers of James Joyce this will undoubtedly have a strong appeal.

Much of the book is taken up with boring details of scenery and hotels. Nabokov dwells painfully long and laboriously over his description of the numerous bedroom experiences of his hero.

The language and imagery, although brilliant, at times are so excessively flowery that theyicken the mind of the reader on numerous occasions "the stepfather of a graspingly adorable pubescent pet."

Lolita begins in an exciting and even fascinating story, but at the end of the novel the reader is left with disappointment and the feeling that he has seen only the potential and not the actual of a great novel.

Until the seduction of Lolita the reader sees human emotions sensitively displayed, but by the end we are lost in a tortuous plot, monstrous detail and all of the warm feelings of emotion and intimacies are cold and lifeless.

Sam Rubokov

"A Gloomg Peace This Morning With It Brings"

Canada and the world lost one of its greatest living 19th Century Romantics with the passing Tuesday of Warren Peace, mourned by all who knew him, respected by all who did not.

Only 25 at his death, Peace has left his mark on the world of literature with his many contributions to the Arts in Canada. At the time of his death he was working on a film entitled "The Sacred and the Profane", a full-length color cartoon feature involving the adventures of a gardener in a convent, based on a story in Boccaccio's "Decameron".

Ironically, it was this film, hand-drawn frame by frame on blank celluloid stock, that was the instrument in Peace's tragic death. His worn and haggard body was discovered hanging from a rafter in the bar of his South Yonge Street Bohemian cold-water flat in Eastern Alley, suspended by several yards of the 16 millimetre film on which he had so long labored.

From the film salvaged, it is obviously the work of a misguided genius. This, however, may be the result of Peace's unfortunate tendency to wallow in oceans of self-pity. The scene of the mother superior's fall from grace is one which we will always remember with a sad fondness.

Peace's interment in the Mount Pleasant Cemetery yesterday was as tragic as his suicide.

His fickle concubine, Myrtle Hennessy, had to be forcibly dragged from the graveside as she shouted "nail me down with him", tearing out yards of her hair, and draping them around Peace's headstone. A band of six pipers droned the funeral march. They had been supplied by Peace's friends in memory of his love for scotch.

Among Peace's many books are "My Universities," a glimpse at undergraduate life written in his usual vitriolic style, and "Some Random Jottings Concerning The Russian Language", a detailed piece of acidulous research into the insidious propaganda techniques used in the preparation of N.F. Potapova's first year elementary Russian textbook used at the University of Toronto.

Peace was planning a special Varsity culture issue on the Arts in Russia, to supplement last year's feature on the Canadian Arts. He was greatly concerned at Russia's tremendous lead in education and culture as compared to what he termed "our bourgeois capitalist society".

He is also well-known for his incomplete poem, "A Lament for Past Mistresses."

Various intimate friends of the great man are making plans to perpetuate his memory and his writings. A special issue of the St. Michael's College literary magazine, "The Chorus", will next week be devoted to a comprehensive analysis of Peace's life and writings by several of his co-workers. Dore Schary of "Sunrise at Campobello" fame, is currently planning a stage play dealing with Peace's short and tragic life, entitled "The Last Of The Big-Time Losers." His complete works are being collected by Lawrence Duffy, general manager of CBC-TV News, and a lifelong friend of the young writer.

Private showings of the partially-completed "The Sacred And The Profane" are being arranged at the U of T Film Society and there will be one minute's silence at the next meeting of the society in remembrance of his tragic death.

Relics of the great man, culled from his meagre possessions, will be on sale at the society, the proceeds going towards a memorial banquet to be held in his honor. "He would have wanted it that way," Programme Director W.W. Wilson said last night.

up-and-coming events in the world of jazz

Another reminder about to-night's Jazz Show on CBC TV. Featured are Georgie Auld, Peter Appleyard, Ron Collier Quintet, Mike White's Dixieland Band, Jack Kane's Orchestra, Oscar Peterson, Anne Marie Moss, Moe Koffman and others.

Monday evening, the Jazz Messengers with Art Blakey will be featured for one night only at the Westdale Hotel on Main Street, Hamilton. There will be a slight admission charge at the door. This should be a must for jazz fans because the group has not been in the area before and may not be back for some time.

The Edison Hotel will have Duke Ellington and Lionel Hampton sometime in the early spring. That's the spot on Yonge Street which has been catering to rock 'n' roll lately.

Vivienne Stenson will be representing The Weavers, that very entertaining and versatile folk-song group, at Massey Hall, March 13. Tickets may be obtained by phoning ME. 3-7743.

Andres Segovia, the world's greatest classical guitarist, will perform at Eaton Auditorium April 28.

The House of Hambourg will be featuring a talented and swinging trio Saturday evening. It consists of Jerry Toth on alto sax, Jack Landers on bass, and Ed Bickert on guitar. Festivities begin at midnight at 23 Grenville.

TYPING

Theses, Essays, Notes, Charts, French, German, Latin, English, Prices Upon Request

Apt. 12
21 AVENUE RD.—WA 2-7624
MRS. M. D. STOTT, B.A.

GOOD HAIRCUT
RIGHT NEAR HERE
4 BARBERS—NO WAITING

600 University Avenue
Just below College
In the Basement

Open Monday through Friday
8 a.m. to 6 p.m.
ONLY $1.00

ATTENTION STUDENTS

Enjoy Your Saturday Evening Dancing to Top Recordings

Every Saturday, 8 p.m.
at EGLINTON ORANGE HALL
Yonge and Castlefield Ave.

Refreshments
Admission 75c Single
$1.25 Couple
Parking Facilities

CLASSIFIED ADS.

$1 DOWN BUYS ANY MAKE
Brand new typewriters, $59 up. Some models $30 off. Free home demonstration. Free typing course. -859 models rented, lowest rates 375 Jane-Humber, RO 6-1103.

TYPIST (Electric)
Fast, accurate, personalized service. Theses, essays, letters, dictation. Reasonable rates. Irene Kenyon, 146 Bernard Avenue, WA 3-4011.

ACCOMMODATION AVAILABLE
For male or female student at the Campus Co-Operative Residence Inc. Phone WA. 1-2520.

The Ramsay Lewis Trio will be at the Towne Tavern next week, followed by Buddy Greco. Peter Appleyard finishes off his stay this weekend.

The ever' charmin' Carmen McRae will be singing at the Colonial Tavern all next week. The popular jazz vocalist will have her own group to accompany her. Lawrence Lederman

Suggestions For Next Week:

LA STRADA at the Kent, ends this weekend. Next week, THE KEY will be shown.
I VITELLONI (UTFS) at the Museum Theatre, Sunday at 2.15. Directed by Fellini.
MADAM BUTTERFLY continues until next Wednesday at the Odeon Fairlawn. With a special students' rate of 75c. Puccini's opera with the voices of Giuseppe Campora and Orietta Moscucci.
THUNDER ROCK at the Crest until Tuesday. Starring Bob Goulet, Hugh Webster, Kay Hawtrey and Joseph Furst. Special student rate: 60c.
SUMMER OF THE SEVENTEENTH DOLL by Ray Lawler

at the Crest opens Wednesday. Directed by George McGowan, and starring Max Helpmann, Barbara Chilcott, Katherine Blake and Hugh Webster.
CHILDREN'S HOUR at Hart House until Saturday. Presented by U.C. and S.M.C. and directed by Bill Davis. Students $1.00.
National Ballet programme at the Royal Alex. for the final week.
Friday, Les Sylphides, Dark Elegies, Les Rendez-vous.
Saturday Matinee, The Nutcracker.
Saturday evening, The Nutcracker.
Monday, Giselle, Coppelia, Act III.

Tuesday, Les Sylphides, The Fisherman and His Soul, Le Carnaval.
Wednesday Matinee, Les Sylphides, The Fisherman and His Soul, Coppelia Act III.
Wednesday evening, Les Sylphides, Ballad, Gala Performance.
Thursday, Swan Lake.
Friday, Swan Lake.
Saturday Matinee, Coppelia Act III. Ballad, Offenbach in the Underworld.
Saturday evening, Les Rendez-vous, Giselle.
Evenings when students have special rate of 75c.

SKULEMEN

NOMINATIONS FOR 6T0 ENG. SOC.

Fri., Feb. 20 to Mon., Feb. 23

(This is YOUR Chance to Build Next Year's Society)

FORMS IN THE STORES

SUMMER EMPLOYMENT FOR WOMEN

There are openings on our staff for an assistant to the dietitian; a tennis instructor; an archery instructor; a handicrafts instructor; a campcraft instructor; Red Cross Water Safety instructors and a registered nurse. Applications from those with other camping skills will also be considered. Minimum age 19. For July and August at girls' camp in Algonquin Park. Write Camp Tanamakoon, 24 Wilberton Rd., Toronto 7, or telephone HU. 1-3704.

Here's a career!

You can complete your present University course—and begin your career as a professional naval officer NOW.

The naval officer is a member of a challenging and highly progressive profession. A wide range of opportunity is open to university undergraduates who can qualify for naval cadetship today.

- subsidized tuition
- summer employment
- the Queen's commission

ROTP The Regular Officer Training Plan, as it applies in the Navy, is now open to students in baccalaureate courses which include calculus and two years physics. It leads to a permanent commission in the regular force. Those accepted receive naval training; pay and allowances of $128 a month during the university year, plus tuition fees and an allowance for books and instruments. Uniforms are furnished by the Navy. Summer training includes foreign cruises. Thirty days annual leave is granted with full pay.

Students who are considering a career in the RCN should make an appointment through their University Placement Officer to see the Naval University Liaison Officer when he visits the campus for interviews.

start planning your career... today!

OFFICER CAREERS, NAVAL HEADQUARTERS, OTTAWA, CANADA.

Please mail me, without obligation, further information on Officer Careers in the Royal Canadian Navy.

Name.....

Present Mailing Address.....

.....Telephone.....

Faculty.....Year.....

Further information on Officer careers in the Royal Canadian Navy can be obtained from the University Placement Office, the Resident Staff Officer, or by forwarding the coupon to Officer Careers, Naval Headquarters, Ottawa.

ROYAL CANADIAN NAVY

sociable living

Combat Houses

A University of Toronto professor yesterday said the single family dwelling is not the answer to the housing problem in the "City-Spreading Age".

Professor James Murray of the School of Architecture told the University Women's Club of North York that a new approach to the design of housing was required.

"What is needed is a more compressed type of housing which would keep our cities from spreading too far", he said.

"The unit would consist of single family units, row houses and apartments — designed so the community could serve all age groups", he said.

"It is important, however, not to forget the size of the people as cities grow", he said.

PROMOTION FOR

TORONTONENSIS REPS

Whether private, sergeant, colonel or major, you are urgently requested to rendezvous at Bunker H.Q.'s (basement SAC building) Monday or Tuesday afternoon re promotion of Operation Sales.

Women's Athletic Elections

Women's Athletic Directorate

The electoral meeting of the University of Toronto Women's Athletic Association to elect the six student representatives of the Women's Athletic Directorate for 1959-60 will be held in the Sun-room, Falconer Hall, on Wednesday, March 11, at 5:00 p.m. sharp.

Nominations will be received by the Secretary of the Association until Tuesday, March 3, at 1:00 p.m. Nominations must be signed by two members of the U. of T. W.A.A., and must be made on the forms to be obtained from the secretary, in the Women's Office, S.A.C. Building.

A student eligible for nomination must at the time of nomination be in her second or higher year, but not in the final year at the University.

Representatives to the Electoral Body must be appointed and sent to the meeting as follows: the W.A.A.'s of University College, Victoria, St. Michael's, St. Hilda's, the Faculty of Medicine, the School of Physical and Occupational Therapy, four representatives each; the W.A.A. of the School Nursing, two representatives; Basketball Club, six; Hockey, Swimming and Volleyball Clubs four each; Tennis, Badminton and Softball Clubs, two each; Archery, ski and Fencing Clubs, one each; the undergraduate members of the 1958-59 Directorate. Names of voting representatives must be given to the Secretary not later than Monday, March 9, and no proxies will be permitted except upon written notice to the Secretary prior to the election. Electoral Body representatives may only carry one vote each.

Women's Athletic Clubs

The annual elections for the women's Basketball, Hockey, Swimming, Tennis, Badminton, Softball, Volleyball, Ski, Archery, Bowling, and Fencing Club will be held on Thursday, March 12. Voting will be held from 10:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. either in the Women's Office, S.A.C. Building, or the Department Office, Falconer Hall.

An election for the presidency ONLY of each club will be held, voting to be preferential. Nominations for the office of president for each club must be signed by two voting members of the club in question and filed with the Secretary of the Athletic Association, S.A.C. Building, by 1:00 p.m., Tuesday, March 3.

Voting members for each club are restricted to those who have been registered as playing members of an intramural or intercollegiate sport during the past academic year, or who are certified by a team manager to have attended at least 50 per cent of the practices of that team; members of the club executive and managers of all teams playing under the club.

Each faculty, college and department entering one or more teams in an intramural series is entitled to ONE representative on the executive of the club directing that sport. The president of the club is not regarded as representative and her faculty is entitled to its regular representative.

Forty Delegates Discuss Role In Foreign Affairs

Forty U of T students leave for Caledon Farms this afternoon to take part in a World University Service seminar on "The Role of the Individual in International Affairs".

Included in the list of delegates is Mohammed Ali Dokainish, Egyptian student studying in Toronto under a scholarship sponsored by the Engineering faculty.

Moderators for the seminar include Dr. J. Markowitz of the Faculty of Medicine; Philosophy Professor Bruno Morawetz; Dr. Edmund Carpenter of the anthropology department and University College Dean Ian McDonald.

Foreign student delegates are: Rudolf Abel, Dokainish, Soroya Elian, Paul Goetsch, Madelin Grant, Stephen Hedu, Helmut Vibschat, Blanche Horscham, Keith Hollett, Anthony Ip and Mery Joyasena.

Also: Renate Mohl, M. Ozima, Mary del Pico, Helier Robinson, R.C. Sharma, Yousef Sobouti, Mr. Soeparno, Paul Tabakiah, Takashi Yamaguchi and Dr. M. Zyona-revic.

Canadian student delegates are: Ann Barnes, John Cartwright, Mary Jo Cullen, Mary Jane Edwards, Doug Gandy, R. Gibb, Barbara Goodwin, Grace Heggie, John

McConnell, Mary Percival, Carol Rennie, Howard Rubinoff, Evangeline Seiba and Ron Shirliff. Also: Janet Somerville, William Strachan, Edward Walker, Elizabeth Wilson and Christine Scott. Delegates will return to Toronto Sunday afternoon.

Expansion At 'Master

HAMILTON (CUP) — The head of McMaster University's new metallurgy department last night predicted considerable expansion in its research operations.

Dr. H.E. Petch said completion of new quarters and the addition of new facilities will make the expansion possible.

A grant was received recently from the United States steel industry to support future research work, particularly in the field of diffusion studies on metals, he said.

CURLING

We have curling ice arranged. Would those men interested in knock-out play-downs to determine which rink will represent the University of Toronto at the Intercollegiate Bonsel at O.A.C. sign up in the Athletic Office. Entries limited. Sign up by 4 p.m. Tuesday, February 24th. Meeting in Staff Room, Hart House 5 p.m., Feb. 24

GAMES TODAY

HOCKEY (Group Playoffs)
12:30 SPS VII	vs Dent, A	Reimer, Borthwick
1:30 SPS IV	vs SPS V	Reimer, Borthwick
1:00 Trin. A	vs Arch	J. Boase, Thesingh
BASKETBALL MAJOR LEAGUE
1:00 SPS III	vs Jr. SPS	Morlarty, Grossman
6:30 Med. IV	vs SPS VIII	Richardson, Kolodzie
BASKETBALL MINOR LEAGUE (HART HOUSE)
1:00 U.C. Binders	vs IV Geol.	Clarke
5:00 III Mech.	vs Med. I Yr.	Stein

WOMEN'S ATHLETICS

VOLLEYBALL

All the games are at L.M.
Mon. Feb. 23 6-7 Vic. IV - Pharm.
Tues. Feb. 24 7-8 St. Mike's - St. Hilda's I
6-7 Vic. IV - P.H.E.
7-8 Nursing - Winners of league IV
(not yet determined)

Wed. Feb. 25 6-7 Finals

BASKETBALL

O.C.E. Tues. Feb. 24
5:30 - Intercollegiate Practice
6:30 - Intercollegiate Practice
7:00 - Intercollegiate Practice

Week of Feb. 23		HOCKEY
Mon. Feb. 23 4:00	Visiting	Home Team
Tues. Feb. 24 8:00	St. Mike's	Vic II
Tues. Feb. 24 4:00	U.C. I	POT I
League I	Vic I	St. Hilda's I
Vic I	League II	Med. III
St. Hilda's I	P.H.E.	St. Hilda's II
POT I	Nursing	POT II
U.C. I	St. Mike's	Pharmacy
	Vic II

The play-offs begin on Thursday. Come out and cheer your team on! The winners of each of these two games will play off in a two-game total-goal series.

Semi-Finals
Thurs. Feb. 26 12:30-1:30 Winner of League I vs Winner of League III
1:30-2:30 Winner of League II vs Runner-up of League I
Finals
Wed. Mar. 4 8:00-10:00 Winner of 1st Semi-Final vs Winner of 2nd Semi-Final
Fri. Mar. 6 4:00-6:00 Winner of 2nd Semi-Final vs Winner of 1st Semi-Final

EXPORT "A"

FILTER TIP

CIGARETTES

THEN

and NOW

- Sound was first recorded as far back as 1877.
- Edison held his first public showing of his Kinetoscope in 1894.
- The first all-talking picture was "Lights of New York" in 1928.

- The movies added color in the 30's.
- Next came 3-D movies, first in two colors, then in full-color.
- Now we have Cinemascope, Todd A-O, stereophonic sound and Cinerama.

BLUES BUMP WITH QUEBECOIS

Laval "Honored" Guest For Year's Key Battle

By GENE GLISKY
Associate Sports Editor

This is it! Tonight's the soir when the Laval Red and Gold challenge Université de Toronto Bleux in the final—which means last, last, last—league game of the year at Varsity Arena.

The fighting "Irish" from Laval are pinning many hopes on this crucial contest. If they lose—which is possible—they still remain as the only team that can topple Blues, but to do so will require much uphill struggle.

A Varsity win will mean one more victory on the road (March 6 and 7) necessary for a fifth consecutive Intercollegiate title for Jack Kennedy's charges.

Despite Blues' last 12-4 victory over Rouge et Or, this one will not be as easy. Laval are still tough, primed, and desperate. They play a raggy, man-to-man game, that can give Varsity sharpshooters a lot of trouble. In Lorne Arsenault, Robert Landry, Claude Duguay and Pierre Raymond, Laval pack a lot of scoring punch. If they muster a slightly tougher defense, the game will be very close.

Blues go into action with much the same lineup that trounced McGill 11-2 last Friday.

Dave Stephen will centre Duncan (Nails) Brodie and Ron Casey. Red will be chasing his 95th Intercollegiate scoring point (in hockey that is).

Doug (O' Dad) Williams remains in command of the nimble Kid-line, while Grant Mills, looking quite at home at center, draws Tommy Watt and Don Fleming as wings. Bill Griffin will move up from the Rinkies as an extra forward.

The brunt of the winning chore will lie on the capable shoulders of the unsung heroes of the Varsity defence.

Watch Ray Dunn, him who rags the puck with the best of them when Blues are shorthanded. He'll most probably be guarding the fishnet and plumbings.

Watch Harry (Da Lip) Neale. A serious student of the "one apiece" hockey school, this portly bulwark of the Blues rear-guard has butted, kneed, elbowed and bodychecked his way to the fore as one of the most effective defencemen in the league.

With all these "nice guy" tactics, Harry has played excellent hockey both defensively and offensively. Let your eyes stray to the corners Neale occupies with an opposing forward. Some fun for 'arry.

Watch Lorry (Box Car) Stacey, who is both rugged and polished. If big Stace makes a mistake out there, here's one reporter that will eat the bucket of pucks so well hidden beneath the seats.

Watch Neil Munro, crafty as they come. Always very effective on a power play, the product of Saskatchewan (rah! rah!) is as stylish a defenseman as you'll find anywhere.

Watch Frank (Curly) Sullivan. The rugged rookie can throw a shoulder check that can be felt to the rafters of the old Arena.

To steal a line from Nichols, Benton and Schmidt inc. Bill (Bear) Kennedy and John (Captain) Macdonald are Out. They want to be In but injuries are In and they are Out.

All fans should be Out for this game, which means they'll be In. Blues are In, Laval are Out, if Blues put more In than Laval put In and Dunn kicks Out. Blue will be Out to get In on the championship, in which case Laval will be almost Out.

Blues will win, we know by In-stinct.

OFF TO KINGSTON In defence of their Intercollegiate senior boxing title are the above Blues: Back row (left to right): Jim Bacon, trainer; Art Vachon; Tony Canzano, coach; Roger Kirkpatrick; Frank Corner. Front row: Lorne Kirby; Mike Chykaluk; Robert Dodds; Michael Butt; and Boris Petcoff. — VSP Stabins

Pugilist Title On Line

The University of Toronto representatives for the Intercollegiate boxing championships left by train this morning for Kingston, site of this year's tournament.

McGill University and Queen's are the only other Colleges to enter the competition.

The Blue squad will be headed by Boris Petcoff, 1958 150-pound champion and Art Vachon who won the 130-pound title in 1957.

Two outstanding boxers, light-heavyweight Tom Godwin and 135-pounder Peter Law, failed their physical examinations and will not compete this year. Tom received the disappointing news only last night. Ironically, both are medical students.

Bill Brown may be a last minute substitute for Godwin.

Other boxers on the team are Michael Butt at 165 pounds, Robert Dodds at 155 pounds, Lorne Kirby at 145 pounds, Roger Kirkpatrick at 140 pounds and Mike Chykaluk in the heavy-weight class.

There are six rookies representing Varsity, causing the coach to keep his fingers crossed.

Coach Tony Canzano has a well-conditioned team though, and hopes to retain the college championship which his Blues won in Toronto last year.

Cagers Host Queen's Golden Gaels In Highlight Of PHE Benefit Night

By WELDON THOBURN
Varsity Staff Reporter

This Saturday night Hart House will be the scene of the last Athletic night of the year. The Physical Health and Education Alumni have taken over the proceedings and have come up with an evening that would put any series of sporting events in North America to shame. Proceeds will be added to the Alumni's Bursary Fund which aids Toronto's Physical Education undergraduates.

Interfaculty Summary

St. Michael's C battered their way to hockey group playoff rights yesterday, with a hard-fought, 3-1 decision over University College Thirds. Theabault, Dilworth and McCaig were the Irish marksmen. Cat-tenden saved Redmen from a shutout.

St. Mike's now move against Victoria Firsts in the preliminary playoff round Monday, with the winner meeting Trinity A Wednesday in a quarter-final battle.

In cage play yesterday, Skule A tripped Trinity A, 49-33, on nine and eight point performances by Thompson and Taylor, respectively. Ross led Panthers on the scoresheet with nine. Chickadis netted 16 to pace Civil A to a 40-31 decision over St. Mike's Grave Robbers.

Victoria upset Medicine Thirds, 3-2, in the lone water polo game, with Wood, Hayes and Taylor scoring for the Red and Gold. Gross and Goldman tallied for the Doctors.

Dickson and Anderson were the winners as Meds I Year edged Trinity C, 2-1, in squash racquets. Adamson claimed the sole Panther victory.

Highlighting the evening the U of T basketball Blues meet Queen's Golden Gaels. Coach John McManus will be trying to avenge a previous loss in Kingston and improve his team's 2-5 league record. Last week Toronto was barely beaten by Western and Assinup-ton, the league's best, and should come up with a good showing against the powerful Red and Yellow.

U of T Intermediates host Queen's Seconds at 6:30, followed by the Senior game at 8:30. Rinkies' Bill Patterson, fully recovered and trying to shake a seasonal slump, will be back in the lineup.

Centre John Dacshyn, recovered from early season injuries, rebounding Jim Maquire and scoring Rolly Goldring will lead the Blues under the baskets. Richman and Potter will be guiding the Blues' attack from the guard spots. Traditional rivals, Toronto and Queens will provide the fans with the best basketball that can be found in the country.

Two internationally flavoured Intercollegiate competitions are featured—a swimming meet between the U of T and the University of Buffalo and wrestling versus Rochester Tech in the upper gym. Both events begin at 8.

Bill Yorzyk's swimmers have cracked a record on every appearance so far this year and Saturday night should be no exception. Similarly, the wrestling team, headed by heavyweight Bob Sibthorp, is one of the most potent Varsity has had in years.

The U of T Judo Club will be exhibiting their skills at 9:30 in the upper gym. If you haven't witnessed this type of action before, a glimpse of the sport from the East is a must. The Club reached the finals in the college ing, dancing will be featured in tourney in Kingston last weekend and are preparing for a rematch with Ryerson.

The Athletic Alumni, because of the important nature of the evening, have added some interesting features. These include—for the aquatically inclined, an exhibition of synchronized swimming and clown diving after the meet; for the land-lovers, tests and demonstrations of physical fitness and coordination in the wrestling room, (audience participation welcomed); and for the dancers, two full hours of Square-dancing in the upper gym, beginning at 10.

To add some spice to the evening the main gym after the basketball game—music supplied by Eatons of Canada. An energetic young student can enjoy the whole evening for only 50 cents plus a U of T ATL card.

Sports' Parade 40 Years Ago

From The Varsity Files
February 20, 1919

There are rumors floating about that a rival all-star basketball quintette is about to come into existence. While little as yet is known, a reporter managed to obtain a line on whom may compose the team.

Brodie, the fast SPS forward, will likely be one of the forwards. He plays good "com." (Ed: ??) and is a sure shot. He turned out very little with SPS.

Everyone knows the playing bills of "Stew" Holmes, another likely-looking forward. D. A. Martin of Trinity is another good man, though he usually plays centre. Countryman, it is reported will play centre. The UC defence, Stokes and Borsook, may comprise the defence of the team, having played together for the past two years. Poag of Dents may also play defence.

... and in this corner

by sharon milgram

We are on the last lap. It is hard to believe but the beginning of March is slowly creeping up on us and as it appears, so does the end of the girls' sport season.

By March 1, both Interfaculty and Intercollegiate sports will be over and that will come ... well let's not think that far ahead. It frightens me.

Instead, let's look at what still remains. At the beginning of next week there will be the last of the regularly scheduled games in volleyball and hockey. Towards the end of the week will come the playoffs in both of these sports. Then, the interfaculty sports will be all over.

Intercollegiate-wise, there is still one big competition remaining. That one will be the Basketball Tournament which will be played February 27 and 28 at Western. With that, the active part of the girls' sports season will come to a close.

BUT, still to be attended will be the "behind the scenes work," the nominations for, and the elections of, the different club presidents. This might not sound like much of a job, yet I think it is one of the most, if not the most, important task to be faced.

Round about now, the different clubs are, or should be, meeting in order to nominate girls that they would like to see as presidents of next year's clubs. Lists of the nominees will be posted at the SAC office as soon as possible so that the voting can begin.

Those eligible to vote for the presidents of the different clubs are the girls who are members of the clubs, those who have participated in the sport, and those who are connected in any other way with the sport.

Winners of this year's election will have the honour of being the first group to co-ordinate the activities in the new Women's Athletic Building. In some respects the jobs of the presidents next year may be a little easier than the jobs of previous club presidents. The reason for this being the number of new facilities which will be available.

Then again, the job may be a little harder because of the new building and all the plans and talk regarding it, a little more than has been necessary might and should be expected.

Well, whatever will be will be, but let's try to help it be a little better by voting in a strong backbone for next year's girls' sports.

Protesting UC Students Move JCR Sofa To Arbor Room

Protesting against crowded conditions in the University College Junior Common Room, four first-year students this week transferred a heavy red couch from the JCR to the front door of the Arbor Room.

Supplied with Arbor Room coffee, the quarter settled down for the JCR," said Jim Cooper (1 SMC) and we are seriously thinking of moving all the furniture out onto the front campus."

"Then again we might give it to the engineers," another student said. "They've been losing a lot of stuff lately and we feel sorry for them."

Although the students struggled with the heavy couch for nearly 15 minutes at lunch time when the JCR is most crowded, no one moved to stop them or paid any interest whatever, they said.

After they arrived at the Arbor Room they began shouting the praises of "The Children's Hour", currently showing at the Hart House Theatre.

"One University Police officer asked us what we were doing, and we told him solemnly that we bought the couch at Yolles' furniture store," Ralph Thomas (1 UC) said.

Coed Disqualified

(Continued from Page 1)

nominees who ask members to vote", Becker said. Last year 22 per cent of eligible voters turned out for the election.

Any Hart House member is eligible for nomination to one of five standing committees, or the squash racquets committee. Eight new members will be elected in each of the House, Library, Debates, Art and Music committees, and four new members are required for the squash committee.

A break-down of nominations received so far shows six members have applied for the Music committee, seven for the Debates committee, three for the House committee, three for the Art committee, and two for the Library committee. One member has applied for the squash racquets committee.

Lillian Hellman, author of the play "The Children's Hour", now being produced at the Hart House Theatre by University and St. Michael's Colleges, has consented to patronize the show.

The play closes Saturday. It deals with a pair of woman teachers at a girls' school persecuted by one of the pupils because of their sexual perversion.

HART HOUSE

NOMINATIONS FOR THE HART HOUSE ELECTIONS CLOSE
TODAY — 6 p.m. FORMS AND INFORMATION FROM THE UNDERGRADUATE OFFICE

TODAY:

Art Library open at 12 noon in the Art Gallery
Library Record Hour: "JUNO AND THE PAYCOCK"
Sing Song: 1:25 p.m. — East Common Room

SUNDAY:

VISITORS' SUNDAY: Members of the University community are invited to visit Hart House with their friends, from 2 to 5 p.m. Tea is served in the Great Hall, from 3 to 4:30 p.m.

MEMBERS' ART SHOW: Graduate and undergraduate members of the House and male members of the University staff are invited to submit paintings, drawings or sculpture for consideration by a Selection Committee. CLOSING DATE FOR ENTRIES — FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 27. INFORMATION FROM THE UNDERGRADUATE OFFICE, WA. 3-9504.

in MATINÉE

they've found
the finest...

Its classic tobaccos give the special quality they demand. The delightful mildness is Matinée's own and the fine filament filter completes the enjoyment. That is why they smoke Matinée with the complete confidence they've found in the finest.

A cigarette of elegance...
with the finer filament filter

"Fly away, Sheedy", said J. Paul's* tweticie,
"Your hair's too seedy for me".

Sheedy was sitting on his girl's front perch. "My love for you", said he, "is plain as the nose on my face. You can live as cheeply as one, so..." "Stop", she cried. "I'll never be yours till you do something about that messy hair!" So Sheedy hopped down to the store and pecked up some Wildroot Cream-Oil. Now his tweticie is happy because his hair always looks handsome and healthy without a trace of grease. Next time you're at the store get a bottle or tube of Wildroot Cream-Oil. It's guaranteed to make your hair look good to other people!

*of 131 So. Harris Blvd., Williamsport, N.Y.

Wildroot Cream-Oil makes you feel good about your hair!

Elementary...

my dear Watson! From the happy look on your physiog, from the cheerful lift you seem to be enjoying, I deduce you are imbibing Coca-Cola. No mystery about why Coke is the world's favorite... such taste, such sparkle! Yes, my favorite case is always a case of Coke!

SIGN OF GOOD TASTE

SAY 'COKE' OR 'COCA-COLA'—BOTH TRADE-MARKS MEAN THE PRODUCT OF COCA-COLA LTD.—THE WORLD'S BEST-LOVED SPARKLING DRINK.

The Most for the Least

1959 TORONTONENSIS

On Sale NOW from Faculty Reps or SAC Office

MEN OF THE UNIVERSITY!

RUN or NOMINATE your friends

for Hart House Committees:

HOUSE LIBRARY MUSIC ART DEBATES SQUASH

Nomination Forms available in the Undergraduate Office and from the Hall Porter

Nominations Close TONIGHT at 6 p.m.!

Pay Parking Coming Simcoe Hall Reveals

No reconsideration of the university's parking policy has resulted from the tabling of a demand for increased student parking facilities by the City of Toronto, it was learned last night.

Will These Signs Go?

Examine High Schools Ross Finds Weakness

Dr. Murray Ross, U of T vice-president, urged Canadian education last night not "to be turned inside out because the world is upside down".

Dr. Ross was speaking at the Forest Hill Conference on education on the topic "The Role of the School in a Changing Society".

Keynote of the speech was a warning that Canadian schools should avoid this century's social influences while retaining contact with its needs. "That the school has a continuing purpose that should not be altered by current fads or fancies, seems to me indisputable", he said.

Dr. Ross attacked the influence of a society concerned solely with a high standard of living. We cannot afford "to indulge ourselves on the psychoanalyst's couch, on the warm beaches of Florida in winter, or at a weekly visit to the beautician", he said.

Dr. Ross outlined his conception of the role of the school in modern society. He stressed that education should provide an understanding of the heritage of man, but encourage creative thinking and effective habits of work at the same time.

Intensive work in a limited number of subjects must be the essence of a school program, he said. "The school should not be asked to take on the function of the home, the church, the traffic court or any other such institution", he warned.

Statistics were quoted to show the weakness of Canadian

At the same time, a Simcoe Hall official expressed doubt that it "would be doing students a favor to provide them with a means of operating a car," but said that pay parking space for students would be available by next spring.

F. R. Stone, vice-president of university administration said last night a report published in the United States indicated a distinct relation between first and second class students and students who operated cars.

He said that although no survey has been taken here, the feeling is that "the operation of a car does seem to be a handicap to a student's academic career."

He said, however, that plans to clear expropriated property in the university expansion area and make it available to students and staff as pay-parking area had been planned prior to the city recommendations.

City planner Leonard Gertler told the Civic Building and Development Committee last week that more student parking is necessary to prevent the area surrounding the university from deteriorating.

Mr. Gertler advised the university make provision for a parking garage to accommodate at least 830 students. Cost of the proposed garage was estimated at about $1,000,000.

Mr. Stone said the city report was based on figures for enrolment at the end of the expansion period in 1968 when it is expected to reach 23,400.

He said during the expansion period buildings in the expropriation area would be torn down and temporary pay-parking lots provided.

"Campus parking is certainly desirable," he said. "But the question is: can we afford it?" He said experimentation with pay parking during the next 10 years would determine university policy at the end of the period.

"I don't think the report tabled by the city will force us to an immediate conclusion," he said.

Certain areas in the Huron St. - Russell St. area will become available for parking over the summer, Mr. Stone said. The lots are expected to provide at least as much again student parking space as is available in the present SAC lot.

The pay parking lots will be under the control of the university administration, however, not the SAC.

Not materials, says Bissell

Culture Canada's Future Power

Although Canada "is not likely to become a powerful nation in any material sense", she can "play an important role by turning out cultivated and intelligent men and women," U of T President Claude T. Bissell said Friday.

In an address to the Toronto Rotary Club, Dr. Bissell warned against disregarding the need for "humanists and social scientists" in this age of "automation, nuclear fission . . . and space travel".

It is of great importance, Dr. Bissell pointed out, that all those working in universities take "a world view" and "develop an awareness of different cultures."

"Real freedom of choice does not yet exist in . . . university education," Dr. Bissell asserted. It is still necessary to do away with social and economic factors restricting good students from attending university, he added.

"At present, selection of students is looked upon too much as a screen to reject, and not sufficiently as a net wherewith to capture the worthy," he said. At the same time he warned against a lack of concern for "selection and quality."

He said he hoped to see a "gradual diminution of the more spectacular aspects of extracurricular activities" and "a fuller integration between the classroom and the areas outside."

In an address earlier in the day to over 1,000 high school teachers at the start of their back-to-university day, Dr. Bissell said the individual student will benefit from the university's expansion program which will almost double facilities by 1968.

BIG ONES, little ones, some the size of the last century's locomotives, they are all still cars, and every day and every night they jam wham and cram into every available vacuum on the U of T's miniature network of roads. Parking is fast becoming a problem not only on campus but on all streets near it and the administration has been asked by the city to do something about it.

Varsity Staff photo by Weston

Ubysssey Editors Fired For Theft As Staff Appeals

VANCOUVER — CUP — A University of British Columbia student court Thursday suspended two student editors who stole a painting from the student union building last November.

But a movement seeking re-painting from Brock Hall, the instatement of former Ubysssey Editor Dave Robertson and former City (or Managing) Editor Kerry Feltham has sprung up among Ubysssey staffers.

The court's decision, announced Thursday, suspended Robertson and Feltham from all Alma Mater Society positions until Aug. 31 of this year. Such a ban would in effect extend to cover the school year 1959-60 as it would make the pair ineligible for election this spring.

Ubysssey staffers yesterday requested the court's parent body, the Alma Mater Society, to overturn the verdict and allow the pair to continue in their posts.

The Alma Mater Society controls all undergraduate activities at UBC and fulfills duties and responsibilities similar to the University of Toronto's Students' Administrative Council.

Robertson and Feltham were convicted on a charge of "conduct unbecoming a student" in connection with the theft of the painting from Brock Hall, the student union building last Nov. 3.

The pair said they took the painting "as a prank to show how easily things such as this could be taken from the building".

A secondary object of the prank was "to see how long its disappearance would go unnoticed", they said.

The painting remained in the Ubysssey office for three days and was then removed to an apartment shared by Robertson and Feltham for safekeeping until such time as it could be returned.

Its absence was officially discovered Nov. 27 and R.C.M.P. and the insurance company were immediately notified.

The pair testified at their trial they had delayed in returning the painting "until we could find a way of getting it back undetected".

"The possibility of leaving it somewhere on campus came up but we discarded it because we feared it might be stolen or damaged", they said.

A tip to three student councillors Feb. 5 led them to the pair's apartment, where they discovered the painting.

Robertson and Feltham immediately resigned pending investigation of the case, taken to a student investigating committee. The investigating committee referred its findings to the student court.

Blood Drive Just Makes Minimum

U of T students last week fell far behind their blood campaign goal but at least managed to supply minimum Red Cross requirements.

Campaign official Murray Ross last night said total contributions of blood on campus last week totalled 1,661 pints. Campaign goal was 2,500, he said, and 1,755 pints had been expected.

But the Red Cross is only pledged to deliver 1,500 pints a week, Ross added.

The campaign was a "qualified success", he said.

Top faculty was Nursing with a 96 per cent total of 129 pints. Next were Forestry with 71 per cent and 53 pints, Knox with 60 per cent and 35 pints and Physical and Occupational Therapy with 45 per cent and 81 pints.

Musie gave 31 per cent and 22 pints, Emmanuel 24 per cent and 28 pints and Trinity 23 per cent and 134.

Other colleges and faculties donating, in descending order of percentage, were Wycliffe, Physical and Health Education, Engineering, Dentistry, Pharmacy, Architecture, University College, Social Work, Victoria, Medicine, St. Michael's, and School of Graduate Studies with 2.4 per cent or 23 pints.

The School of Business Administration, with no enrolment figures available, gave seven pints.

Students may give blood today at the clinic on 67 College St. and it will still be credited to the campaign.

Smash Windows

UC Invaded

An inter-residence feud flared up last night and froze after snowballs smashed four windows.

Feud began about 11 p.m. when 75 Devonshire Place residents invaded University College's Sir Daniel Wilson residence quadrangle.

A window in Sir Daniel's Loudon House common room was smashed. Devonshire men were repelled by a fire hose after one of their band was doused in a shower.

UC residents attacked in revenge, broke three windows in Devonshire House and also lost a member in the showers.

Devonshire men, returning from an abortive attack on Trinity, met UC near Hoskin Ave. and the fight swung between the two residences for 15 minutes before breaking up.

Devonshire House residence stands at the corner of Hoskin Ave. and Devonshire Place.

The Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship

What is it? What is its work?

Hear a paper presented to the Yale Divinity School by Wilbur Sutherland, General Secretary, Canadian I.V.C.F.

TODAY - 5 p.m.—Room 71 - U.C.

A. V. R. - 1960

The Students' Administrative Council and the A.V.R. Committee would be happy to receive material for the 1960 All Varsity Review.

Ideas and material may be submitted in outline form, and all material will be treated in a confidential fashion.

Submission and enquiries should be addressed to:

Irving Goldberg,
Chairman, A.V.R. Committee,
S.A.C. Office.

Hart House

ELECTION CAMPAIGN SPEECHES:

Today: Library Committee
Wednesday: Music Committee
Thursday: Art Committee
Friday: Debates Committee

IN THE EAST COMMON ROOM - 1.30 p.m.

TODAY:

LIBRARY RECORD HOUR: "JUNO AND THE PAYCOCK", 1.15 p.m. — Record Room
AMATEUR RADIO CLUB: Code Practice Class — 5.10 p.m. — Debates Loft
GLEE CLUB FULL PRACTICE: 7 p.m. — Great Hall

WEDNESDAY:

Five O'Clock Recital — Isidor Desser Trio
5 p.m. — Music Room
Divertimento K. 563 Mozart
Serenade Opus 10, Dohnanyi
Women are welcome to attend this concert

THURSDAY:

LIBRARY EVENING: 7.30 p.m. Prof. Northrop Frye will speak on "Canadian and Literature". In the Library.

SATURDAY:

HART HOUSE SATURDAY NIGHT — 9-12 p.m. Dancing, Movies, Music in the Record Room — 50c a couple

SUNDAY:

HART HOUSE GLEE CLUB — SUNDAY EVENING CONCERT
— TICKETS FROM THE HALL PORTER'S DESK ALL THIS WEEK FOR MEMBERS OF THE HOUSE.

Here and Now

TODAY

12.15 p.m. — The Holy Eucharist will be celebrated in Trinity College chapel.

1 p.m. — FROS will sing folk songs from around the world at 3 Willcocks St.

1-2 p.m. — VCF will study the Bible in room 111, UC, and in room 53, School of Nursing.

1.10-2 p.m. — Knox Prof. D. W. Hay will be special guest at an SCM "Prof. Talk" in the SCM office, Hart House. Bring your lunch.

1.20 p.m. — The Vic Music Club Jazz Band will perform at a noon-hour concert in the Wymilwood Music Room.

4.30 p.m. — The United Nations Club plans a final meeting with executive elections in room 33, UC.

— Prof. G. A. B. Watson will give a public lecture on "Authority" in Convocation Hall.

5 p.m. — Wilbur Sutherland, IVCF national secretary, will give a lecture on the structure and purpose in IVCF in room 71, UC.

8 p.m. — Vic debaters will argue "Resolved, that the CBC distills the quintessence of Canadian culture" in Alumni Hall.

Lt. Comm. Call Wilson will narrate a series of slides and movies at a U of T Flying Club meeting in the Hart House Music Room. Election of a new executive is on the agenda.

WEDNESDAY

8.10 a.m. — The Holy Eucharist will be celebrated in Trinity College chapel.

1-2 p.m. — SCM secretary Allan M. McLachlin will be special guest at a Canterbury luncheon, 99 St. George St. Bring your lunch or buy it there.

4 p.m. — FROS will screen color documentaries of Ontario and Pakistan—"The Seasons" and "River Indus" in the Hart House Music Room.

4.10-5 p.m. — SCM will study "The Apostle's Creed" in room 14, Vic.

5.30 p.m. — Rev. Vince Goring will lead an SCM study-supper meeting on "The Life of Christ" in the coach-house behind 110 St. George St. All are welcome.

8 p.m. — The U of T French Club plans an evening of French films—"Trans-Canada Summer" and "Jolifou Inn"—and election of a new executive in the UC Women's Union theatre, 79 St. George St.

8.15 p.m. — Dr. Hafezi will speak to the Near East Club on "Persia Today" at the home of Prof. R. J. Williams, 77 Castleknock, one block north-west of Eglinton parallel to Avenue Road.

8.30 p.m. — The Newman Club plans a meeting and talk by Francoise Beauray at Newman Hall, 89 St. George St.

Blue and White Band DIRECTOR

Applications for the above position will be received by the Associate Secretary of the Students' Administrative Council in the S.A.C. office up to 12 noon, Tuesday, March 3.

ASSISTANT CONDUCTORS

University of Toronto
SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA and UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO CHORUS

Applications for the above two positions should be in the hands of the undersigned not later than Tuesday, March 3.

A. E. M. PARKES,
Associate Secretary, Students' Administrative Council.

VIC ELECTIONS TODAY

FOR: SENIOR STICKS
ATHLETIC STICKS
YEAR EXECUTIVES
ATHLETIC EXECUTIVES
DEBATING EXECUTIVE
ALL YEARS VOTE

Polling booths in Alumni Hall and Economics Building. Polls open until 2.30 p.m.

GOOD HAIRCUT

RIGHT NEAR HERE
4 BARBERS—NO WAITING

600 University Avenue

Just below College
In the Basement

Open Monday through Friday
8 a.m. to 6 p.m.

ONLY $1.00

TYPEWRITERS

$1.00 A WEEK BUYS . . .
... $1.50 A WEEK RENTS

Get a free typing course and a liberal trade-in allowance for your old typewriter when you buy a new modern machine from us.

Phone HO. 1-1843 Today

The Growing Horror Of Lung Cancer

"Every heavy smoker will develop lung cancer" says an eminent doctor in March Reader's Digest. If you do, what are your chances of survival? The odds are horrible. But this article tells you two simple tests which reveal early symptoms while there is still time.

Get Reader's Digest today: 43 articles of lasting interest.

HART HOUSE THEATRE'S FIFTIETH ALL-UNIVERSITY PRODUCTION

Christopher Fry's Translation
of Giraudoux's

TIGER AT THE GATES

Directed by Robert Gill

Saturday, Feb. 28th, to Saturday, March 7th, at 8.30 p.m.
Box Office Open 10 a.m.-6 p.m. — WA. 3-5244

Same Special
Student Rate $1.00

Two Tickets Only
On Each A.T.L. Card

Out of this world!

Space travelers—be on the alert! Make sure there's a cargo of Coke tucked away in the rocket! You may not be able to buy your favorite sparkling drink on the moon . . . but that's just about the only place you can't. So when you're ready for the big lift, be sure the cheerful lift of Coca-Cola goes along!

SIGN OF GOOD TASTE

ANY "COKE" OR "COCA-COLA"—BOTH TRADE-MARKS MEAN THE PRODUCT OF COCA-COLA LTD.—THE WORLD'S BEST-LOVED SPARKLING DRINK.

PRO CRASTINATORS!

Many students put things off!

They missed the bargain price last fall

But they can still order their 1959 Nensis

From their faculty rep.

Or from the SAC Office

Vision Of No Nationalism Captures Caledon Seminar

By LIZ WILSON
Varsity Staff Reporter

A Trinity College professor's new plan for a system of world government took the spotlight at the annual WUS Seminar at Caledon Hills Farm over the weekend.

Trinity's professor Bruno Morawetz described the system which he calls "temporalism" to the 50 students gathered at Caledon to discuss "the role of the individual in international affairs".

"The role of Western man in international affairs is to devise a system of world government whereby peoples are represented on a numerical basis in order to bring about an economy intelligently planned by persons who have a sense of justice," Prof. Morawetz said. Under such a system, he said, man will be in control of creation, whereas now, "political and economic forces control us."

Dr. Jacob Markowitz of the Faculty of Medicine started the seminar off Friday night, telling of his experiences in a Japanese prison camp. Along with his talk he showed slides to illustrate the horrors and inadequacies of prison camp life.

"The Oriental hates the Westerner" Dr. Markowitz said, but that hate is not bred by fear. Instead Dr. Markowitz stressed the view of Spinoza that hate is bred when one man expresses contempt for that which another man reveres.

"The possibility of a universal religion is hopeless," he said. Perhaps the answer is in education, for every university has something in common.

Prof. Morawetz and UC's Dean Ian Macdonald opened their discussion late Saturday morning while numerous snowbound students struggled in. Prof. Edmund Carpenter of the Department of Anthropology never made it.

Prof. Morawetz spoke of the responsibility of different national peoples to each other. "Modern communications have brought these new responsibilities," he said.

"The time has come for nationalism to bury itself, either through the inexorable forces of history or through our own hands," he said.

Dean Macdonald stressed education and the need to teach the language of the international community which is based on tolerance and understanding.

He spoke of the disparity between a starving world and a world of abundance. "The giving of aid does not always encourage the growth of an economy," he said.

A discussion of nationalism ensued during which students fired questions at Prof. Morawetz. The professor said the accident of birth imposes loyalty upon us, but what really gives man his dignity is not

Explore Peace Plan

A confused group of students broke off the discussion to eat lunch, clear the impassable roads, toboggan, explore the nearby caves, chop wood and dig holes in the ice for the sauna.

Discussion was resumed late in the afternoon, with Prof. Morawetz leading one group, and Dean Macdonald leading another.

After a nebulous discussion of fear, selfishness, intelligence, and propaganda, Dean Macdonald's group agreed that the only solution would be a total revision of the conditioning process by which we reach our conclusions. This would mean a tremendous expenditure on education, it was decided.

After a discussion of the problems and weaknesses of Temporalism, Prof. Morawetz's group agreed on the need for internationalism, in order to control the power blocks. It was suggested that Temporalism was perhaps the most constructive method to use in the movement towards a world government.

PENNY for Penny Rennie's (111 Trin.) thoughts as she takes time out from temporalism and the role of the individual to play in the snow during last weekend's WUS seminar at Caledon.

U. of T. FLYING CLUB MEETING

8 p.m. TONIGHT

MUSIC ROOM — HART HOUSE

Guest Speaker: Cal Wilson, Lt. Cmdr. (RCN Retired). Movies and slides will be shown.
Also: Election of next year's executive will be held.
Refreshments Will Be Served
ALL WELCOME

The Ukrainian Students' Club PRESENTS Annual Graduation Banquet At The SEAWAY

DATE—Wednesday, February 25 TIME—6:30 p.m. (BAR)
PRICE—$8.00 Per Couple (students) 7.00 p.m. (DINNER)
$10.00 Per Couple (non-students) DRESS: Semi-Formal
FOR TICKETS PHONE — PETER McDERMICK, RO. 7-1507

Victoria College Liberal Arts Club

PRESENTS

Jane Mallett

Famous Canadian Comedienne, Giving a Demonstration-Lecture on

"THE ART OF THE MONOLOGUE"

Wed., Feb. 25 at 8:30 p.m.

MUSIC ROOM — WYMLWOOD

Everyone Welcome — Refreshments

SUMMER EMPLOYMENT FOR WOMEN

There are openings on our staff for an assistant to the dietician; a tennis instructor; an archery instructor; a handicrafts instructor; a campcraft instructor; Red Cross Water Safety instructors and a registered nurse. Applications from those with other camping skills will also be considered. Minimum age 19. For July and August at girls' camp in Algonquin Park. Write Camp Tanamakoon, 24 Wilberton Rd., Toronto 7, or telephone HU. 1-3704.

Bridesmaids' Dresses

Convenient Evening Appointments if Desired

Order Now Before Exams

Pay Later

HÉLMAR — 46 ST. GEORGE ST. — WA. 1-5978

CLASSIFIED ADS.

$1 DOWN BUYS ANY MAKE
Brand new typewriters. $59 up
Some models $30 off Free home
demonstration. Free typing course
1959 models rented, lowest rates
375 Jane-Humber, RO 6-1103.

TYPIST (Electric)

Fast, accurate, personalized service.
Theses, essays, letters, dictation.
Reasonable rates. Irene
Kenyon, 146 Bernard Avenue,
WA 3-4011.

BUILDING TO LET

Suitable as fraternity house.
Completely furnished. University district—telephone WA. 3-5878.

WANTED

Any undergraduate willing to part with 1958 TORONTONENSIS.
I will pay $5.00 for it. Charlie
Browne, WA. 3-8741.

You Can't Take It With You!

Unless you order your all-campus yearbook this week or nex. from your faculty rep or the SAC Office. Complete coverage of all phases of campus life in

1959 TORONTONENSIS

Summer Employment

Certified Scholarship Plan. Canada's most progressive direct sales organization offers you this tremendous opportunity. Neat appearance and car essential. Call JOHN PRETE, RU. 1-1841

THE CAMPUS CO-OPERATIVE RESIDENCE INC.

requires a Summer

General Manager

The term of employment will be from mid-May to mid-September. Salary: $250 per month, plus room and board.

Apply in writing stating qualifications to the C.C.R.I.,
32 Sussex Avenue, by March 11th.

Frothy-light,
loopy

Kitten
MOHAIR

Light as a handful of mist . . . colourful as a sun-drenched garden, new Kitten deep-looped mohair sweaters are creating fashion-excitement everywhere! Illustrated: versatile suburban beauty with collar and set-in pockets. $15.95 . . . at all good shops everywhere.

Look for the name Kitten!

THE VARSITY

Today's Issue: The usual damfool confusion, with Kay McCook, Morgan Tamplin, Debbie Halper, Susan Kastner, David Hamilton, Riho Pild, Jayne Nesbitt, a delegation from Alpha Centuri regarding broken windows, Ladd Vornitag and his wretched arty friends. Photography This Issue: Wayne Weston.

case against disarmament

It all began, children, it all began not so many years ago when the great ones of our state met with the great ones of other states and decided that it was pointless to have anything in the world but ultimate weapons.

Ultimate weapons, it was argued, made conventional weapons pointless and, which was more important, expensive. Beyond this, ultimate weapons of one state cancelled out ultimate weapons of another state. As long as all states had ultimate weapons, there could be no threat of war because war would be ultimate and ultimate means, as you all know, something which is not only unpleasant but rather fatal.

Now after a short time had passed a great agitation arose from the radical minorities in all states. The minorities maintained it was not only obvious but, what was more important, economical, to abolish ultimate weapons altogether because, with ultimate weapons cancelling themselves out, there was no possibility they would ever be used anyway.

The time came, as it always does in our society, children, when the minorities began to get a hearing. And after they were heard, they began to get support and finally emerged as the majority.

The great ones then agreed that it would be obviously cheaper and better all-round if ultimate weapons were dropped altogether. And after agreeing about the principle, they sat down to the slightly more difficult task of putting it into practice. It was only after long and arduous planning that eventually the complete program was accomplished.

It was a weird, weaponless world for a while, children, a world without fret or strain, floating in a sublime aura of peace and contentment. It was a wonderful world, a world without fear and without hate, and of course it only lasted for thirteen months.

It all started again with the stolen banana boat. It's not clear, children, just who actually stole the banana boat, or whether it was ever stolen at all, but we are certain the other state declared war.

But, as you will appreciate children, it was all very well to declare war, but it was not so easy to wage it. After all, there were no weapons. After existing peacefully in a state of war for some months, somebody suddenly realized that all we had to do was march into the other state, and since it seemed so easy, we went ahead.

Of course we were opposed, and those first long, dreadful weeks of hand-to-hand combat as the tide and battle ebbed and flowed across the arctic circle are quite rightly emblazoned boldly on this state's long record of heroism and courage.

We were winning, children, the records show it. In spite of mounting losses through frost-bite and fatigue, we were definitely winning. And then came that fatal stab in the back, a stab so important to our future that I beg of you to remember which side stabbed which.

It was the other side, children, who first used the ice catapult. So effective was the weapon that in the first week of its use eleven of our men were killed and the war seemed lost. But ultimate weapons must be met by ultimate means, and you should mark with pride that it was our state which first invented and utilized the snow cannon.

Of course the snow cannon was just the beginning, children. Our designers excelled themselves, our technicians worked day and night and all the vast and mighty resources of our many industries contributed to give us a marked advantage over the opposition. The fury of the fight increased. Conventional weapons were used, and then penultimate ones, and finally the brilliance of our scientists recreated for us the ultimate weapon. Tomorrow the war will be over.

But we can never be sure the other state, with the treachery for which it is famous, has not stolen our plans and also produced an ultimate weapon. That is why we are now holding class in this bomb-proof shelter, children.

I thought you might like to know.

"I always knew we'd be able to use 'em somehow."

The Bloody Blues

By "IVY"

"Ivy" is an anonymous character who, in the course of the last six months, has persisted in submitting articles to The Varsity. Through some oversight and a certain amount of judgment, we have refrained from printing the articles. Below, however, "Ivy" seems to be developing, in a fairly intelligible style, a sincere charge against members of the U of T Hockey Blues. "Ivy" assures us that, should the clamor for his scalp become loud enough, he will come forward and identify himself.

Last year, Professor John Farina, of the University of Toronto, made some reasoned criticisms of one of Canada's national symbols... Hockey. The storm of denial and counter-charge which rose up against this lonely figure in the ivory-tower was frightening.irate citizens, hockey barons, sports-writers and politicians hastened to defend our only cultural achievement. It was implied that if Professor Farina was not actually an overt homosexual, he certainly had latent tendencies in that direction. How else could his lack of robust, pioneer love of sport be explained? The rumour spread that he was a foreign agent who had been sent over from the Kremlin to ruin the country's morale so that we would not be able to win the World Hockey Championships again.

On Friday evening, February 20 at Varsity Arena Professor Farina's oft-maligned views were at last vindicated. Our own dearly beloved Blues, the team that many say is the greatest Varsity has ever seen, provided living proof that Professor Farina's criticisms were not far-fetched or exaggerated. If anything, on the basis of this exhibition, they were rather understated. The team may or may not be the greatest we have ever had but, there are four or five members of it whose conduct on the ice certainly puts it well up in the running as the dirtiest ever. On Friday, these players hacked, chopped, slashed, gouged and butt-ended their way to a 4 to 1 win over Laval University.

Hockey is not a game which is played with the same air of gentlemanly restraint as a cricket match. In the course of a wide-open, hard played contest tempers are bound to become frayed and the occasional explosive exchange of fist-cuffs entertains both the fans watching and the players taking part. However, even in such an informal atmosphere, there is some limit. For example, one does not jump onto an opponent's back and ride him into the ice while brutally jamming the end of one's stick into his face, as one of our star forwards did on Friday night. One does not, whenever one is bumped or hampered or hooked, aim a full baseball swing of the stick at an opponent's head or chest. One of our better defencemen did that repeatedly on Friday night. Even if such tactics are used in the N.H.L., it seems somewhat unsportsmanlike to cross-check and elbow an opponent until he is on the verge of exploding, and then back up and openly laugh at him and taunt him. Another defenceman made a specialty of that dubious art on Friday night.

Two things might be noted about the Blues' performance. First, in the two magnificent games they played against the World Championship Whitby Dunlops the same players who were the leaders in the mobster tactics against Laval were standout performers. Secondly, most of these same players have been signed by Senior O.H.A. semi-pro outfits to play for them after the intercollegiate season ends. Why should such good hockey players indulge in such cheap, vicious actions? The most obvious answer is that the mighty Blues have let the press clippings go to their heads. They have suddenly become a little too good for the small, insignificant university league. After all, didn't they beat the world champions once and almost beat them in a return game? After all, haven't they all got their little contracts tucked away ready for use and profit as soon as they can clinch the title. Sure they have, but who cares?

The best thing Coach Kennedy could do, both for these several prima donna players, and for the loyal supporters of this university's hockey team would be to approach the Athletic Directorate, get a special grant and buy some train tickets to Kitchener, Windsor and Sudbury. Then he could bring up some intermediates and go off to the final Quebec series with a team that was interested in playing hockey. Of course, on tragic thought, we might not win that all-important league title but at least the players with the inflated egos could get to work with their OHA clubs and the Varsity fans would be spared the depressing and disappointing task of watching them act like professional hit-men.

Our readers write:

Armament Out . . .

Dear Sir:

Our natural concern with the economic dislocation resulting from our government's decision to abandon the Arrow should not blind us to the terrible implications of the positive policy which the Prime Minister has announced. To equip Canadian forces with nuclear weapons is to make us a nuclear satellite of the United States. However sincere the government may be in seeking to reduce the possibility of nuclear war, their action increases that possibility. We cannot effectively oppose nuclear weapons while embracing them. We may say that we favour nuclear disarmament, that we oppose the spread of nuclear weapons, but our actions reveal the hollowness of our words.

I therefore consider it my duty to make the strongest possible protest against this tragically misguided decision. To increase its effect, I should like to join with other members of this university — staff and students — who are prepared to undertake concerted action against nuclear armament. I should appreciate such persons contacting me, in my office (46C, University College; Local 692) or at my home (WA 5-5310).

David P. Gauthier
Lecturer in Philosophy.

. . . Architecture In

Dear Sir:
Information.

Perhaps Mr Schiff is not familiar with IN and OUT. To say that you're IN makes you automatically OUT. Folk-music is OUT, falling asleep at folk-music concerts is IN. Bears are OUT. Fidel Castro is IN in spite of his beard. The Native Sons of Canada are IN; the Union Jack is IN out it shouldn't be.

Jack Kerouac is OUT, Pierre

Smirnoff is IN, "B.C." is IN—A.D. came IN later. The Varsity is OUT; reading The Varsity is OUT. The Caput isn't OUT yet, but it should be leaving soon. The new bookstore is IN, unfortunately. Shining orange lights on it would really make it be long. Apathy is IN and has been IN for a long time. OUT you fools.

H.W. Messer-E. (III Arch.)
E.P. Allen (I SMC)

TWO TABLES, neatly laid

Eugene O'Neill and Terence Rattigan make a good contrast of aims and achievements in theatre writing. It is often said of O'Neill, whose plays are great and sprawling, that his themes were too vast for his craftsmanship to bring under control, that he wrote great drama but poor theatre. Rattigan, on the other hand, is an author who sets himself easier targets, at closer range, and hits them with greater accuracy. A good case in point is the Hecht, Hill and Lancaster film version of Separate Tables, now at Loews.

For it must be admitted that Rattigan sets himself easy targets in Separate Tables: easy in that the situations cannot help but enlist our sympathy. A man and wife (Burt Lancaster and Rita Hayworth) come to a realization that they need each other, that whatever their faults, life together is better than life alone. A middle-aged man, posing as a retired officer and gentleman (David Niven) finds himself exposed as a fraud, and then humbly accepted as a person. A timid, mouse-like girl (Deborah Kerr), forced into a role of half-invalid, half-servant by her dragon of a mother (Gladys Cooper), forces herself to rebel against this domination and to realize that she feels as much affection for the fraudulent major as he does for her. Through the expert building-up of tension and its subsequent release, the film manages to convince us that the loneliness of four people, and their decision to end their loneliness, is a vital and totally absorbing human experience.

This achievement is helped a great deal by the reshaping of the stage play from two stories into one. As you probably know, Eric Portman and Margaret Leighton performed quite a tour de force by playing the two couples. The film producers, however, resisted any temptation to repeat this trick, and Rattigan and John Gay have worked the two plots together, so that what may be lost in the way of theatrical effect is gained in tightness and unity. Director Delbert Mann has taken advantage of the good script, and a really superlative setting of the hotel at Bournemouth to move his cast through their duties with ease and fluidness. He has good material to work with. Catherine Nesbitt as Lady Matheson is an excellent foil for the steely force of Gladys Cooper's Mrs. Railton-Bell. Felix Aylmer has a neat vignette as Mr. Fowler, the classic teacher, and May Hollat repeats her stage role of the eccentric Miss Meacham with good effect. Wendy Hiller capably portrays the hotel-keeper. Of the four principals, Rita Hayworth and Burt Lancaster do fairly well with roles that are not so much beyond their acting abilities as somewhat obscure in motivation. They are subordinated to the roles of Sybil and the major, and here Deborah Kerr and David Niven give incisive, beautifully controlled performances. Setting, acting, camera work, direction and editing: all combine to make Separate Tables a well-calculated emotional experience expertly put together.

Burt Kay

Rita Hayworth and Burt Lancaster, at one of the Separate Tables. Photo by United Artists

Deborah Kerr and David Niven say to swell in the Hecht-Hill production of "Separate Tables". Photo by United Artists ballet Choreography again...

On Thursday evening the National Ballet Company presented three quite different types of ballet. The first was the famous Les Sylphides, in the classical Cecchetti tradition; the second, a modern work Dark Elegies; the third, a spoof of classical ballet and ballet dancers: Gala Performance.

The first two performances seemed lacking in general aim. Les Sylphides was danced to the Chopin music which most dancers use for their daily barre; they are usually very fond of it. The National troupe are also devout in their attentions to Cecchetti technique. From this we might expect a Sylphides of beauty, but no. In its earliest productions the ballet was played on a green lawn in the moonlight; it should be winged and boundless. But Miss Franca's troupe, often faced with choreography that does not flow as meltingly as Chopin's music, stick their hoped-for magic in a rigorously rectangular set, and between two ever-present flanks of sylphs who cannot but seem stalwart. Moreover, except for Lilian Jarvis' fluid line, the corps and Earl Kraul do not sustain the necessary delicate and singing rhythm.

A scene from the National Ballet's production of "Dark Elegies". Photo by Ken Bell

In Dark Elegies there was again a confused purpose. The ballet is based on Mahler's "Kindertotenlied", in which vocal accompaniment heightens the mood. This is a sombre and despairing study of a community that has lost its children to death. The company danced it with emotionless faces. Such an approach would be acceptable if the choreography stressed monumental form and line. But it doesn't; the patterns are rapid, jabbing. Dark Elegies likely should be danced with a fine-grained and complex passion, else Tudor's little tricks (hand on heart, death wriggle of a foot) become over-apparent, and his darting quickness turns to hops and skips. All this bad stuff occurred last night, save in the performance of Angela Leigh who movingly depicted an entangled grief.

Gala Performance was most fun at first. Angela Leigh glittered fantastically and irresistibly as La Reine de la Danse (Moscow style), and Howard da Silva was wonderfully vain and smiley. The corps, and especially Sally Broyley, danced with a gracefully ogling abandon, stealing downstage backwards and luring with large eyes, little teeth and ruffled tails. However, the satire on the Italian and French ballerinas plodded. We must place blame for this at the feet of Tudor the choreographer, who at half time stood earthbound watching his muse fly off. Is the divorce rate growing?

Jomie Cunningham

DON'T MISS MUSIC

FOLIO

If you didn't see Folio's UNDER MILKWOOD last week, you missed something, but here's a reminder for tomorrow night's Folio, Tues. at 9:30 p.m. — Concert of Great Soloists, with Peter Pears, Julian Bream, Claudio Arrau, Donald Bell, Teresa Stratas and The Geoffrey Holder Dancers.

HART HOUSE CONCERT

On Wed. afternoon from 5-6 p.m. you can go and listen to an hour of chamber music FREE at H.H. The Isidor Desser Trio, well-known Toronto trio will be playing Beethoven, Schubert, etc.

ELIZABETHAN MUSIC

On Thursday afternoon Peter Pears, famous English tenor, will give a lecture on Elizabethan music at the Conservatory at 3 p.m. Then in the evening Mr. Pears and Julian Bream (guitar) will combine to give a recital of this music. 8:30 p.m.

book review

Everyman In Everyland

THE WATCH THAT ENDS THE NIGHT: Hugh MacLennan; Macmillan of Canada; pp. 373, $3.95.

Of the novel as an art form, author MacLennan says: "I think it is still the subtlest and most accurate of all literary forms invented, so long as it tells a story about real people and seeks to communicate and is written with a little love".

THE WATCH THAT ENDS THE NIGHT, his fifth and latest novel, is written with more than a little love. It is the story of an all-embracing love threatened by death from its beginnings but never thwarted by it — a love which grew infused with life until it became permanent in the face of its transience.

It is about three people, George and Catherine Stewart, married in middle age after a childhood love, and Jerome Martell, Catherine's first husband, a brilliant and impassioned doctor who gave her happiness but left her for a war and a belief that was greater than himself. It is also about Catherine's rheumatic heart which had threatened her life since she was a child.

Jerome's unexpected return after he had been thought murdered in a Nazi prison camp is the point, early in the novel, at which Mr. MacLennan stages his conflict. He then takes us back into the lives of the three, into their formative years and the years when a nation's depression worked strange and lasting effects on its people.

Throughout the unwinding of a basically simple plot there is a fantastic interplay of forces — forces that clash at times in their strength but eventually give something of themselves to create the synthesis that is the novel.

Catherine with her rugged will to live despite herself, her joy in doing what medicine had decreed she could never do, is at once the life and death force of the book. Of herself, she cries: "To need to be so strong and to be so weak", but of her spirit the author says: "It refuses to be bounded, circumscribed or even judged. It creates, it destroys, it re-creates. Without it there can be no life; with much of it no easy life".

Jerome is a paradoxical force of rock strength and insecurity, of kindness and cruelty, a man to whom civilization was both a privilege and an evil which must be set right. The illegitimate son of a lumber-camp cook, he fled the New Brunswick forests as a 10-year-old boy and paddled down the river into a social consciousness he never lost. "A man must belong to something larger than himself".

There is George Stewart, quiet and kind, lacking the dominant personalities of the other two, who committed himself to years of unhappiness because he failed to take Catherine when he loved her as a boy. His is the stable force working its way up and out of the book. In his grief he sees himself as universal Man — "Oh pity every man who comes hard to the knowledge that underneath his bright sure consciousness he is not himself but Everyman". In his final watch he places his faith in the joy of Catherine's paintings and in her belief that life is a gift.

There is the force of the depression and the insecurity, misery and courage it created; the trembling force of Montreal as it grew into a city; the force of the world war and a younger generation rising fresh in its aftermath. And there is a new and subtle force that is Canada. Perhaps in this story of everyman and everyland, Mr. MacLennan has provided an answer to the puzzle that envelops his country's literature.

If he has, his answer is a masterful novel. He has probed deep and revealed much that is common but too often not articulated in all men's lives. He has woven his findings into an organic whole, stark and unadorned in its problem and challenging in its solution.

It is subtle, it is accurate, it communicates and it is written with love. But there is still one qualification left in the author's definition of a novel. It must be written about real people.

And here is where I find the book amazing. When I read the plot outline on the fly-leaf, I had misgivings. For two years ago, in a Canadian magazine, Mr. MacLennan published the story of his own wife's death, of her life with it and her final agony. By a very narrow margin he managed to sustain his art and to avoid total submersion in grief. To do so again, in a longer form, I felt might be impossible.

It is to be the author's very great credit that he succeeded in writing a novel of which every word must at times have been pain and in transferring its people and its emotions on to a place of universal experience.

In the light of this, his dedication is significant: To you, wherever you are and whatever you are, my thanks and this book".

LIZ BINKS

TORONTONENSISEditor-In-Chief - 1959-60

Applications for the above position will be received by the Associate Secretary of the Students' Administrative Council in the S.A.C. Building, up to 12:00 noon, Tuesday, March 3rd.

A. E. M. PARKES,
Associate Secretary,
Students' Administrative Council.

THE VARSITYEditor-In-Chief - 1959-60

Applications for the above position will be received by the Associate Secretary of the Students' Administrative Council in the S.A.C. Building, up to 12:00 noon, Tuesday, March 3rd.

A. E. M. PARKES,
Associate Secretary,
Students' Administrative Council.

There's Something Special
about du MAURIER

The Exclusive Millece Filter Tip, the most efficient filter yet developed, lets you draw free and easy, for full smoking satisfaction. du MAURIER combines the finest Virginia tobaccos to give you perfect mildness and smoothness. Once you smoke du MAURIER you'll make the distinctive red and silver package your favorite always.

du MAURIER

A Really Milder High Grade Virginia Cigarette with the EXCLUSIVE "Millece" FILTER TIP

Martin Applauds Israel, Also Backs Arab Unity

Speaking to a politically-divided audience Thursday in St. Michael's Carr Hall, Hon. Paul Martin said "Israel is the greatest achievement of statehood in our time."

The Liberal Member of Parliament outlined as Canada's duty the preservation of the existence of the sovereign state of Israel. But he said "Canada must at the same time provide for the preservation of Arab unity and emancipation."

Mr. Martin suggested Canada support United States President Eisenhower's proposed economic co-operative for the Middle East Nations. The cooperative would consist of Arab members aided by various United Nations countries. The former Health and Welfare Minister cited the Middle East as "one of the most explosive areas of the world. This area has played a great part in the imperial expansion of France, Britain and Turkey", the MP said.

Speaking on his impressions of the Middle East, the veteran Liberal named "emancipation" as the common ambition of the Arab people, and also spoke of the Arab "contempt" for the West, especially Britain and the United States. "In the last five years Russia has been winning an ever-increasing sphere of influence in the Middle East," he said.

"Because conflict in the Middle East could set off global warfare, we should take a great interest in the area, understand its problems, and minimize all occasions for conflicts. We should also strive to improve their standard of living," the former cabinet minister said.

"We must place ourselves in the other man's place in judging other nations," he said. This is especially true in our attempts to understand the problems and circumstances in the Middle East, he added.

Hatred toward the West and Israel, he said, are two of the main problems facing the Middle East question. "It is difficult to determine which of the two hatreds is the greater," Mr. Martin said.

He stressed the importance of Canada's maintenance of an independent foreign policy, even in the face of possible disagreement with the other Western powers.

The MP justified the military intervention of the United States and Britain in Lebanon, for the "protection and security" of that country.

Egyptian President Nasser, Mr. Martin said, had told him Egypt has received aid from Soviet Russia because it was denied assistance from the West. Nasser said he was now ready to accept help from either side.

CURLING

The Intercollegiate Bonspiel at O.A.C. has been cancelled, so there will be no play-offs to choose rinks to represent Toronto. Sorry.

WOMEN'S ATHLETICS - HOCKEY

Please note changes in times of Semi-Finals and Finals
Semi-Finals:
Thurs. Feb. 26 1:30 - 2:30 Winner of League II vs Runner-up of League I
P.H.E. vs St. Hilda's I
Finals:
Fri. Feb. 27 8:00 - 9:00 Winner of League I vs Winner of League II
Wed. Mar. 4 8-10 p.m. Winner of 1st Semi-Final vs Winner of 2nd Semi-Final
Fri. Mar. 6 8-10 p.m. Winner of 2nd Semi-Final vs Winner of 1st Semi-Final

GAMES TODAY

HOCKEY PLAYOFFS	1:00 St. M. A	vs	SPS. V	Brunt, Brewer
	6:30 U.C. I	vs	D. nt. A	McElligott, McCulloch
WATER POLO	1:00 Med. I	vs	Trin. A	J. Boase, Watkin
	6:30 SPS. II	vs	St. M. A	Jany, Moens
	7:15 For.	vs	Wye.	Jany, Moens
BASKETBALL MAJOR LEAGUE	1:00 U.C. I	vs	St. SPS	Moriarty, Grossman
	4:30 Vic. IV	vs	St. M. D	Godley, McGrain
	6:30 Enman. A	vs	Wye. A	Linden, Kerner
	7:30 SPS. VI	vs	SPS. D	Linden, Kerner
	8:30 SPS. F	vs	Dent. II Yr.	Linden, Kerner
BASKETBALL MINOR LEAGUE (HART HOUSE)	1:00 IV Mech.	vs	IV Civil	Wilkinson
	6:30 Med. III Yr. B	vs	III Geol.	Newman
	7:30 U.C. Hutton	vs	Med. I Yr.	Newman
	8:30 Wye. B	vs	Pharm. Arlons	Newman
BASKETBALL MINOR LEAGUE (VIC GYM)	4:00 Vic. Stanleye	vs	Vic. Gators	Stein
	5:00 St. M. C & F	vs	I Eng. Phys. B	Stein
	6:00 Pharm. Cations	vs	Pharm. Pestles	Marchut
	7:00 For. C	vs	Enman. B	Marchut
	8:00 I Civil B	vs	Pre-Med. I A	Kolodzie
INDOOR TRACK	5:00 p.m.	300 Yds - 1 Mile

GAMES WEDNESDAY

HOCKEY PLAYOFFS	12:30 Vic. I (cr)	vs	Trin. A	Stin-n Reimer
	4:00 St. M. C	vs	Enman	Knex
WATER POLO	6:15 Arch	vs	Med. I	Jany, Bonnemis
SQUASH PLAYOFFS	4:20 Vic. I	vs	U. III
	5:40 Trin. D	vs	Med. II Yr.
	7:00 Dent. E	vs	Trin. B
BASKETBALL MAJOR LEAGUE	1:00 SPS. B	vs	St. M. C	Bu. A. K., Richardson
	5:00 SPS. G	vs	Med. IV	Bu. A. K., Mandel
BASKETBALL MINOR LEAGUE (HART HOUSE)	1:00 III Geol.	vs	IV Geol.
	5:00 Med. II Yr.	vs	I Eng. Phys. A
BASKETBALL MINOR LEAGUE (VIC GYM)	4:00 P. St. M. C	vs	St. M. C	St. M. C
	5:00 St. M. C	vs	I Eng. Phys. C	Kolodzie
	6:00 I Civil B	vs	Pre-Med. I A	Kolodzie
	7:00 Trin. C	vs	I Elec. B	Kolodzie

NEW AT ...

Stowe
VERMONT
7 DAYS
UNLIMITED
SKIING!
only $35

SKI CAPITAL OF THE EAST!

7 continuous Days UNLIMITED Use of ALL LIFTS in Stowe at both Mt. Mansfield & Spruce Peak areas. $35 Adults; $25 children under 14. Extend beyond 7th day pro rata. Good any time during skiing season. Offered those staying at member lodges of Stowe-Mansfield Assoc.

Information, FOLDERS, Reservations:
STOWE-MANSFIELD ASSOC.
Stowe Vermont AL 3-7652

THEN*and NOW

- J. L. Baird, a Scottish inventor, gave the first practical demonstration of television in 1926
- Regular TV broadcasting was started by the BBC in 1936; by the NBC in New York in 1939
- By 1939 there were an established 20,000 TV sets in the London area; by 1940 about 2,000 sets in the New York area

- Now only 34 years later, Baird's invention is an accepted part of our lives
- There are now over 50 television stations in Canada
- There are over 2,500,000 TV sets in Canadian households

'T WAS A VICTORIOUS WEEKEND

Cagers Down

Gaels 90-81

By WELDON THOBURN
Varsity Staff Reporter

With a surge of power in the dying minutes of the game, the spirited U of T basketball Blues defeated Queen's Golden Gaels 90-81 Saturday night at Hart House. The last five minutes saw the lead see-saw between the two teams until Blues pulled ahead.

Guard Dan Norman, playing only the last few minutes, came through with some fancy rebounding to protect Toronto's edge. Forward John Dacysbyn, with 22 points, combined with Rolly Goldring and Jim Maguire to control the backboard for most of the contest. Driving layups by Ruby Richman, Pete Potter and Joe Stulac sparked Blues' attack throughout.

Toronto showed a great deal more confidence handling the ball than they have to date, moving about the court freely. In the first half only was their shooting shaky, but that improved as the action progressed.

Queen's started strongly, feeding centre Greg Stone the ball consistently. "Farmer" Stone collected 27 points and provided the bulk of the Gael attack.

Varsity coach John McManus quickly switched into a full court press, taking advantage of the small court space. This strategy paid off for Toronto throughout, especially in the last minutes when Queen's was desperately trying to tie it up.

The game was one of the most exciting that Blues have played at home this year. Both teams moved the ball quickly and at times the game reached a hectic pace.

The Intermediates completed a winning evening with an 80-66 victory over the Queen's Comets. The Junior Red, Gold and Blue could only afford to dress six men but they managed to give the Seconds a rough time for most of the game. Freshman Mike Muir gathered 23 points for Toronto, followed by Bill Patterson and Paul Shafer with 15 and 14, respectively.

Senior Game

Toronto (80)—Stulac, 8; Potter, 14; Richman, 16; Goldring, 15; Norman, 10; Dacysbyn, 22; Maguire, 6; Eccleston, 6.

Queen's (81)—Prior, 13; Sitala, 3; Turnbull, 6; Bureigh, 1; Mirwald, 15; Anglin, 6; Pando, 2; Stone, 27; Bozic, 10.

Intermediate Game

Toronto (80)—Patterson, 15; Schafer, 14; Muir, 23; Jack, 2; Miner, 10; McKeeknie, 5; Crouse, 10; Ouchterlony, 3; Probst, 2; Brandon, 1.

Queen's (66)—Buratto, 10; Fenwick, 12; Moodie, 9; Ratschke, 10; Ward, 12; Rasporich, 13.

The Scoreboard

INTERCOLLEGIATE

HOCKEY

	P	W	L	T	F	A	Pts.
Toronto	10	9	1	0	83	29	18
Laval	8	5	2	1	44	37	11
McGill	10	3	5	2	45	40	8
McGill	10	0	9	1	19	85	1

	P	W	L	T	F	A	Pts.
Toronto	10	9	1	0	83	29	18
Laval	8	5	2	1	44	37	11
McGill	10	3	5	2	45	40	8
McGill	10	0	9	1	19	85	1

	P	W	L	T	F	A	Pts.
Toronto	10	9	1	0	83	29	18
Laval	8	5	2	1	44	37	11
McGill	10	3	5	2	45	40	8
McGill	10	0	9	1	19	85	1

	P	W	L	T	F	A	Pts.
Toronto	10	9	1	0	83	29	18
Laval	8	5	2	1	44	37	11
McGill	10	3	5	2	45	40	8
McGill	10	0	9	1	19	85	1

	P	W	L	T	F	A	Pts.
Toronto	10	9	1	0	83	29	18
Laval	8	5	2	1	44	37	11
McGill	10	3	5	2	45	40	8
McGill	10	0	9	1	19	85	1

	P	W	L	T	F	A	Pts.
Toronto	10	9	1	0	83	29	18
Laval	8	5	2	1	44	37	11
McGill	10	3	5	2	45	40	8
McGill	10	0	9	1	19	85	1

	P	W	L	T	F	A	Pts.
Toronto	10	9	1	0	83	29	18
Laval	8	5	2	1	44	37	11
McGill	10	3	5	2	45	40	8
McGill	10	0	9	1	19	85	1

	P	W	L	T	F	A	Pts.
Toronto	10	9	1	0	83	29	18
Laval	8	5	2	1	44	37	11
McGill	10	3	5	2	45	40	8
McGill	10	0	9	1	19	85	1

	P	W	L	T	F	A	Pts.
Toronto	10	9	1	0	83	29	18
Laval	8	5	2	1	44	37	11
McGill	10	3	5	2	45	40	8
McGill	10	0	9	1	19	85	1

OOMPH grunts Varsity forward Dave (Red) Stephen as he lunges just too late to tip a pass from Ron Casey (5) into the Laval net. Rouge et Or defenceman Paul Dufour falls too late to block Stephen. That leg sticking out of Dufour's backside belongs to goaltender Jacques Lebrun, hidden from the play. This was one of the few scoring opportunities afforded Blues' big line, who seemed unable to get organized during the 4-1 victory.

—VSP Ball

Fleming Leads Varsity Attack As Blues Cripple Laval 4-1

By GENE GLISKY
Associate Sports Editor

Displaying positive proof that International rules alone weren't enough to restrain them, Varsity Blues out-muscled Laval Rouge et Or 4-1 at the Arena last Friday night.

It was a virtually untied and unhallooed substitute wingman who paced the Varsity attack. Rugged, strong skating Don Fleming fired three pretty goals to provide the margin of victory. Veteran center Doug Williams garnered the other Varsity goal.

Laval took advantage of an obvious Blues' reluctance to concentrate on goal scoring, by out-shooting Blues in the first period. Rouge et Or frustrated Blues' sharpshooters by sticking to a scrappy man-to-man brand of hockey.

Surprisingly enough, several Blues found this type of game much to their liking, letting fly with a barrage of elbows, knees and plain old fashioned rough and ready shinny.

The instinct for self-preservation weakened the wary Laval defence, making way for two of Fleming's goals. Williams assisted on the first, while Bill Griffin helped out on the other.

Williams combined with Howie Roth for an early third period marker before Fleming notched his hat-trick goal, assisted by Griffin and Neil Munro.

Claude Duguay fired the lone Laval goal at 14:40 of the third frame, on a nimble solo effort.

It was only a matter of time before both teams would tire of the limited fist-fuffs allowed by the rules, and an all out brawl would ensue.

A high-sticking duel provided the cue, and the game of hockey was forgotten. Two hard working linesmen got things under control, but not before the whole Laval bench was involved in a fencing duel from the ice, and a fist-waving contest with an incautious and thoughtless group of fans.

Only nine minor penalties were rationed out in the game by referee Gord Fevreau, seven to Blues, and two to Laval.

Bright spot of the clash, along with the work of Fleming, was the showing made by rookie Bill Griffin. The ex-Rinkie skated well, played a heads-up game, and proved he belonged with the big team.

Post Mortem: Hats off to the several burly fans who stepped in to present a fracas between the sorely-trying Laval bench and a few hot-heads in the stands. Half a buck entitles all to a reasonable amount of hollering, but leave the contest to the boys on skates, they do all right by themselves.

Coach Jack Kennedy announced yesterday, that Blues' defenceman Harry Neale has been released from further play with Varsity this year.

Involved in a stick swinging duel with the Laval bench, Neale allegedly went far beyond the limits of propriety demanded by the Intercollegiate hockey league. All other Bluesers guilty of these infractions of good sportsmanship are also to be hauled on the carpet.

LAVAL—Goal, Lebrun defense, Young, Leblanc, Baughard, Dufour, forward, Michael Landry, Giguere, Bouchard, Duguay, L. Assnault, A. Armand, Audet, Blanchette, Denis, Nadeau.

TORONTO—Goal, Dunn, defense, Neale, Stacy Munro Sullivan, forward, Gary Stephen, Bruce Williams, Brooks, Roth, Mills, Watt, Fleming, Griffin.

OFFICIALS—Referee, Gord Fevreau, linesmen, Bill Naylor and Bob Nadin.

First Period
Scoring none
Penalties: Neale (high-sticking) 5:20; Brodie (elbowing) 6:12; Michael (high-sticking) 8:21.

Second Period
1—Toronto, Fleming (1st) 10:41
(Williams)
2—Toronto, Fleming (2nd) 16:47
(Griffin)
Penalties: Brodie (elbowing) 1:38;
1—Assnault (high-sticking) 6:05;
Brodie (high-sticking) 6:05; Brodie (high-sticking) 17:44.

Third Period
3—Toronto, Williams (7th) 3:43
(Roth)
4—Toronto, Fleming (3rd) 5:31
(Griffin, Munro)
5—Laval, Duguay (8th) 14:40
Penalties: Brodie (2) (elbowing, high-sticking) 17:44.

Shots on goals
By Laval 9 5 6—20
By Toronto 7 14 11—32

Swimmers Top Buffalo Set Canadian Record

Varsity's medley relay team of Bob Fisher, John Deacon, Bill Yorzyk and Walt Unger stroked to a new Canadian record during a 78-8 whipping Blues handed University of Buffalo in Hart House Saturday.

The quartet clipped 3.2 seconds off the former record, held by Western, and erased a furrow in Coach Yorzyk's brow when his thoughts travelled to the Intercollegiate championships in Montreal next weekend.

Blues had no difficulty with the visitors, taking both relays and a first and second in each of the eight individual events. Buffalo counted the lowest point total obtainable by a college swim competition.

Ron Walbank and Art Binner each claimed two individual victories for Varsity, while Dave Harvey and Bill Sims continued their mastery over opposing divers, finishing one-two.

The medley relay time of 3:54.2 will stand as a record for the pool and Canadian College Swimming Association, as well as a national mark.

400-yard medley relay: 1. Toronto (Fisher, Deacon, Yorzyk, Unger), 2. Buffalo, Time 3:54.2 (Canadian record).

220-yard freestyle: 1. Walbank (T); 2. Supette (T); 3. Carpenter (B). Time 2:20.3.

50-yard freestyle: 1. Binner (T); 2. Ashenhurst (T); 3. Brogan (B). Time 25.1.

220-yard butterfly: 1. MacInnis (B); 2. Milne (T); 3. Kaufman (B). Time 2:39.4.

Diving: 1. Harvey (T); 2. Sims (T); 3. Mathews (B).

100-yard freestyle: 1. Binner (T); 2. Ashenhurst (T); 3. Diederick (B). Time 56.4.

200-yard backstroke: 1. Ridpath (T); 2. Thierry (T); 3. Lemper (B). Time 2:18.0.

200-yard breaststroke: 1. Deacon (T); 2. Philu (T); 3. Brogan (B). Time 2:28.1.

450-yard freestyle: 1. Walbank (T); 2. Fisher (T); 3. Carpenter (B). Time 5:11.1.

400-yard sprint relay: 1. Toronto (Supette, MacInnis, Moore, Binner); 2. Buffalo, Time 3:53.4.

Point totals: 1. Toronto, 78; 2. Buffalo, 8.

Sports' Parade 40 Years Ago

From The Varsity Files
February 24, 1919

Before a large crowd representing all the Faculties of the University, the fast Meds outfit defeated SPS by a score of 1-0 in a Jennings' Cup fixture. Meds had it all over their opponents at all stages of the contest and if the breaks had been with them, the "Epistaxis" boys would have rolled up a much larger score.

Meds' victory was chiefly owing to the superiority of their forwards' line over that of the boys from the "Red Schoolhouse". In goal the work of Pratt was the feature of the game and but for him SPS would have had a larger total rolled up against them.

SPS has filed a protest with the Secretary of the Hockey Club re the SPS-Med game at the Arena. They protest on the following grounds:

(1) The Medical team had 11 players in uniform, that is five men in the substitute bench;

(2) That during the game the Medical team used more than two substitutes.

Win Intermediate Title

Varsity's Intermediate swimmers travelled to Guelph Friday night and returned with the Intercollegiate title and four records to boot.

Backstroke Nick Thierry led the assault on the record book, winning the 200-yard event in 2:28.9, 13 seconds better than the previous mark. Thierry also swam on Baby Blues' medley relay team.

Joe Jany, George Milne and Kit Moore were other members of the relay quartet that set a new time of 4:34.5. Varsity led the Ontario Agricultural-Veterinary College Aggies to the wire.

OAC placed second in the tri-meet with 27 points, well back of the 65-point total Toronto accumulated. McMaster was third with 13 points.

Milne established a new time for the 200-yard butterfly, finishing ahead of team-mate Dave McIntyre in 2:56.7. The other record went to freestyler Kirk Thompson, who won the 220-yard event in 2:27.8, well ahead of the former 2:36.1 time.

Jany just missed adding a fifth record, when he was disqualified for taking an extra stroke underwater following a turn. His time for the 200-yard breaststroke distance was 2:43.1, four seconds better than the previous mark.

QUALITY CANADIAN PRODUCTS
MADE FROM QUALITY INCO NICKEL

In Canadian restaurants, the trade mark of cleanliness is Stainless Steel

CONTAINING INCO NICKEL

Cleanliness, yes! And beauty, too. Nickel-containing stainless steel protects the food you eat... and makes the restaurants you eat in more attractive.

Nickel-containing stainless steel resists corrosion from the organic compounds present in foods. It is easy to clean... and it has a rich silvery lustre that stays bright and beautiful for years. No wonder so many modern Canadian restaurants use stainless steel equipment.

Nickel helps give stainless steel its lasting beauty and its exceptional resistance to rust and corrosion. Another example of quality Canadian products made from quality Inco Nickel.

Write for a free copy of the colourful 32-page illustrated booklet entitled "The Exciting Story of Nickel."

THE INTERNATIONAL NICKEL

COMPANY OF CANADA, LIMITED
55 YONGE STREET, TORONTO

Nickel-containing stainless steel coffee urns are good-looking, easy to clean and resistant to corrosion.

Nickel-containing stainless steel is used in commercial dishwashing machines to withstand corrosive detergents.

Milk dispensers and refrigerators made of nickel-containing stainless steel, inside and out, protect the purity of foods.

Kitchens of modern restaurants use nickel-containing stainless steel soup kettles, pots, pans, sinks and counter tops.

Boost University Grants "New Era" Says Bissell

The Province of Ontario has boosted by nearly $1,000,000 grants to provincial universities.

The move has been hailed as the first step in the University of Toronto plan to provide every first-class student with free university education.

The grant came in a record Ontario budget handed down in the Legislature yesterday by Provincial Treasurer James Allen. The budget made available $1,200,000 for bursaries and scholarships.

"Our objective is to ensure that no student who has the capacity will be deprived of the opportunity of attending university and developing his talent to the fullest extent," the Ontario Treasurer said in his budget speech.

He added that if the funds made available prove insufficient, more will be provided.

University of Toronto's President, Claude T. Bissell, whose advisory committee on student aid last year proposed a plan for free tuition for first-class students said last night:

"This is the beginning of a new era. And it does not by-pass our scheme. It simply provides a foundation on which any future scheme could be built."

The provincial plan falls short of the advisory committee's plan. Most money will be distributed on the basis of a means test to assess the students' need and special experimental scholarships for outstanding students regardless of need are planned.

Rumored but unconfirmed is a scholarship worth $400, with bursary aid up to $500.

No sharp distinction will be made by the government of first and second-class students.

"I am delighted — not disappointed — that the Government has taken such a major step," Dr. Bissell said yesterday.

He added that universities must more carefully work out their award systems.

The University of Toronto now administers about $600,000 in scholarships. The $3,000,000 student loan fund established by the Province last year will continue.

THE TIEING BASKET is on the way as Jim Maguire (54) pulls Blues even at 56-56 with less than two minutes to play. Blues went on to beat Western, 58-56, with Pete Potter sinking the winning points with five seconds to play. (see story on page seven). (Varsity Staff Photo by Carson)

THE VARSITY

Vol. LXXVIII — No. 82

Thursday, February 26th, 1953

SAC Claims Prerogative For Student Parking Lots

Students' Administrative Council last night moved to investigate reports that the university administration plans to open several student parking lots next spring.

Council debate rose out of a report in The Varsity that the university plans to open and operate several pay parking lots for staff and students in expropriated areas west of St. George St.

Council members said if the report were true, the administration would be usurping a SAC prerogative for control of student parking. The action would be "a great discourtesy", one speaker said.

Members also felt the university would be appropriating an idea for provision of parking lots which had originated in council. The council was informed the administration had not contacted SAC over the reported new parking scheme.

One member moved the university be requested to reimburse council for $48 incurred in buying parking signs when SAC negotiated last term for permission to use a vacant lot for student parking.

The motion was withdrawn when university committee chairman Irv Levine volunteered to approach the administration and investigate the reported plan.

Four months ago, SAC initiated negotiations with the administration for permission to use a vacant lot north of the Denistry building for student parking.

Administrative vice-president F. R. Stone encouraged council in the scheme, but warned the university reserved the right to withdraw use of the lot at any time.

Mr. Stone said under present plans the lot would be available until March. SAC proposed to pay for clearing and grading the lot, and to return it in good condition to the university.

After council order parking signs and accepted applications from students for permission to use the lot, Mr. Stone informed council that construction plans had been changed, and that the lot could no longer be made available to SAC.

Petition Scores Arrow Decision

By AL WALKER
Varsity Staff Reporter

A move among University of Toronto Students condemning the Canadian Government's abandonment of the Arrow program took the concrete form of a letter to Prime Minister John Diefenbaker yesterday.

The letter, being circulated by University College Philosophy Lecturer David Gauthier, requests the Canadian Government to drop its program of nuclear armament, warning against making Canada "a nuclear satellite of the United States."

Several students and faculty members have either signed the letter, or have promised to do so, Mr. Gauthier said last night.

Among the signatories is that of Prof. W.J. McCurdy, UC Philosophy Dept.

"The letter will be sent early next week, if sufficient interest is aroused," Mr. Gauthier said, "and I have hopes of forming an organization to keep the issues at stake before the university students and staff and the general public concerning nuclear disarmament."

"I am seething at the lack of public support," he added.

The letter warns: "As we find ourselves bound ever more closely to American policies, we shall less and less be able to effectively prevent an independent viewpoint, (and) to seek to prevent the spread of nuclear weapons."

"The policy which you have announced will tend to prevent our voices being heard in the cause of peace," the letter continues.

It accuses the Prime Minister of intending to assist the United States "in its vain attempt to create a nuclear defence against nuclear attack," and goes on to describe nuclear warfare as "the means to the total destruction of our society" rather than "as a means of defending her freedom."

"The problem of controlling nuclear power to guarantee that it cannot be used in war" is the real problem at hand, the letter states, "and it is to this end that the efforts of the Canadian Government must be subordinated."

"We call upon you to reject nuclear armaments for Canadians, and to advocate controlled nuclear disarmament for the world," the letter concludes.

UBC Fees Up $100 Plan Protest March

VANCOUVER — CUP — Hot on the heels of an announced $100 fee increase for University of British Columbia students, came news of a mass protest march to take place.

Student representatives demand a reduction of the increase to $50 or less.

The Chancellor of the University yesterday said there was little chance of a retreat.

"I should think the decision is final," he said, and stated the fee increase was caused in part by the necessity of keeping the salaries paid to UBC professors on a par with those paid to University of Toronto professors.

The students apparently feel the university should have stood their ground in demands for more financial aid from the British Columbia Government.

The UBC Board of Governors announced the increase Tuesday, to take effect next September.

The increase, first since 1951, would bring the fees to $322 for arts, $372 for engineering and law, and $527 for medicine.

Each student pays $24 to the student-run Alma Mater Society.

Champagne Yet

Constitution Is In

By SUSAN BRESLIN
Varsity Staff Reporter

Students' Administrative Council quaffed champagne from coffee cups last night to commemorate the birth of its new constitution.

Several large bottles of champagne quietly appeared on the council table as chairman Gery Case announced a unanimous vote approving all provisions in the new constitution.

The hour-and-a-half session of committee of the whole encountered only one major snag in approving final drafts of the new constitution.

Case was forced to break a tie vote for the first time in his term of office, and his decision changed the designation of his position to speaker.

Irv Goldberg, Ali - Varsity Revue chairman, moved an objection to the new designation, and requested the constitution be revised to retain the old designation.

Goldberg supported his motion with several dictionary references to definition of the two terms. After Case's decision broke an 8-8 tie council vote, Goldberg was defeated in an attempt to reconsider his motion when council moved into open session. If the attempt had succeeded, a two-thirds majority would have been necessary to decide the question.

Most council work last night was devoted to incorporating last-minute changes rising out of two committee sessions with the university Board of Governors. Major change effected was abolition of the position of SAC associate secretary.

The SAC general secretary-treasurer will now be assisted by an executive secretary, whose duties will be that of a senior secretary.

The associate secretary's duties in connection with women's activities and athletics will be abolished in the new position. Council felt the SAC had outgrown the need for special provisions safeguarding women's interests. The special duties were defined in 1930, when women had only recently attained a position of equality and prominence on the campus, members said.

The new constitution will go into effect immediately after approval by Caput sometime within the next month.

A special provision was included retaining the position of associate secretary until June, when Miss A. E. M. Parkes, present SAC associate secretary, will retire from her post after 39 years of service to SAC

A Canadian Actress And Her Art

This Generation's Actors Hit

By TERRY BOURKE
Varsity Staff Reporter

One of Canada's top comediennes brought down the house last night as she went through her paces before an audience in Wymilwood Music Room.

Jane Mallett was giving a demonstration lecture on the art of monologue at a meeting of the Victoria Liberal Arts Club.

Showing students how the comic monologue is put across, she donned an old fur wrap, red gloves, a worn out scarf and a pair of low-heeled shoes.

Calling herself a typical "New Yorker" she did a take-off on a middle-aged woman complete with Brooklyn accent and chewing-gum, riding a bus and chatting with one of her friends.

Using only a bare chair as a prop, part of the dialogue went: "So, Hazel, I am going to Florida this winter, with flance. We leave as soon as his divorce comes through. It's his wife who's so unreasonable. She don't want to keep the kids. Six you know. Well, he's not so young, but he has experience. He's in the manufacturing line."

In another skit, she panned a female rural road merchant selling eggs on the road to Stratford. Dressed in a shawl and cap and a dirty apron she told imaginary visitors going to the Shakespearean Festival, "I hear Kate Aitken and Gord Sinclair are starring in Hamlet and 'Odious Rex' this year."

Commenting after deafening applause from the audience, Mrs. Mallett said she wished there were more young people attending stage productions today. "The old people know too much and they show it by sitting on their hands at the end of a performance."

The actress said that comedy which appears smooth and witty is the "hardest form of entertainment" to write and act. "The comedian or comedienne must feel out his character and no amount of intelligence or polish will substitute for sympathy."

She blasted the growing fad of the present generation of actors to learn "character by imitating the styles and techniques of greats in the acting world."

"It's easy to tell if an actor or actress has much on the ball if they talk about using a Chris Plummer gesture or an Ingrid Bergman walk in their art," she said.

Miss Mallett, who is appearing in next week's edition of CBC Folio said "the actor should make an audience feel anger, indignation, sympathy, or even bring it to the point of tears."

She said the essentials of acting are a warm heart and a cool head. The whole goal of the actor is to build not only an imaginary world for the people across the footlights, but also for himself.

Refusing to elaborate on audience participation plays in Canada, she said "Canadian reaction be better."

Hart House

ELECTION CAMPAIGN SPEECHES:

Today: ART COMMITTEE
Tomorrow: DEBATES COMMITTEE
IN THE EAST COMMON ROOM — 1:30 p.m.
ELECTION DAY — MARCH 3rd

LIBRARY EVENING — TONIGHT — 7:30 p.m.
Speaker: PROF. NORTHROP FRYE

In the Library — "Canadians and Literature" — Members Only

THIS SATURDAY

HART HOUSE SATURDAY NIGHT

Dancing, Movies, Music in the Record Room
Refreshments — 50c a Couple
9-12 p.m.

SUNDAY: UNIVERSITY CHURCH SERVICE
REV. CHRISTIAN BAETA
University College of Ghana
"THE GOSPEL FOR AFRICA TODAY"
11:00 a.m. — Great Hall

FINAL SUNDAY EVENING CONCERT—
HART HOUSE GLEE CLUB
9 p.m. — Great Hall

Members may pick up tickets from the Hall Porter's Desk

MEMBERS' ART SHOW, March 2nd-16th. Members of Hart House and male members of the University staff are invited to submit paintings, drawings or sculpture for consideration by a Selection Committee. CLOSING DATE FOR ENTRIES: TOMORROW (FRIDAY) AT 5 p.m. IN THE UNDERGRADUATE OFFICE (WA. 3-9504)

ALL-DAY MILDNESS

student travel

EUROPE

1959

Conducted Tour Sailings . . .

June 16, 19 and July 10

Ask for descriptive folder

UNIVERSITY TRAVEL CLUB LTD. U.T.C.

president: G. H. LUCAS
57 Bloor St. W., Toronto, WAInut 4-9291

RCA VICTOR HI-FI BUYS

SAVE $100

THIS MONTH ONLY
REG. $4.98 $3.98

THIS MONTH ONLY
REG. $5.98 $2.98

A. & A. Record Bar

351 Yonge St., Toronto
EM. 4-6832 EM. 4-6053
Open from 7 a.m. to 12
midnight every day including Saturday.

Kitten
big, bulky BAN-LON

Big jumbo-knit BAN-LON with pearly pie-plate buttons . . . big style with flaring Queen Anne collar, wide contra-knit collar edging and front panel . . . no pilling, no stretch or shrink . . . hand-finished . . . in a rainbow of sparkling spring colours. $15.95 AT GOOD SHOPS everywhere.

Look for the name Kitten!

HART HOUSE THEATRE'S FIFTIETH ALL-UNIVERSITY PRODUCTION

Christopher Fry's Translation
of Giraudoux's

TIGER AT THE GATES

Directed by Robert Gill

Saturday, Feb. 28th, to Saturday, March 7th, at 8.30 p.m.
Box Office Open 10 a.m. - 6 p.m. — WA. 3-5244

Same Special
Student Rate $1.00

Two Tickets Only
On Each A.T.L. Card

Spring has sprung, the grass has riz;

It's time to buy your Nensisis!

Well, we may be mistaken about the Spring, but not about the time. Only $4.50 for TORONTONENSIS '59, the most complete record of your days at Varsity.

Orders now being taken by faculty reps or the SAC Office

Three-Way Race SAC Hears AVR Loses, In Skule Election Advises No Pay In '60

Competing for the Engineering Society presidency when Skulemen go to the polls tomorrow will be F. E. Collins and R. W. Sibihia, it was learned as Skule nominations closed Monday.

It will be a three-way race for first vice-president, among R.A. Richardson, J.H. Flett and H.M. Malone. Running for second vice-president are J.C. Bannister and H.M. Malone.

The treasurer's post will go to J.S. Brant, O.G. Schmidt or R.A. Hornby. Competing for secretary are F. Cserepy and Miss N.M. Indich.

J.H. Little and R.E. Campbell are running for fourth-year Student's Administrative Council representative while D.D. Rutenberg and J.C. Odell compete for the third-year post.

Acclaimed as External Affairs Committee representative was M. A. Dorfman as J.I. Fisher copped the directorship of professional relations by default.

Vieng for 6TO president are A. B. Nicholson and H.E.R. Brown; D.R. Winter was acclaimed secretary-treasurer and W.G. Bulucan, vice-president.

W.D. Schoenfeld and J.D. Lewis are competing for the 6TI presidency as a four-way race for the 6T2 presidency develops between W.J. Scott, F.G.S. Ware, C.B. Chapman and S.H. Klich.

Competing for presidency of the Athletic Association are J. Tomson and J.T. Lawrence. In by acclamation are vice-president T.J. Van Iterson and treasurer H. Nobert.

Athletic Association 6TO representative will be B.D. Simkins or N. Snihura; 6TI representative, M. Katz or M.S. Basadur and 6T2 representative K. Powell, R.L. Brookes or M.L. Pearson.

Permanent president of the graduating class will be G.A. Baker. All other graduating positions were also acclaimed, as were presidencies of all next year's clubs except the Engineering Physics Club where a race has developed between C.M. Woodside and Miss J.L. Kerr.

Deadline Very Near

The final Torontonensis deadline is tomorrow, when all material for the activities and sports section of the book are due. "Pictures and write-ups must be submitted on or before that date, in order that the production schedule set up with the printer may be maintained." Nensis Editor Sandra Whittall said last night.

Students' Administrative Council members last night faced with resignation the prospect of a mounting deficit.

Finance commissioner Barry Moore reported minimum losses on the All-Varsity Revue have been tabulated at over $1,578. Major portion of the loss resulted from a $1,400 difference between ticket sales last year and this.

Total ticket revenue this year was $1,813. Just under 200 complimentary tickets were issued to AVR guests.

Moore recommended that next year AVR officials receive no honorarium for their services. Salaries for the "Have Toga, Will Travel" staff amounted to $975 this year, he said.

The commission approved a $75 additional appropriation to Torontonensis to pay for a four-color reproduction of a photograph of President Bissell.

A motion to increase the appropriation for Canadian University Press by $375 to $875 next year was approved by council. The money will be used to pay a salary for a full-time national CUP president on a four-month trial basis. The figure represents a five-cent levy per student.

Turning to more pleasant financial prospects, council threw its weight behind a brief on proposed income tax revisions.

TYPING

Theses, Essays, Notes, Charts, French, German, Latin, English, Prices Upon Request Apt. 12 21 AVENUE RD.—WA 2-7624 MRS. M. D. STOTT, B.A.

Fashion Show Tonight

ST. MICHAEL'S HOSPITAL — 8 p.m.
OVER 60 EVENING GOWNS AND WEDDING GOWNS

50c ADMISSION — DOOR PRIZES
All Gowns Made and Designed by
HELMAR — 46 St. George St. — WA. 1-5978

International Students' Festival Reunion

DATE—Friday, February 27th, 8 p.m. to 12 p.m.

PLACE—U.C. Women's Union Theatre, 79 St. George St., Dancing, Photo Showing, Tape Reproduction, Refreshments, etc.

ALL FREE—Admission by Festival or Complimentary Tickets Only.

THE CAMPUS CO-OPERATIVE RESIDENCE INC.

requires a Summer

General Manager

The term of employment will be from mid-May to mid-September. Salary: $250 per month, plus room and board.

Apply in writing stating qualifications to the C.C.R.I., 32 Sussex Avenue, by March 14th.

Help Needy At UofM

MONTREAL (CUP)—A scholarship fund for needy students is to be established at the University of Montreal early next month, financed by a tax on students.

It was announced last weekend the five per cent tax would be levied on the money which the students contribute to the Student's association and which is used to finance student activities.

The funds obtained will pay for three scholarships, one commercial, one classical and one scientific.

The tax will take effect March 5, Education Day, according to the association's council.

The Students' Administrative Council

Announces a Concert by

The University of Toronto Symphony Orchestra

Professor Robert Rosevear, conducting

SUNDAY EVENING, MARCH 8th, 9 p.m.
CONVOCAATION HALL

and a Concert by

The University of Toronto Chorus

Professor Richard Johnson, conducting

SUNDAY, MARCH 15th, 9 p.m.
GREAT HALL, HART HOUSE

All students, staff, graduates and friends of the University are cordially invited

SUMMER CAMP EMPLOYMENT

Positions now open for both males and females in the following categories: Riding, Arts and Crafts, Canoe Tripping, Section Leaders, Group Counsellors. Write or phone for information and application.

CAMP NEW MOON

630 Bay Street, EM. 6-6128

FREE DANCE

To First Ten Couples

TOP RECORDINGS

SATURDAY — 8 p.m.

Eglinton Orange Hall
rear of Capitol Theatre

2492 Yonge Street

Free Refreshments
Spot Prizes

Hart House Members'

Art Show

All men of the campus are invited to exhibit their drawings, paintings, and sculpture in the Hart House Art Gallery —

MARCH 3 - 16

Closing date for entries — Monday the 2nd, 3 p.m., Undergraduate Office, Hart House. — WA. 3-9504.

You! The Intelligenzia

Need a Steak-house like the

STEAK N' BURGER

Owing to the overwhelming success of our first steak-house at 772 Yonge St., we have been compelled to open another at 240 Bloor West, (just opposite Varsity Stadium at Bedford Rd.)

Perhaps we don't know higher calculus, but, boy! we certainly know how to cook and serve tempting char-broiled steak; and most important, at prices unequalled anywhere in Canada.

If you haven't been down to the Steak N' Burger as yet, come and see us now... we'd really like to meet you.

STEAK N' BURGER MENU

APPETIZERS
Fresh Shrimp Cocktail Tanga sauce	.60
Child's Tomato Juice	.10
ENTREES
CHAR BROILED
Choiceless New York Sirloin Steak	1.49
Red Brand Club Steak	1.79
Giant Burger Platter	.59
Above served with Baked Idaho Potato, Chef's Salad, French Dressing, Toasted Roll
CHAR BROILED
Junior Bon-less New York Sirloin Steak	.89
Choice of Baked Idaho Potato and Toasted Roll or Chef's Salad and Toasted Roll
CHAR BROILED
Junior Burger Platter	.69
Choice of Baked Idaho Potato and Toasted Roll, or Chef's Salad and Toasted Roll Also Desserts and Beverages

STEAK N' BURGER

240 Bloor Street West (opposite Varsity Stadium at Bedford Rd.) and 772 Yonge Street (a few doors south of Bloor)

OPEN Mon. to Sat., 11:30 a.m. to 10 p.m. Sundays: 5 p.m. to 9 p.m.

THE VARSITY

FOUNDED 1880

Published by

The Students' Administrative Council
of the University of Toronto

Toronto 5, Canada

Member Canadian University Press

Editor-in-Chief: Doug Marshall
Managing Editor: Mark Nichols
Editor-without-portfolio: Sam Aizenstat
News Editor: Harvey Shepherd

Today's Issue: Debbie Halper, Jayne Nesbitt, Peter Brawley and friend, Peeter Sepp without friend, the furry with the syringe on top, Morgan Tamplin, Riho Pild, as always, help from the CBC, and tons of work from Susie.

drastic cure

Whatever else the U of T lecturing staff can be accused of, it cannot be accused of isolating itself from the moral struggles going on in the "outside world".

This year, for example, two members of that staff, both teaching philosophy, have committed themselves to the attempt to save the world from suicide.

The first was Trinity Professor Bruno Morawetz with a long term plan for a world government unshackled by nationalism.

And now a UC lecturer is circulating a petition against nuclear armament as a result of the government's decision on the Avro Arrow.

There is so much moral goodness and intellectual soul-searching in these attempts that it is difficult to have to criticize them on any grounds.

And yet the sense of futility and hopelessness that we feel when we talk with Professor Morawetz or read Mr. Gauthier's letter cannot be discounted.

Professor Morawetz insists that his action in leaving the university is to a great extent personal and should not be interpreted as an indictment of his colleagues. Yet surely an indictment is just what is drastically needed. Only a moral shock can bring us to our senses.

There is a little more fire in Mr. Gauthier's letter but it seems to fall short of the real problem.

For, as we are today, successful nuclear disarmament would only clear the decks for a war with conventional weapons in the style of World War II or Korea.

From the point of view of self-preservation perhaps a conventional war is preferable to a nuclear one.

But our society is presumably built on the principle that there are higher moral laws than self-preservation, that to kill is as awful as to be killed, and that to kill one man with a gun is as bad as to kill a million with a hydrogen bomb.

Perhaps these principles are no longer operative in our society but if they are not, if we have lost them, then the survival for which we are preparing to fight is not moral survival but simply biological survival.

On the other hand, if we still subscribe to these principles, then we must put higher conditions on our survival than Mr. Gauthier seems willing to. We must decide that we will survive only if we can survive as human beings, and that we can survive as human beings only by a complete refusal to bear arms of any kind against our neighbours.

The existence of nuclear power is not our real problem. As long as nothing can deter us from war but fear, nuclear weapons remain a most effective deterrent. Before we can rid ourselves of that particular deterrent we will have to increase the considerations by which we can be deterred beyond a fear of self-destruction.

For those of us who recognize fear as the only deterrent, nuclear weapons are a necessity. For those of us who recognize that moral pressure and love are as effective as fear in deterring war, nuclear disarmament throughout the world must give way to total and immediate unilateral disarmament.

This is not the place to discuss Professor Morawetz's plan. It is too early to say very much about it, but it does seem implicitly to involve a strong moral indictment of the kind that is needed. But Mr. Gauthier's plan seems unsatisfactory.

The world's illness is drastic. It demands a drastic cure.

In Time Of War, No Gag

University Civil Defence

By MORGAN TAMPLIN

"What plans DOES the university have in the event of a national or local disaster?" This question was asked by a Metropolitan Civil Defence Official after seeing last Thursday's "gag" issue of the Varsity.

"Although the paper was printed as a joke, there was an element of truth in many of the points brought up," said Eric Scanlan, Chief Rescue Officer Metropolitan Toronto.

"What plans does the University have to preserve priceless and irreplaceable records, books and research material if they are threatened by an atomic attack, or even a fire or natural disaster?" he asked.

He went on to point out that ordinary building materials can eventually be replaced but research records, especially from experiments, are lost for ever.

The only sure method to insure that this knowledge is always available is by microfilm. Valuable papers when put on microfilm take up very little space, and can be stored in vaults in outlying areas.

Mr. Scanlan said some municipalities were starting a microfilm program on their deeds, taxation records and police records. Toronto banks already have a comprehensive long-range program by which micro-filmed records are deposited in small out-lying branches.

Mr. Scanlan emphasized that a microfilming program has to be carried on continuously, and not "started at the last moment". By then it is too late, he said.

Municipalities, by microfilming deeds, will be saving themselves endless confusion in establishing ownerships and claims on properties after a disaster. But microfilming University material is even more important, not only to get it back on its feet again as an institution, but also to preserve material which could be useful in rebuilding the community, he said.

So far as is known the University has no microfilm program except for a microfilm library of material from other institutions and universities which would not otherwise be available.

Commenting on the rest of the gag issue, Mr. Scanlan said that students obviously had quite a few misconceptions about the nature of Civil Defence.

Civil Defence is an organization to co-ordinate all existing welfare and emergency organizations in the event of an emergency. Where needed, their services can be augmented by Civil Defence volunteers, but some services are sufficiently strong already. Although the public and the press places a lot of emphasis on the wartime aspects of CD, it can perform a much more valuable service closer to the community by saving lives in the wake of floods, fires, hurricanes or explosions.

Civil Defence is the only government-directed voluntary organization. Volunteers are needed urgently. In an attempt to keep the gag issue from total loss, the Metro CD Headquarters address is 280 Davenport Rd. Phone WA 4-9761 if you have some complaint about civil defence activities and be assured that only you can help correct it. At any rate, the time spent in Civil Defence training may someday save your life.

Well, at least they did manage to keep the Canadian lumber industry alive.

In The Old Corral

By LIZ BINKS

Toronto is acquiring quite a reputation for her foreign cuisine which, served in various establishments throughout the city, is usually accompanied by appropriate decor and European atmosphere.

One might quibble and say that some of them are phony—that the hors-d'oeuvres are straight from Canada Packers, the waiter's French is almost as bad as one's own, or that the Italian troubadour singing in the background is too much like Perry Como. But that, for the most part, would be unnecessary. The places are tastefully run and offer good food and service.

But we do take exception to a display at the newly-opened steak house at the corner of Bloor and Bedford. Somehow we are vain enough to believe that even dull old Torontonians can enjoy steak and a baked potato without having to pretend they are sitting beside a clump of sagebrush watching a pageant of cowboys and broncs perform in the tradition of the West.

We had been attracted by the promise of a gala steak dinner some months before the restaurant opened, and when a little cardboard man named Mr. Steak appeared in the window urging us to come and get it, we obliged.

Once inside, we noticed a chuckwagon, a row of cap guns and several white stetsons on the beams and walls before our attention was directed to a distressing brown stain on the chairs. We realized in a minute that this was cowhide upholstery, recovered, and sat down.

A smiling waitress, dressed in white shirt, riding skirt, string tie and white stetson, approached us. She was middle aged, spoke with a thick Scottish burr, and said, "What would ya like, folks?"

We glanced at the menu and saw that there are three other "fantastic locations" of the same chain in Toronto. Pondering this, we glanced down the full length of the room, and decided that "fantastic" is perhaps a fair enough judgement.

The rough hewn beams would be attractive if one didn't get the feeling that a cap gun, or a stetson, or perhaps both, might descend from them at any moment. The off-white walls along the east side might be attractive too—but one's attention is somehow drawn more to happy cowboys, faithful ponies and old corral than grace them.

The food, by the way—if you can eat it while aesthetically detached—is good. The baked potatoes are just like any other baked potatoes despite their Idaho origin, and the salad is good.

Standing at the cashier's desk, securing a pocketful of mints, we noticed a row of stetsons on the shelf.

"How much are the stetsons?" we asked.

"I beg your pardon?" he said. "Are your stetsons for sale?" I repeated.

He looked mystified, then his face cleared. "Oh, you mean the hats! They're $1.95".

A Bum Steer

West Indian Evening at University College

Friday night's West Indian "Federation Night" was not an Evening of Theatre so much as an open-house. Two disgruntled West Indians overheard in a washroom apparently missed this point.

"Authentic calypso. I heard authentic calypso every week in Jamaica."

Unlike Yankee culture and canned beer, but like the gin and "coconut water of which four slightly homesick West Indians sang Friday night, the atmosphere of the Windies is fairly difficult to export. To try to bring it into a crowded hall with less-than-perfect facilities and portrait of an Ontario Conservative dominating the stage, doesn't help any. The West Indian Students' Association did a creditable job.

The program was kicked off by a large and animated mixed chorus singing a number of West Indian folk songs under the direction of Owen Jefferson. As well as being graceful to watch, the chorus was extremely melodious to hear. In fact, this latter characteristic, delightful as it was, might well have been sacrificed in favor of a little more oomph.

About half the entertainment was taken up with a play "The Harrowing of Benji" by St. Lucian playwright R. Walcott. The play concerns itself with the chastening by the law of a razor-wielding, wenching, vagabond wayside preacher, who represents a Windian social phenomenon.

Written as a character study, the play came out under Vince D'Oyley's direction as more of a social study. Full development of Benji as a figure of stature and pathos was prevented by the audience's difficulties with the Caribbean dialect, as well as Eugene Moore's delightful, Chaplinesque portrayal. However, this left a clear view of Benji as a social type.

A large number of the incidents looked as if they had been choreographed and most of the other characters in the production similarly emerged as West Indian types, all of which aided the play's social message. Philma Patterson was a very scarlet woman, Erwin Angus a very delinquent juvenile and Chloe Alleyne a very lushed lush. George Meikle as Sergeant Price was perhaps the most sympathetic character and an excellent father-figure.

The production was hampered by the layout of the hall, which made portions impossible for some to see, and similar technical difficulties, including a telephone which would not follow cues.

The next two items were probably the musical highlights of the show. Anita Du Bois sang a couple of French patois lullabies, accompanied by Charles Roach on the guitar. A little soft, Miss DuBois was otherwise magnificent. Roach also accompanied a delightful calypso quartet led by "Lord" Neville Cooper. Their repertoire included the gay and original booze song alluded to above, a special calypso written on the Federation and a couple of standard works.

Gloria Martin and Helen Pyne each read a Kiplingesque West Indian poem much better than they deserved.

Last on the agenda was a series of symbolic dances by a large troop. The dancing seemed to be a little rough around the edges, but pleasingly savage, supple and, in spots, suggestive. They finished, needless to say, with a limbo.

The program may well have offended the cult of professionalism in a few West Indians, but if it did nothing but give a few Canadians some insight into the genius of a people, it was well worth while.

Harvey Shepherd

P.C. ON U.P.

Warner Bros. have a long and, for the most part, an impressive list of war pictures behind them. To such fine films as AIR FORCE (1942), PRIDE OF THE MARINES (1943), SUBMARINE D-1 (1948), and TASK FORCE (1949), they can now add UP PERISCOPE.

It is the story of how one man, Lieutenant (i.g.) Ken Braden (James "Maverick" Garner), a recent graduate of the Underwater Demolition School, has been given the duty of going ashore on the Japanese-held island of Kusaie. His job: to take pictures of the top-secret Naval Code. He has 18 hours to do the task — from 0400 hours to 2200 hours of the same day.

The scenes pertaining to his landing, after frogmanning it from the Submarine "Barraкуда", are very exciting. One wonderful bit—Braden sweating it out in the underbrush while a group of Japanese hunt for a baseball that one of their number batted for what can only have been a home run.

Edmond O'Brien is of course more than competent as Commander Stevenson, a man beset by the knowledge that in following the book he has lost the friendship of most of his crew.

Carleton Carpenter as the sub's ill-fated executive officer turns in a strangely moving performance as he tries to maintain a balance between Captain and Crew. It is Alan Hale (Jr.) as the man who has been an Ensign for fifteen years who gives a proper touch of lightness to the picture. As Ensign Malone he is the kind of officer the crew love: he is cheerful, competent, willing to take on all the dirty jobs with a grin, and while you can feel his disappointment at never getting a promotion, one can see that there is no self-pity in him. A nice touch is his last shaving off his beard when his promotion at long last comes through.

To sum it up: UP PERISCOPE is a good service-type movie done without a lot of hokum . . . except I wish Music Director Max Steiner would stop having that USN Band that welcomes incoming subs at Pearl (a USN tradition) play "Don't Give Up The Ship" in every blasted WB Navy picture.

Maybe it's just nostalgia: Steiner was at Warner Bros. in 1934 when they produced the black-and-white musical SHIPMATES FOREVER with Dick Powell, Ruby Keeler, George Brent and Patsy Kelly. The theme song? That's right, matey — "DGUTS."

Paul Conroy

Two Announcements

It is with considerable misgivings that we impart the name of the writer of last week's Warren Peace obit. He is smiling Al Walker, Associate News Editor, and we henceforth wash our hands of him.

For those interested, the results of the Varsity Haiku Contest will be announced in tomorrow's paper.

The Editors

Poor, Misunderstood Little Lolita

The review of Vladimir Nabokov's LOLITA, which appeared in last Friday's Varsity, fails to appreciate the overtones of the book, and in several instances is factually incorrect.

In a gem of misinterpretation the reviewer twice uses the word "suave" to describe the sex-maniac protagonist, Humbert Humbert. Throughout the book Humbert's actions are characterized by a fumbling and painful neurosis. How a man with such clearly visible sex desires can possibly be described as suave is a source of great amazement.

The reviewer goes on to describe Humbert as "unable to consummate" his early love for Annabel. Perhaps he has strange ideas as to the meaning of "consummation", but it would seem clearly obvious that the beach scene is the only occasion where the protagonist's early desires are not actually satisfied.

A total misunderstanding of the book is similarly shown by suggesting that Lolita was seduced. The grotesque horror of the plot lies in the very fact that such a young girl was NOT seduced but was an active partner in the relationship. In more senses than one, Lolita herself is the real seducer, who dominates, humiliates, and finally abandons the pathetic figure of Humbert.

The reviewer complains of the "boring details of scenery and hotels" and the distressing length of the bedroom experiences. What does he want — a nicely proportioned story keyed for the maiden aunts of the world? The mind of Humbert is insanely distorted and hence anything written in first person must show a corresponding distortion.

Finally, the reviewer complains of becoming lost by the end in a "tortuous plot and monstrous detail" where "all the warm feelings of emotion and intimacies are cold and lifeless." The same argument applies: Nabokov's intention is not to entertain the casual reader, but to portray a psychopathic character and the background in which he lives in vivid and authentic terms. From this same "monstrous detail" emerge the brilliance and clarity which make LOLITA the huge indictment which it is.

David C. Halton

"Get back on your pedestal," says Ulysses (Cary Platt) to Cassandra (Maureen Fox) in Robert Gill's forthcoming production of "Tiger At The Gates".

The Toronto Jazz Audience: Two Aspects

There shouldn't be any doubt about Toronto's role as a jazz centre. This view was strongly reaffirmed the past weekend. Besides the numerous jazz clubs providing bad to excellent music and service in varying degrees, we witnessed three important events: The Chris Barber Jazz Band Concert at Massey Hall, the CBC-Timex television program and an all-too-short appearance of Art Blakey's Jazz Messengers in Hamilton. All three scenes proved their separate points: that the British dixie fans can almost fill Massey Hall and enjoy it; that the television jazz program can be musically excellent and well presented (with local talent yet); and that seldom-heard, funky jazz can get Torontonians to drive all the way to Hamilton.

We have already experienced the happy fanaticism of the British in their traditional jazz clubs in town. The Wednesday night crowd at Maison Doree moves Thursdays to the Navy Hall Maple Leaf Jazz Club on Hayden Street and perhaps ends up at Chelsea on Saturday. On the remaining days there is always Mike White at the Westover.

Before we discuss the Barber Concert it is well to remember the essential difference between the European jazz fan and his American counterpart. The European listener is more seriously dedicated to his jazz, whether it is "pure" dixieland or very advanced progressive music. You seldom find a lukewarm follower, nor the feverish quest for IN music with snob appeal. I suggest that the predominantly British audience at Massey Hall enjoyed themselves more, listened more carefully and didn't give a damn about phony sophistication.

Thirty minutes before the concert started were spent in fruitless sound-effects by a pick-up group, led by Chubby Jackson. After the intermission, it was time for Chris Barber to play and for his fans to show their well-founded approval. During the proceedings some fine music was produced inside the restrictive framework of traditional jazz. Fortunately the quality of the music made it transcend the limitations of monotonous archeology. A spirited "Panama Rag" was followed by King Oliver's "Chimes Blues", which contained some cute interchanges of notes between trumpet and clarinet. To clinch their ability, the sextet played a strange but wonderful arrangement of John Lewis' "Golden Striker" — a beautiful Modern Jazz Quartet selection treated with respect in delicate dixieland terms.

As the Massey Hall audience paid tribute to one of Europe's biggest jazz names, so did the hundreds of hard bop fans pay homage to Art Blakey's very definite contribution to the rebirth of blues in modern jazz. The Jazz Messengers gave me a most satisfying and vibrant performance, mainly because of the dearth of good funky jazz in the Toronto area.

In particular, the second set at the Westdale Hotel recital was a near-perfect summation of the facts of jazz. The music was lifted out of the realm of mere amusement to a higher plane of creative communication, brutally stressing the basics in jazz. The emphatic manipulation and complete control of the drums by Blakey carried trumpeter Lee Morgan and saxophonist Hank Mobley to moments of ecstatic expression and improvisations. If their latest record on Blue Note equals the boldness of the concert it will certainly be a must for me. With tunes such as a fantastic "Blues March" and "Now's The Time" (a Parker tune which was incidentally featured on "Project '59" as an example of beat music), it is indeed a great pity that the Jazz Messengers aren't brought here more often.

Peter Sepp

Frosh Most Enthusiastic In Annual Victoria Vote

The Freshman year at Victoria College registered a "quite respectable" vote in the annual Vic elections, officials said last night. Other years had a "considerably lower" turnout.

Moss Scholarship candidate is Dave Lee, who was also elected to the position of Senior Stick. Female senior stick is Sue Evans. Men's Athletic Stick is John Saul. Marc Somerville was elected Freshman Year President, with Associate President Judy Caldecott. 6T1 President is Bob Oben with Marion Hebb second in command.

Joe Gill gained the position of 6T0 Year President. Mimi Boyd is Associate President. 5T9 Permanent President is Doug McDermid and Sally Potter is Associate President.

Judy Sparrow is Association President and Ted Tory is Vice-President. SAC representatives are Stan Dubas and Virginia Lomax. Representatives to the External Affairs Committee are John Wood and Alison Dingle. Donna Youngblut achieved the presidency of the Vic Debating Parliament, while Mike Galway was elected Associate President.

Mike Milne and Barb Buchanan were elected presidents of the Victoria Athletic Associations. Stew Bell is president of the Vic Union.

STUDENTS' ADMINISTRATIVE COUNCIL

Book Exchange Manager

Applications are invited for the above position for approximately a four week period commencing September 21, 1959. Applicant must have some business knowledge and experience in handling cash.

A. E. M. PARKES,
Associate Secretary,
Students' Administrative Council.

SPORTS SCHEDULES

BASKETBALL — MAJOR LEAGUE (Balance of regular schedule)

Mon. Mar. 2	1.00 Jr. SPS vs U.C. II	Grossman, Goldenberg
	5.00 U.C. III vs SPS. IV	Bugarski, Godley
	9.15 Sr. Med vs U.C. I	Bugarski, Godley
Tues. Mar. 3	1.00 Vic. II vs SPS. A	Moriarty, Kelner
	5.00 SPS. V vs SPS. C	Grossman, McGrath
	6.30 Med. III vs U.C. V	Grossman, McGrath
	7.00 Arch vs Pharm. A	Goldenberg, Godley
	8.00 SPS. VIII vs St. M. F	Goldenberg, Godley
Wed. Mar. 4	1.00 SPS. III vs Pre-Med	Moriarty, Grossman
	5.00 SPS. B vs U.C. III	Mandel, Godley
	6.30 SPS. E vs Dent. I Yr	Mandel, Godley
	7.00 St. M. E vs SPS. F	Richardson, Marchut
	8.00 Knox A vs Pharm. B	Richardson, Marchut
Thur. Mar. 5	1.00 SPS. D vs Vic. IV	Moriarty, Mandel
	3.00 Trin vs Vic. II	Bugarski, Lubin
	5.00 St. M. D vs SPS. VI	Bugarski, Lubin
	6.00 Dent. IV vs U.C. VI	Richardson, Mausberg
	7.00 For. A vs Arch	Richardson, Mausberg
	8.00 Pharm. B vs Wye. A	Richardson, Mausberg
Fri. Mar. 6	1.00 Vic. I vs Sr. SPS	Kelner, Goldenberg
	5.00 Dent. A vs SPS. III	Kelner, Bugarski
	6.00 SPS. IV vs SPS. B	Kelner, Bugarski
Mon. Mar. 9	1.00 Pre-Med vs Jr. SPS	Moriarty, G. Idenberg
	5.00 SPS. A vs St. M. B	Kelner, Grossman
	6.00 St. M. A vs Sr. Med	Kelner, Grossman
Tues. Mar. 10	1.00 SPS. V vs Vic. III	Bugarski, Richardson
	5.00 SPS. D vs St. M. D	Mandel, McGrath
	6.00 SPS. E vs Med. III	Mandel, McGrath
	7.00 Emmann A vs Knox A	Grossman, Godley
	8.00 Pharm. A vs Law A	Grossman, Godley
Wed. Mar. 11	1.00 U.C. IV vs SPS. C	Moriarty, Kelner
	5.30 SPS. VII vs SPS. F	Bugarski, Mandel
	6.00 U.C. V vs Dent. I Yr	Bugarski, Mandel
	7.30 SPS. VI vs Vic. IV	Richardson, Godley
	8.00 SPS. IV vs St. M. C	Richardson, Godley
Thur. Mar. 12	1.00 SPS. VIII vs SPS. G	G. Grossman, McGrath
	6.00 St. M. F vs Dent. III Yr	Mau-burg, Richardson

WATER POLO (Balance of regular schedule)

Mon. Mar. 2	1.00 Med. IV vs SPS. V	J. Boase, Watkin
	4.00 U.C. vs T.R. A	M. Boase, Nobert
Tues. Mar. 3	1.00 SPS. I vs Arch	M. Boase, Nobert
	8.30 Med I vs Trin	Jany, Bonnema
	7.15 Wye vs Law	Jany, Bonnema

IMPORTANT NOTICE RE FUTURE SCHEDULES

As there are only 3 more issues of the Varsity "Games Today" will not appear after Fri. Feb. 27. ALL SCHEDULES ARE POSTED ON BULLETIN BOARD IN MAIN CORRIDOR OF ATHLETIC WING.

MINOR LEAGUE BASKETBALL PLAYOFF SCHEDULES will appear in Friday's paper. The 2 top teams from each group will qualify. Group tie are decided by the total points scored by a team in league play divided by the number of games played. For further information see Mrs. Boyd at Intramural office.

Here and Now

TODAY

- 12 noon — VCF will study the Bible in room 53, School of Nursing.
- 12.15 p.m. — The Holy Eucharist will be celebrated in Trinity College Chapel.
- 1 p.m. — VCF will study the Bible in room 111, U.C.
- 1.15 p.m. — VCF will study the Bible in room 21, Vic.
- 2 p.m. — The Graduate Union will hold a toboggan party. For details see advertisement in this issue.
- 4 p.m. — Dr. D. K. Sen will lead a seminar-tes on "Cosmological Models" in room 135, the McLennan Laboratory.
- 5 p.m. — VCF will hold a lecture

- on "Winning Men to Christ" in room 71, U.C.
- 7.45 p.m. — The Lutheran Student Club will hold a square-dance party at 610 Spadina Ave.
- 8 p.m. — For a few lively minutes away from the books, come to the Graduate Union Square Dance, 44 Hoskin Ave.
- 8.15 p.m. — The Spanish Club presents a Spanish Play at the UC Women's Union, 79 St. George St. Refreshments will be served.

FRIDAY

- 1.10 p.m. — The SCM-FROS Current Events Group will have Prof. W. O. Fennel, Emmanuel College, as guest speaker at FROS, 3 Wilcocks St.
- 3 p.m. — The SCM will have another study meeting on "The Life of Jesus" in the SCM office, Hart House.
- 4 p.m. — FROS will hold an Open House in honor of the successful International Students' Festival at FROS, 3 Wilcocks St.
- 5 p.m. — The VCF will hold a lecture on "Nurturing Men in Christ" in room 11, U.C.
- 7.30 p.m. — Our Lady of China Patricians will meet at St. Peter's Church, Bloor and Bathurst Sts., to discuss "St. Vincent de Paul and Charity". All Chinese students are cordially invited.
- 8 p.m. — The International Students' Festival Reunion program will include dancing, photo showings, tape playbacks and refreshments. All is free but admission is by complimentary or festival ticket only.

GRADUATE STUDENTS

TOBOGGAN PARTY

THIS SUNDAY — MARCH 1 — 2 p.m.

AT ROSEDALE GOLF COURSE (Yonge St. City Limits)

BRING TOBOGGAN IF POSSIBLE

SUPPER AFTERWARDS 25 c. — BARBEQUED CHICKEN AT THE GRADUATE UNION — 5:30 P.M.

GOOD GRIEF! Even SCHROEDER

Endorses The

Blue and White Band

HOCKEY GAME

FRIDAY, 8 p.m.

If It Happened, It's in the

1959 TORONTONENSIS

Your all-campus yearbook, crammed with photos of you, your friends, activities, sports, clubs and fraternities. Order this week and next from faculty rep. or SAC Office.

GAMES TODAY

WATER POLO	1.00 Vic. vs SPS. III	J. Boase, Thersingh
	6.15 Med. II vs Dent. I	Watkin, Nobert
	7.00 SPS. IV vs Med. III	Watkin, Nobert
	7.45 Pharm. vs U.C. I	Watkin, Nobert
SQUASH PLAYOFFS	1.00 M.G.I. Yr vs U.C. I
BASKETBALL MAJOR LEAGUE	1.00 Jr. SPS vs St. M. A	M. Moriarty, Grossman
	6.30 Pre-Med vs Dent. A	Richardson, Mausberg
	7.30 For. A vs Law A	Richardson, Mausberg
	8.30 Dent. III Yr vs U.C. VI	Richardson, Mausberg
BASKETBALL MINOR LEAGUE (HART HOUSE)	1.00 U.C. V vs H. M. Ch.	Strin
	6.30 Vic. Delta Sigs vs Med. IV Yr. B	Newman
	7.30 Music vs Law B	Newman
	8.30 St. M. Gabs vs III Mech.	Newman
BASKETBALL MINOR LEAGUE (VIC GYM)	4.00 U.C. Jenneret vs Pre-Med. I B	Marchut
	5.00 Pre-Dent. B vs Vic. South Hse.	Marchut
	6.00 U.C. Samings vs I Eng. Phys. D	Marchut

Varsity Debaters Do Well In Contest

In a debating tournament at McGill University last weekend, Cornell University took first place with a team opposing the resolution, "the United Nations should have coercive power." Pittsburgh University was runner-up with its affirmative team.

Teams from about 20 universities from Canada and the United States gathered for the tournament. U of T debaters obtained the highest score for the negative in the first round, and highest for the affirmative in the second.

Debating was done American-style, which puts the emphasis on cross-examination, instead of Canadian-style, which emphasizes rhetoric.

TYPEWRITERS

$1.00 A WEEK BUYS . . .

... $1.50 A WEEK RENTS

Get a free typing course and a liberal trade-in allowance for your old typewriter when you buy a new modern machine from us.

Phone HO. 1-1843 Today.

THEN

and NOW

- Bowling said to have been played 7000 years ago
- 9-pin bowling once prohibited by law
- 5-pin Bowling invented by Toronto man in 1905

- Now more popular than golf or curling
- More bowling lanes in Toronto than in New York and Philadelphia combined
- 1,000,000 bowlers in Ontario alone!

Late Points By Potter Provide Thrilling Win

With only five seconds remaining in the game, the University of Toronto basketball Blues captured a thrilling 58-56 win from Western Mustangs last night at Hart House. The win spoiled Western's chances for an untied championship and added some colour to the Blues' current lack-lustre season.

Guard Pete Potter pumped in the two marginal points on a foul after rebounding Jim Maguire had tied the score with 29 seconds remaining. This climaxed a tremendous second-half comeback for Toronto which completely overwhelmed the strong London team.

Potter, with a total of 19 points, and Captain Ruby Richman kept the Blues alive during most of the first half when it looked as if the tall forward wall was never going to come up with any of those all-important rebounds. Richman thrilled the fans by consistently threading the basket from almost mid-court, but the Blues trailed 34-24 at the half.

In the second stanza, centre Maguire covered Western's ace Bill Lawson with Spartan-like efficiency, limiting him to one basket after he had picked up 15 points in the first half. That, along with Dan Norman and John Dacyshyn controlling the backboards, tell the rest of the story of the Blues win.

The final buzzer sent the ten-

By WELDON THOBURN
Varsity Staff Reporter

sion-racked Toronto fans into hysterical cheers while man-of-the-hour Potter was carried from the floor by the jubilant Varsity players. The win was the second in a row for the Blues, who have been improving at a steady rate. If the season were a little longer here is one fellow who would put his money on Toronto for the title.

The Intermediate preliminary was equally as thrilling with Toronto edging the Western Colts 61-60. Although the Rinkies led for most of the contest, a field goal by Brain Crouse with 12 seconds left won the game. Schaefer led the Seconds with 19 points and Muir continued his scoring ways, collecting 15.

The matches were the last of the 1958-59 home season for the Toronto teams, neither of whom are in the running for the top laurels. The crowd was surprisingly large for a mid-week game. Perhaps the gentlemanly (?) sport of basketball is gathering more popularity than it has enjoyed at this university in the past few years.

Perhaps the Athletic Directorate would be wise to enlarge the seating capacity, which now is far too inadequate for a university of 14,000 students.

SUMMARY

Senior Game

Toronto (58)—Stulac, 4; Potter, 19; Richman, 11; Goldring, Norman, 6; Mencez; Dayshyn, 6; Maguire, 12; Ecclestone.

Western (56)—Hodgins, 13; Davis, 11; Bobkin, 4; Breat; May, 4; Boug; Smeeton, 4; Lawson, 18; Rollo, 2.

Intermediate Game

Toronto (61)—Patterson, 7; Schafer, 19; Kostyle; Muir, 15; Girdlestone, 3; Jack; Miner, 7; McKeeknie, 4; Crouse, 6; Ouchterlony; Probst; Brandon, 7.

Western (60)—Batchelor, 5; Sweeney, 2; Zidar, 9; Coul, 9; Milack, 2; Ormerod, 2; Cox, 9; Earthy, 19; Gradish; Masi, 2; Chambers, 1.

Godsoe, Randle Lead Victoria To Semi-finals

Victoria College Firsts walloped Trinity A, 7-3, in a Jennings Cup quarter-final game at the Arena yesterday, and now move into the semi-finals against the defending champions, St. Michael's.

Trailing 2-1 at one point early in the game, Vic rallied for six straight goals through the latter part of the first period and the early part of the second.

Peter Eby gave Trinity the first goal, but Bob Alexander tied the score minutes later. Charlie McNab put Trinity a goal up once more, but two successive tallies by Pete Randle erased the lead and put Vic in front to stay.

Bill Griffin upped the lead to two goals just before the end of the period.

Two quick goals by Peter Godsoe put the issue beyond doubt early in the second period. The first came while Vic were playing a man short.

Gary Hodgins increased the total to 7-2, before Brook Ellis added the last Trinity goal.

Vic were clearly superior throughout the game and took full advantage of the weakness of Trinity's defence. The first three Red and Gold scores were all made by men coming out in front of the net from the corner without a hand being laid on them.

The top-sided win augurs well for Vic's chances in the two game semi-final round with St. Mike's which begins on Monday.

Sports' Parade 40 Years Ago

From The Varsity Files
February 26, 1919

The Canadian Intercollegiate Amateur Athletic Association held its annual meeting on Saturday afternoon at Kingston. Varsity sent the following representatives: Prof. A. T. DeLury, S. H. Johnson and L. E. Pearson (Ed.: he's known as "Mike" now).

It was decided to recommend that all intercollegiate sports be revived, the major sports being rugby, hockey, basketball and track. It will be remembered that there has been no intercollegiate sport since the year following the outbreak of the war and it was felt that the different universities were now ready for the revival.

The All-star basketball team held a practice at the Central "Y" last night and appeared in the best of form. They are awaiting word from McGill.

The Broadview team which met defeat at the hands of the University team have now won the championship of the city. It is expected that in a few days the All-star team will again meet the Broadview five.

by john brooks

varsity sports editor

Monday afternoon, Varsity hockey coach Jack Kennedy disclosed that he had removed defenseman Harry Neale from the team roster "for swinging his stick at Laval players" during last Friday's game in Varsity Arena.

The move came after Neale had become involved in a fencing duel with players seated on the Laval bench. The fracas stopped only when Kennedy himself went onto the ice to restrain his player. Neale was assessed no penalty, and continued in the game.

Under the conditions, disciplinary action against Neale was inevitable; stick-swinging with apparent intent to injure cannot be condoned. But the tale does not stop there; because Harry Neale is a victim of circumstance it was beyond the control of the team (or himself) to prevent.

Last year, the Ontario-Quebec Athletic Association voted to use International Rules for college hockey games this season. Laval and the University of Montreal were in favor of the change. McGill and the University of Toronto were not.

Coach Kennedy took a definite stand against any rule change, and gave his opinion to the Varsity athletic directorate through team representatives. The directorate concurred. Yet, at the O-QAA annual meeting, the U of T representative voted in favor of a motion to use International Rules. The motion was carried.

And with that change came the source of troubles which have: 1) produced a notable increase in penalties this season; and 2) brought about the suspension of Neale.

The above conclusions bear explanation. Under International Rules, a player assessed a five-minute penalty for fighting is automatically expelled for the duration of the game; under Canadian Amateur Hockey Association Rules, he may return to the ice after five minutes of playing time have elapsed.

Hockey players do not, naturally, admire the prospects of ejection from a game for fighting. Consequently, their misdeeds are kept to less serious (according to the rule book), yet more injurious infractions, including slashing, high-sticking and elbowing. And it was that type of transgression which instigated the near-brawl that developed Friday.

There will, of course, be those who insist the Varsity team concentrated more on battering the Laval team than beating them. We agree. But we do not suspect for a moment that there are born killers on the Blues; or that some players prefer to maim the opponent rather than to win hockey games.

It is no secret that Varsity teams playing hockey in Montreal and Quebec City are subject to similar treatment. This was particularly true in the opening game of the season, when the officials handling the Quebec City game with Laval were unfamiliar with the International Rules.

The Varsity players were more than upset by unpunished infractions they encountered. Retaliation, which came Friday, is not to be sanctioned; but had there been no cause for reprisal, Harry Neale would still be on the team. And had there been no International Rule code in effect, there would have been no cause.

The Blues gained a great deal of valuable and credible fame in the two games with Whitby Dunlops. Now, it appears one incident has shattered that well-merited recognition; the hockey moguls who shook their heads at suggestions U of T represent Canada in the Olympic Games are shaking them more vigorously now.

But before the Blues are tried, condemned and executed by the jury of public opinion, let this be said. There is a move afoot to correct the basic fallacy which brought about the current trouble; and that move has been started by the "professional hatchet-men" (as a letter to the Editor referred to the Blues) themselves.

Earlier this month, the team submitted a letter to Warren Stevens, Varsity athletic director, requesting a reversion to CAHA rules. The letter voiced the opinion of every member of the team, and the coaching staff, and cited two very pertinent reasons for the request:

1) Until Christmas, there were more penalties called in the league games under International Rules (six games — 101 penalties) than were called last year (six games — 68 penalties) under CAHA rules.

2) The "no body-checking" rule, applicable in the opponents' zone, has resulted in an entirely different type of play than was anticipated. Instead of taking the man out of play with the body, players are now checking with their sticks. This practise, by all the teams, has resulted in too much high-sticking, cuts and hard feelings.

It is apparent, from the above, that the Blues themselves realize the deficiencies in International Rules, and are desirous of rectifying the situation. Tuesday night, the directorate approved a motion to recommend to the O-QAA annual meeting next month that the International Rules be withdrawn.

The decision, unfortunately, is a belated attempt to atone for a grave error in the past. The O-QAA executive committee cannot restore the good name of the Varsity hockey team that dissolved so suddenly last Friday. It cannot absolve Harry Neale — the scapegoat — of his crime, or erase the embarrassment it has caused him.

Neale is an ideal hockey player, and probably one of the best amateur defensemen in Canada today. A month ago, he refused a $500 offer to play five games with Rochester Americans of the American Hockey League; instead, he remained to help Blues in their quest for a fifth consecutive college championship.

But now, Neale will report to Sudbury Wolves of the Northern Ontario Hockey Association Senior A series. Behind him, he leaves a disturbing smear on college hockey. It may be little satisfaction to him to realize efforts will be made to remedy the circumstances to which he fell victim.

President Bissell once wrote a paragraph concerning intramural athletics; but his words are applicable to sport on the intercollegiate level as well. We quote: "The game here is the thing, and the end is the personal pleasure, excitement and stimulation that come partly from one's own efforts, partly from teamwork."

Dr. Bissell has placed university athletics in an admirable light; the onus to prevent that light from dimming rests as much on the administration as on the participant.

Blues Take Ring Title Edging Queen's 19-18

The enchanted sky itself was falling,
The chattering crowd did sweetly hum;
'Twas then I heard that voice a-calling,
Come on, get up, get up, You Bum.

KINGSTON, Ont. — Special — University of Toronto Blues retained possession of the Intercollegiate senior team boxing championship, edging host Queen's University, 19-18, in a hard-hitting, colorful tournament.

Blues collected four individual championships. Queen's had the same number, while McGill, who finished third in overall points with eight, could manage only a single title.

Under the scoring system, four points are awarded for a weight championship and one for each losing competitor in a final bout. That's where Varsity gained its extra point.

Toronto's Art Vachon retained the 130-pound title by decisioning McGill's Don Cochrane. Vachon had previously scored a technical knockout over Michael Johnson of Queen's.

Boris Petcoff, whose wife gave birth to their third child — a boy — on Friday, copped a close, hard-fought decision from Larry Corcoran of McGill in the 150-pound class.

Varsity freshman Roger Kirkpatrick became the new 140-pound champion, by bounding out a decision over Queen's Gerry Leger. Leger had gained the final by downing McGill's Dave Dickinson.

Toronto's fourth title went to Michael Butt, who dropped Ed Wood (Queen's) Friday and Redman Mike Marshall Saturday to capture the 165-pound crown.

Lorne Kirby, Robert Doods and heavyweight Mike Chykaluk were Varsity pugilists who earned final berths and gained the three extra points that gave Toronto the team championship.

Chykaluk failed in a bid to dethrone McGill's Dick Hinton, the Intercollegiate heavyweight defending champion. Chykaluk went down twice before the referee stopped the fight and awarded Hinton, a TKO.

Semi-finals

130-lb: Vachon (T) scored a TKO over Johnson (Q).

140-lb: Leger (Q) decisioned Dickinson (M).

145-lb: O'Brian (Q) decisioned Mackzo (M).

150-lb: Petcoff (T) decisioned Day (Q).

155-lb: Doods (T) decisioned Mowat (M).

165-lb: Butt (T) decisioned Wood (Q).

175-lb: Rochester (M) decisioned Godwin (T).

Heavy: Hinton (M) decisioned Woolgar (Q).

Finals

130-lb: Vachon (T) decisioned Cochrane (M).

135-lb: Almqvist (Q) decisioned Cox (M).

140-lb: Kirkpatrick (T) decisioned Leger (Q).

145-lb: O'Brian (Q) scored a TKO over Kirby (T).

150-lb: Petcoff (T) decisioned Corcoran (M).

155-lb: Wood (Q) decisioned Doods (T).

165-lb: Butt (T) decisioned Marshall (M).

175-lb: Hyland (Q) scored a TKO over Rochester (M).

Heavy: Hinton (M) scored a TKO over Chykaluk (T).

The Scoreboard

INTERCOLLEGIATE

HOCKEY

	P	W	L	T	F	A	Pts.
TORONTO	10	9	1	0	83	29	18
Laval	9	6	2	1	50	39	13
Montreal	10	3	5	2	45	40	8
McGill	11	0	10	1	21	91	1

Wednesday's Results

Laval 6 McGill 2

Future Games

Saturday—McGill at Laval.

Monday—Laval at Montreal.

BASKETBALL

	P	W	L	T	Pts.
Assumption	9	8	1	0	16
Western	9	7	2	0	14
TORONTO	9	4	5	0	8
Queen's	9	4	5	0	8
McMaster	9	2	7	0	4
McGill	9	2	7	0	4

Wednesday's Result

TORONTO 58 Western 56

Remaining Games

Saturday—TORONTO at McMaster.

Western at Assumption. McGill at Queen's.

Important U.S. Geologist To Lecture Here Monday

Dr. L. R. Laudon, Professor of Geology at the University of Wisconsin, will lecture on "Paleotectonic History, Western North America" here next Monday.

Study Old Age Here

A new University of Toronto project to study the kinds of problems faced by business and professional women of retirement age is to be directed by Dr. Mary Lawrence.

The study in gerontology was made possible by a gift of $25,000 from the Soroptimist Federation of the Americas Inc.

The program, directed by Dr. Lawrence will be supervised by a committee of professors from the Faculty of Medicine, the Schools of Social Work and Nursing and the Dept's of Psychology and Sociology.

Dr. Lawrence will be assisted by a team of graduate students with a particular interest in gerontology.

Dr. Lawrence, a University of Toronto graduate who earned her Ph.D. in 1953 has been senior psychologist, Nova Scotia Department of Public Health since 1955.

GOOD HAIRCUT
RIGHT NEAR HERE
4 BARBERS—NO WAITING
600 University Avenue
Just below College
In the Basement
Open Monday through Friday
8 a.m. to 6 p.m.
ONLY $1.00

Do You Really Know How To Breathe?

Want to feel better in mind and body? Want more pep and vitality? Capt. William Knowles, who has worked for 30 years on physical fitness, asks you to try a few simple breathing tests. The way you breathe, he says in March Reader's Digest, has much to do with your energy and endurance.

Get Reader's Digest today:
43 articles of lasting interest.

CLASSIFIED ADS.

#1 DOWN BUYS ANY MAKE
Brand new typewriters, $59 up
Some models $30 off. Free home demonstration. Free typing course.
1959 models rented, lowest rates
375 Jane-Humber, RO 6-1103.

TYPIST (Electric)
Fast, accurate, personalized service.
Theses, essays, letters, dictation.
Reasonable rates. Irene Kenyon,
146 Bernard Avenue,
WA 3-4011.

MATHEMATICS COACH
Qualified and experienced, offers private instruction at all levels.
L. Levy, RO. 6-3153.

Dr. Laudon is one of eight earth scientists sponsored jointly by Imperial Oil Co. and British American Oil Co. for the Distinguished Lecture Committee of the American Association of Petroleum Geologists.

He will speak before 43 geological societies and university groups in the United States and Canada before March 13.

Dr. Laudon has spent many summers in the field and has also made an encompassing survey of the geologic literature of North America. From the data obtained he has reconstructed geologic conditions in Western North America of the past millions of years, and has traced the gradual evolution of the region from a great sea to a permanent land area.

The U of T lecture on Monday will be in room 320 of the Mining Building.

SUMMER EMPLOYMENT FOR WOMEN

There are openings on our staff for an assistant to the dietitian; a tennis instructor; an archery instructor; a handicrafts instructor; a campcraft instructor; Red Cross Water Safety instructors and a registered nurse. Applications from those with other camping skills will also be considered. Minimum age 19. For July and August at girls' camp in Algonquin Park. Write Camp Tanamakoon, 24 Wilberton Rd., Toronto 7, or telephone HU. 1-3704.

PROF. NORTHROP FRYE

Speaks Tonight On

"Canadians and Literature"

Hart House Library Evening

7.30 p.m. in the Library

TONIGHT

ALL MEN OF THE CAMPUS WELCOME

Summer Employment

Certified Scholarship Plan. Canada's most progressive direct sales organization offers you this tremendous opportunity. Neat appearance and car essential. Call JOHN PRETE, RU. 1-1841.

Skrog
says...

"Optimist or pessimist? Here's how to tell"

Are you an optimist or a pessimist? There's a world of difference between the two. Here's a simple test to help you decide which type you are. Are you inclined to say, "My glass is half-empty" or do you say, "My glass is half-full"? If the latter, you're an optimist.

But don't be discouraged if you turn out to be a pessimist. Unbounded optimism can be dangerous. Those who look upon this as the best of all possible worlds are apt to be those who just let things happen. However, the pessimist can see that the future might not be completely rosy, and plans accordingly. A little dash of pessimism is not only healthy, it's necessary.

This is especially true when it comes to buying insurance. Here is one area where a little caution about the future can make the difference between confident living and continuing uncertainty. The NALAC Family Plan, for instance, protects Mom, Dad, and as many children as they might now or ever have, with just one reasonable premium. And when your family is protected by NALAC's Family Plan, you can be as optimistic as you like. Find out more about it soon.

Confidently.

H. P. Skoglund
H. P. SKOGLUND,
President

...insure confident living
NORTH AMERICAN
Life and Casualty Company

LIFE • SICKNESS • ACCIDENT • GROUP

CHARLES E. REA — Toronto Manager
47-49 LaPlante Ave. Phone EM: 6-1691

Meds Capture Skule Cannon

TUITION PLAN PROPOSED

A permanent record of these and other exciting events can be yours in years to come if you buy your 1959 TORONTONENSIS now from your faculty rep or the S.A.C. Office.

Prof. Frye Digs In:

Canadian Writers the Worst

By JOHN R. COLOMBO

A leading Canadian critic last night told a Hart House audience that Canadian fiction "is easily the worst written in the world."

Prof. Northrop Frye of Victoria College spoke to about 35 students at a Hart House Library Evening. He said the poor quality of Canadian prose is due to lack of conviction.

"If I were to collect an anthology of Canadian prose, I would begin with scholarly articles and follow with work by Canadian journalists. Political thinkers would come next and then, after a long pause, Canadian fiction."

Prof. Frye said that Canadian has finally achieved "an environmental reality of some kind. Today Canada is less a series of northward extensions than ever before."

"Canadian history has moved in a reverse fashion to American history, and there is an internal frontier in Canada, rather than a national one as in the U.S."

"This results," he said, "in Canadians being isolated from one another, although there are pockets of homogeneous communities where locales are specifically local."

Canadian literature, Prof. Frye explained, deals with tragic themes like tiny communities being pitted against indifferent nature. "This is commonly symbolized by monsters, such as those of Pratt and Birney."

Prof. Frye also saw a comic theme in Canadian literature which deals with the problem of primary communication. Many early writers and thinkers, he noted, were deeply concerned with the fur trade, railways, fishing and exploring.

"Approaching early Canada was like being a tiny Jonah entering an immense whale. However, recent writers have succeeded somewhat in reducing this to an imaginatively manageable shape."

The myth, he explained, was originally the description of a man who could do anything. "This means, of course, that the author of the myth could make his hero do what he wanted him to do."

"What remains after many authors have used a specific myth or metaphor in different ways is an implausible action. This is the abstract pattern or archetype found throughout all art."

He added that the myth is "the formalizing or stylizing element in poetry. Some poets may prefer to back into a myth rather than advance towards it."

Prof. Frye said that the early 19th century Canadian poetry was a search for a new form. "There was an incongruity between its sophisticated romantic forms and its primitive, almost archaic, feelings."

"Unfortunately Canada has no ghosts or cycles to help the writer. Canada lacks the indefinable look of a lived-in country," he said.

During a question period, Prof.

Prof. Northrop Frye

Frye said that Robinson Crusoe was much like the early Canadian settlers because he imposed a foreign pattern on the country.

"Since a literature has roots as well as blossoms," he explained, "a new approach had to be made to this country before its artists could respond creatively."

"But there is still a native strain of inarticulateness. McLennan's novel 'Two Solitudes' describes this isolation of two aspects of Canadian life well."

SEEMS THERE'S a tiger in the back yard or something. Anyhow at left, Maureen Fox is pretty excited about what she has to say to Molly Wade. The two are in rehearsal for Hart House's next production: "Tiger At The Gates". (Varsity Staff Photo by Cavenagh)

Sufficient Support

Send Letter

University College lecturer David Gauthier's controversial letter to Prime Minister Diefenbaker will "in all probability be sent next week", Mr. Gauthier said last night.

"I think there will prove sufficient support to warrant sending the letter", he said. "Enough inquiries have been made to prove people are interested in acquainting others with the problem."

The letter, now circulating among faculty and students by Mr. Gauthier, condemns the government for abandoning the Avro Arrow and warns against making Canada "a nuclear satellite of the United States".

Mr. Gauthier last night denied he was criticizing the government for dropping the Arrow program alone. "Rather it is the replacing of the program with warheads for Bomarc missiles", he said.

Mr. Gauthier said he had four students canvassing for students, and could not at present give an accurate estimate of the number of signatures obtained so far.

One canvasser, Dan Goldstick (I UC) said he has collected 23 signatures, including that of CCF club president Jerry Caplan. UC philosophy professor W. J. McCurdy is also reported to have signed the letter.

The petition requests the government drop its plans for nuclear armament. "We call upon you to reject nuclear armaments for Canadians, and to advocate controlled nuclear disarmament for the world", the letter says.

Large Sum Available In Alumni Loan Fund

The U of T Alumni Association announced Wednesday application forms are available for obtaining financial aid from the Alumni Loan Fund.

Loans are available in amounts of up to $200 for second-year students, $300 for third year and $400 for fourth year or more. Students may reapply for loans, but not more than $500 may be outstanding at any time.

The loans are available to full-time students, and are made on the basis of merit, need and character. Five per cent interest rates will be initiated at a date decided on by the Loan Committee, and loans are usually repayable not more than two years after graduation.

"In view of the large sum available for loans, we are most anxious to assist students", W. A. Sheppard, Loan Fund Committee chairman, said.

Application forms are available at the Alumni House, 18 Willcocks St.

THE VARSITY

Vol. LXXVIII — No. 83

Friday, February 27th, 1959

Parking Lot Flare-Up 'A Misunderstanding'

Administrative vice-president F. R. Stone last night termed the Students Administrative Council-administration controversy over control of parking lots "a misunderstanding."

"I think the SAC does not have a full understanding of the situation", he said.

"The university's stand was first laid down as part of the expansion plans drawn up several years ago", he said.

"The plan — then and now — was to utilize space as we got it for paid parking on a temporary basis", he said.

The controversy was touched off Monday last when Mr. Stone announced the university would control any such lots.

At Wednesday's SAC meeting members said they felt such action would be usurping a council prerogative for control of student parking.

One council member said such action would be "a great discourtesy".

SAC views on student parking apparently were formed earlier this year when the SAC applied and received permission to use a vacant lot north of the Dental Building for paid student parking.

"At that time we told them it could only be on a short-term basis. Permission was granted in this instance because we had run into a snag in the erection of the building planned for the lot", Mr. Stone said.

"We told them at the time the lot could only be on a short term basis as we would need the lot when we were able to proceed with construction of the building".

"It's not fair to say we are usurping a SAC plan", he said. "We are merely carrying out a policy formulated several years ago".

The present SAC lot north of Hart House was granted to the council for special purpose — to provide parking space for students who needed cars, either because they were physically disabled or because distance-factors make it highly inconvenient for them to travel via public transportation, he said.

"I think the whole misunderstanding came about because there has never been any occasion to publicize the administration's policies with regard to student parking", he said.

"Our stand does not represent a change in plans, and we're not trying to compete with the council", he added.

Details of policy regarding future paid parking lots have not been worked out yet, he added.

News Snaps

New Vic Chancellor . . .

The new Chancellor of Victoria University was announced yesterday. He is Louis O. Breithaupt, former Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario.

Present Chancellor Lester B. Pearson retires after six years service. He has completed two terms of office, maximum time allowed by the Victoria Constitution.

Mr. Breithaupt will be installed April 6 in time to confer divinity degrees in May.

Meds Exceed Quota . . .

The "bloodsuckers" have proven themselves bloodgivers.

Totals of the University of Toronto blood campaign last week placed the Faculty of Medicine in third to last place.

But the total did not include over 200 Meds' pints donated at the regular Red Cross blood Donor Clinic at 67 College St.

"People might have thought we were just bloodsuckers," said Charles Gonzales, Meds blood campaign chairman, last night.

The donations raise Meds total to well over the quota set for the faculty.

Flying Club Pro-Arrow . . .

The Federal government's decision to drop the Arrow program came under further fire Wednesday night at a meeting of the U of T Flying Club.

Club members accused Prime Minister Diefenbaker of "leading the country into oblivion" by destroying one of its greatest achievements.

"Worse than that," Club President Tony Valenti said, "no alternative plan was offered to make use of Canada's highly skilled aircraft industry".

"There seems to be no logical reason, either political, economic or military for doing something which in effect turns over Canada's defence to the United States."

Other business at the meeting was the election of the club's executive for the coming year.

Miss Frauke Voss (III Vic) is the new president.

Colleges Refuse Grants

MONTREAL (CUP) — The National Conference of Canadian Universities reported last week that all Quebec universities have returned their federal university grants.

This means there is now a total of $17,000,000 held in trust by the NCCU for the Quebec universities.

The grant is based on $1.50 per head of Canada's population. The universities in each province divide it according to student enrolments as related to provincial population.

McGill University would have received $1,648,600 and the University of Montreal a grant of $2,744,955.63.

Institutions to accept federal grants were Presbyterian College of Montreal, affiliated with McGill, which got $5,497 and College Marie-de-France, affiliated with the University of Paris, which netted

University Lutheran Chapel

SUNDAY SERVICE — 11 a.m.
THURSDAY SERVICE—8 p.m.
Student Club, every 2nd and 4th Thursday
at 7:45 p.m.
610 SPADINA (below Harbord)
WA. 2-1884 — WA. 3-6840

ST. PAUL'S AVENUE ROAD UNITED CHURCH

121 AVENUE RD.
(2 blocks north of Bloor)
Minister
Rev. T. W. HAZLEWOOD
B.A., B.D., D.T.M.
Student Minister—David Gourlie
11 a.m.—"Pharisees in Today's Church" — David Gourlie
7 p.m. — "Christ Gives Happiness"
— Dr. Hazlewood
"THE FRIENDLY CHURCH"

ASSISTANT CONDUCTORS

University of Toronto SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA and UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO CHORUS

Applications for the above two positions should be in the hands of the undersigned not later than TUESDAY, MARCH 3.
A. E. M. PARKES,
Associate Secretary, Students' Administrative Council.

The Students' Administrative Council

Announces a Concert by

The University of Toronto Symphony Orchestra

Professor Robert Rosevear, conducting

SUNDAY EVENING, MARCH 8th, 9 p.m.
CONVOCATION HALL

and a Concert by

The University of Toronto Chorus

Professor Richard Johnson, conducting

SUNDAY, MARCH 15th, 9 p.m.

GREAT HALL, HART HOUSE

All students, staff, graduates and friends of the University are cordially invited

the 'university' by Birkdale

The past few years have brought about a noticeable change in men's apparel. We're in a period of natural, unaffected-looking clothing: Easy-to-wear, easy-to-care for; easy-to-pack. The 'University' is a good example! Fabric-muted English wool flannel. Styling—shorter jacket, less padding, deep centre vent, rayon foulard lining. Colours—grey, lovat, midnight blue.

Sizes 36 to 44.

Eaton Price,
2-piece, suit 79.50

PHONE UN. 1-5111
Eaton's Main Store,
Second Floor,
Dept. 229

only at
EATON'S

UofT Debaters Winners At McGill Tournament

Four U of T debaters Wednesday returned victorious from a debating tournament at McGill University last weekend, debates commissioner Robin Beamish said last night.

The U of T team placed third out of 22 teams, and missed debating finals by one point. The four accumulated 486 points out of a possible 600.

Varsity's Bill Graham (II Trin) scored the highest number of individual points of all the tournament's debaters, Graham was given 97 points out of a possible 100.

The team arrived home to welcome back another member of the UofT Debating Union, Leo Gray (II Law). Gray was involved in an automobile accident two weeks ago while returning from a debate at Harvard University in Cambridge, Mass. and was released from hospital Tuesday.

The U of T team in the Harvard debate was "well received" by tournament judges, Beamish said. Their parliamentary style received "good comments" and U of T debaters "practically set a record for American debating" by attracting an audience to their debates.

The U of T affirmative team won five and lost three debates. UofT members Peter Dembski (II SMC) and Ken Wyman (III UC) have been tentatively chosen to represent U of T at a debating tournament at the University of Pittsburgh next weekend, Beamish said.

The two will participate in an exhibition audience debate with the University of Miami which opens the tournament, Beamish said.

Clear Varsity Editor

Varsity editor Doug Marshall was absolved from all blame Wednesday night in connection with charges of libel and unethical practice brought before the Students' Administrative Council earlier by the Engineering Society.

Publications commissioner Alec Havrilt said the commission had investigated the charges and "decided that nothing unethical had taken place on the issue, on the night of Sunday, Feb. 15, contrary to journalistic practice".

Charges of libel were withdrawn after Marshall apologized to the Engineering Society, Havrilt said.

PARK ROAD BAPTIST CHURCH

1 BLOCK N. & E. OF BLOOR-YONGE

Minister: Rev. MURRAY J. S. FORD, M.A., B.D.
VICTOR E. GRAHAM, Organist

SERVICES AT 10:45 a.m. and 7:30 p.m.

A Cordial Invitation to all Students to Attend Inspiring Services

Rosedale Presbyterian Church

Mt. Pleasant Rd. (2 blocks north of Bloor, 2 blocks east of Yonge)

Minister: Rev. E. S. MACKAY, M.A.

Public Worship — 11 a.m.
Evening Service — 7:30 p.m.

Continuing with the Lenten Series
"The Way of The Cross"
8:30 p.m. — Senior Youth Group

Trinity United Church

427 Bloor St. W at
Walmer Road

Rev. J. Robt. Watt, BA, BD,
Minister

John W. Linn,
Organist and Choirmaster

11 a.m.

"Right Through It!"

7:30 p.m.

My Problem Is . . .

(5) "I Can't Help Finding Fault".

A Series of Sermons Based on Life's Problems.

Full Choir

8:30 p.m. — Fireside Hour
All Students Invited to These Services. A Warm Welcome Awaits You.

ST. ANDREW'S United Church

117 Bloor E., near
Yonge St. Subway

Minister:

REV. WILLIAM BRIGGS,
M.A., B.D., Ph.D.

Organist and Choir Director:
EDGAR GOODAIRE

11 a.m.

"The Cross Interpreted"
The Minister

7:30 p.m.

"The Strategy of Love"
Rev. George G. D.
Kilpatrick, D.D.

Holy Communion at Both Services

Students cordially invited
to attend

CLASSIFIED ADS.

$1 DOWN BUYS ANY MAKE
Brand new typewriters. $59 up.
Some models $80 off. Free home
demonstration. Free typing course.
1959 models rented, lowest rates.
375 Jane-Humber, RO 6-1103.

TYPIST (Electric)
Fast, accurate, personalized service.
Theses, essays, letters, dictation.
Reasonable rates. Irene
Kenyon, 146 Bernard Avenue,
WA 3-4011.

Trinity College Chapel

WEEKDAY SERVICES

7:30 a.m.—Holy Eucharist
8:45 a.m.—Matins
6:00 p.m.—Evensong

Tuesdays and Thursdays —
12:15 p.m.—Holy Eucharist
Wednesdays — 8:10 a.m. Holy Eucharist

Sunday Services
8:00 a.m.—Matins
8:15 a.m.—Holy Eucharist
9:15 a.m.—Holy Eucharist
6:30 p.m.—Evensong

EVERYBODY WELCOME

HILLEL

Friday, Feb. 27th; 8:30 p.m.

Topic: JEWS IN DRAMA

Lecturer: Rabbi Kamerling

Sunday, March 1st, 9 p.m.

Prof. Bruno Morawetz

on
"TEMPORALISM — A CHALLENGE TO THE JEW"

Knox Presbyterian Church

Spadina and Harbord

Invites all students to join us in Worship at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m.
An award-winning film "A Cry in The Night" will be shown at 8:30 p.m.

Bloor St. United Church

300 BLOOR STREET W.

Ministers

Rev. Dr. Ernest Marshall Howse

Rev. J. Stanley Kennedy

11:00 a.m.

TIME AND CHANCE

Dr. E. M. Howse

7:00 p.m.

A STRONG MAN'S WEAKNESS

H. E. Bradley, B.A., Sc.

The Evening Service will be conducted by the Young People's Group

Campus Club will meet following the Evening Service. Speaker, Miss Granger — Mental Health Association of Toronto.

CLOSING

All-University

CHURCH SERVICE

Sunday, March 1st

11:00 A.M.

Great Hall

Hart House

Speaker

REV. CHRISTIAN BAETA

UNIVERSITY COLLEGE OF GHANA

Cody Memorial Lecturer

Subject

"THE GOSPEL FOR AFRICA TODAY"

SAC-Backed Concerts Hitting Campus Soon

The Students' Administrative Council Wednesday night heard plans for two musical concerts and tape-recording of a valuable record collection.

Music committee chairman Walter McLean told SAC the U of T Symphony Orchestra will give a concert Sunday, March 8 at 9 p.m. in Convocation Hall. The orchestra, under the direction of Prof. R. A. Rosevear, will require a specially extended platform in Convocation Hall, McLean said.

The University Chorus will sing under the direction of Prof. A. R. Johnston in the Hart House Great Hall at 9 p.m. March 15.

McLean proposed SAC move to tape-record 75 valuable records in the Carnegie collection of which the council is custodian. Cost for tape-recording would be about $120; McLean said, but the move would safeguard the collection.

Form Tri-College Council

OTAWA (CUP)—Three Ottawa universities have joined forces to form Canada's first tri-university students' council.

The council, consisting of Carleton College, Ottawa University and St. Patrick's College, began meeting late last year.

One purpose of the council is to stimulate friendly inter-university relations.

ORGAN RECITAL

Charles Peaker
MONDAY

Convocation Hall — 5 p.m.

SUMMER CAMP EMPLOYMENT

Positions now open for both males and females in the following categories: Riding, Arts and Crafts, Canoe Tripping, Section Leaders, Group Counsellors. Write or phone for information and application.

CAMP NEW MOON

600 Bay Street, EM. 6-6128

The Modern Sound of Jazz

HOUSE of HAMBOURG

New Location — Ward-Price Galleries
23 Grenville Street
(One block north of College between Yonge and Bay)

TONIGHT—MIDNIGHT to 4 A.M.
Butch Watanabe Ron Rully
Bill Britto Ed Bickert
Alex Lazaroff Don Thompson
Jack Lander

SATURDAY, MIDNIGHT to 4 A.M.
North Amadia Harold Holmes
Alex Lazaroff Jack Lander
Ed Bickert Don Thompson
Butch Watanabe Jerry Toth

SUNDAY NIGHT
9 P.M. TO 12:30 A.M.
Ron Rully Butch Watanabe
Ed Bickert Jerry Toth
Jack Lander

Free Parking Opposite
Information and Reservations
WA. 3-6068

Announce Courses Soon

Charter York University

Toronto's second university advanced one step nearer to reality yesterday when the Provincial legislature's private bills committee approved an act to incorporate York University.

Immediately following the committee's decision, Air Marshal W. A. Curtis announced that steps are being taken to publish courses for next fall.

The university is to be built in or near Toronto. Offers of land for a site have been received from 25 municipalities in the Metro area.

Dr. W.C. Booth, deputy minister of education, told the committee the department was "heartily in favor of the new university".

"While long-term plans call for a fully integrated and equipped institution in or near the greater metropolitan area, current plans call for courses on a starting basis in temporary quarters". Air Marshal Curtis said.

"The various sub-committees dealing with curricula, property, facilities, and general financing have been working towards this end for the past 18 months," he said.

The legislature's committee lauded Curtis, James R. Kidd, Stanley H. Deeks, A.D. Margison and other university founders for their work in this project.

Ghana Minister Here

A leading African Christian, Rev. Christian G. Baeta, a visiting professor at Union Theological Seminary in New York City, will conduct the All University Church Service Sunday March 1 in the Great Hall of Hart House.

A senior lecturer in Divinity at the University College of Ghana, Baeta holds the positions of vice-chairman of the International Missionary Council and chairman of the Christian Council of Ghana.

Last summer Rev. Baeta was guest speaker at the world convention of the World Council of Christian Education in Tokyo and he has also been a member of the former Gold Coast Legislative Assembly.

THE VARSITY

Editor-In-Chief — 1959-60

Applications for the above position will be received by the Associate Secretary of the Students' Administrative Council in the S.A.C. Building up to 12 NOON, TUESDAY, MARCH 3rd.

A. E. M. PARKES,
Associate Secretary,
Students' Administrative Council.

TORONTONENSIS

Editor-In-Chief — 1959-60

Applications for the above position will be received by the Associate Secretary of the Students' Administrative Council in the S.A.C. Building, up to 12:00 NOON, TUESDAY, MARCH 3rd.

A. E. M. PARKES,
Associate Secretary,
Students' Administrative Council.

SUMMER WORK For Teachers - Students

We have interesting office positions for you during the summer months. Work for us the days you want, a week, a month, or the whole summer.

We need stenographers, typists and office machine operators. You will be paid weekly at top rates. Come in or call for more information.

MANPOWER

57 BLOOR ST. W. — WA. 5-1174
150 Offices Throughout the World

SHERATON HOTELS

are proud to announce the recent appointment of

Mr. Lionel T. Colman, Trinity II
as U. of T. Student Representative 1959-60

For information regarding Sheraton's
Student-Faculty Plan

Please telephone Mr. Colman at WA. 2-2514

OR

The Assistant Manager on duty, the King Edward Sheraton

Sheraton Hotels in Canada:

Niagara Falls	— Sheraton Brock
Hamilton	— Sheraton Connaught
Toronto	— King Edward Sheraton
Montreal	— Sheraton Mt. Royal
	— Laurentian

Don't This Week-end Spend All Your Money

Because you'll need four dollars and fifty cents next week to order your 156-page TORONTONENSIS '59, the yearbook with the most for the least.

Booths in most colleges next week or order from the SAC Office.

Frothy-light,
loopy

Kitten

MOHAIR

Light as a handful of mist . . . colourful as a sun-drenched garden, new Kitten deep-looped mohair sweaters are creating fashion-excitement everywhere! Illustrated: versatile suburban beauty with collar and set-in pockets. $15.95 . . . at all good shops everywhere. Look for the name Kitten!

HART HOUSE THEATRE'S FIFTIETH ALL-UNIVERSITY PRODUCTION

Christopher Fry's Translation
of Giraudoux's,

TIGER AT THE GATES

Directed by Robert Gill

Same Special Student Rate $1.00
Saturday, Feb. 28th, to Saturday, March 7th, at 8.30 p.m.
Box Office Open 10 a.m. - 6 p.m. — WA. 3-5244

Two Tickets Only
On Each A.T.L. Card

stay

Printed elsewhere on this page is a statement of faith by one of the more honest and least sensational rebels in the faculty of the University of Toronto. Students who have studied under Professor Bruno Morawetz, students who have listened to the many discussions in which he has been an active participant, students who have taken advantage of his willingness to talk frankly and openly about problems in the world around us, all respect his shy sincerity and his frank search for truth.

There is no need here to repeat Professor Morawetz's reasons for wishing to leave the university community. They are clearly and adequately expressed by himself. We can, however, state that his prime charge that universities have become stagnant pools where old ideas and dead philosophies putrefy in the general slime of the "status quo" has been, is and will be endorsed by every member of this student body who has learned to think for himself.

It was just a century ago that John Stuart Mill broke free from a similar "status quo" and, blazing a path for liberty, proved that controversy and discussion were the soundest guide to truth in any society worthy of the name. Mill's attack was directed not at the laws of the society but at the suffocating atmosphere of established public opinion.

A similar atmosphere has grown up in our modern universities — the last community which should discourage the expression of new and radical opinion. Old ideas are not challenged and new ones are smothered because too many of our intellectual leaders appreciate the general morality of our age. They know, as Professor Morawetz says, it is better to shake than to bite the hand that feeds you.

But somebody has to have the courage to bite, and in this university there remain a few, of whom Professor Morawetz was one, who possess both the initiative and the honesty to break free from the strangle-hold of majority opinion. Too often the effectiveness of their rebellion is diminished by the sensational manner with which they call attention to their individualism. Some, and Professor Morawetz was one, achieve the same ends without publicity or affectation.

Who, asks Professor Morawetz, is to do our radical thinking? This is a question which students on this university campus have been asking themselves ever since the Professor announced his intention to resign. The radical thinkers seem to be departing as rapidly as we can learn to understand them. They leave a barren and uninteresting future for us to contemplate.

Professor Morawetz has decided to direct what intellectual gifts he possesses to the issues of our times. We, the students of the universities will be most concerned with the issues of our times. It is we who will have to face the realities of the present day.

It is on these grounds that we sincerely beg Professor Morawetz to reconsider his resignation. We ask him not to desert the ship, especially at a time when the students, the men before the mast, are for the first time in a good many years beginning to appreciate the corruption he describes. A fresh and encouraging breeze is sweeping through the quarterdeck and with all hands in mutiny, stale authority will not long remain in command.

Professor Morawetz's gain will be our loss, and it is not without a touch of selfishness on the part of this generation that we ask him to stay where he can do the most good.

a personal imperative

The Golden Wand

By BRUNO MORAWETZ
Assistant Professor of Ethics

In the present exhibition in Hart House there are a number of excellent photographs, some much more arresting than others. The one which arrested my attention the most depicted a group of students sitting on the floor of the Great Hall during the annual Christmas Party. Their faces radiated joy and laughter and I reflected on how glorious it must be to be a person who can bring so much happiness into these lovely young faces. I consoled myself reluctantly that not everyone can be a Danny Kaye and that each of us must bring the little gift which it is his lot to bestow. I would be happy if it were my lot to bring mirth and laughter into the lives of people and I regret, if my gift draws attention to the more serious side of life. Since this is a contribution I feel called upon to make I welcomed the suggestion of The Varsity to share some of my thoughts with the University Community in this manner.

My resignation from the University has already received much more attention than it deserves, yet there are a few features which have not yet found expression. Long before the idea of temporalism came into my head I was brought face to face with the age-old dilemma, at what price to sell one's soul. St. Paul observed quite rightly that a married man must make compromises since his duty toward his family and his duty to God or the Truth may clash on occasions. The first duty constrained me to remain in a remunerative position, the duty toward God or Truth prompted me not to remain a part of a program in the humanities serving God and Truth most inadequately.

"Success" Machine

Our educational system has sold its soul in the open market and prostituted its principles. Our universities are governed by citizens who have "done well" and because they have "done well" they govern. Success in the economic domain becomes the yardstick of every other kind of success and so the University is turned into a machine recreating beings made in the image of their makers. Without blushing, most parents and students will not hesitate to admit that the purpose of University education is to fit you for a better job which in their terms means a better paid job. This devastating concept of education is so deeply entrenched that it seems strange even to draw attention to it.

My one faint plea to the students of this university is that they be unafraid in their own questioning.
—Bruno Morawetz

The concept of life as a dedication is almost lost and every effort is made to discourage this old-fashioned kind of thinking. This is most evident when it is insisted that we must pay teachers more in order to have better teachers. That the life of service in one's chosen vocation should be the real inspiration for education, may perhaps form the theme at commencement exercises, but only fools would be expected to take it seriously. So well have we succeeded in imparting this spirit that an overseas student from a newly liberated and underdeveloped country stated to me, "I would like to stay in Canada after graduation, back home there are no jobs for M.A.'s". No statement could symbolize more shockingly the betrayal of our educational system.

Man, A Creator

The "better pay" concept of education is a denial of everything Hebrew, Christian or Greek which we proudly proclaim as our distinctive heritage, for it views man basically as a consuming animal. Recently an editorial asserted that we should import people to Canada to help us eat up our agricultural surplus! If man is created in God's image then God should be represented as primarily a consumer-God. If this is not our image of God then his essence lies in his creativity. Man's essence must also lie in his creativity and his creativity lies in his work. Not how much pay he receives, but what he creates or works at, determines what kind of life he leads. Man must be first and foremost a creator, a man with a vocation and only secondarily a breadwinner. We in the West have inverted this basic relationship and I would like to urge all young people to pay heed to their vocation, their creative activity in life and bread-winning will take care of itself. Instead of the creative we revere the procreative aspects of life. Not until we shed this decadent, purely materialistic attitude will we deserve to survive as a civilization.

Since we now measure everything in terms of the standard of living, i.e. how much each individual is enabled to consume, the university

Honest intellectual conversation among students is as sparse as ever, but where it has sprung up recently the words "temporalism" and "Morawetz" have seldom escaped mention. Students have indulged in much speculation as to the reasons why Professor Morawetz has resigned his post in Trinity College in order to retire with his family to a farm in the country. There has also been a great deal of discussion about the Professor's incomplete theories for a new world government. The Varsity is thus grateful to Professor Morawetz for allowing it to print a statement by him explaining the reasons which led him to leave the university.

seems for this purpose, at least, excellently equipped. It turns out adequate numbers of engineers to produce myriads of unnecessary but saleable articles, it turns out industrial psychologists to convince the worker that he is doing a very important job, while the worker suspects all the time that he is here only while the machine to replace him is still too costly. It turns out public relations men to assure everyone that all is well. It turns out skilled advertising men well equipped to sell millions of things which no one wants or needs. Hence, as long as all university graduates find a job the authorities are satisfied that all is well in the best of all possible worlds.

Stagnant Pools

All this would not be so bad if we did not loudly profess ideals which once gave rise to our noble heritage and the Universities themselves. The Universities have become stagnant pools of Conservatism where the realities of the present day are better not mentioned lest they offend the hand which feeds us. It is of course safest to stick to issues so scientific or so remote that they are not likely to offend. An apt commentary is the present meaning of the word "academic". To call a question "academic" is as much as to say it really makes no difference to anyone or anything. Outside the professional faculties "academic" questions form the major preoccupation all too often.

That many of our old ideas are challenged now to an unheard of degree escapes the University community, though not its students. But if you wish to "get ahead" it is best not to mention these challenges and in this way generations grow up unprepared to live in the new kind of world which science, technology and the awakening continents have brought upon us. Our economic and political ideas are still securely attached to the 19th century and we are not preparing our generation for the responsibilities which we now have as world citizens.

The "Tame" Teachers

My position is a difficult one to defend. I cannot point to negligence or evil in the University administration, nor in the teachers who faithfully and conscientiously seek the truth as they see it, nor in the citizens who govern. All of these are part of an even greater machine of which the Government, the Church, the Army, etc. are a part. The members of all these are good and honorable men. Bertrand Russell pointed to a similar situation recently. He was asked "Why do the scientists remain silent about the danger of fall-out?" Pensively he replied that there were two kinds of scientists, the "tamed" and the others. The "tamed" are paid by their governments and they say and do what is expected from them and to the others no one listens. The same applies in other fields where leadership should be expected. I am not suggesting for a moment that our men in responsible positions are dishonest or are consciously corrupting themselves but I am asking very seriously whether they do not silence their misgivings too soon, the very moment when eyebrows might be raised or benefactors hurt.

A Deaf Wand

If all of us in responsible positions were to ask ourselves in the depth of our conscience whether we are doing what we really and deeply believe in, I wonder what most would answer. The politician comforts himself very easily by saying "I know this is not right, but I have to satisfy the voters. After all, politics is only the art of the possible". The clergyman is, no doubt, often moved to the point of proclaiming the real (Continued on Page 6)

THE VARSITY

FOUNDED 1880

Published by

The Students' Administrative Council
of the University of Toronto

Toronto 5, Canada

Member Canadian University Press

The opinions expressed in this paper are those of the editor.

Editor-in-Chief Doug Marshall
Managing Editor Mark Nichols
Editor-without-portfolio Sam Ajzenstat
News Editor Harvey Shepherd

Today's Issue: Morgan Tamplin, Bill Musgrave, Jayne Nesbitt, Kay McCook, Debbie Halper, Sheila Swerling, Terry Bourke, Arlene Glickman, Robey Merker, Paul Conroy, Ivy, Ladd Vornitrag, and haiku to you, Mack.

something old, something new—icons for me and you

The exhibition of Byzantine icons at the Art Gallery of Toronto is worthy of note for purely historical reasons. The collection is representative of a tradition which sacred legend traces back to the portrait of Our Lady painted by St. Luke. Through the centuries it has shown remarkably little change in style for it remained unaffected by the humanist movement of the West and thus retained its essential spiritual quality as well as its original portrait character.

The icon has always represented a holy image for the purpose of bringing the observer into the presence of Christ and His Saints. The icon was usually executed by a monk, and was an act of worship, for the finished painting was a visual prayer. The icon was hung either on the iconostasis, the dividing screen between the sanctuary and the congregation, in the Eastern Orthodox Church, or in the Eastern Orthodox home. In fact the icon was an absolute necessity in the religious home, and it still is. Nowadays certain sophisticated beings claiming no religious loyalties, hang the icon in their homes purely as a focal point of decoration.

Photo by Milne

None of the icons shown in this collection date earlier than the sixteenth century and some are twentieth century examples, but they all bear the trademark of either Russia, Greece, or the Balkans. The technique, that of paint applied to a wood surface, has remained the same throughout the centuries. However the Russian icon displays a divergent trend with the introduction of precious metals, the application of which gradually dominated that of the point.

Of special interest for its sincere simplicity of line and colour is the eighteenth century Balkan icon "Bearded Martyr Saint". A contemporary representation "St. Nicholas" by Marthe Rankine is adequate proof that the traditional technique has prevailed throughout the centuries.

Justifiable credit is due to Mr. Ian Varres for the assemblage of these historical treasures.

Elizabeth Wilson

Ballet: Two New Works

Coming into the home stretch of their Toronto engagement, the National Ballet Company presented "The Fisherman and His Soul" and "Ballad", two works of their young Canadian choreographer, Mr. Grant Strate. Visiting backstage after the performance, Mr. Strate told us how, eight years ago, having just graduated in law from the University of Alberta, he had met Miss Celia Franca in search of talent for her new company. With lots of interest and practically no knowledge of dancing, he had decided to leave the legal bar for the ballet barre. "I had to start at the bottom and learn to dance for a choreographer must first of all be a dancer of considerable experience with a large vocabulary of steps."

Mr. Strate's first effort, "The Fisherman and His Soul" is based on Oscar Wilde's tale of a fisherman who falls in love with a mermaid. Since she has no soul, consummation of love is impossible. He seeks the help of a Sorceress to free himself of his own soul (who is visible on stage) but when, in a moment of weakness, he reunites with him, the mermaid dies of a broken heart.

Of the ballet Mr. Strate says, "I would never be so insane as to say that it is structurally sound." On this point I must agree. Perhaps because it was originally created for television presentation and perhaps because of Mr. Strate's inexperience, the ballet is disjointed and lacks unity. The scenes are so short and the change of mood so rapid that one could not feel the action developed smoothly. The atmosphere never seemed to be established fully enough, thus making some of the movements appear meaningless and irrelevant. On Tuesday night, the pace was slow so that in places where the music should have hushed to a silence of anticipation, one began to wonder if the musicians had lost their place in the music! However, the performance was made enjoyable by the excellent dancing of Lillian Jarvis as the mermaid. She was wonderfully lithe and supple. Also worthy of note is Angela Leigh as the Sorceress who, in a very effective costume, was most bewitching.

The second of Mr. Strate's works is "Ballad" and what an exciting ballet this is! It is set in the early Canadian West and although Mr. Strate has been accused of copying Agnes de Mille and Michael Kidd, his style is all his own. The atmosphere is set by the stiff dances of the older generation who have experienced hardship and sacrifice and the contrast of the gay frolicking of the younger set. Three of the boys do the wildest and most abandoned dance I have seen in a long time. The exuberance and fun was quite contagious. A stranger called Ben enters and, though he falls in love with Rose, the lovely young girl, he is forced together with her plain older sister. In the ensuing fight the stranger kills an old man and is dragged off to be lynched. The three women are left to mourn—the young girl, bewildered and lost, the older sister in grief and pain, and the old mother in restrained despair. It is an electrifying scene and as they move about, together and yet apart, the lights gradually dim, the music quietsens, until the curtain silently drops.

In briefly mentioning the other ballets presented, I would like to single out Jacqueline Ivings for her beautiful performance as "Prayer" in the third act of Coppelia, Betty Pope's sparkling Swanhilda in the same, and Lois Smith and David Adams' excellent pas de deux in Les Syphides. When he lifted her, one did not feel that he was holding a human being of flesh and blood (and getting yards of tulle in his face into the bargain) but that if he did not hold on to her she might float away.

Diana Ede

MAHLER RESUSCITATED

The York Concert Society is up to its old tricks again, providing better music than the general run of Torontonians deserve. The most recent instance was Wednesday night's concert at Massey Hall, the first of the 1959 season's five concerts.

To warm up his musicians (the Toronto Symphony Orchestra in better form than we can ever remember them), Heinz Unger led them in Mozart's overture to THE MARRIAGE OF FIGARO. This was a bright reading, characterized by careful control of dynamics, colour, and the brisk tempo.

Moura Lipmany, the British pianist, then played Beethoven's Fourth Piano Concerto. Miss Lipmany's technique is almost staggering, but her sense of lyrical expression falls behind. Consequently, we felt that the third movement was most successful. The interplay with the orchestra is very difficult, but she handled it with absolute mastery. The first movement tends to remind this reviewer of the sixth book of Virgil's AENEID, recounting the philosophically complex, yet noble and dramatic, visit to the underworld. All the finest traits of the Latin classic seem mirrored in the music.

Before the second half started, Geoffrey Waddington presented to Dr. Unger the significant Mahler Medal, awarded by the Bruckner Society of America for Unger's untiring efforts "to spread the message of the music of Mahler" to the world. Few men devote themselves so earnestly to such a rewarding cause.

More than sufficient proof of the validity of the award soon followed. Unger conducted the Orchestra in Mahler's Symphony No. 5 in C-sharp minor (1902). Unger doesn't believe in thrusting Mahler's works on Toronto; he metes the dosage out at one major work per season. Last year we heard the Second Symphony, and the previous year, the Fourth Symphony. Perhaps some day we will be fortunate enough to hear his interpretation of the huge Eighth Symphony, called the Symphony of a Thousand because of the myriad personnel required to perform it.

A M & D

Haiku Hopefuls, Harken!

By Warren Wilson

The Varsity Haiku Contest ground to its seventeen-syllable halt last night. By Monday of this week over fifty campus practitioners had submitted 110 entries.

The winning entries were selected last night by the Varsity's panel of judges, including one Sinologist and two literary critics. The prizes, to be awarded next week to the three leading Haiku-ists, are copies of the volume "Introduction to the Haiku".

Since "Time" magazine predicted its success as an undergraduate craze, the Haiku has been going strong. The Varsity sponsored this contest as a service to its local Haiku-conscious reader-poets.

Reprinted here are the winning submissions.

WINNING ENTRIES

1. John Robert Colombo (IV UC)
Night is a nun; her
Cloth-cottined back is shadow
To her white-faced sun.
2. Mary Anderson (II Trin.)
Possibilities
With seventeen syllables
Are rather abridged.
3. Morgan Tamplin (I UC)
So his baby died.

What does he want me to do?
Return the cigar?

HONOURABLE MENTIONS

Also, we include the following poems, which we consider worthy of honourable mention:

- Paul Gurofsky (III UC)
A gnarled juniper,
Growing for centuries,
In a yellow bowl.
Simon Zysman (II UC)
First with hat in hand
Consequently hand in hand
Then it's out of hand.
Ruth Ginsberg (II SMC)
You: who know nor care
That in my mind I feel your Soft and secret hair!
Harvey L. Shepherd (II UC)
"to Doug Marshall"
The world grows older
And presses harder upon
The British shoulder.

Prizes may be claimed by winners next Wednesday at 4.00 p.m. in The Varsity office. Since space limitations restrict the number of Haikus that can be printed, honourable mention is extended to Elizabeth Harrison, Simon Zysman, Betty Kamitakara and David Helwig.

James Lipsett and Mollie Wade in a scene from Giraudoux's "Tiger at the Gates", opening at Hart House tomorrow night.

ALL-DAY MILDNESS

Black Cat PLAIN
CORK
FILTER

Basketball—Minor League (Hart House) Playoffs

DIVISION I
Game 1	W.d Mar 4	5.00	St. M. Grave Robber: II Eng. Bus or I Civil A vs Med. III W. B. Stein
Game 2	Wed Mar 4	4.00	St. M. Rapsavages vs U.C. London
Game 3	W.d Mar 4	4.00	IV G.O.I. vs St. M. Ponticellos Denov
Game 4	Wed Mar 4	6.00	IV Eng. Bus or St. M. Gabis vs Med. IV Yr A Jensen
Game 5	Thur Mar 5	5.00	Med. III Yr. A vs Winner (1) Lubin
Game 6	Thu Mar 5	1.00	Winner (2) vs IV Eng. Bus or III Mech Denov
Game 7	Fri Mar 6	1.00	U.C. Beta Sigs vs Winner (3) Thomson
Game 8	Thur Mar 5	6.00	II Mech vs Winner (4) Lubin
SEMI-FINALS
Tues. Mar 10	5.00	Winner (5) vs Winner (6)	McGrath, Clarke
Mon. Mar. 9	5.00	Winner (7) vs Winner (8)	McGrath, Clarke
FINAL	Wed Mar 11	5.00	Jensen, Stein
GRAND CHAMPIONSHIP 2 game total point series—Mon. & Wed. Mar. 16 & 18—5.00
Hart House Champions vs Vic Gym Champion —Jensen, McGrath

DIVISION II
Wed Mar. 4	7.00	Law B vs Pharm Mortars or Music	Jensen, Newma
FINAL
GRAND CHAMPIONSHIP 2 game total point series—Tues. & Thur. Mar. 10 & 12 7.00
Hart House Champion vs Pharm Pestles (Vic Gym champion) 1st game—Thomson, Newman; 2nd game—Jensen, Newman

Basketball—Minor League (Vic Gym) Playoffs

Game 1	Thur. Mar. 5	8.00	Vic Gators vs U.C. Taylor	Kolodzie
Game 2	Thur. Mar. 5	6.00	Pre-Dent. A vs St. M. C & F or St. M. McNulty	Marchut
Game 3	Thur. Mar. 5	7.00	Vic South Hse. vs St. M. Coopers, I Mech or I Chem	Kolodzie
Game 4	Thur. Mar. 5	5.00	St. M. Martins vs I Eng. Phys. B or St. M. C & F	Marchut
SEMI-FINALS
Tues. Mar. 10	5.00-7.00	Winner (1) vs Winner (2)	Stein, Lubin
Tues. Mar. 10	7.00-9.00	Winner (3) vs Winner (4)	Marchut, Kolodzie
FINAL	Thur. Mar. 12	5.00-7.00	Marchut, Kolodzie
Notes—Pharm. Pestles Div. II Champions on total points scored.
For Grand Championship dates see Hart House playoffs.

Ice age

Lucky us... today is the modern ice age. Lots and lots of it in refrigerators ready to ice up the Coke. And what could be more delicious than frosty Coca-Cola... the real refreshment. With its cold crisp taste and lively lift it's always Coke for The Pause That Refreshes!

BE REALLY REFRESHED...HAVE A COKE!

SAY 'COKE' OR 'COCA-COLA'—BOTH TRADE-MARKS MEAN THE PRODUCT OF COCA-COLA LTD.—THE WORLD'S BEST-LOVED SPARKING DRINK.

The Golden Wand

(Continued from Page 4)

shortcomings of our way of life, when he tempers his fire knowing that a milder interpretation can also be put on that scriptural passage, one which will be less offensive to those who in the last analysis support the whole enterprise. The professors are wise to appeal to academic objectivity and the suspension of judgment. They too are fed by a hand which it is better to shake than to bite. The military men are paid for their science, how could they question the validity of making war? The scientists are paid to pursue the truth but they are not to ask whether that truth shall lead. And so, the statue quo is like a golden wand, unconsciously created, which now conducts this symphony of innocence. If this were all it would not be so bad, but the golden wand has his cruel moments. For years it paralyzes millions who want to work and eat without begging. During other years it whips its members into such frenzies that millions of them die on the battlefield. My protest is therefore directed against the wand, but the wand does not hear, how then shall it be registered?

Dare To Question

Though I can not reproach a single player for being out of tune, I have felt it difficult to play my part in the symphony. Hence I have decided to leave my part in the symphony. Hence I have decided to leave my place, which will be easily filled. I can not refrain from asking: who among us is to do our radical thinking? The kind of thinking we now need finds no place in the University, for the University is a respectable place and radical thinking is not respectable. If our civilization is to survive we must take seriously what our great spiritual ancestors were prepared to do. Socrates, Jesus, Kierkegaard, Marx and many others set themselves the thankless task of seriously questioning the concepts of their elders. Our thinking must not stop short too easily. We must dare to question even our most hallowed institutions: the University, the party system, the economic order, the United Nations, the international order, the Church, our religion, our family organization, urbanization, mechanization and many others. Most of our questioning goes on within the framework of these but rarely do our universities question the institutions themselves. My one faint plea to the students of the university is that they be unfraid in their own questionings.

In a world like ours, pregnant with so much promise and loaded with so many threats I have decided to direct what intellectual gifts I possess to the issues of our own times.

GRADUATE STUDENTS

TOBOGGAN PARTY

THIS SUNDAY — MARCH 1 — 2 p.m.

AT ROSEDALE GOLF COURSE (Yonge St. City Limits)

BRING TOBOGGAN IF POSSIBLE
SUPPER AFTERWARDS 25 CENTS — BARBECUED CHICKEN
AT THE GRADUATE UNION — 5:30 P.M.

GAMES TODAY

HOCKEY PLAYOFFS
12.30	U.C.I. vs St. M. B	Brewer, Borthwick
4.00	Pharm. vs Arch	Brunt, McCulloch
WATER POLO
1.00	Ten. A vs SPS. I	Jany, M. Boase
BASKETBALL MAJOR LEAGUE
1.00	U.C. II vs SPS. III	Kelner, Goldenberg
6.20	SPS. G vs Dent, IV Yr.	Richardson, McGrath
7.30	U.C. IV vs SPS. V	Richardson, McGrath
BASKETBALL MINOR LEAGUE (HART HOUSE)
1.00	U.C. Mercuries vs III Elec.	Wilkinson
5.00	St. M. Chadams vs Med. III Yr. C	Foster

WOMEN'S ATHLETICS

Intercollegiate Managers

Photographs for Torontonensis of the Intercollegiate Archery, Tennis, Swimming, Badminton, and Volleyball teams will be taken at Falconer Hall on Friday, March 6th, at 1 p.m. Managers will inform team members and coaches and see that uniforms or blazers are provided.

The Eyes and Ears of the Campus

A complete coverage of all campus sports, clubs, organizations and activities (in modern dramatic lay-out of course!) in

TORONTONENSIS '59

Orders now being taken by faculty reps or SAC Office.

Athletic Directorate Elections

1959 - 1960

The Electoral Meeting of the University of Toronto Athletic Association to elect representatives to the Athletic Directorate for 1959-60 will be held on Monday, March 9th at 4 p.m. sharp, in the Debates Room, Hart House (south side, upstairs).

Under the Constitution of the Athletic Association (Article VIII), all Athletic Club Executives and College and Faculty Athletic Associations are entitled to send representatives to this meeting. These representatives must be male undergraduates of the University of Toronto or one of the affiliated colleges, who are proceeding to a degree, are in actual attendance upon lectures, and who have paid the annual fee required (By-law 1). The Club Executives and Athletic Associations are being notified to meet at an early date, appoint their representatives and give them their credentials for the electoral meeting.

PROCEDURE FOR NOMINATION

A student to be elected to the Directorate must, at the time of his nomination, be in the second or higher year of his course, at the University, but not in his final year. The nominations must be in writing on the form provided for the purpose, signed by two male undergraduate members of the Athletic Association, in good standing, and filed with Secretary of the Athletic Association not later than Thursday, March 5th. The nomination form may be obtained at the Athletic Office.

J. P. LOOSEMORE
Secretary, Athletic Directorate

TYPEWRITERS

$1.00 A WEEK BUYS
$1.50 A WEEK RENTS

Get a free typing course and a liberal trade-in allowance for our old typewriter when you buy a new modern machine from us.

Phone HO. 1-1843 Today

It's Fun to DANCE
AT Mart Kenney's
Ranch
EVERY SATURDAY
CANADA'S FINEST
BANDS
Special Student Rates
$1.00 per person
Reservation, And
Information
AT. 8-1282

Gorgeous Gaels Brave Lair Of Big Bad Blues

By GENE GLISKY
Associate Sports Editor

Queen's Golden Gaels are coming hurrah, hurrah!! In a relatively new role, resplendent in their multicolored shiny suits, and with a "They don't look so tough to me attitude", Queens confront those bad, bad Blues in exhibition hockey at the arena tonight.

With the possibility of their entry into the Intercollegiate loop next year very strong, Gaels have participated in a varied but overall successful exhibition series this year. Taking on all comers 'round about the limestone and iron bar city, Queen's have also travelled to Ottawa to be defeated by the Canadian juniors, and have managed to squeeze in a game or two with all the Quebec representatives of the Intercollegiate league.

Beginning rather poorly, Gaels have jelled into a pretty formidable team. In their last few games, they fought U of M Carabins to a draw before bowing out 7-5 in overtime. Gaels bounced back from a 9-0 drubbing at the hands of Laval to beat those worthies 8-4 in the second time out. They also took the measure of McGill 7-3.

In Carl Nurmi, Ray Hermiston and Bob Hawkins, Queen's pack some effective scoring power. Down from Kinkston Merchants Senior A's, Gaels boast Billy Colvin and Ken Linseman.

Colvin, a starry ex-center with St. Mike's Majors is a spectacular playmaker. Linseman is an ex-Blueser, Intercollegiate scoring champ, and Dafeo trophy winner as the most valuable player on the Blues' roster in 1956.

Blues will dress much the same team (personnel-wise) that out-classed Laval last Friday night.

Up from the intermediates to replace Harry Neale is rollicking Jimmy Simpson. The stocky defenseman has enjoyed a very good season with the Rinkies, and should fit in well at the Blue line with Neil Munro.

Captain John Macdonald, finally recuperating from injuries, is returning to action. Bill (Bear) Kennedy is still absent from the fold. You see, although less prone to jerk tears about it, Blues do get hurt, and hurt badly.

This is the last time this year Blues appear in the confines of old arena. Let's all get out and pay tribute to a great Varsity team. Let's say so-long to a club not only with a competitive spirit approaching greatness, but to a group of really fine guys.

Nasty talk: No Blues have expressed interest in competing in a new hockey loop (cultured yet) currently being organised on campus.

This circuit is strict on qualifications. No professionals, no hat-ohets, no men. Sticks will be made of licorice of becoming stripes, carried very low, so low only a long armed ape can manage it. Body contact will consist of a very limp slap on a very limp wrist. Charteuse socks with cultured grey striped jerseys will be worn. The name of this league? You guessed it buddy, The "IVY" League.

FIRST TITLE SINCE 1954 is the aim of the above Varsity wrestlers as they travel to Guelph today for the Intercollegiate tournament. Included on the team are: Back row (left to right): Coach Kirk Wipper, Don Shepley, Ken Brown, Manager Ken Bond, Andy Higgins, Don Bannister, Coach Jack Amos; Front row, Roger Doner, Frank Brown, Bill Polito, Bob Sibthorp, Rod Carrow.

—VSP Walker

Varsity Matmen At OAC Seek Wrestling Honors

Last night a bevy of the cream of the Varsity wrestling fraternity departed for Guelph, to represent the blue and white in the Intercollegiate wrestling championships.

Scheduled to weigh in this morning, the contestants begin the preliminary bouts today, while the finals take place tomorrow.

Five teams, from Queens, McGill, Western, OAC and Toronto will compete in the senior events, while the intermediates represent only Western, OAC and Toronto.

The only competition where the loser gets another chance to aid his team, the losing wrestlers of the preliminaries compete in the consolation matches, thereby gaining points for a victory.

Heading the contingent to overthrow last year's champs from OAC is coach Jack Amos. Kirk Wipper, valuable as liaison man and assistant coach, also expects to accompany the team.

Chances for recovering the title appear very bright this year, so tie 'em in knots boys.

The following are the members of the Senior team and their respective weight divisions.

Don Bannister 123, Andy Higgins

130, Ken Brown 137, Bill Polito 147, Don Shepley 157, Rodger Doner 167, Rod Carrow 177, Frank Brown 191, and Bob Sibthorp Heavyweight.

The Intermediate team is represented by the following wrestlers.

Bernard Applebaun 123, Ted Heinhold 130, Andrew Beattie 137, Ken Deer 147, Bill Craven 157, Roy Sinkus 167, Franz Ledvinka 177, Herb Brown 191, and Dave Dunbar heavyweight.

Cagers Away For Last One

The Senior and Intermediate basketball Blues travel to Hamilton this Saturday night for their last action in league play this year. Both teams are favorites to maintain their winning streak by defeating their McMaster University opponents.

A victory will give Varsity an even 5-5 league record and clinch a tie for third place in the standings. Several Blues will be playing their last game for the U. of T. Goldring, Munczel, Stulac and Russell will be graduating from their respective courses next year.

Coach John McManus will be watching the Intermediate game closely, looking for recruits to strengthen next year's squad. Barring injuries and unexpected retirements Toronto should be a strong contender for the 1960 title. This also will probably be the last time an Intermediate edition of cagers will see action for a few years.

Sports' Parade 40 Years Ago

From The Varsity Files
February 27, 1919

At a meeting of the Hockey Club in the Hart House at 4 p.m. last night the SPS protest re the Med-SPS game came up. After lengthy statements pro and con from the representatives of the two teams in question a vote was taken by the executive and the protest was awarded to SPS. This will necessitate another game between the teams, the date of which will be decided later.

Princeton University has now started a policy of athletic economy and the days of training tables are no more and paid coaches for only one sport are fast being discarded while the type of "Al" Sharpe, who tutors the Cornell football, baseball and basketball teams, is the one now demanded by college authorities.

Inter-class, intra-class and inter-college leagues are being fostered in their present state of infancy so that more men may participate in athletics and not only the so-called "athletes".

McGill Hosts Paddlers Our Mermen Seek Top

Varsity swim Blues, this university's consistent "winner", travel to Montreal today with hopes of defending their Intercollegiate title. Western and McGill are the other teams competing.

In exhibition meets earlier this season, Varsity has taken two victories from Mustangs, and walloped McGill in a dual meet at Royal Military College, in Kingston.

The tri-meet tomorrow night will be no simple proposition, and Coach Bill Yorzyk has all ten fingers crossed as the team departs.

The two relays — 400-yard sprint and 400-yard medley — hold the real key to the meet, and although Varsity swimmers have the Canadian record for each, neither will be a swim-away.

Western's John Shortreed celebrated 1959 by developing into a top-notch backstroke, and his performance on the Mustang quintet could go a long way towards deciding the title.

In all probability, Coach Yorzyk will remain with his record-holding foursome — Bob Fisher, John Deacon, Walt Unger and himself.

The Scoreboard

INTERCOLLEGIATE HOCKEY

	P	W	L	T	F	A	Pts.
TORONTO	10	9	1	0	83	29	18
Laval	9	6	2	1	50	39	13
Montreal	10	3	5	2	45	40	8
McGill	11	0	10	1	21	91	1

Future Games

Saturday—McGill at Laval
Monday Laval at Montreal.

BASKETBALL

	P	W	L	T	Pts.
Assumption	9	8	1	0	16
Western	9	7	2	0	14
TORONTO	9	4	5	0	8
Queen's	9	4	5	0	8
McMaster	9	2	7	0	4
McGill	9	2	7	0	4

Remaining Games

Saturday—TORONTO at McMaster.
Western at Assumption, McGill at Queen's.

Western held the former mark of 3:57.4, but Blues eclipsed that by 3.2 seconds last weekend.

McGill's top threat comes from freestylers Cameron Grout and Dick Pound. Grout has been virtually conceded victory in the 50- and 100-yard freestyle, and Pound may seriously challenge Hart Dev- enney's 400-yard freestyle mark.

Dave Harvey and Bill Sims give Toronto a stranglehold on the diving. Yorzyk should have little difficulty claiming the 200-yard butterfly, and possibly some freestyle event as well.

But, as Yorzyk pointed out, a great deal depends on the mood of the swimmers, and their ability to perform under severe pressure.

Interfaculty Summary

Victoria's Jim Snider continued unbeaten in indoor track competition with a first in the senior 300-yard event. Skule's Garnet Brace was second, followed by Jan Roos (Meds) and Jerry Zadyko (Meds). Dean Hodgkins, of SPS, won the junior 300 yards.

Peter Bing, of University College, came within one second of breaking the junior mile record, finishing in 4:51.8 minutes. Andreghetti (SPS) and Rapcewicz (St. Mike's) finished second and third. Roos won the senior mile run in 4:39.8. He was followed by Trinity's Dick Hamilton and Zadyko.

Skule's first, two seconds and a fourth gave them a total of 13 points and first place in the overall point standings. Victoria, which gained only five points, dropped into second place, with University College ranking third.

THE WINNING POINT goes through the hoop without touching the rim as Jimmy Maguire (54) watches in unashamed joy. This foul shot by Peter Potter defeated Western in the last five seconds of play.

Here and Now

TODAY

1.10-2 p.m. — Prof. W. O. Fennell of Emmanuel College will speak to the SCM-FROS Current Events Group at FROS, 3 Willcocks St.

3 p.m. — The SCM will have another study meeting on "The Life of Jesus" in the SCM Office, Hart House.

5 p.m. — Tony Capon will lecture on "Nurturing Men in Christ" for VCF in Room 11, UC.

7.30 p.m. — Our Lady of China Patricians will meet at St. Peter's Church (Bloor and Bathurst) to discuss "St. Vincent de Paul and Charity". All Chinese students are cordially invited.

8-12 p.m. — International Students' Festival Reunion will take place in the Women's Union Theatre, 79 St. George St. Program includes dancing and refreshments. Admission by festival or complimentary ticket only.

SATURDAY

8.15 p.m. — Dr. W. R. Martin of the Fisheries Research Board of Canada, will speak on "Atlantic Cod Migrations and the Fishery", in Convocation Hall.

SUNDAY

9.15 a.m. — Canterbury Corporate Communion will take place in Trinity College Chapel.

2 p.m. — For details of the Graduate Students' toboggan party see advertisement in this issue.

8.45 p.m. — Rev. Christian Baeta, University College of Ghana, will give a talk at the SCM Sunday Night Fireside in the SCM Coachhouse, behind 110 St. George St.

MONDAY

8 p.m. — There will be a film on "Corrections" in the Debates Room, Hart House.

8.30 p.m. — M. Arnaud de Pesquidoux, author and journalist, will lecture on "Fetes et jeux russes" at the Alliance Francaise in Sir Daniel Wilson Residence. Admission 25 cents.

TUESDAY

5 p.m. — Professor Bruno Morawetz will speak on "The Perils of Conformity" at a public lecture in Trinity's Convocation Hall.

5.30-7.30 p.m. — Final meeting of the Presbyterian Fellowship will take place in the School of Missions, 97 St. George St. Dr. John McNab, Moderator of the General Assembly, will speak.

8.30 p.m. — Jazz concert featuring Dave Brubeck will be held in Thames Hall, University of Western Ontario, London. Admission is $2.00.

Hear

REV. CHRISTIAN BAETA

UNIVERSITY COLLEGE OF GHANA

11 a.m. — Sunday, March 1st — Great Hall, Hart House
"GOOD NEWS FOR AFRICA TODAY"

5 p.m. — Tuesday, March 3rd — Convocation Hall
"AFRICA ADVANCING — WHITHER?"

Charlie's Disappointed...

WANTED

Any undergraduate willing to part with 1958 TORONTONENSIS. I will pay $5.00 for it. Charlie Browne, WA. 3-8741.

Be sure you're not! Order your 1959

TORONTONENSIS, the all-campus yearbook,

from your faculty rep or from the SAC Office

FREE DANCE

To First Ten Couples

TOP RECORDINGS

SATURDAY — 8 p.m.

Eglinton Orange Hall,
rear of Capitol Theatre
2492 Yonge Street
Free Refreshments
Spot Prizes

UNIVERSITY BLAZERS

Custom Made

Especially Priced for Students

$27.50

Fine Flannel Worsted Trousers

$16.50

Business Hours: 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Monday through Saturday

Suits made to measure

latest styles and design

PARNES Clothing Co.

706 QUEEN STREET WEST

EM 6-2025

Sample at S.A.C. Office

Is Your Life

A Mess?

Are you frustrated? Full of secret fears? Not "getting the breaks"? In March Reader's Digest, Harry Emerson Fosdick tells from long experience, how to get out of your earthly hell, conquer fear... and gain an unshakable trust in life.

Read this best-selling condensed book in March Reader's Digest. Get your copy today!

EXPORT "A"

FILTER TIP

CIGARETTES

He says he does it by Steady Saving
at the Bank of Montreal*

*The Bank where Students' accounts are warmly welcomed.

*You'll find these B of M branches especially convenient

Bloor and Bay Sts.

Queen's Park

St. George and Bloor Sts.

KENNETH A. McNEIL, Manager

JOSEPH BURDOCK, Manager

DWIGHT A. EVANS, Manager

'Nensis Faring Well

Torontonensis officials reported last night sales were normal in the last push for faculty and college campaigns.

After Friday week, 'Nensis will be available only in the Students' Administrative Council office. Faculty and college representatives will accept orders all this week at the regular sales price of $4.50.

The price represents "less than one cent a page for the largest yearbook in Canada", sales chairman Carole Levine said last night.

The yearbook will be distributed on or about May 24, and all students who have ordered copies will be notified when 'Nensis is available. Students living out of town will receive their copy by mail if they return a request for the yearbook.

A limited number of cancelled volumes will be on sale in September but many students who try to buy a copy in September are disappointed because only so many are printed after the order goes in to the printer, Miss Levine said.

WEDDING GOWNS

Convenient Evening Appointments if Desired

Order Now Before Exams

Pay Later

HELMAR — 46 ST. GEORGE ST. — WA. 1-5978

Blue and White Band DIRECTOR

Applications for the above position will be received by the Associate Secretary of the Students' Administrative Council in the S.A.C. Office up to 12 NOON, TUESDAY, MARCH 3rd.

A. E. M. PARKES,
Associate Secretary,
Students' Administrative Council.

Hart House

TODAY:

ELECTION CAMPAIGN SPEECH: DEBATES COMMITTEE
1.30 p.m. — East Common Room

Library Record Hour: "DON JUAN IN HELL", under the direction of Charles Laughton. 1.15 p.m. — Record Room.

SATURDAY:

HART HOUSE SATURDAY NIGHT: 9-12 p.m. DANCING, MOVIES, MUSIC IN THE RECORD ROOM, REFRESHMENTS. 50c a Couple.

SUNDAY:

University Church Service: REV. CHRISTIAN BAETA, University College of Ghana, "THE GOSPEL FOR AFRICA TODAY". 11.00 a.m. — Great Hall.

FINAL SUNDAY EVENING CONCERT — HART HOUSE GLEE CLUB. 9 p.m. — GREAT HALL. Tickets from the Hall Porter's Desk, may be picked up by men on the campus. (Women welcome if escorted by a member).

NEXT TUESDAY:

ELECTION DAY IN HART HOUSE — COME AND VOTE

Nobody Ever Called 'J. Paul Sheedy*
Till He Heard About Wildroot Cream-Oil!

"Sheedy, I've got moose for you", said J. Paul's girl. "I could never caribou a guy with messy hair. Why don't you use your head for something besides a hatrack?" This opened Sheedy's eyes. So he collected some doe and hoofed it down to the store for a bottle of Wildroot Cream-Oil. Now Sheedy feels good about his hair because he nose it looks neat and natural all day. Wildroot Cream-Oil contains no elk-ohol... er, alcohol... to dry your hair. No heavy grease to plaster it down. Use Wildroot every morning and the compliments you get will be moose-ic to your ears.

*of 131 So. Harris Hill Rd., Williamsville, N. Y.

Wildroot Cream-Oil
gives you confidence

INVADING beast looks longingly in on a very warm debate on the Avro Arrow in St. Mike's last night. (VSP by Stabins)

Dief's Decision Supported As SMC Debaters Fight Fierce Battle Over Arrow

By TERRY BOURKE
Varsity Staff Reporter

St. Mike's students last night pulled the Avro Arrow out of Prime Minister John Diefenbaker's back and stuck it feather-fashion in his cap.

Debaters from the SMC Oratorical Society crushed the Government resolution: Resolved the Arrow stabbed Diefenbaker in the back.

Hottest period of the debate came when a speaker from the floor blasted a jet-stream of invective against the Prime Minister and the government.

Rudy Debernitz (III SMC) told the house the Arrow issue was a minor matter because "Diefenbaker was stabbed in the back long before the 14,000 lost their jobs".

He said the government had "sold the Canadian people down the drain" and "Diefenbaker had dealt a death blow to all the campaign promises he made about building up Canadian industry".

Calling the Prime Minister a "damn fool", he said Diefenbaker had been "unchristian" in his handling of the Arrow situation.

First government speaker, St. Mike's council president Mike McCabe launched the debate with a jingle. "The Liberal Arrow shot into the air was meant to fall in Johnny's hair".

He said the government had decided to act without caution and in the process had stepped "on the national pride of Canada."

First opposition speaker Ted Andrews blamed Avro for the thousands now out of work. "Lack of apparent foresight on the part of Avro was a calculated move to embarrass the government", he said.

"It is not a case of beavers, national pride or maple leaves", he said, "but a question of saving the country from possible slaughter in the Third World War."

Removal of the Arrow had "wiped the cancer from our decaying defence system".

Marg Gillipse, second government speaker, said Diefenbaker had ignored the present unemployment situation and added thousands more names to the lists.

She said the Prime Minister was "only concerned with his own reputation and not the welfare of families on poor relief".

Earlier the debate faltered while a small dog, said to be the Oratorical Society's mascot, was ejected from the room.

Richard Tan, last opposition speaker, said the government's prestige had been increased by Diefenbaker's decision.

"The opposition has been won over by the courage and determination displayed by the Prime Minister in the face of a highly explosive situation", he said.

Kelly, Friends Guests On "Tabloid" Thursday

Canadian university students will hit the nation's television screens Thursday and pour forth their problems and troubles.

U of T's student president Vince Kelly and 13 colleagues from universities throughout Ontario and Quebec will be guests on the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation's "Tabloid".

The program is part of the National Federation of Canadian University Students' celebrations for National Student Day.

Thursday morning Nfcus president Mortimer Bistrisky will present a brief on student aid to Prime Minister Diefenbaker.

Students of Carleton University and the University of Ottawa may stage a mass demonstration while Bistrisky sees the Prime Minister.

Kelly said last night the "Tabloid" program, telecast from Toronto, would deal with money problems facing university students.

"In all probability they will ask us our personal opinions about the difficulties we face attending university", he said.

The program will broadcast over CBLT, Channel 6, at 7 p.m. Thursday.

HH Candidates For Girls, Better Food

Candidates for Hart House election came out "ominously" for women in Hart House, conservative art, and dining room reform in campaign speech highlights last week, House committee secretary Peter Brawley said last night.

Two candidates for the House committee supported allowing women to enter Hart House, Brawley said. Several candidates cited an intent to reform quality and price of Great Hall food. One art committee candidate supported limiting purchase of paintings for the Hart House collection to conservative works. Voting booths will be set up today from 10 a.m. - 6.30 p.m. in the East Common, Reading and Debates rooms. Members must choose between 75 candidates trying for 44 available positions.

HH officials hope for a 50 per cent voting turnout, but expect about 30 per cent of 8,000 eligible voters will turn in ballots today, Brawley said.

The 50 per cent figure has not been reached since 1930, Brawley said. Last year's election turnout was 23 per cent.

Election results will be announced in the HH Great Hall at 12.30 p.m. tomorrow.

Bissell bats out:

Aid Asked From Industry

President Claude Bissell of the University of Toronto last night called for increased support of higher education from industry, warning that "freedom of experimentation" could be maintained under a system of complete state support.

Although its "stakes in higher education are becoming increasingly great," President Bissell told the Toronto Board of Trade, "it can always argue that it should not be wholly responsible for the higher education of only a minority."

He pointed out, too, that in America where food surpluses mount up and the young are abundantly supplied with television sets, universities are poorly equipped and over-crowded.

He said that in the economic battle between East and West, we "cannot afford to face the world equipped with a prosperity that does not make adequate provision for man as a thinking and spiritual creature."

Government, he said, must continue to bear the major part of supporting Canadian universities, but stressed the need for increasing support from industry.

Bissell said that for the average Canadian university, about 40 per cent of its revenue comes from federal and provincial governments, about 30 per cent from fees, and 30 per cent from private gifts and research grants.

He called on industry to bear in mind "three golden rules" for support of universities: that industries not make grants by a "mechanical formula", but by

"judgment and discrimination"; that "support should not be attached to specific goals determined by those who offer the support"; and that small companies as well as large corporations contribute to higher education.

Dr. Bissell said that compared to the United States, Canadian

(Continued on Page 2)

Ponder Perils of Conformity

Conformity and the inherent dangers related to it will be discussed this afternoon by Trinity Ethics Professor Bruno Morawetz.

The talk, open to all students, conformists or otherwise, will be held in Trinity's Convocation Hall at 5 p.m.

Professor Morawetz recently announced his resignation from his post as Assistant Professor of Ethics. He will move with his family to a farm in the country.

Wide publicity has been given the Professor's incomplete plans for a new world government, called "Temporalism", the theory seeks abolition of national and ethnic allegiances and replaces them with allegiance based on the month of birth.

The talk is sponsored by the Breit Club, Trinity's philosophy society.

CRUSADING candidate for position on the Hart House committees waves placard throughout lunch-hour yesterday. (VSP by Stabins)

HART HOUSE ELECTIONS TODAY

Player's
Please

THE MILDEST BEST-TASTING CIGARETTES

student travel EUROPE

1959

Conducted Tour Sailings . . .

June 16, 19 and July 10

Ask for descriptive folder

UNIVERSITY TRAVEL CLUB LTD. UFC

President: G. H. LUCAS
57 Bloor St. W., Toronto, WAInut 4-9291

Hart House Today

VOTING

10 a.m. to 6.30 p.m.

RESULTS: 9.30 p.m. in the Rotunda of Hart House.

• • •

ART GALLERY, MEMBERS' ART SHOW — Exhibition of work by members of the House and the University staff. Open to women Wednesday afternoon from 12 noon to 6 p.m.

BRIDGE CLUB: 7.30 p.m. in the East Common Room.

ARCHERY CLUB: 8.00 p.m. in the Rifle Range.

WEDNESDAY, 4th MARCH

LIBRARY EVENING — 7.30 p.m. Mr. Robertson Davies, author of "A Mixture of Frailties", will speak on "The Literary World." Pick up tickets from the Hall Porter. Members only.

TABLE TENNIS — Annual Club Championship Tournament — 7.15 p.m. sharp. Fencing Room.

• • •

Hart House Elections Today — Six Committees to be Elected — House, Library, Music, Art, Debates, Squash.
Support Your Faculty and

VOTE

Here and Now

TODAY

12.15 p.m. — The Holy Eucharist will be celebrated in Trinity College Chapel.

1.10 - 2 p.m. — Rev. Christian Baeta, who is a lecturer at University College, Ghana, will take part in a "Prof. Talk". Bring your lunch to the SCM Office, Hart House.

5.30 - 7.30 — The final supper meeting of the Presbyterian Fellowship will be held at the School of Missions, 97 St. George St. "Our Church" will be the topic of a talk by Dr. John McNab, Moderator of the General Assembly.

8 p.m. — Dr. Wilfred Smith, Professor of Comparative Religion at McGill University will give a lecture on Islam, at the North Toronto YMCA, 130 Eglinton Ave. Admission is $1.50.

8.30 p.m. — Dave Brubeck is at Western University for a Jazz Concert. The place is Thames Hall and the price is $2.00.

WEDNESDAY

8.10 a.m. — The Holy Eucharist in Trinity Chapel will be followed by breakfast at Canterbury Centre, 99 St. George St.

1 - 2 p.m. — And lunch also at Canterbury Centre, 99 St. George St. You can bring your lunch or buy it there.

4 p.m. — Rev. W. C. Bothwell, University Anglican Chaplain, will conduct a Bible Seminar at Canterbury Centre, 99 St. George St.

4.15 p.m. — You can vote if you are a student of the University in the Annual CCF Club elections, in Rm. 10, Trinity. If you are a card carrying member of the Club, you are eligible for election.

5.30 p.m. — The SCM supper meeting will be the last study conference on the Life of Christ. The meeting is in the SCM Coachhouse, behind 110 St. George St.

8 p.m. — All University students are invited to a panel discussion in Sheraton Hall, Wycliffe College. Four distinguished representatives of four denominations will probe the possibility of "The Reunion of the Church."

THURSDAY

12.15 p.m. — The Holy Eucharist will be celebrated in Trinity College Chapel.

8 p.m. — "The Origin of Life" will be the topic of a discussion by the U of T Biology Club, in the Copper Room of Wymilwood, Victoria College. Everyone is welcome, and the speaker is Dr. I. Talian.

— The U of T Philosophical Society meets the "Man of Temporalism", Dr. Bruno Morawetz. He will speak on "The Discovery of the Philosopher's Stone", in Rm. 1 of Trinity College.

Aid Asked . . .

(Continued from Page 1)
alumni do badly in supporting their universities.

"Our memories of our Alma Mater may be warm," he said, "but they usually dissolve in the mists of inaction."

Dr. Bissell stressed the fact that while government cannot be committed to full support of universities, industry, for continued prosperity, must make "substantial investments in education."

For industry, he suggested, it is "short-sighted and unrealistic to think of prosperity as related only to resources and energy."

SUMMER WORK For Teachers - Students

We have interesting office positions for you during the summer months. Work for us the days you want, a week, a month, or the whole summer.

We need stenographers, typists, and office machine operators. You will be paid weekly at top rates. Come in or call for more information.

MANPOWER

57 BLOOR ST. W. — WA. 5-1174
150 Offices Throughout the World

Summer Employment

Certified Scholarship Plan, Canada's most progressive direct sales organization offers you this tremendous opportunity. Neat appearance and car essential. Call JOHN PRETE, RU. 1-1841.

Hear

PROFESSOR MORAWETZ

"THE PERILS OF CONFORMITY"

TODAY — 5 p.m. — TRINITY COLLEGE
Convocation Hall

Hart House Library Evening

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 4 at 7.30 p.m. IN THE
HART HOUSE LIBRARY

SPEAKER: MR. ROBERTSON DAVIES
AUTHOR OF: "A MIXTURE OF FRAILTIES"
SPEAKING ON: "THE LITERARY WORLD"
Tickets may be obtained from the Hall Porter, Hart House.
Members Only

Camp Kawagama

DORSET, ONTARIO

Male and Female staff required from June 27th to Aug. 25th, 1959. Cabin Counsellors, Dining Room Hostess (dietician), Registered Nurse, Music Counsellor.

Phone HU. 9-0395 or write to D. PALTER,
100 Old Forest Hill Rd.,
Toronto 10.

UNIVERSITY HEALTH SERVICE

SALK POLIO VACCINE WOMEN ONLY

Women students may receive SECOND or THIRD doses of Salk Polio Vaccine on the following days:

TUESDAY, MARCH 10th — 12 noon to 2.00 p.m.

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 11th — 2.00 p.m. to 4.00 p.m.

No First Doses will be given at this time.

Camp Arrowhead DAY CAMP — Lake Simcoe

Requires:
Music & Drama Instructor
Counsellors
Commencing June 29 for 8 weeks
For further information call
WA. 4-1358 between 7 and 8 p.m.

ВНИМАНИЕ!

The Dept. of Slavic Studies and Maple Productions Ltd. present

2 evenings of Russian film

TUES., MAR. 10 at 8 p.m.

TOLSTOY'S
PETER the FIRST
and "MOSCOW UNIVERSITY"

TUES., MAR. 17 at 8 p.m.

The Childhood of GORKI of MAXIM
& New Russian Outer Space Film
Tickets 75c In advance only!
at the BOOK STORE

Russian Dialogue - English Titles
PUBLIC LIBRARY
AUDITORIUM 3rd FLOOR
20 ST. GEORGE ST.

GOOD HAIRCUT

RIGHT NEAR HERE

4 BARBERS—NO WAITING

600 University Avenue

Just below College

In the Basement

Open Monday through Friday

8 a.m. to 6 p.m.

ONLY $1.00

TYPEWRITERS

$1.00 A WEEK BUYS . . .

. . . $1.50 A WEEK RENTS

Get a free typing course and a liberal trade-in allowance for your old typewriter when you buy a new modern machine from us.

Phone HO. 1-1843 Today

HART HOUSE ELECTIONS TODAY — Voting 10 a.m. to 6.30 p.m.

Men of the University are Urged to Vote

● SUPPORT YOUR CANDIDATES ●

Expanding as Advertised

The University of Toronto's expansion program is proceeding "fairly well on schedule", Administrative vice-president F. R. Stone said last night.

"Some buildings are ahead and some are behind — but we have not run into any unexpected snags", he said.

The ten-year expansion program, scheduled for completion in the fall of 1968, has been planned to cope with an estimated enrolment of 23,000 students.

The new bookstore, a new Aerophysics building and an addition to the University Library's archi-tives, which will definitely be started this spring. Both will be in use in the fall of 1960, he continued.

Each building included in the 52,000,000 program is to be constructed in three steps.

Individual faculties and colleges first of all estimate their needs for the ten year period, architects are then called in to work with these ideas and construction of the buildings is then commenced.

The overall planning board is responsible for co-ordination and supervision of the program as a whole.

"Planning for the Physics Chemistry and Zoology buildings as well as for some residences, both male and female, is well advanced — in fact architects have now been appointed", Mr Stone said.

"General planning on other projects has also progressed far enough for architects to be called in", he added.

The completed program will extend the university's boundaries westward from St. George St. to Spadina Avenue, and will increase the university's total area by some 26 acres.

Feeling...

FEELING

The Varsity is looking for uneasy heads upon which to put editorial crowns.

Applications for Editor-in-Chief of the paper for the publishing year 1959-60 close today. The job is open to any student— providing he gets his year.

Applications should be addressed to the Associate Secretary of the Students' Administrative Council.

If you like organizing, thrive on ulcers, don't sleep too well anyway, can express yourself reasonably through the medium of the English language and hate going to lectures, you have nothing to lose.

Varsity staffers will meet in the office Friday at 4 p.m. to hear candidates and vote on their choice. All students working for the paper are ordered to attend.

Candidates will be interviewed by the SAC's Publications Commission Monday. The staff vote and the incumbent editor's choice are taken into consideration.

The commission then recommends a candidate to the full council Wednesday. All Varsity staffers with more than three terms experience on the paper are automatically recommended to the commission.

...Rash?

towards the 23,000

Your All-Campus Yearbook

T
O
R
O
N
T
O
N
E
N
S
I
S

Order until Friday
from faculty rep
After that at the
SAC Office

VOTE TODAY

Hail, the victors —

It's finally happened.

After expending countless hours in tracking down innumerable stories, The Varsity's long-suffering news staff has balked.

And so the News Editor respectfully requests all colleges and faculties to submit results of their elections so he can let the campus know who its leaders are.

Information must be submitted to The Varsity before 6 p.m. Wednesday. We live in the basement of the Students' Administrative Council building.

Ukrainian Students' Club

Presents A

Grand Concert

DATE: FRI., MARCH 6, 1959.

TIME: 8 p.m.

PLACE: CONVOCATION HALL ADMISSION: FREE

Programme:

Guest Speaker: Dr. Samuel Beatty—Chancellor of U. of T.

Vocal Solo: June Kowalchuk (soprano)

Osyp Hoshulak (bass)

Violin Solo: Vera Tarnowsky

Choir: "Prometei" "Arfa" U.S.C. Choir

Come and bring your friends for an enjoyable evening!!!

ALL-DAY MILDNESS

Black Cat PLAIN CORK FILTER

Ontario College of Education

The World's Only Permanent Floating Operatic Society

Presents — GILBERT and SULLIVAN'S

"IOLANTHE"

March 5, 6, 7

O.C.E. Auditorium

8.20 p.m.

Tickets $1.00

Tickets on sale at the door, or at O.C.E. now.

Student Christian Movement

ANNUAL BANQUET

Speaker — DR. TED JOHNSON

Great Hall Of Hart House

FRIDAY, MARCH 6 — 6.30 p.m.

Ticket Sale Closes Wednesday at 2 p.m.

Tickets at Hart House S.C.M. Office — or phone WA, 3-9727

HART HOUSE THEATRE

Robert Gill, Director

AUDITIONS

Auditions will begin on Tuesday, March 10th, for the first two productions of next season.

THE LITTLE FOXES by Lillian Hellman.

THE SIMPLETON OF THE UNEXPECTED ISLES by George Bernard Shaw

For an appointment — Phone WA. 3-7193 or call at Theatre Offices

The Students' Administrative Council

Announces a Concert by

The University of Toronto Symphony Orchestra

Professor Robert Rosevear, conducting

SUNDAY EVENING, MARCH 8th, 9 p.m.
CONVOCATION HALL

and a Concert by

The University of Toronto Chorus

Professor Richard Johnson, conducting

SUNDAY, MARCH 15th, 9 p.m.

GREAT HALL, HART HOUSE

All students, staff, graduates and friends of the University are cordially invited

THE VARSITY

FOUNDED 1880

Published by
The Students' Administrative Council
of the University of Toronto
Toronto 5, Canada
Member Canadian University Press

The opinions expressed in this paper are those of the editor.

Today's Issue: Somewhat less than the usual confusion, despite staffers returning from the far east and trips to the Wallace Room. Other friends besides included Diane Ede, cea, Mary Anderson, Bill Barrick, Jayne Nesbitt, cra, Peter Brawley, Toivo Miljan, Terry Bourke, and many others who didn't like us well enough to stay. Photography This Issue: Andy Stabins.

father time

Not long ago a great public yelp of indignation was called forth by the latest brain-child of the electronic industry — subliminal television, by means of which, we were told, the unsuspecting public could be convinced of almost anything: that it was hungry for popcorn or that it wanted to vote Republican.

As it turned out, the efficacy of subliminal television had been overestimated. The yelp of protest, nevertheless, seemed not unwarranted.

The possibility of electronic hypnosis aside, enlightened observers have been thinking for some time that the ubiquitous media can persuade people of almost anything if there is enough money available for saturation advertising.

So in our world today the latest methods of motivational research are put to work to make us buy this brand of soap, that brand of car.

At this level there is no particular danger.

But these techniques have a wide range of applicability. Recently in the commonwealth of Massachusetts, the Republican party machine hired the best talent Madison Avenue could offer to convince the workers of that state that they should not return Democratic senators to congress.

The campaign fell flat on its face, apparently because the industrial workers knew what they wanted and could not be stirred from their beliefs by Madison Avenue campaigning.

But, though it is hard to judge its success, there is a year-round enterprise that attempts the same thing on a larger scale with a far greater degree of subtlety.

This is TIME magazine, a gospel to many, anathema to many more who nonetheless read it voraciously, and to many peoples of the world, the spokesman of America.

Here the genius of mass communication with a method and a purpose is most perfectly exhibited. As a New England reporter, writing in last week's "New Republic" points out in an analytic condemnation of TIME, "each week the world is created absolute and dogmatic, the good guys on one side, the bad guys on the other, with TIME holding the only scoreboard."

The world so created is TIME's world, and events are seen or dismissed to suit TIME's taste, suppressed or distorted to suit TIME's views of the world.

In the "New Republic" article, a word-by-word analysis of TIME's method clearly reveal how the slickest of journalism, the peppiest of styles can make John Foster Dulles a hero and Dean Acheson a villain.

The fashionable pastime of discrediting TIME is, however, becoming more and more pointless as, in fact, is the whole volume of complaints against the media.

As the Massachusetts incident proved, no great mass is going to be taken in by anything. At least not yet.

There is nothing, after all, very deceptive about TIME. Just as a Canadian Liberal will go to the Toronto Star for his daily dose of anti-Toryism, so does the Republican look in TIME for the view of the world tailored to his tastes.

What it boils down to, is that the media are only as bad as the public lets them become. As long as our standard of education remains reasonably high and democratic processes prevail, there is not too much to fear from the media, and outlets like TIME or any other journal that presents a consistent view of the world are to be thanked, for in their field of endeavor, they are helping to keep alive the two-party system of government.

MM

The "Good" Student

In his first year the average student at university swallows the doctrines of his tutors whole. Any chewing done is usually prompted by the idealistic but completely ineffective approach of the younger members on the faculty staff. He gets an "A".

In his second year the student has swallowed so much he is beginning to get digestive troubles. However, being polite and surrounded by respectability, he keeps these troubles to himself. A few irresponsible belches only slightly mar the placid indoctrination but are enough to destroy confidence and he gets "B"'s.

In his fourth year the student has worked the independence out of his system. He knows it is best to swallow the doctrines whole, and what is more, transcribes them onto his exam paper. With his native intelligence he introduces slight variations into the party line to give the examiners the impression he is one who thinks for himself — but thinks as he should think. He graduates with "A"'s as an average above-average university student worth $6,500 a year when he is 27.

In his third year the student, if he has courage, completely loses control and regurgitates the whole unhealthy mess in harmonious spasms of cynicism and rebellion. He receives from his tutors kind words of comment, patient understanding concerning his temporary madness and "C"'s.

A reader writes on Morawetz

Dear Sir:

Apparently Professor Morawetz has a higher conception of duty than most of us. He recognizes what a waste of valuable time it is to remain in an institution which combines the functions of technical college, finishing school, and marriage bureau, when what he has to say applies more directly to the world outside than to a small community of escapist academics.

Perhaps he could combine teaching and reform if he were to stay in Toronto; but it so happens that the practice of election and representation through temporalism will most easily be adopted in the kind of rural district in which Professor Morawetz intends to settle.

We are denying him much and denying others even more by attempting to detain him in this indoctrination centre. You ask who is to think for us, who is to lead us? But surely those who need to be led, who would delegate their thinking to others, are students worthy only of sitting at the feet of bureaucrats and their mouth-pieces? If our minds are filled with confusion, what can we achieve by searching for leaders?

Perhaps the Professor's resignation will stimulate others to think and act for themselves rather than submit to the demands of our economic mechanism while hoping aimlessly that leaders will arise to save us.

Paul Hockings.

A Citizen's Lament

(A splenetic dirge gotten rid of before budget day, in anticipation of likely speechlessness.)

If I shot an Arrow into the air
Would missiles come back, out of nowhere?
Who pays the taxes? And who calls the tune?
And will the Bear jump up to the moon?

"Why not raise the roof, goosey, goosey, gander,
Rather than the tariffs?" asks Mrs. Hubbard.

For prices are high, they soar and they wander;

There's wheat in the prairies, but no bread in the cupboard.

The flesh is too old and the hill is too steep,
The winter's too long and the snow is too deep,

But Parliament's children utter no peep:
They have all been whipped soundly and then put to sleep.

Philomythes

Glory at the Gates

Tiger at the Gates, now at Hart House, is the fiftieth in a line of all-university Hart House plays that began in 1946. The plays form an imposing and exciting list and Tiger at the Gates, as exciting and imposing a production as any of them, makes a fine anniversary piece.

"Tiger's" original title was: "The Trojan War will not take place." Since it did take place, the whole play is a protracted piece of dramatic irony, in which Hector does all he can to avoid an inevitable war. As each of his plans for peace meets with success, Hector becomes convinced that they are all in vain, that the war will take place no matter how successfully he seems to be forestalling it, and the audience waits with increasing tension for the simple act that will set off the catastrophe.

One of Jean Giraudoux's finest plays, Tiger at the Gates is a brilliant piece of stage writing. It bristles with ironic epigrams, wit, sarcasm, impassioned rhetoric, and finally tragedy, all hanging beautifully together in a smooth dramatic structure.

Hector has seen war. He knows there is nothing noble about it. But the elders of Troy, including King Priam, whose tongues hang out every time Helen bends over to fix her sandal, are convinced that "beauty", as personified by Helen, is worth fighting for. To the mathematician she informs the geometrical properties of the Trojan landscape with new meaning. To the poet Demokos she is an inspiration for national anthems and war songs and he sets about organizing a cursing training plan to enable the Trojans to match the Greeks in the hurling of epithets. To most of the Trojans the possibility of war is a great honour. "The Greeks," as one of them says, "do not fight with just anybody." In this context, with Greek envoys Ulysses and Ajax approaching, Hector works for peace.

As Hector, James Lipsett overcame some stiff moments at the beginning of the play to give a very strong, and moving performance, culminating in his funeral oration. As his wife, Andromache, Mollie Wade was full of the quiet but deep determination to stand by her husband and safeguard her unborn child. Donna Youngblat was a marvellous Helen, a femme fatale with a difference, simultaneously sweet and mocking, naive and willful, innocent and sinister.

Beside her, Robert Gray's Paris should perhaps have been a bit more foppish, but he gave a generally consistent and pleasing performance.

In the post Demokos, Dave Humphreys has a juicy part and he tended not to leave very much to the imagination in a gushing performance, but there were many places where the hamming paid off, as in the climax of the cursing contest scene. Rather better as comic relief was the Busris of Brian Vincent, a brief but very funny episode.

In supporting roles Maureen Fox as Cassandra and Linda Jackson as Hecuba deserve special mention. Cassandra is continually pulling the rest back to the inevitability of war and Miss Fox managed to get across a great deal of the irony and tragedy to come even when she was not speaking.

Robert Gill's direction is perhaps a bit on the leisurely side, but is completely satisfying throughout and William Lord's set is strong and impressive.

Tiger at the Gates is to some extent a present that Robert Gill is giving the university on his own anniversary. Unlike the Trojans we have nothing to fear from this bearing of gifts.

Dolled Up Crest

The current offering at the Crest Theatre is a home-grown production of a play from Australia by way of London and New York. Written by Ray Lawler, SUMMER OF THE SEVENTEENTH DOLL is the first "important" Australian play to be presented here, and it is a most auspicious debut.

The story is a robust and salty tale involving four hard-living Australians whose lives have been remarkably alien to the very commonest of life's realities. The men (Barney and Roo) are sugarcane cutters from the north; for sixteen years they have been spending their summer "layoffs" in a southern love-nest with two earthy young women (Olive and Nancy) whose main interests in life are sex, drink and a good time. An aura of glamour and legend has come to surround this annual spree, with its contempt for what might be called conventional life.

As you might suspect, something finally happens to disrupt the habit; during the sixteenth winter, Nancy has married. This necessitates a replacement, who turns out to be Pearl — a worldly woman who is mother to a pretty eighteen-year-old girl. Amidst all attempts to maintain the idyllic status quo, the plain fact emerges that Pearl just doesn't fit in; she is altogether too respectable. In addition, Roo comes face to face with evidence of his diminishing physical prowess, and his friend Barney finds himself something less than the Casanova of the south. As a result, these three are moved to painful self-reappraisals, and one by one the various relationships disintegrate.

Max Helpmann plays the part of Roo with great power and understanding. Roo is essentially a big, tough man who attempts to solve his problems by blind force, but who is sensitive enough to eventually see what is happening around him. Mr. Helpmann's performance is easily the highlight of the play.

As the cocky foil to Roo, Hugh Webster's Barney comes off very well. He is the source of most of the humour in the play and he provides much of the movement.

hey, nonny-nonny

The opening of the first Elizabethan era heralded a spring time for lute music and song. For the polished courtier the ability to set poetry to music was an essential requisite, whose formula was clearly laid down by Thomas Campion:

"Tune thy music to thy heart;

Sing thy joy with thanks, and so thy sorrow."

It was this blending of joy and poignancy which made so successful the joint recital of the tenor singer, Peter Pears, and the guitarist and lutenist, Julian Bream, at the Royal Conservatory last Thursday.

The first part of the program included songs by Dowland, Campion, Ford and Morley. They were sung with great feeling by Mr. Pears who showed a mastery of range, and generally good enunciation. Somehow one felt, though, that he lacked the control and delicacy of the counter-tenor Alfred Deller, who has made the Elizabethan lute songs so popular in recent years.

A pleasing accompaniment and some amazingly intricate solos were provided by Julian Bream. The lute does not have the depth of the guitar, but it is particularly suitable for contrapuntal harmonies, which were fully exploited by Mr. Bream.

The second part of the program was devoted to modern compositions for voice and guitar. The most interesting of these was the first performance in Canada of Benjamin Britten's Songs from the Chinese, whose sombre, melancholy tone made a striking contrast to the prettiness of many of the Elizabethan songs.

David C. Halton

The very earthy Olive is played by Katharine Blake, and she portrays this immature character very well. Olive is the only one unable to adjust to the break-up, and Miss Blake's performance gives us a clear idea of just why this is so.

Barbara Chilcott as Pearl doesn't seem to come off. Pearl is a woman who is dissatisfied with her upbringing and who is constantly trying to improve on it. She has pretensions to refinement and respectability; Pearl is supposed to look out of place, not because of her refinement, but because of her cravings after respectability. It may be that Miss Chilcott is a little too well bred to carry this off.

Ruth Springfield plays the part of Emma, the acid-tongued mother of Olive, and she makes the most of this role. Anne Collings and Jim Beggs portray the two young people, and they also make the most of what are essentially colourless parts.

George McCowan's direction concentrates on the power in the play, and consequently is somewhat superficial. The characters are not probed sufficiently to allow much deep understanding or identification on the part of the audience.

BENNY IN BRUSSELS (COL. CL 1247/1248): Two volumes recorded in Brussels of the highly acclaimed Goodman World Fair Orchestra, featuring new and old tunes, but never really sounding out of date. Jazz has advanced since the golden age of swing, and many of the newer, richer components have inevitably been linked with the swing devices in these numbers. Benny of course sounds much the same — including the same quality of clarinet gymnastics (listen to his Gershwin medley in Vol. II).

The modern band flavor is found in tunes such as "St. Louis Blues" and a wildly swinging "One O'Clock Jump," the latter including excellent solos. The current funk is here expressed by Mr. Blues himself, Jimmy Rushing, an old hand at the roots of jazz. His lusty "Mr. Five-By-Five" and "Brussels Blues" are good to hear. A very well-balanced set, sure to please most categories of open-minded jazz-fans, in addition to winning new friends to jazz.

THE DAVE BRUBECK QUARTET has issued three records since "Jazz Goes To Junior College"; "Dave Digs Disney", "Jazz Goes To Europe", and "Jazz Impressions of Eurasia".

The Disney set is very much like the program Brubeck played at Eaton Auditorium a year ago, "Alice in Wonderland", and in particular, "Some Day My Prince Will Come" are very pretty, with all the qualities of good Brubeck: lyricism, extended lines and classical devices — resulting in light, easy-to-take musical fare.

The Europe collection contains amidst a series of fine tracks a frightful drum solo by Joe Morello; "Watani Drums". Apart from that, it is a very fine album, especially the group's rendition of "Like Someone in Love" and "Wonderful Copenhagen". If you can overlook, or even enjoy, Morello's solos, it is a fine album to have.

Eurasia is a different, and somewhat experimental record. Brubeck has incorporated scraps of native material into his music here, to give highly personal musical impressions of countries he visited during the past year. On one track you'll find Chopin-like devices, another features Bachian construction ("Brandenburg Gate"). A good album going beyond the established Brubeck formula.

enfin

Act 1 of the National Ballet's performance of Swan Lake should be scrapped. A short paragraph in the program would give any information essential to the understanding of the following acts and would save the company the embarrassment of a poor performance not in the least in keeping with their customary high standard. As mentioned by a previous reviewer, the mime is unconvincing; the set, too, is poor. The Pas de Trois, which is usually the highlight of the act, was disappointing; the dancers were uncontrolled and wooden. This can be blamed, perhaps, on the orchestra which was rarely in time with these dancers for two minutes in succession. Apart from Celia Franca who gave a dignified performance as the Princess-Mother, Beverley Banfield dancing the peasant girl gave the most charming and sincere performance of the act.

We beheld a complete transformation in Act II. The setting was more subtle and lighting was treated as an art form rather than as a mere means of illumination. The corps de ballet, seeming aware of their inarticulate performance in Act I, danced almost flawlessly. Special mention should be given to the four cygnets, Beverly Banfield, Cathy Carr, Sylvia Mason and Davina Geselle for their precise and gay performances and to Jackie Ivings and Jocelyn Terrell who danced the swan maidens. These two dancers, so frequently paired, make an interesting study in contrasts, Miss Ivings being exact and sparkling while Miss Terrell is ethereal and completely classical in appearance. Lois Smith as Odette, capably supported by David Adams as Scarlatti, dances her role with absolute competence and extreme sensitivity.

In the third act we are treated to another transformation. Unfortunately this transformation takes partial form in another distressing set and unimaginative choreography. However, we are carried above this by the performances of Lois Smith, now dancing Odile, and David Adams; they did not fail to make every movement of the dance more dramatic and exciting than the last. In her portrayal of Odile, Miss Smith displays her ability as an actress; in contrast to her fragile and tragic Odette, her Odile is hard, scheming and thoroughly evil. Her performance was magnificent — what else can one say of near perfection? David Adams is at last given an opportunity to dance and proved that his competence equals that of his wife. He gave an exciting performance punctuated with leaps that had the audience on the edge of its seats.

The fourth act can scarcely be improved upon. Setting, lighting, drama and dance and even the orchestra work together and the result is fantastic. The performance cannot be criticized, only praised. It is enough to say that the audience remained silent until the curtain had fallen and the orchestra had played its final chord.

Jane Watson

DIZZY GILLESPIE DUETS (VERVE M GV 8260): On this record Dizzy is featured with Sonny Rollins on one side and Sonny Stitt on the other.

Persip on drums shines in the Latin-flavored Stitt side, in particular with a very frantic tune, here called "Haute Mon". Apart from this rousing piece, there is much additional value to this set, displaying brilliant playing by all three soloists.

NEWPORT 1958 (COL. OL 1245): Is a representative Duke collection recorded at Newport. It opens with an annoying original "Jazz Festival Jazz", but progresses through the varied Ellington moods, including a hip "Juniflip" where Clark Terry blows a very cool Flugelhorn. As a pleasant surprise, Gerry Mulligan is featured against Harry Carney on "Prima Bara Dubla", a very humorous baritone duet.

OH CAPTAIN! (HARMONY HL 7097): This is a release in Columbia's thrift series, recorded by a soft-voiced quintet (vibes, piano, guitar, bass and drums). If the score of the musical were better known, it could hold more interest, for the jazz is very unpretentious and light.

EARL "FATHA" HINES (EPIC IN 3501): A rollicking old master of early jazz piano, Hines is here proving his control of the instrument in the ragtime idiom. His many lesser imitators, such as Crazy Otto and Knuckles O'Toole, should listen some more, for here is melody and a sure sense of rhythm, as well as originality.

KEETER SEPP

A.V.R. 1959-60

The A.V.R. Committee calls for the submission of the following to the S.A.C. Office:

1. Scripts or drafts of same for an original book show. (Deadline March 16, 1959).
2. Applications for position of Producer of 1959-60 show.
3. Applications for position of Director of 1959-60 show. (On the understanding that these will not be considered until the show has been selected).

Dr. Livingstone?

What a happy man he would have been if his man Stanley could have brought along a carton of Coke! That cold crisp taste, that lively lift would certainly hit the spot with any tired explorer. In fact, after your next safari to class—wouldn't Coca-Cola taste good to you?

BE REALLY REFRESHED...HAVE A COKE!

SAY 'COKE' OR 'COCA-COLA'—BOTH TRADE-MARKS MEAN THE PRODUCT OF COCA-COLA LTD.—THE WORLD'S BEST-LOVED BEVERAGING DRINK.

Hart House Elections Today

Victoria, St. Michaels Tie 1-1

VIC VS ST MIKES 22222

By DAVE GRINER
Associate Sports Editor

Victoria College and St. Michaels played a hard-fought 1-1 tie in the first game of their Jennings Cup semi-final series at the Arena yesterday.

Hero of the game was Vic forward Ron Thomas who scored the tying goal with only 40 seconds left in the game.

St. Mikes scored their only marker near the seven minute mark of the first period when Pat Flannery popped one home from 15 feet out.

The play see-sawed back and forth after that and near air-tight goal tending by both goalies continually foiled the scoring efforts of the forwards.

Vic came closest to scoring when Bob Alexander banked a shot off the goal post in the second period.

St. Mikes carried the play through most of the game, checking Vic's forwards closely and never allowing them to get started. The Red and Gold defence were also responsible to some extent for Vic's difficulties as their clearing passes were usually ill-timed and ill-directed.

Al Fleming, the Vic goalie, more than once kept his team in the game when they were threatening to fall apart.

Walt James had a penalty shot for the Irish, but hit the goal post.

A regrettable feature of the game was the poor officiating. The officials in yesterday's game displayed far too much inconsistency in their calls. One infraction would go uncalled while the next similar one had a ridiculously severe interpretation placed on it.

One official raised his arm to indicate a delayed penalty, and then apparently fatigued by the effort let it drop after some 10 seconds, and forgot about the infraction.

Vic were hard hit here, picking up five of the eight assessed minor penalties.

St. Mikes were also touched by the lapses. A penalty shot was quite properly awarded them at 10:30 of the last period, and the player taking the shot did not score. Then the officials further displayed their ineptness by not assessing Vic a minor penalty and by not facing off in Vic's end as is clearly called for in the rules.

It is to be hoped that the calibre of the officiating improves on Thursday; it was not even passable yesterday.

Campus Lighting Causes Controversy!

Varsity Blues Win Yates Cup!

All sports, fraternities, campus shows, clubs, and activities reviewed in Canada's largest year-book, TORONTONENSIS 1959.

Order your copy this week from your faculty rep, or at the booth in your college. After Friday, order from the S.A.C. Office.

Athletic Directorate Elections 1959 - 1960

The Electoral Meeting of the University of Toronto Athletic Association to elect representatives to the Athletic Directorate for 1959-60 will be held on Monday, March 9th at 4 p.m. sharp, in the Debates Room, Hart House (south side, upstairs).

Under the Constitution of the Athletic Association (Article VIII), all Athletic Club Executives and College and Faculty Athletic Associations are entitled to send representatives to this meeting. These representatives must be male undergraduates of the University of Toronto or one of the affiliated colleges, who are proceeding to a degree, are in actual attendance upon lectures, and who have paid the annual fee required (By-law 1). The Club Executives and Athletic Associations are being notified to meet at an early date, appoint their representatives and give them their credentials for the electoral meeting.

PROCEDURE FOR NOMINATION

A student to be elected to the Directorate must, at the time of his nomination, be in the second or higher year of his course at the University, but not in his final year. The nominations must be in writing or the form provided for the purpose, signed by two male undergraduate members of the Athletic Association, in good standing, and filed with Secretary of the Athletic Association not later than Thursday, March 5th. The nomination form may be obtained at the Athletic Office.

J. P. LOOSEMORE
Secretary, Athletic Directorate

SWIM BLUES STILL CHAMPS

Coach Bill Yorzyk Triple Winner As Blues Collect Third In A Row

By JOHN BROOKS
Varsity Sports Editor

MONTREAL, Feb. 28—Varsity Blues became the most successful swim team in University of Toronto history here today, capping an unbeaten season with their third consecutive Intercollegiate championship.

No Toronto team has ever managed an unblemished record over a single season. Western came close today, but finished 11 points behind Varsity's total of 63. McGill was third with 37.

Despite a new Canadian backstroke record from Varsity's Bob Fisher, Blues' coach Bill Yorzyk was the individual hero of the Toronto victory, collecting two firsts and swimming on the record-setting medley relay team.

Yorzyk took the 200-yard butterfly in 2:07.6 minutes, and set a new Intercollegiate record in the 440-yard freestyle. Yorzyk was timed in 4:50.0, 5.1 seconds better than the former mark, held since 1954 by Varsity's Hart Devenney.

Blues' medley relay team raced to a new college record with a time of 8:54.7 minutes. John Deacon, Walt Unger and Fisher joined Yorzyk on the winning foursome. Western was second in the event.

McGill's Cameron Grout was the only other double winner on the program, taking the 50 and 100-yard freestyle races. Dick Pound and Dan Mackie were the other Redmen winners, collecting firsts in the 200-yard freestyle and diving, respectively.

In setting a 200-yard backstroke record, Fisher chopped nine-tenths of a second off his own mark. Team-mate John Riddpath provided a minor surprise, taking second over Western's John Shortreed.

Other records included an Intercollegiate mark for Deacon in the 200-yard breaststroke, as he defeated Western's Peter Bell, the present Canadian record-holder. Deacon's time was slower than Bell's Dominion mark.

Blues suffered a setback before the team left Toronto yesterday. Their top driver, Dave Harvey, was taken to hospital for an appendix operation. Freshman Bill Sims came through to take second place, however.

400-yard medley relay: 1. Toronto (Deacon, Fisher, Yorzyk, Unger); 2. Western; 3. McGill. Time, 3:54.7.

200-yard freestyle: 1. Pound (M); 2. Szvetko (W); 3. McLaughlin (T). Time, 2:13.6.

50-yard freestyle: 1. Grout (M); 2. Gungino (W); 3. Blinner (T). Time, 24.0.

200-yard butterfly: 1. Yorzyk (T); 2. McCurley (M); 3. Hauch (W). Time, 2:07.6.

100-yard freestyle: 1. Grout (M); 2. Pound (M); 3. Szvetko (W). Time, 51.5.

200-yard breaststroke: 1. Fisher (T); 2. Riddpath (T); 3. Shortreed (W). Time, 2:12.4. (Canadian record).

440-yard freestyle: 1. Yorzyk (T); 2. Grout (M); 3. Walbank (T). Time, 4:50.0.

Diving: 1. Mackie (M); 2. Sims (T); 3. K. Newland (W). Points, 172.65.

200-yard breaststroke: 1. Deacon (T); 2. Bell (W); 3. Chiu (T). Time, 2:25.4.

400-yard sprint relay: 1. Western (Szvetko, Gungino, Hauch, Fowler); 2. Toronto; 3. McGill. Time, 3:39.1.

Gaels Upset Varsity Taking 5-3 Victory In Last Home Game

By GENE GLISKY
Associate Sports Editor

Queen's Golden Gaels, showing more class than any Intercollegiate hockey visitor to date, out-hustled Varsity Blues 5-3 at the Arena Friday night.

Howie Roth combined with Doug Williams and Neil Mundo to open scoring early in the first period. Larry Stacey made it 2-0 on a pretty solo effort several minutes later, and to all concerned it appeared to be another walkaway for Blues.

Varsity dominated play in the first frame. No less than four Blues waited in all alone on Gaels' goalie Tom O'Halloran, only to have their efforts either blocked or miss the target.

Queen's, all cylinders churning, roared back to sink four unanswered goals in the second period. Boasting three perfectly balanced lines, Gaels could do no wrong, with every line taking a bite at the hapless Blues.

Daryl MacKenzie began the deluge on a goal from line-mates Carl Nurmi and Bob Carnegie. Nurmi tallied next from Carnegie. Bob McAleese hammered one home from Bob Hawkins, while Billy Colvin dippy-doodled through the Varsity defence to claim an unassisted final marker in the period.

Frank Chiarelli, at 1:20 of the third period added extra insurance for Queen's on an unassisted goal. Blues fought back 24 seconds later, with Jim Brooks doing the honors from Roth and Williams, but all the sting was gone from the big Varsity offence. Queen's held on and checked doggedly.

Golden Gaels exhibited a remarkable amount of poise for a team playing only exhibition games. They skated well, checked tenaciously and showed a lot of finesse going both ways.

Although the recruiting of Colvin and Chiarelli from the Senior A Merchants was undoubtedly a great asset to them, the feeling remains that Gaels will be a worthy and welcome addition to the loop.

The only Varsity trio that appeared to have played together before, were Pappy Williams' kid-line charges. Dunc Brodie was also at his swooping best, giving it all he had, but Lady Luck and his line-mates just weren't skating with him.

Wrestlers Win Titles After 5-Year Drought

By MIKE CHYKALIUK
Varsity Staff Reporter

GUELPH, Feb. 28—That championship bug that hit Toronto last fall, biting the Grid Blues, was still knawing here today, inspiring both the Senior and the Intermediate grapplers to their respective Intercollegiate wrestling crowns.

The Seniors, who won only one match last year, claimed five out of nine individual titles, thus regaining the championship that Toronto last won in 1954.

The Varsity Seniors amassed a total of 93 points. Defending champion Western was second with 77 points. The Veterinary college was third, Queen's was fourth and McGill last.

Toronto placed nine men in the senior finals, all of whom turned in sterling performances.

Never is a championship harder to come by than an individual one. The hours of work and sweat which go toward moulding a contender can never be measured or appreciated by a non-participant.

Wrestling, being the cumulative sport that it is, takes years to develop the high calibre of athletes the Blues have displayed this season.

With this in mind, we offer our hearty congratulations to all the team members, coaches and managers. A special pat on the back goes to all the "Champs".

123-lb.—Reg. Reynolds (Western) retained his championship by defeating Don Bannister (Toronto). Time—4:22.

130-lb.—Andrew Higgins (Toronto) scored a fall over Gerry Baylor (OACV). Time—1:54.

137-lb.—Jim Joy (Western) won by a fall over Ken Brown (Toronto). Time—3:10.

147-lb.—Bill Polito (Toronto) won by decision over Fred Winney (Queen's).

157-lb.—Roy Wood (Western) won by decision over Don Shepley (Toronto).

167-lb.—Roy Williamson (Western) won by decision over Roger Doner (Toronto).

177-lb.—Rod Carrow (Toronto) won by decision over Joe Brent (OACV).

191-lb.—Frank Bowen (Toronto) won over Barry Thompson (Western).

Heavyweight—Bob Silthorp (Toronto) won by decision over Doug Kollings (OACV).

123-lb.—Alex Leslie (OACV) won by a fall over Alex Nishimura (Western). Time—3:46.

130-lb.—Emil Fedak (Western) won by default when Alex Council (OACV) was injured.

137-lb.—Andy Beattie (Toronto) scored a fall over Marini Kelsmit (OACV). Time—4:26.

147-lb.—Tony Black (OACV) won by decision over Ken Deet (Toronto).

157-lb.—Bill Craven (Toronto) pinned Don Patterson (Western). Time—7:39.

177-lb.—Ken Stuart (Western) defeated Larry Argue (Toronto).

191-lb.—Frank Ledvinka (Toronto) pinned George Klosser (OACV). Time—7:39.

191-lb.—Dave Dixon (Toronto) pinned Don Vickers (OACV). Time—2:01.

Heavyweight—Herb Brown (Toronto) won by a fall over Carl Jackson (OACV). Time—4:04.

Cagers Tie For Third Dropping Mac 76-73

By WELDON THOBURN
Varsity Staff Reporter

HAMILTON, Feb. 28—The University of Toronto basketball Blues ended the current season on a winning note here tonight, taking a 76-73 decision from the McMaster Buccaneers. The Toronto Intermediates also won their final league encounter, 65-54.

Blues led most of the game, controlling the backboard and handling the ball well at mid-court. Toronto's John Dacyschyn, continuing his late season scoring streak, collected 26 points. Big John and 6'5" Rolly Goldring are two tall men that Coach McManus is really going to miss next year. Adding to his woes, guard Joe Stulac, Captain Ruby Richman, guard Norm Mencez and forward Curt Russell will also be missing.

The 1959-60 Blues will undoubtedly be built around veteran Pete Potter and 6'5" centre Jim Maquire. Don Norman and Bob Ecclestone will also be returning and additions from the Intermediates will probably include Mike Muir, Bob Miner and Graeme McKecknie.

Speaking of next year, Doug Marshall, McMaster's towering top scorer—with 30 points this game, will travel to London to take up law. The Hamilton centre plus a string of returning rookies and sophomores will give Coach Metras a powerful combination.

John, ("El Toro"), Metras capped a wonderfully heart-breaking season tonight, losing the Intercollegiate Senior Basketball Championship in the last minute of play to Assumption. Western's Gary Boug, with a chance to pull his team ahead on a foul shot in the dying seconds, was apparently unnerved by a gentleman in a stetson fuming on the sidelines and failed to score.

Varsity completed the year with an even 5-5 record and captured third spot in the league. The five losses include an overtime victory by Western and a one point demise at the hands of Assumption Lancers, the league's best.

Senior Game
Toronto (76) 58-54 Potter, 7; Richman, 9; Goldring, 14; Norman, 4; Mace, 1; Dacyschyn, 26; Maquire, 7; F. C. one.
McMaster (54) 50-48 Stulac, 1; Ledvinka, 11; Boug, 16; Ecclestone, 8; Patterson, 4; O'Leary, 2; Frost, 1; Patterson, 4; Marshall, 30.
Intermediate Game
Toronto (65) 58-54 Koster, 8; Muir, 10; Jack, 6; Miner, 16; McKecknie, 11; Boug, 8; O'Leary, 2; Frost, 1; Patterson, 4; Marshall, 30.
McMaster (54) 50-48 Stulac, 1; Ledvinka, 11; Boug, 16; Ecclestone, 8; Patterson, 4; O'Leary, 2; Frost, 1; Patterson, 4; Marshall, 30.

(Miss)tangs Win Cage

By SHARON MILGRAM
Varsity Staff Reporter

LONDON, Feb. 28—Toronto lost; Western won. That is a brief synopsis of the girls intercollegiate basketball tournament which was played here this weekend.

And now for a few more details. The leech-like checking Queen's team took a not-too-surprising semi-final victory from an erratic shooting squad. The final score was 37-24.

In the second and most exciting game of the series, a sharp-shooting Western squad defeated Mickey Barnett's Toronto crew by a score of 38-31.

The Toronto girls seemed slightly lost on the spacious Western floor and before they could get their passes and shots clicking, Western had built up a six-point lead. But Toronto finally found the range in the last minute and a half of the first quarter and pumped in seven points to pull within two points of Western.

In the next two quarters, Western, shooting continuously, took a 13-point lead. Although the Toronto forwards had the ball a good portion of the time, (thanks to their tremendous guard line), they didn't shoot the ball too much and when they did it didn't go into the basket.

The last quarter of the game was the finest for Toronto. With the guard line of Sandy McMullen, Sally Meredith and Joan Wachna keeping Western off the score sheet until the dying minutes, the forward line finally found the range. They drew to within four points of Western and then Western, taking advantage of a couple of Toronto fouls, increased their lead to seven points.

Today's consolation game saw a spirited Toronto crew defeat the girls from McGill 33-26. In contrast to the Friday night contest, Toronto scored frequently in the first half of the game to take a 23-12 lead. Once again the Toronto guard line was outstanding. The forwards, led by Lil Bobson and Milly Hutt seemed to go right through the McGill defence.

But then those third quarter blues hit Varsity again and their offence which had been so smooth in the first half, hit a number of snags. McGill cut the Toronto lead but couldn't wipe it out completely as the Toronto girls held on in the last quarter for their victory.

The last game of the tournament was won by Western 46-33 who retained the Bronze Baby for another year.

The Scoreboard

INTERCOLLEGIATE

HOCKEY

	P	W	L	T	F	A	P.S.
TORONTO	10	9	1	0	83	29	18
Laval	10	7	2	1	56	40	15
Montreal	10	3	5	2	45	40	8
McGill	12	0	11	1	22	97	1

Saturday's Result
Laval 6 McGill 1

Remaining Games
Friday—TORONTO at Laval.
Saturday—TORONTO at Montreal.

BASKETBALL

	P	W	L	T	P.S.
Assumption	10	9	1	0	18
Western	10	7	3	0	14
TORONTO	10	5	5	0	10
Queen's	10	5	5	0	10
McMaster	10	2	8	0	4
McGill	10	2	8	0	4

Saturday's Results
TORONTO 76 McMaster 73
Assumption 71 Western 62
Queen's 58 McGill 49

Ghana Minister Fears Faith Weak in Africa Could Falter in Asia

A Hart House audience heard a call for Christian unity from a Ghana clergyman Sunday.

Rev. Christian Baeta of the University College of Ghana and a Protestant leader in that dominion, was addressing the last All-University Church Service of the year. He said: "If ever there was a time when Africa could be called the Dark Continent, it is now."

Educated young Africans, he said, are falling away from Christianity after knowing what it is about. They see Christians betraying that which they are supposed to believe in, he said.

Yet, he suggested, the future of Christianity in Asia and other regions of the world may largely depend upon what happens to the faith in Africa.

Many of the mistakes made by Christian missionaries have been honest mistakes, Mr. Baeta added. But many, he said, were made when Europeans tried to mix their faith with their selfish interests.

Mr. Baeta said he had found a surprising correspondence among the ideals and problems of the Protestant churches in all of Africa south of the Sahara desert.

The service followed a conventional Protestant scheme. During the Prayers of Intercession Rev. James Cunningham, Hart House Chaplain, called for "visible unity" in the Christian church.

Speaking to a group of students at the Student Christian Movement Coach House Sunday evening, Mr. Baeta said Ghana is definitely not anti-European.

Mr. Baeta criticized the "incomplete presentation" some American periodicals give to West African problems. He added some African politicians "leave much to be desired."

"Although we have problems," he said, "there is not one person in Ghana who wants to return to the old system."

Mr. Baeta will deliver the annual Cody Memorial lecture today at 5 p.m. in Convocation Hall. His subject will be "African Advancing — Whither?"

CLASSIFIED ADS.

$1 DOWN BUYS ANY MAKE

Brand new typewriters. $59 up. Some models $30 off. Free home demonstration. Free typing course 1959 models rented, lowest rates 375 Jane-Humber, RO 6-1103.

TYPIST (Electric)

Fast, accurate, personalized service. Theses, essays, letters, dictation. Reasonable rates. Irene Kenyon, 146 Bernard Avenue, WA 3-4011.

MATHEMATICS COACH

Qualified and experienced, offers private instruction at all levels. L. Levy, RO. 6-3153.

"DUGENA" WRIST WATCH

with elastic steel band, lost in U.C. Thurs. Feb. 26 between 3 and 4 p.m. Generous reward. Peter Bing, WA. 1-2305.

FOUND

70 pages of notes on International Law, in front of Trinity, 2 weeks ago. Phone WA. 3-1908.

TODAY!!

H. J. Cody Memorial Lecture

5.00 p.m. — Tuesday, March 3rd

CONVOCATION HALL

SPEAKER:

REV. CHRISTIAN BAETA

UNIVERSITY COLLEGE OF GHANA

SUBJECT:

"AFRICA ADVANCING — WHITHER"

STAFF, STUDENTS AND PUBLIC WELCOME

HART HOUSE ELECTIONS TODAY

HART HOUSE ELECTIONS

NOTICE

Regarding Election Procedure

Members are elected to the five standing committees and the Squash Committee by a system which combines the straight popular vote system with a proportional vote system to recognize as many faculties as possible.

Members are elected in the following way:

1. THE 30% RULE Any candidate who receives less than 30% of the number of votes polled by the leading candidate is automatically eliminated from the running.
2. FACULTY REPRESENTATION The leading man from each faculty is then selected.
3. POPULAR VOTE From this point on, if the eight members (four for Squash) are not yet elected, candidates are selected simply by the popular vote received. At this time, the Rule of Three comes into effect. No college or faculty may be represented by more than three men on any one committee. This rule includes the three carry-overs already elected by the Committee itself.
4. If, on completion of this procedure, a full committee is not elected, it becomes the Warden's prerogative to co-opt any member he deems suitable.

HART HOUSE ELECTIONS TODAY
VOTING 10.00 a.m. to 6.30 p.m.

MEN OF THE UNIVERSITY ARE URGED TO EXERCISE THEIR FRANCHISE.

College Graduates And Seniors

A Canadian manufacturer of products which are merchandised through retail food and drug outlets is increasing its sales organization and instituting modern management procedures developed by an American consulting firm. One feature of the program is a planned four year training course in selling.

The long range implementation of this program calls for the creation of field supervisory and management positions in all sections of Canada. There are also a limited number of positions in various areas of marketing management in the home office of this company and its affiliates. Candidates for these positions will be drawn from among those who have demonstrated above average ability and industriousness in actual sales territories.

College trained men are offered an opportunity to compete with men experienced in this type of work. Appointment to advanced positions will be based on aptitudes for managerial work as revealed by psychological tests and interviews as well as performance in sales positions. Remuneration and fringe benefits are most liberal.

Your field of specialization in college is not important if you are really interested in a life-time career in marketing management with a progressive international organization.

For immediate and direct processing by our client send a detailed resume giving full particulars of age, education, principal work experience, and a brief statement as to why you feel marketing is a suitable career for you to: P.O. Box 47, Victoria Station, Montreal 6, Que.

Personnel Development, Inc.,
10 East 40th Street,
New York 16, N.Y.
Sales Management Consultants

HART HOUSE ELECTIONS TODAY — Voting 10 a.m. to 6.30 p.m.

Men of the University are Urged to Vote

● SUPPORT YOUR CANDIDATES ●

Something cheery, something blue

Nfcus Hopeful About Federal Aid As Fee Raise Is Predicted Here

Diefenbaker Encouraging

OTTAWA — CUP — A cheerful National Federation of Canadian University Students delegation came away from an interview with Prime Minister Diefenbaker yesterday to report "definite progress" in negotiations for increased federal aid to university students.

Nfcus president Mortimer Bistrisky said the Prime Minister was "very cordial throughout the interview", "didn't give us any definite answer", but set a further meeting for Saturday.

Bistrisky and Nfcus executive secretary Andre L'Heureux presented the Prime Minister with "an appendix" to a brief the organization submitted last year. At the time Mr. Diefenbaker had promised "something will be done in the near future."

He described the brief as "the best of its kind I've ever received." It called for greatly increased aid to university students.

The interview with the Prime Minister was called to coincide with National University Student Day.

Bistrisky described the Nfcus approach to increased federal student aid as two-fold.

"Certain steps should be taken immediately to alleviate the situation, and an ultimate solution will have to wait on the solution of the constitutional and fiscal problems, which we feel to be the roots of the whole attempt," he said.

"We outlined this position in our brief last year, and the appendix (Continued on Page 2)

Charge Issues Evaded By Modern Thinkers

By MORGAN TAMPLIN
Varsity Staff Reporter

A charge of "triviality" got U of T philosophers squabbling on their home ground last night when Professor Bruno Morawetz attacked them for ignoring the important questions of today.

Professor Morawetz was making one of his last public lectures before he retires from University life at the end of the year. He is moving to his farm in the Peterborough area to work on his theory of Temporalism.

At the last meeting of the U of T Philosophical Society, Professor Morawetz said that contemporary philosophers are still asking the question of Achilles and the tortoise while they are being threatened by the hydrogen bomb.

Professor Morawetz was making one of his last public lectures before he retires from University life at the end of the year. He is moving to his farm in the Peterborough area to work on his theory of Temporalism.

"Do modern philosophers not see that we have stolen fire from the sun?" he asked. "Atomic energy will raise us as far above our present level as fire did when it was discovered."

"But atomic energy has brought evil to the world as well," he added.

Marx anticipated that philosophy should stop trying to understand the world and should start trying to change it, he said.

"Music is a very fine thing," added Dr. Morawetz, "but fiddling while Rome is burning, is not."

"As philosophers we are better equipped to speak of moral values than the haberdashers, lawyers, and generals who govern us today," he continued.

He then cited some of the living moral and ethical questions of today, such as the ethical value of work in an automation society, the effect of cities on moral development, the effects of two world wars on our attitudes to war, the ethical overtones of subtle persuasion by new mass-media.

Dr. Morawetz then explained his theory of Temporalism and how it eliminated the threats posed by the rise of nationalism to the formation of world government.

Temporalism is a system of re-orientating individual allegiances to points in time, rather than space, he said.

Formerly we formed our allegiance to a particular territory because of the limitations posed by distance, but now distances have been eliminated by modern transportation, and we must accept the fact that people are no longer in isolated groups.

Time, he said, is completely neutral, and choosing a particular month for one's allegiance is no more irrational than choosing a particular place.

"We should not commit the obstetric fallacy of asking how to give birth to this concept," he said. "We should rather ask whether it is sound."

"If a great number of people asking academic questions about believe in Temporalism they should go ahead and work to bring it into being, instead of it," he added.

"If temporalism is good, it will come about," he concluded.

PROFESSOR MORAWETZ

Eminent Critic Blasts Newspapers, Colleges

One of Canada's top literary figures put himself on the intellectual hot seat this week at a meeting of the Hart House Library Club.

Robertson Davies, poet, journalist, critic, reviewer and actor set himself up when he gave students a chance to fire a barrage of questions on topics ranging from "Zen" to "Beatniks".

He praised the Stratford Shakespearean Festival for its high standard of drama. He said he was "not fulfilling their functions and never will."

Davies, editor of the Peterborough Examiner, said "newspapers must appeal to individuals on all levels in society."

He called for a national Canadian weekly to "provide more elaborate comment on political

Simcoe Hall Reviews Fees

It is "altogether likely" U of T student fees will be raised next year, E. R. Stone, university administration vice-president said last night.

However, he cautioned, "no schedule has been established" as yet. The question, Mr. Stone said, is being reviewed.

Last U of T fee raise was announced over the summer of 1956 when fees were hiked an average of 11.2 per cent.

Mr. Stone said "My guess would be that they will have to go up." But he said it is not definite.

The government of Ontario last week raised grants to Ontario universities by $1,000,000 and set aside $1,200,000 for scholarships and bursars.

University of British Columbia students are currently protesting an average raise of $100 in UBC fees which is to take effect next year.

Waterloo College Now a University

The Ontario legislature Tuesday passed a bill incorporating the University of Waterloo and set the stage for a $1,500,000 fund drive which begins Monday.

Donations will help build a library, physics and mathematics building, and a larger arts building.

Along with the "Associated Faculties" of Waterloo College, known for their cooperative engineering course, the university will incorporate Waterloo College itself, and St. Jerome College, a Roman Catholic seminary on the outskirts of Kitchener-Waterloo.

Waterloo College has been a liberal arts college and Lutheran seminary for more than 30 years, once affiliated with Western University. Its work-study engineering course was begun in 1957.

Over the last year this unusual training plan has attracted widespread attention. The engineering student spends the year alternating for three-month periods between the university

Under the plan, he should earn enough while he works to pay for tuition and board during his six years at the university. Entrance requirements for this course are considered stiffer than those at any other Canadian university.

St. Michael's College students set a landmark when they went to the polls last week to elect a new student administrative council.

Jordan Sullivan is the first day student in the College history to capture the council presidency.

Over 64 per cent of the student body turned out to vote. Other members elected to the Executive were Peter Dembski (II) men's vice-president, Dorothy Symko (II) and Carol Jones (II) women's vice-pres; James Beangessner (II) Secretary; and Martin Hughes treasurer.

Toronto Rhodes Man Hurt In Great Britain

University of Toronto Rhodes Scholar Harold "Hesh" Rotman is in serious condition in a London hospital after his bicycle collided with a motor vehicle.

Rotman, 25, who was finishing the first of two years' study in physiology at Oxford, sustained a skull injury and was unconscious for several days. His mother and brother have flown to London.

Rotman stood first when he graduated from Medicine last year, and was a star athlete as well. He took part in last year's AVR, and was a top scorer on Varsity's championship basketball team.

SMC Election Results

St. Michael's College students set a landmark when they went to the polls last week to elect a new student administrative council.

Jordan Sullivan is the first day student in the College history to capture the council presidency.

and social issues of the country." He attacked, also, Canadian universities. He said "eventually most of them will wake up to the fact that there is no such thing as true Canadian literature."

He said no Englishman would ever praise a novel printed in Canada and added: "The old lion is mangy, but still willing to take a swipe at a cub whenever she can."

Shifting to the topic of criticism, he explained "critics tend to become egotistically inflated with their own importance."

"Lack of critics to criticize the critics means any vitriolic jack-ass can pawn himself off as a reviewer."

He talked about the influence of Britain and the United States on Canadian literature. "Big brother to the South, with 100 years head start points his finger at us and calls us hicks and rubes. Mother hen overseas turns her nose up at us. All we need now is word from the eskimos on what our culture should be like."

He praised the Stratford Shakespearean Festival for its high standard of drama. He said regardless of the praise the festival has won out of Canada, "Canadians are not on the whole an enjoying lot of people."

Moving into the political sphere, Mr. Davies said Canada's greatest strength on the international scene is in the "weakness of her nationalism."

PARK ROAD BAPTIST CHURCH
1 BLOCK N. & E. OF BLOOR-YONGE
Minister: Rev. MURRAY J. S. FORD, M.A., B.D.
VICTOR E. GRAHAM, Organist
SERVICES AT 10:45 a.m. and 7:30 p.m.
A Cordial Invitation to all Students to Attend Inspiring Services

Rosedale Presbyterian Church
Mt. Pleasant Rd. (2 blocks north of Bloor, 2 blocks east of Yonge)
Minister: Rev. E. S. MACKAY, M.A.
Public Worship — 11 a.m.
Evening Service — 7:30 p.m.
Continuing with the Lenten Series
"The Way of The Cross"
8:30 p.m. — Senior Youth Group

UNIVERSITY HEALTH SERVICE
SALK POLIO VACCINE
WOMEN ONLY
Women students may receive SECOND or THIRD doses of Salk Polio Vaccine on the following days:
TUESDAY, MARCH 10th — 12 noon to 2:00 p.m.
WEDNESDAY, MARCH 11th — 2:00 p.m. to 4:00 p.m.
No First Doses will be given at this time

SUMMER ACCOMMODATION
For Men and Women
Room and Board or Meals Only
RATES VERY REASONABLE
Campus Co-operative Residence, Inc.
32 SUSSEX AVENUE — WA. 1-2520

HILLEL
SUNDAY, MARCH 8 — 8:30 p.m.
Social Evening
TUESDAY EVENING, MARCH 10 — 8:45 p.m.
Lecture by Rabbi Wurzbarger
SUNDAY, MARCH 15 — 9 p.m.
Concert Featuring
Mr. Hyman Goodman, Violinist and Mr. Leo Barkin, Pianist

Request Aid Be Enlarged
(Continued from Page 1)
merely went into greater detail," he continued.
"The only specific measure we proposed in today's brief was an expansion of our earlier demands for 10,000 scholarships for university students."

"We requested that these scholarships, when they are implemented, be $750 dollars per year for students from urban areas, and $1,000 a year for students whose homes were in rural areas", he said.
"We reminded the Prime Minister that university fees were going up all throughout Canada, and said this had prompted our new requests", he continued.
"We also told Mr. Diefenbaker of the rather staggering results of a survey we conducted on the Dominion-Provincial bursary system," he said.

The survey, which covered all ten provinces, revealed that the total Federal contribution towards the bursaries is only $164,000. This is only a small fraction of the province's contributions to the system.

Only other point brought forward by the Nfucs representatives was the shortage of residences in universities throughout the country.

"The Prime Minister listened to our presentation with great attentiveness, but he said that our bringing up the constitutional problem 'really jarred' him," Bistrisky said.

"We expect to go into the constitutional and fiscal problems in great detail Saturday morning," Bistrisky said.

THEOSOPIY
REINCARNATION AND DIVINE JUSTICE
Public Lecture by
FELIX AND EUNICE LAYTON
Well known National Lecturers in the U.S.A.
FRIDAY, MARCH 6th - 8 P.M.
United Empire Loyalist Hall,
30 Prince Arthur Ave.,
Under auspices of
the Theosophical Society,
Canadian Federation

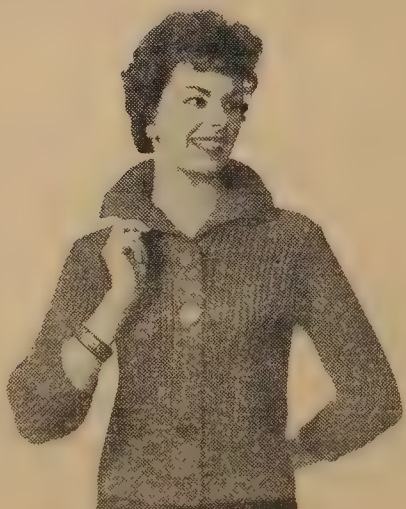

Trinity College Chapel
WEEKDAY SERVICES
7:30 a.m.—Holy Eucharist
8:45 a.m.—Mornings
9:30 p.m.—Evening
Tuesdays and Thursdays —
12:15 p.m.—Holy Eucharist
Wednesdays — 8:10 a.m. Holy Eucharist
Sunday Services
8:00 a.m.—Mornings
8:15 a.m.—Holy Eucharist
9:15 a.m.—Holy Eucharist
6:30 p.m.—Evening
EVERYBODY WELCOME

University
Lutheran Chapel
SUNDAY SERVICE — 11 a.m.
THURSDAY SERVICE—8 p.m.
Student Club, every 2nd and 4th Thursday
at 7:45 p.m.
610 SPADINA (below Harbord)
WA. 2-1884 — WA. 3-6840

THE CHURCH OF
THE REDEEMER
At the Head of the Campus
BLOOR and AVENUE RD.
Rector, Rev. Owen P. Prichard,
B.A., L.Th.
8 a.m.—Holy Communion
11 a.m. "The Sense of Belonging"
7 p.m.—"The Rainbow and the Rain"
Preacher at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m.—
The Rector
Wednesday, 12:15 p.m.—Holy Communion
8 p.m. Lenten Service
Address by the Rector
Organist—A. McKinlay, Mus. Bac.

Trinity
United Church
427 Bloor St. W. at
Walmer Road
Rev. J. Robt. Watt, BA, BD,
Minister
John W. Linn,
Organist and Choirmaster
11 a.m.
"It Must Be Grounded!"
7:30 p.m.
The Minister continues the series on life's problems.
MY PROBLEM IS . . .
(6) "I Like to Take a Chance. I Like to Gamble!"
All Are Invited

ST. ANDREW'S
United Church
117 Bloor E., near
Yonge St. Subway
Minister:
REV. WILLIAM BRIGGS,
M.A., B.D., Ph.D.
Organist and Choir Director:
EDGAR GOODAIRE
11 a.m. — "The Finality of the Cross"
7:30 p.m.—"Myth and the Bible".
Students cordially invited
to attend

Kitten
big, bulky BAN-LON
Big jumbo-knit BAN-LON with pearly
pie-plate buttons . . . big style with flaring Queen
Anne collar, wide contra-knit collar edging and
front panel . . . no pilling, no stretch or shrink . . .
hand-finished . . . in a rainbow of sparkling
spring colours. $15.95 AT GOOD SHOPS everywhere.
Look for the name Kitten!

Skoglund
says...
"The harder you work
the better your luck"
Canadian humourist Stephen Leacock once said, "I am a great believer in luck and I find that the harder I work the more I have of it." And Mr. Leacock was so right. It's amazing how we credit to good luck so many of the results of plain old hard work. In every field of endeavour, the successful are considered lucky.
Take a famous Canadian, Sir Frederick Banting.
His discovery of insulin has saved the lives of thousands of diabetics. He found secretions in the pancreas that led him to insulin. Looks like luck, doesn't it? But Dr. Banting had first spent a year doing careful research that made him suspect just what he would find. When the discovery came, it was not through luck.
But there is one sort of luck that you don't make for yourself, and that's bad luck. For example, you can't stop sickness or accident from hitting hard and unexpectedly. You can't prevent an emergency like that, but you can prepare for it.
Plan now to take out disability insurance. Your NALAC agent is prepared to help you work out a plan that will guarantee you an adequate income during the time you're unable to work. Don't let bad luck catch you unawares. Call your NALAC representative.
Confidently.
H. P. Skoglund
H. P. SKOGLUND,
President
...insure confident living
NORTH AMERICAN
Life and Casualty Company
LIFE • SICKNESS ACCIDENT • GROUP
CHARLES E. REA — Toronto Manager
47-49 LaPlante Ave. Phone EM. 6-1691

Boxcar Wins Oscar; To Trundle For Bundle

By GENE GLISKY
Associate Sports Editor

LORRY STACEY
Named Dafoe Winner

Lorry (Boxcar) Stacey, iron-man of Varsity Blues' defensive corps, Wednesday was chosen as winner of the Dr. Bill Dafoe Trophy. Awarded to the member of the senior hockey team who in the opinion of his team-mates is most deserving, the Dafoe Trophy was first presented to Dave Jackson in the 1954-55 season.

Stacey, a standout end with the football Blues, is in his final year at SPS. He toiled for the championship Varsity hockey squad for three years, always as a rugged, very colorful performer.

Before enrolling at the U of T, Stacey starred with Hap Emms' Barrie Flyers.

Blues have their work cut out for them this weekend, as they travel to Quebec City and Montreal for a final flourish of a rather hectic season.

Laval Rouge et Or, by virtue of their overtime victory over Montreal last Monday, have crept to within one point of the league-leading Blues.

A single victory by Varsity will clinch a fifth consecutive intercollegiate title, as they clash with Laval tonight and meet the ever-tough Carabins tomorrow.

The outlook, however, has brightened considerably for Jack Kennedy's charges. Bill (Bear) Kennedy, sufficiently recuperated from injuries, is expected to return to action. With captain John Macdonald rekeyed into shape after a three week lay-off, and a defenseman recruited from the Intermediates, Blues should ice a team as formidable as the one in the days of yore.

The only doubtful starter is Howie Roth. L'il Bar suffered a wrist injury in the Varsity-Queen's clash and is currently nursing a sore paw.

Since this is the last (or have you heard) of the scribbles for some time, and our victory celebrations, although wet shan't be so with ink. "So Long" to a great Blue squad in one fine season of hockey.

GO BLUES GO! And give 'em ...!!

by
john brooks

varsity sports editor

*I must get down to the books again.
With a sob and a putrid sigh,
And all I ask is a passing mark
Ere the final, beautiful goodbye.*

With this issue, The Varsity ceases publication, allowing a few of us a long-shot chance of dealing successfully with the approaching tests of our accumulated intelligence. It is with no small amount of regret that we turn ourselves from pen to Pistratus, from typewriter to Tactius, and from make-up to Marx.

Pushed of necessity to the background are the events which turned 1958-59 into such a great year to be wandering along the sporting trail at our institution. Recorded in our shabby memories for use during moments of nostalgia are some very fine athletes and equally fine achievements.

A cohesive and unbeatable football team, with three dozen men working a humming machine; a sparkling hockey team, colorful and controversial, a basketball quintet that provided tense moments of entertainment, despite loss of the coveted title.

A swimming team that would not, and could not, be defeated; and many, many more — boxers, wrestlers, gymnasts and fencers; the soccer, squash, water polo and track teams; and hundreds of athletes who have contributed to a successful year.

We have attempted to deal discreetly while in disagreement; praise to the worth where plaudits is due, accept defeat with a grin; regard modesty as the prime requisite of victory, and most important, give you, the reader, enjoyment in our pages.

We may have failed in these objectives; if so, we beg forgiveness. If, on the other hand, small success has been achieved, it is our humble position to thank the athletes who guided our words.

And we thank the administration — that noble band of men and women with whom we alternately agreed and argued, but without whom all this would not have been possible.

September 1958 to March 1959 has been, for many people, a memorable era — satisfaction and success for some; heartbreak and defeat for others. The future may be bright; just how bright depends on you the reader, you the athlete, you the sporting layman.

To win, lose or draw is, in the long run, insignificant; but to maintain the valuable traditions which have made the Varsity athletic realm what it is today, is the prime objective. Those who will congregate on our campus once again inherit the task of continuing a good thing.

And from those of us who depart (as Edward R. Murrow is wont to repeat): Goodbye and good luck. It's been a real pleasure.

Irish Top Reed Race With 300-Point Lead

St. Michael's College carry a narrow 300-point lead lead into the final rounds of interfaculty sport this year, in the Reed Trophy competition.

The only faculty that appears to have any chance of overtaking the Irish in the race for the coveted cup is SPS.

A victory in basketball would greatly enhance the Engineers' chances, while a successful defence of the hockey trophy could put SMC out of reach.

Other major titles contested during the year saw all faculties grab their share of the honours.

Victoria won the Mulock Cup, emblem of football supremacy, defeating Sr. Skule in the final. Trinity A won the soccer.

Other championship winners were UC (Track and Hurdles), SMC A (Lacrosse), Sr SPS (Volleyball).

Chief interest today lies in the semi-final hockey game between Vic and SMC to determine who will oppose UC I in the finals of the Jennings Cup competition.

UC whopped SMC B 11-1 in a two-game, total-goals series, although they were held scoreless in the second game of the series.

In the other semi, Vic and SMC A tied, 1-1, in the first game, but by the time this paper is published, the second game will also have been played.

... and in this corner

by pam hill & sharon milgram

DON'T READ THIS, MEN
IT'S FOR GIRLS ONLY

Here, in brief, is run-down on the 1958-59 interfaculty championships: baseball—PHE; Swimming—St. Hilda's; tennis—Victoria; basketball—PHE II; badminton—P&OT; sailing—Victoria; archery—PHE; volleyball—OCE; and hockey—Victoria I.

Varsity even managed to come out on top of most of the intercollegiate sports this year—swimming, archery, tennis, and fencing. Western took the volleyball and basketball, and Queen's the badminton.

And a special tip of the hat to: Jane Furness, Marg Ann Merritt, June Seviour, Jutta Laul, Linda Kriisa, Vihi Canep, Bev. Westman, Joan Davies, Lillian Bobson and Lee Morley; great sports!

"Something old, something new . . ." Falconer Hall will be replaced as the centre of women's athletics next fall, because we're getting a whole new building at Harbord and Huron. It will be ready in September, and the facilities are fabulous! — swimming pool larger than that in Hart House, numerous gyms, courts, trampolines, etc. . . sounds great!

But, our dear Miss A. E. M. Parkes, secretary-treasurer of the Directorate, is retiring from her nook in the SAC building. We'll miss her chat and liberal cheques to cover the "away" weekends. But all the best to you, Miss Parkes.

A perfect example, or at least a fun-filled example, of such a week-end was one which we were lucky enough to take in just one week ago. It was the girls basketball week-end at Western.

Besides watching the games this paper so generously sent us to see, we partook in the behind-the-scenes capers of the tourney. This included learning to play bridge (you can't make the basketball team unless you can play bridge) and fighting to the extent of two pairs of nyons, one banged up knee and one scratched hand for the safety of Tovar, the Toronto mascot, which the other three teams at the tourney tried to steal. Those naughty girls! Toronto got Suzie Q.

So guess the fourth estate. Have a frantic summer and we'll see you "in this corner" next fall. Cheers!

Win 10 Championships During Successful Year

In what must be termed another successful sporting year, University of Toronto senior teams collected two out of four major championships, and are within a single victory of raising that total to three.

Minor league titles, if less unanimous percentage-wise, were equally abundant, as Varsity athletes won five minor crowns and tied for another.

Football touched off the successful onslaught, with the unbeatable Blues — powered by Pete Joyce and Tim Reid — racing with devastating consistency through all opposition to regain the Yates Cup, last won in 1954.

Varsity topped Western, 26-20, in the league opener here (the first intercollegiate game ever played under the lights) and that was the closest score. Dalt White's gridders encountered all season.

Blues knocked McGill aside 35-13, and belted Queen's in a pair, 32-3 and 44-0. The second win over Mustangs came here and ended up 38-14, as Varsity pulled away from a close half-time score.

The season's key game—which John Metras' crew entered with their backs to the wall—was probably the sweetest sight witnessed by Toronto fans all year. The final, crushing tally in J.W. Little Memorial Stadium was 46-0.

The final game against McGill was anti-climatic, but Blues and Tim Reid made it enjoyable anyway. They whipped McGill, 50-7, became only the third college team ever to score 50 points in a game, and Reid earned his Varsity point-total to 101 for a three season career.

Statistics compiled after the season gave Reid the individual scoring championship, and Joyce was named winner of the Omega Award as the Intercollegiate League's most valuable player.

While the footballers enjoyed unlimited success, Varsity athletes were winning the golf title for the first time in 11 years, and the soccer Blues ended the season tied with Ontario Agricultural College for the Western Division title.

Witold Weynerowski was the key golf hero, scoring a 77-77-154 total for 36 holes over the Cataract course in Kingston. Varsity finished with a total of 639 points, 14 strokes ahead of runner-up McGill.

In soccer, Varsity topped McGill in a two-game, total-goals series to retain the Eastern Division championship after losing 4-3 to OAC in the season's final game played here.

The tennis title fell to McGill, as Varsity fared well in doubles competition, but staggered in singles' competition.

The rugby Blues failed to win the intercollegiate title, with McGill emerging on top in a two-game, total-point series, but captured the Ontario Intermediate A title, defeating St. Catharines, 9-3, in the final.

Blues slipped badly in track events, with the seniors placing third while Western took the title, held the previous year by Varsity. Ken Money was the outstanding Blue, winning the high jump and setting a new college record.

In a two-game, total-goals water polo series with McGill, Varsity captured the first game here, but slipped in Montreal and the Redmen retained the title by a one-goal margin.

In badminton, despite brilliant performances from Varsity rookies Ross Lundy and S. Casey

Wood, Jr., Blues dropped the senior title to Queen's Golden Gaels by a narrow margin.

The squash championship came back to Varsity, with the six-man team edging runner-up McGill for the honors. Western finished far back in third place. The individual title remained at McGill, with Dave Pemberton-Smith taking the honors.

The boxing and wrestling titles remained in Toronto, as did the fencing crown. Skiing went to Laval, as Varsity stumbled on the Quebec hills and finished third.

In basketball play, Varsity started poorly, and finished in third place as Assumption accepted only one loss in marching to their first sole championship.

The Scoreboard

INTERCOLLEGIATE

HOCKEY

	P	W	L	T	Pts.
TORONTO	10	9	1	0	18
Laval	11	8	2	1	17
Montreal	11	3	6	2	10
McGill	12	0	11	1	1

Monday's Result
Laval 6 Montreal 6
Overtime

Remaining Games
Tonight—TORONTO at Laval.
Tomorrow—TORONTO at Montreal.

BASKETBALL

Final Standings

	P	W	L	T	Pts.
Assumption	10	9	1	0	18
Western	10	7	3	0	14
ORONIO	10	5	5	0	10
Queen's	10	5	5	0	10
McMaster	10	2	8	0	4
McGill	10	2	8	0	4

A Picture Worth A Thousand Words

HH Voting Results

Men of the University responded to an annual plea and exercised their franchise in the Hart House elections Wednesday.

Debates Committee consists of carry overs J. A. Pierce (III SMC), G. M. White (II SPS) and M. B. Zysman (I Law). Elected members are G. L. Caplan (III UC), S. Fromovitz (III SPS), P. E. Goulston (II UC), D. C. Halton (I Trin), D. R. M. Jones (II SPS), R. Little (I Law), T. M. McNulty (I SMC) and J. D. Smart (II SMC).

Art Committee carry overs are G. F. MacDonald (II Vic), D. S. Richardson (I Meds) and E. R. Shepherd (IV Arch.). Elected members are P. D. B. Blair (III UC), M. P. Granger (I Meds), D. J. Kelly (II Vic), N. Pawley (II Trin), J. C. Rung (I SMC), J. M. Spence (I UC), O. F. Veidlinger (III Meds) and B. F. Zaid (I Arch.).

Next year's Squash Racquets Committee includes carry overs R. M. Gladstone (I Pre-Meds), D. Logan (III Trin) and elected members S. A. Malcolmson (I Pre-Meds), A. D. Massey (I Trin), D. B. Robb (III SPS) and D. Van Every (II UC).

Music Committee carry overs are C. L. Gill (II Trin), L. D. Lederman (III SPS) and C. M. Woodside (III SPS). Elected are L. C. Ash (II Pre-Meds), B. R. Corbett (I Vic), H. M. Gladney (III Trin), L. B. Luka (I SMC), A. J. McMahon (I Meds), P. A. Reeve-Newson (III SPS), J. G. Sloan (I Emmanuel) and G. R. Sparks (II UC).

Library Committee carry overs include D. C. Hayes (I Law), J. F. Hutchinson (II Trin) and B. Starkman (II UC). Elected are M. A. H. Dempster (II UC), P. B. Druckman (II Meds), K. A. Hoilett (III Trin), E. J. R. Jackman (I Vic), P. J. Lydon (III SMC), D. M. Pamenter (II SPS), R. B. Reed (III SPS) and R. S. Wareham (SGS).

Carry overs of the House Committee are G. P. W. Brawley (III Meds), M. O. Galway (II Vic), R. O. Matthews (III Trin). Elected members are W. D. Beamish (III SPS), R. G. Golden (I Dents), A. K. Ip (SGS), J. W. MacFarlane (II Vic), B. H. Matheson (II Trin), V. R. J. Puppa (III SMC), W. A. Taylor (II Meds) and S. Zysman (II UC).

Record SPS Voters Elect Collins President

The Engineers registered a record 55 per cent turnout at the polls for the annual elections of the Engineering Society held Friday.

Officials said last night there was heavy competition for the senior offices.

Frank Collins was elected President of the Society. First and Second Vice Presidents are Warren "Robin" Beamish and Howie Malone respectively.

Close votes brought as many as three recounts in some cases. President of the Athletic Association is John Lawrence. Presidents of Engineering Year Executives are Herb Brown, 6T0, Jim Lewis 6T1, and Stan Klitch, 6T2.

The executive of the graduating year is headed by President Gary Baker. Vice President is Igor Holube.

Fourth year Students' Administrative Council Representative will be John Little, while III SAC representative is John Odell. John Fisher was elected Director of Professional Relations.

Apology

The Varsity apologizes for misquoting a speaker at a SMC debate last Monday. R. Debernitz called the Prime Minister an "honorable man" acting "foolishly" in the Avro Arrow situation and not a "damn fool" as reported.

Student Leader Claims Lack of Money Stifles

Lack of funds is stifling Canada's voice in international student affairs, Mortimer Bistrisky, president of the National Federation of Canadian University Students said early this week.

"International student meetings are interested in what Canadian students have to say," he said. "But they never hear us," the president said. No money has been provided for Canada's participation in international meetings, he said.

Although his room and board was paid by the Canadian Student Federation, Bistrisky, who has just returned from the International Student Conference in Lima, Peru, had his plane ticket bought by the American Foundation for Youth and Student Affairs.

He suggested the establishment of a foundation supported by interested individuals, business and industry.

The president disclosed that financial support to attend the Bolivia conference in May was sought unsuccessfully from the External Affairs Department.

Institute of Child Study

45 WALMER ROAD

OPEN HOUSE

For Students of the Graduating Year

THURSDAY, MARCH 12th — 9.30 a.m. TO 12 NOON

The Director and staff of the Institute of Child Study are pleased to invite the students to visit the Institute and tour the St. George's Nursery and Elementary Schools.

LES TRETEAUX DE PARIS

jouent

L'ECOLE des DUPES

Comedie en un acte de Andre Roussin et

SATIRE EN TROIS TEMPS

QUATRE MOUVEMENTS

Piece en un acte de Robert Mallet

Vendredi et Samedi 13 et 14 Mars 1959

HART HOUSE THEATRE

Tickets $1.50

Etudiants 75c

Texte de la Piece en vente au sieze social

89 Pleasant Boulevard

Colonial Coach Lines

Special Excursion Rates

During Easter Holidays for Teachers and Students

RATES OF FARE AND ONE HALF

EFFECTIVE FROM MARCH 20th to APRIL 2nd, 1959

Please Contact: Gray Coach Lines Terminal, Bay and Dundas Streets, Toronto

FREE DANCE

To First Ten Couples

TOP RECORDINGS

SATURDAY — 8 p.m.

Eglinton Orange Hall
rear of Capitol Theatre
2492 Yonge Street
Free Refreshments
Spot Prizes

TYPEWRITERS

$1.00 A WEEK BUYS ...
... $1.50 A WEEK RENTS

Get a free typing course and a liberal trade-in allowance for your old typewriter when you buy a new modern machine from us.

Phone HO. 1-1843 Today

CLASSIFIED ADS.

$1 DOWN BUYS ANY MAKE
Brand new typewriters. $59 up
Some models $30 off. Free home demonstration. Free typing course
1959 models rented, lowest rates
375 Jane-Humber, RO 6-1103.

TYPIST (Electric)

Fast, accurate, personalized service. Theses, essays, letters, dictation. Reasonable rates. Irene Kenyon, 148 Bernard Avenue, WA 3-4011.

MATHEMATICS COACH

Qualified and experienced, offers private instruction at all levels. L. Levy, RO. 6-3153.

UNIVERSITY BLAZERS

Custom Made

Especially Priced for Students

$27.50

Fine Flannel Worsted Trousers
$16.50

Business Hours: 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.
Monday through Saturday

Suits made to measure
latest styles and design

PARNES Clothing Co.

706 QUEEN STREET WEST
EM 6-2025

Sample at S.A.C. Office

Notes on any subject are easier to write,
easier to read
when you use

CAMPUS SCHOOL SUPPLIES

Clean, crisp paper for every student need.

GAGE STATIONERY

A DIVISION OF W. J. GAGE LIMITED

TORONTO • MONTREAL • WINNIPEG • VANCOUVER

in MATINÉE they've found
the finest...

Its classic tobaccos give the special quality they demand. The delightful mildness is Matinée's own and the four filament filter completes their enjoyment. That is why they smoke Matinée with the complete confidence they've found the finest.

A cigarette of elegance...
with the finer filament filter

Hart House

IN THE ART GALLERY

MEMBERS' ART GALLERY - EXHIBITION OF WORK BY MEMBERS OF THE HOUSE AND OF THE UNIVERSITY STAFF. OPEN UNTIL MARCH 16th.

STARTING MARCH 17: Exhibition by members of the Hart House Art Class.

STARTING APRIL 1st: "Five Canadian Artists". Paintings by Fred Ross, Claire Shonker, Jean Dallaire, Herbert Schinner and Jack Markell.

HART HOUSE BRIDGE CLUB

SPRING TOURNAMENT

7.15 p.m. — EAST COMMON ROOM

PRIZES

ALL WELCOME

(except women)

THIS IS THE FINAL MEETING

C.B.C. CELEBRITY SERIES: MAUREEN FORRESTER. WEDNESDAY, MARCH 11th — 8.10 p.m. SHARP IN THE GREAT HALL. FREE TICKETS AVAILABLE AT THE HALL PORTER'S DESK FROM TODAY.

LIBRARY EVENING

Open to all men on the campus

MARCH 18th

MR. MAX FERGUSON

8.00 p.m.

Madison Avenue...

Yes, up and down ad alley you'll find the smartest account execs call for Coke during important meetings. The cold crisp taste, the real refreshment of Coca-Cola are just what the client ordered. So up periscope and take a look into the situation. Ad men of the future!—start your training now—climb into a gray flannel suit and relax with a Coke!

BE REALLY REFRESHED...HAVE A COKE!

SAY 'COKE' OR 'COCA-COLA'—BOTH TRADE-MARKS MEAN THE PRODUCT OF COCA-COLA LTD.—THE WORLD'S BEST-LOVED SPARKLING DRINK.

An editor picks up

Some Pebbles from the Beach

By HARVEY SHEPHERD
Varsity News Editor

Events during the 1958-9 University of Toronto Academic year sounded the heights of scholarship, creativity and festivity and plumbed the depths of pettiness.

The university spent a year trying a new head on for size.

He was Dr. Claude T. Bissell, once of University College and of late Carleton University President.

Dr. Bissell wasted no time in proclaiming himself a champion of the role of the liberal arts as spinal column of the university.

Also proclaimed by the President was his admiration for the scholar or, in undergraduate terms, the "swotter".

And the U of T's subterranean, undergraduate name pinners-on took the words "be angular" from his freshman address and put them into a banner headline and the mouth of every U of T student.

Aside from that, the few months of school were marked with the usual undergraduate hell-raising which ranged from a grandiose kidnapping scheme of the Blinded Dog Society to an epidemic of plaque-ripping partly attributed to the "Big Seven Renegades" — who may at any rate have numbered seven.

As plaques went down, buildings went up and the U of T expansion program suffered through a squabble between the Toronto Builders' Exchange and their laborers.

An issue of the U of T Quarterly given over entirely to a discussion of Russian education by Russian professors brought cries of propaganda from the U of T Slavic studies department.

U of T students, through the Students' Administrative Council, expressed their support of suspended student journalists at the embattled University of Ottawa.

And U of T sports fans rejoiced with good people all over the world as the Varsity Blues walked over the McGill Redmen and brought the Yates football cup home to Toronto in November.

The U of T President's Advisory Committee on Student Aid let off a bombshell in November with a report calling for:

- free tuition for first-class students along with bursary aid,
- bursaries for second-class students and
- no aid for third-class students.

And President Bissell last week said he was "delighted" as the Ontario government boosted grants to universities by $1,000,000 and set aside $1,200,000 for scholarships and bursaries.

The Spring term began with the annual Model Parliament having the usual Progressive Conservative government while the campus Liberals upset the CCF party to form the official opposition.

And 'round about Model Parliament time, a special U of T Convocation had its eyes fixed on politics too, as Canadian Prime Minister John Diefenbaker called for an exposition of the creed free-nations adhere to.

The Engineering Society lost a safe temporarily in what later proved to be another student prank, but saw students who had ripped down its annual Christmas tree punished by the U of T Caput.

In February, however, the seizure of the usually well-guarded Skule Cannon by Medical Students, which coincided with a special Medical Faculty issue of The Varsity, was followed by bitter recriminations from the Skulehouse against both The Varsity and the Medsmen.

And also in the minds and on the lips of U of T students through the year was the furor caused by a squabble between Prof. Harry Crowe and Principal Wilfred Lockhart of Winnipeg's United College which ended with the former suspended and the latter resigning.

Leaving U of T with the good wishes of their students and associates this year are Principal F. C. A. Jeanneret of University College, Principal Harold Bennett of Victoria College and Principal Ramsay Armitage of Wycliffe College.

Also bowing out is Miss A. E. M. Parkes, Associate Secretary of the Students' Administrative Council.

Victoria has announced the appointment of a new principal in Prof. Northrop Frye and of a new Chancellor in Louis O. Brethaupt, former lieutenant-governor of Ontario. A prominent Anglican, Canon Leslie Hunt, will be Wycliffe principal.

And, as the year closes, another U of T staff member will be leaving the university. He is Prof. Bruno Morawetz, Trinity philosopher, who leaves for a farm near Kitchener to contemplate the world's need for peace.

And perhaps the measure of the year's success can be taken by the number of those whom the university casts out, for a summer or for a lifetime, who are, like Prof. Morawetz, at least a little unhappy.

WEDDING GOWNS

Convenient Evening Appointments if Desired

Order Now Before Exams

Pay Later

HELMAR - 46 ST. GEORGE ST. - WA. 1-5978

BIG NAME STARS
AT 1/2 THE
BIG NAME PRICE!

ONLY $1.98

The great new hits of today! The spectacular hits of yesterday! Performed by the big name artists you love most! Pops, jazz, country-western or classics at one remarkable price—only $1.98! Come in and ask about RCA Camden Stereo at $2.98.

CAL-440

CAL-445

CAL-438

CAL-454

CAL-450

CAL-465

A.&A. RECORD BAR

351 YONGE STREET, Toronto
EM. 4-6832 — EM. 4-6053

Open from 7 a.m. to 12 midnight every day including Saturday.

Free Fidelitone Record Cloth ($1.00) with the purchase of any of these Long-Play Records upon presentation of this ad. (Offer good until March 31st)

The Students' Administrative Council

Announces a Concert by

The University of Toronto
Symphony Orchestra

Professor Robert Rosevear, conducting

SUNDAY EVENING, MARCH 8th, 9 p.m.
CONVOCATION HALL

and a Concert by

The University of Toronto Chorus

Professor Richard Johnson, conducting

SUNDAY, MARCH 15th, 9 p.m.
GREAT HALL, HART HOUSE

All students, staff, graduates and friends of the University are cordially invited

How to do without banks

(in millions of easy steps)

Step one: Simply carry with you all the money you need for immediate purposes... tuition, bills, incidental expenses, etc. This keeps your money at everybody's fingertips.

Step two: If you can't spend or lose your money immediately, press it under your mattress. This keeps it crisp and unspoiled... none of this mingling with other people's money in a bank earning savings account interest.

Steps three, four, five, six, seven, eight... ad infinitum: When you have bills to pay, pay them in person. Why spend 10c for a cheque that you can mail, when you can spend hours trudging around or riding buses or looking for a place to park?

Step Infinity-plus-one: If you have valuable or hard-to-replace papers around, buy a good, sturdy safe. It may cost $500 or so, but you'll save the $5.00 an inexpensive safety deposit box would cost.

P.S. If you don't care to master all these steps, drop in at your nearest BNS branch.

Students are always welcome.

The BANK of NOVA SCOTIA

-Park Plaza Hotel Branch: R. S. Pettit, Manager

-Bloor & Spadina Ave. Branch: C. R. Dickie, Manager

-Bloor & Yonge Branch: C. K. Collison, Manager

Grant For
UNB Grad

A.L. LaBrecque, a University of New Brunswick student engaged in post-graduate work here, has been awarded a $2,300 scholarship for advanced study and research in forest economics, President Claude T. Bissell announced yesterday.

Mr. LaBrecque is the first winner of the fellowship, set up by the Toronto Anglers and Hunters Association.

A $1,500 fellowship, from the same association, was awarded to Dionys Burger, a native of Holland, who has been employed at the government experimental station at Maple, Ont., while working on his Ph.D. degree.

Other Forestry awards include: R.F. Ackerman, the $2,000 Kimberly-Clark Fellowship; M.C.H. Seckler, the $250 John Lewis Foster Scholarship; and W.J. Daniels and D.R. Wright, winners of Forestry Memorial Scholarships, valued at $300 and $250, respectively.

It's Fun to DANCE
ATMart Kenney's
RanchEVERY SATURDAY
CANADA'S FINEST
BANDSSpecial Student Rates
$1.00 per person
Reservation And
Information
AT. 8-1282

Chorus, Orchestra Ramble From Madrigals to Mambo

University of Toronto students will this month have an opportunity of hearing U of T students perform musical works from historical periods ranging from the era of the madrigals to the present day.

This Sunday, March 8, the U of T Orchestra will present a concert in Convocation Hall, and the U of T Chorus will perform one week later, March 15, in the Hart House Great Hall.

Finals of the March 8 concert will be a joint effort by the orchestra, the chorus and piano soloist Cornelius Rodert, a first-year music student. They will present William's "Fantasy on Old 104th Psalm".

Student assistant conductor Walter Kemp, will conduct two works, a Bach chorale Prelude, and the "Outdoor Prelude" by Aaron Copeland, Professor R.A. Rosevear, of the Faculty of Music, will lead a number of other pieces.

The following week the U of T Chorus will present a program of wide variety. Among the selections are musical poems by William Blake and Earl George, and a group of madrigals by Willaert. George Dunkley, student conductor, chooses the romantic "Songs of Nature", by Dvorak for the chorus to sing.

A highlight of the program is

Robert Jeffrey, a Kiwanis Festival winner, who will sing a wordless song by Delius.

The U of T Chorus is the only choral body on campus that represents the campus at large.

The Orchestra, also a cross-section of the campus, has been working overtime to bring to the students a polished, professional performance.

Both concerts begin at 9 p.m. and are open to everyone.

Faith "Guide" In Africa

A distinguished African Christian Tuesday told an audience in Convocation Hall that the present role of the Christian Church in Africa is that of champion, teacher and guide.

Rev. Christiar. Baeta of University College, Ghana, closed the annual Coby Memorial Lectures with an address on the topic: Africa Advancing Whither?

Discussing the African situation in its religious context, he said although Christianity has been received in Africa more enthusiastically than anywhere else in the non-Western world, the Islamic religion has presented formidable competition in the conversion of the African.

"In Mohammedanism," he said, "the shock of conversion is exceedingly less profound than that experienced in Christianity. While the latter requires a complete abandonment of one's former faith, the former is satisfied with a gradual acceptance of the precepts of Mohammed."

Mr. Baeta said he did not wish to try to fully expound the political problems of his homeland.

But he did say: "The political commotion in Africa has roots both in the injustices perpetrated by the new group in power and in the insatiable quest of the African himself to gratify his feelings for self-respect and dignity."

He said the African's battlecry is: "We prefer self-government in danger to servitude in tranquility."

In closing, he summarized the duty of the Christian Church in Africa today, that it must be adequate to meet the needs of a land in dire political and social straits.

"The Church must be the guardian of human rights," he said; "it must act as the conscience of the African people and yet must be aware of the danger of attempting to preserve antiquated thoughts and behaviour."

A.V.R. 1959-60

The A.V.R. Committee calls for the submission of the following to the S.A.C. Office:

1. Scripts or drafts of same for an original book show. (Deadline March 16, 1959).
2. Applications for position of Producer of 1959-60 show.
3. Applications for position of Director of 1959-60 show. (On the understanding that these will not be considered until the show has been selected).

SUMMER WORK For Teachers - Students

We have interesting office positions for you during the summer months. Work for us the days you want—a week, a month, or the whole summer.

We need stenographers, typists, and office machine operators. You will be paid weekly at top rates. Come in or call for more information.

MANPOWER

57 BLOOR ST. W. — WA. 5-1174
150 Offices Throughout the World

Pure Enjoyment...

The all-campus yearbook will delight you now and in the future. Crammed with photos of you, your friends, activities, sports, clubs and fraternities. After tomorrow, order your TORONTONENSIS '59 from the S.A.C. Office.

E.A.C. Election Meeting

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 18 — 7.30 p.m.

FALCONER HALL

Positions Open to Anyone Interested:

Secretary — W.U.S. Co-Chairman — NFCUS Co-Chairman —
Host Chairman — Week-ends Co-Chairman

Everyone Welcome to Join any of These Committees

ALL-DAY MILDNESS

Black Cat

PLAIN CORK FILTER

The Modern Sound of Jazz at the

HOUSE of HAMBOURG

New Location — Ward-Price Galleries
23 Grenville Street
(One block north of College between Yonge and Bay)

TONIGHT—MIDNIGHT to 4 A.M.
Don Thompson Norm Amadio
Bill Britto

Ed Bickert Jack Lander
Butch Watanabe

SATURDAY, MIDNIGHT to 4 A.M.
Norm Amadio Bill Britto
Butch Watanabe Alex Lazaro

Jerry Toth Ed Bickert
Jack Lander

SUNDAY NIGHT
8 P.M. TO 12:30 A.M.
Ron Kull Jerry Toth
Butch Watanabe Ed Bickert
Jack Lander

Free Parking Opposite
Information and Reservations
WA. 3-5068

J. Paul Sheedy's* Hair Looked Fowl Till He Pecked Up Some Wildroot Cream-Oil!

One day Sheedy's best friend decided to set him straight. "Paul", he said, "people are starting to make yokes about your sloppy appearance. There's no eggscuse for such messy hair. Here you've got a built-in comb and still your hair's a fright!" "I know", clucked Sheedy, "wattle I do about it?" "Get yourself some Wildroot Cream-Oil", advised his friend. So Sheedy got some and now his hair looks eggactly right all day... neat but never greasy. Follow Sheedy's eggssample. Get a bottle or tube of Wildroot Cream-Oil. Guaranteed to make your hair look healthy and handsome!

*of 131 So. Harris Hill Rd., Williamsport, N. Y.

Wildroot Cream-Oil
gives you confidence

He says he does it by Steady Saving
at the Bank of Montreal*

*The Bank where Students' accounts are warmly welcomed.

*You'll find these B of M branches especially convenient

Bloor and Bay Sts.

KENNETH A. McNEIL, Manager

Queen's Park

JOSEPH BURDOCK, Manager

St. George and Bloor Sts.

DWIGHT A. EVANS, Manager

in the mind

Last September, when we were younger, and greener in judgment, we told you that this was, for Canadian universities, the best of times and the worst of times, the age of reason and the age of folly.

Either the age or our judgment seem to be improving.

It no longer seems the worst of times for Canadian universities. Those great dark forces of authority, which haunt the minds of children and journalists, seem to be more aware of the problems facing students than we could hope possible.

Last term's Bissell plan, the Frost government's increase in provincial grants and the Prime Minister's reaction yesterday to the Nfcs brief are only three of the many indications that the storm clouds are clearing.

Other pastures also look more pleasant than they did. Students themselves no longer seem to be behaving like pathetic sheep grazing on the dry grass of conformity and tended by shepherds who put more stock in technique than they did in the feelings on the flocks they guide.

The shepherds are not so bad, the sheep seem far less sheepish and the grass is turning green again.

Yes, times have changed, but so have we. The devils and angels are, as they always were, in our mind.

In the six months we have been sitting on our editorial pot pounding out our opinions we have learned that the blacks are never as black as they appear; the whites are always dirty. We have learned to respect things we didn't respect and understand things we would probably never have understood.

It hasn't all been easy, but it's all been fun.

We didn't get through the year without making some mistakes. We never expected we would. But men and journalists have always profited by their mistakes, they tell us.

We hope we are no exception.

General, my general

Three Years To Med

By John Gray

The learned academic palaver recently about higher education has produced several startling effects upon the university world of North America.

With one accord, voices have shouted to advance the science students at a greater rate, temper philosophy course with ditch-digging as they do in China, find more language students to read Eliot in the original Sanskrit—generally an all-out appeal to get down to brass academic tacks.

All this no doubt will have a very beneficial effect on our university. We will have the satisfying feeling that the university administration will think somewhat intensely about how they spend the millions of dollars granted annually.

In the interests of higher education steps will be taken, committees will be formed, discussions will ensue. But it is a safe bet that one of the more useless aspects of this university will remain unchanged.

About one third of the University's Arts students are enrolled in the General Course. This amounts to 2,000 odd students — 2,000 students who are to all intents and purposes wasting their time and money and the University's resources.

The course as such is not in question here. Suffice it to say that probably half the Arts students in the university would take a General degree if the course was satisfactory.

The General course was presumably established to provide a broad liberal arts education, to avoid the rigidity of over-specialized Honor courses. It has arrived at the point where it is general and broad, but can of education.

No academic regards the than a collection of civilized idiots, somewhat civilized, and in their attempts to find any lectures.

First class lecturers have second-class way — classes of eating lunch, are too much for class lecturers, of which there are always second-class lecturers.

For those who spend their an easy three-year route to a be a great pleasure in a work considered.

Honor courses, for all their lectures and in reading. They thorough and intensive than the

There is nothing inherently general course to make it dull these two attributes by mere

A few highlights are offered, hoped that the gaps will be filled

Other universities have quite different in application British Columbia they are respectable students, leaving the to devote all their time to a

In such courses the student subjects — the same as are offered which he can choose his course

Suggestions that such a reply by the many students atmosphere of honor studies.

This may be so. But the University at all, even the general or preferably four, years at a of knowledge and the broad

One third of the Arts students acquiring knowledge, and the legible. Examinations can be by only two or three weeks

Such exams shouldn't be awarded. They are a waste

If the administration were it might be worthwhile to discuss course.

If not, they might at least Mr. Frost's money.

Hell! Even The Varsity has started studying.

THE VARSITY

FOUNDED 1880

Published by
The Students' Administrative Council
of the University of Toronto
Toronto 5, Canada
Member Canadian University Press

Editorial and News Office
Basement, SAC Building — WA 3-8742, WA 3-8113
Business and Advertising Manager
E. A. Macdonald — WA. 3-6221

The opinions expressed in this paper are those of the editor.

Editor-in-Chief	Doug Marshall
Managing Editor	Mark Nichols
Editor-without-portfolio	Sam Aizenstat
News Editor	Harvey Shepherd
CUP Editor	Vicky Innes
Photo Editor	Mike Cavanagh
Make-up Editor	Nancy Takeuchi
Co-AM&D Editors	Maryann Talbot and Warren Wilson
Sports Editor	John Brooks
Associate Sports Editors	Dave Griner and Gene Glisky
Associate News Editors	Ed Roberts and Al Walker
Publicity Editor	Susie Breslin
Features Editor	Liz Binks
Staff Cartoonists	Marg McMeekin and Sheldon Greenberg
Mortician	Roger Wild

This Year's Staff: Sally Bambridge, Brian Stock, Bev Nykor, Madeline Walker, David Halton, Bill Musgrove, Toivo Miljan, Sylvia Sloan, Boris Freeman, Jane Nesbitt, Terry Bourke, Don Gordon, Sandy Weinberg, Ken Marshall, Susan Kastner, Ken Carpenter, Marianne Hamilton, Morgan Tappin, Arlene Glickman, Maryanne Kelso, Kay McCook, Robey Merker, Debbie Halper, Sam Swerling, Doug Peppiat, Aldona Pundzius, Dave Brison, Jim Feeley, Bob Carson, Dan Hatcher, Andy Stabins, Roman Horban, Bill Palm, Lawrence Drummond, Wayne Weston, Marv Schrieder, Mike Chykaliuk, Weldon Thoburn, George Wilson, Sharon Milgram, Pam Hill, Laurel Ball, Shirley Wright, Ann Tottenham, Gary Lautens, Ivan Miller, Jack Hartline, Dave Gawley, Bill Lytle, One-eyed Benny, Mel Allen, Bill Corum, Erika Hirsch, Wendy Blair, Earl Foley, Mary Anderson, Anne Blackman, Bill Aide, Cathy Arthur, Ted Barnes, Dave Helwig, John Harasti, Elmo Ciprietti, Diane Ede, John Robert Colombo, Michael John Nimchuk, Jane Watson, Alison Cunningham, Jamie Cunningham, Daphne Stephens, Marieline Douglas, George Falle, Robert Johnston, Elizabeth Harrison, David Bolton, Janet MacDonald, Larry Lederman, Annette Miglec, Liza Wilson, James Mainprize, Ruta Ginsberg, Karl Jaffary, Warren Peace, John Murggeridge, Ted Schafer, Dave Halton, Peter Brawley, Peeter Sepp, Pamela Thayer, Kathleen Couley, Burf Kay, Malcolm Bugarski, Riho Pild, Ed Barrick, Bill Barrick, Dave Brison, Lorraine Berry, Robert Block, Marilyn Cook, Gord Drewett, Chris English, Donald Garden, Dave Slocombe, Bob Pinto, Paul Hockings, Terry Jabour, Adam Lisiewicz, Frank Marzari, Pam Matthews, Rosalie Mednick, Colleen Malone, Dunc McLaren, Jack Seedhouse.

"Suffer yourselves to be blamed, imprisoned, condemned; suffer yourselves to be hanged; but publish your opinions; it is not a right, it is a duty."

The Year Re-Versed

'Tis voice of turtle that I hark;
He gazes on the foundering mark:
'Toil and trouble, toil and strife
Mark our passage through this life—'
Thus croaketh turtle, loud and clear,
A-pondering the last bleak year . . .

"Monarch tumbleth with a crack,
Mobs run howling in Iraq;
Common folk forget their place:
Batista falleth on his face.

"Shelleth islands, hovereth war;
Loometh forth the U.A.R.;
But saddest times both far and near
When good Toronto lacketh beer.
(Colonies are causing pain:
Queen and Meg on tour again.)
Dief doth roar and ceilings shiver
As Avro empties out its quiver.
'Austere' is byword for De Gaulle;
For U.C. Follies he don't fail.

"Neighbours to the south get shock:

Donkey cleaneth elephant's clock.
(To all the people, who is sweller Than suave Nelson Rockefeller?)
Southern states show agitation:
Loometh equal education!

"Of new states comes no rumour;
Foster's bedded down with tumour;
And will we likewise beg his heir:
'Don't do something, just stand there!'
Yankees pro, the Soviets con;
Vodka parties on the lawn.
And 'twould take the craft of Merlin
To straighten out the mess that's Berlin.
(To the Huns we stretch our hand; Blessings on thee, Willi Brandt!)

"How these times torment and try us!
World doth lose when goeth Pius.
(To Book of Sorrow add this leaf:
Ruta Ginsberg's died of grief;
But here the ball we will not fumble:

We know she's really John

"Now the Russki, that no
Sends aloft another Sputnik.
Yanks, though, fast approach
For once, moon-rocket does
As hula-hoop doth whirl abo
Many an old hip's thrown
And museth many a Reynold well-wisher:
What doth Taylor see in F

"Ah, world of gloom and of woe;
Beat come the year, beat
For joy is but-a flimsy tissue
When Varsity puts forth
Withdraws the turtle ro
The world of men he won't
Methinks he takes a listless
Mankind ain't such a hope
Still time to change, for best
If fallout doesn't get us fir

Miss Marie Parkes

The Lady With The Smile

By Liz Binks

iocrity

onger parade under the name ral course as anything more idiots. Some of them are rest are completely frustrated faction from their studies or their General courses in a o to 300, usually bored and the best of lecturers. Secondnfortunately a multitude, are eating, the course is merely ees. Education, which might e general cause, is not even fects, provide stimulation—in calculated to be much more neral course.

esent in the concept of the despicable — but it achieves nce here.

n a back-handed way. It is later life by individual effort.

ses similar in intent, but
In such university's as and have a large number of courses for those who wish field of studies.

given a broad choice of sub-the honor courses — from most at random.

be tried in Toronto are met e just not up to the rarified they do not belong in the course — the object of three, ity is presumably the acquisiof intellectual development.

s at this university are not ollectual development is neg-ed and academic prizes won g all year.

n, and such prizes shouldn't time and effort.

catch up with the Russians," ome attention to the General

the good grace not to waste

In the February, 1920 minutes of the University of Toronto women's students' council, the concluding paragraph reads like this: "The council decided to accept the application of Miss Parkes as secretary and to ascertain definitely, whether she would be able to retain the position for the session 1920-21".

That was 39 years ago, when the university presidency was held by Sir Robert Falconer, when there were segregated men's and women's councils; it was four years after Marie Parkes had graduated in modern languages at UC.

Had the 1920 council been able to look into the future, it would have had no worries as to its new employee's ability to hold down a job. Now on the eve of retirement as associate secretary of the SAC and secretary-treasurer of the Women's Athletic Association, Miss Parkes can look back on many patterns in the changing face of the university and trace in them her own influence.

"My job with the SAC has always been a bit of a surprise to me", she admits, "I never dreamt it would last so long. After a year's secretarial course at Columbia, I came back to Toronto and answered the council's ad, I've been here ever since — and every year the job has demanded something different".

Miss Parkes, who for years has kept in close contact with almost every woman connected with athletics, kept a bemused eye on toon-spirited Varsity editors and offered endless advice to wet-behind-the-ears council members, had lots of the same experience during her own undergraduate days.

"I was always secretary or on the executive of something", she recalls, "I was on the Lit and class executive, secretary of the Federated Athletic Association, and reporting editor of The Varsity".

In the days when The Varsity was printed at U of T Press, she was one of three women, carefully chaperoned, who put out the first women's edition in 1915. They were sent home at 6 a.m. in taxis provided by the council.

As secretary of the women's council and of the joint men's and women's executives, Miss Parkes had already started a small-scale book exchange when the newly-formed Athletic Directorate appointed her as secretary in 1921.

That year, the first women's basketball meet was held in Kingston and, for lack of funds, officials had to collect 25 cents from every woman on campus.

It was about the same time that women were granted a special section at football games", Miss Parkes said, "Before that they could only get in with an escort. But T.A. Reed decreed they should have the south half of the centre section, and there they sat, demurely sheltered, until about five years later when chivalry died and the men claimed back the good seats. After that they took whatever they could get!"

In 1928, she took time out from university duties to chaperone the Canadian women's Olympic team to the games in Amsterdam and watch Bobby Rosenfeld and others take a Canadian track and field championship.

And when cheerleaders and drum majorettes ushered in a gala year for intercollegiate sport in 1945, they made official the role Miss Parkes was to play until her retirement — university women's chaperone.

"I can't count the number of train rides I took with teams after that", she says, "And I sometimes had my hands full. But I must have been pretty fearsome because there were very few successful kidnappings".

In 1931, separate councils were abandoned and a new constitution adopted — one which lasted until week ago Wednesday when 1959 members celebrated its revision with champagne in Falconer Hall. When war was declared and general secretary-treasurer E.A. MacDonald went overseas, Miss Parkes took complete charge and moved into the men's Hart House office.

"Those days saw the end of Nicus for a while", she recalls, "and the beginnings of a new organization called European Students' Relief which was later to turn into World University Service".

Before that, WUS was known under another name, International Students Service, and one of its members, Ross McLean, now of the CBC, emceed the university's first AVR in Convocation Hall.

There are woman graduates at U of T today who can well remember a rigid training program in the Red Cross Corps as part of their university career.

They will also remember Miss Parkes who, as commandant of the university corps and later national commandant, put 200 girls a year through their paces.

"They drove Red Cross vans, learned air raid drills and did whatever they could at the Toronto headquarters. The Varsity carried their order in regular military phraseology every week. By the time we were through with them, they were ready for jobs with the city Corps."

When the war ended, the flood of women which has become so familiar a sight in Hart House almost threatened to end that institution's male supremacy.

"I guess Warden Bickersteth sensed disaster in the air when he finally sent us back to our segregated existence in UC", Miss Parkes recalls mischievously.

A service of 39 years can add up to a lot of friends and Miss Parkes' SAC office has seen many a graduate drop into say: "My mother says to say hello to you."

She knew you when she was a student here".

"This is what has made the job so rewarding", she says, "It's been a wonderful life and I've enjoyed every minute of it. But now it's time the SAC trained somebody younger for the job. And I've still got the university Women's Club, the Ladies Golf Club and amateur painting to keep me busy".

There are many aspects of Miss Parkes' job which have changed or ceased to exist since her application was first accepted in 1920. But there is one aspect — or perhaps it is better termed an attitude — that she has carried through her 39 years with the university administration and it will be sorely missed when she is gone. It is best summed up in an unconscious phrase of her own.

Drop into the SAC office between now and June 30 and it is pretty safe to predict you will be met by a smiling grey-haired woman who will approach you with the words "May I help you?"

They Come, They Go

By VICKY INNES
Varsity CUP Editor

"Ubysses Editors
Fired For Theft
As Staff Appeals".

This was a recent Varsity headline concerning the fate of campus editors.

A year ago, it might have caused raised eyebrows and some thoughtful conversation; now it seems more like a variation on a worn-out theme, for within twelve months eight editors have lost their jobs for misdemeanors ranging from theft to the printing of "foul blasphemy".

The story began last February at the University of Ottawa, a bi-lingual institution run by the Oblate Fathers, when an attack was made in U of O's La Rotonde against the "paternalism" of the administration.

Co-editors Jean David and Normand Lacharite were promptly fired from their posts and asked to leave the university. This fall, David enrolled at the University of Montreal and Lacharite at Laval University.

By October, La Rotonde was embroiled in another controversy with the administration because of a special report written by Lacharite on the controversial February issue.

As a result, La Rotonde editors Louis Cliche, Roger Roy and Pierre Trudel were dismissed by Rev. Leonard Ducharme, dean of students.

In a public notice distributed on campus, the dean said the three had made "no distinction between editorial and news", and had not been "limited to facts while speaking of student activities". The action was taken to "ensure the maintenance of good relations between the student body and the university".

Both the National Federation of Canadian University Students and Canadian University Press supported the editors' stand.

Nicus president Mortimer Bistrisky said in a press conference in Ottawa that the U of O authorities' action was "against the principle of students' rights endorsed by the 22nd Nicus conference."

In a letter to Rev. H.F. Legare, U of O Rector, CUP protested that the dismissal was "a grave blow to university journalism in this country and a denial of one of the bases of a university education."

The struggle took a new turn late in November when the Students' Federation withdrew its support of the editors and accepted their resignation. Result: council president Marcel Prud'homme, who had led opposition to the administration's dismissal of the three, resigned.

The conflict ended on an ironic note; after a fiery, four-hour debate, ex-editor Louis Cliche was elected president of the students' council to replace Prud'homme.

However, La Rotonde has been published only once since this time, leaving the U of O without a French-language paper.

Lacharite made headlines again when he was expelled from Laval U over the Christmas holidays. This time, it was due to an article entitled "Le Camelot des Oblates", in which he again criticized the U of O administration.

In a letter from the administration, Lacharite was asked for an explanation of the article. He replied; a second letter informed him he was expelled. Later he enrolled in the U of Montreal.

From Ottawa, the action moved east to Nova Scotia where Donald Angus, Editor of Acadia University's Athenaeum was suspended by the student judicial committee for publishing an article by fourth-year arts student Robert Fiander. University president Watson Kirkconnell told Fiander to "get out of Wolfville within 24 hours" because of the "foul blasphemy" in the article.

He later modified his stand, allowing Fiander to finish his year extramurally.

The decision of the student council to reinstate Angus was revoked when the student disciplinary body permanently suspended the editor. Twenty of the 23 Athenaeum staff resigned in protest.

Final irony came when the judicial committee resigned "because of the students' attitude ... and the publicity given by the press". Their duties will now be handled by the university's Board of Governors.

Finally, Angus left the university because of academic difficulties and Phillip Roberts was unanimously elected editor by the Athenaeum staff.

The scene then shifted out west where the University of British Columbia student court suspended Ubysses editors Kerry Feltham and Dave Robertson for the theft of a painting valued at $450 from the student union building last November.

The pair told the court they took the painting "as a prank to show how easily things such as this could be taken from the building".

ART, MUSIC

The Invaluable Expatriot

from that first year when he gave acting classes to students three times a day, five times a week, "because the theatre was so rarely in use", and sent Shaw's Saint Joan and Cocteau's Infernal Machine into the laps of an excited university audience.

But those first few years, though tentative, unsure and very experimental, were unqualified successes.

"The campus was flooded with veterans, mature young men who loved the theatre, whether as actors or spectators", Gill says. "The interest was terrific and talent abounded. For both those first productions, we were sold out six days before opening night."

Billed were names like Murray and Donald Davis, William Hutt, Eric House, Ted Fellows, Charmion King, Anna Cameron, Araby Lockhart, Kate Reid and David Gerdiner. They were some of the names that were to make Gill's 1946 prophecy come true — that the national inferiority complex that characterized Canadians then would not last.

"It has been the most exciting experience possible to be here and watch what has developed — and to have had a bit of a hand in it", Gill says. "The changes that have taken place are simply fantastic!"

"Some of the performances I saw in Toronto first were terrible. And 13 years later — Stratford! Canadians should be very proud of what they have done."

Seated in his Hart House office surrounded by pictures of his 50 productions, the towheaded-haired Gill looked like a man who could only be happy in the midst of a dynamic, living movement. His words, clipped and precise, tumbled out in high-charged phrases. His hands moved electrically.

"Hart House theatre, the way I see it, has a three-fold purpose — every part as important as the other. It is a training ground for anyone who wants to make the theatre his life, and we have sent over 100 young people into successful professional careers."

"It is an extra-curricular activity for those who simply want the experience as part of their university training. And it provides an opportunity for students to see a great number of different plays at prices they can afford."

Gill decided to forsake acting for directing during his first stint at Cleveland Playhouse — before he returned to Pittsburgh for his Masters Degree and several years before he came to Toronto.

"I played in a 20-week run of a mvs cry-comedy", he recalls with a grimace. "That finished me. I love rehearsals I love acting, but unless I am in a good play, I find the repetition deadening."

"Many people who are creative find the same thing. I think it is true of us who lack the true actor's vanity — an absolute necessity for any actor. He must be able to feel that every single night there is a new audience which is interested in him and to whom he can make a fresh appeal."

Gill's next decision was for amateur rather than the professional and commercial theatre. After a "stultifying" season at Pittsburgh, directing 30 plays in 30 months, he found he was directing almost to formula and his work lacked vitality.

"That is why I have been so completely happy here", he says. "I would rather work with talented young people under a schedule that allows me the freedom to do decent plays."

His favorite plays of the 50? Skin Of Our Teeth, Othello, St Joan, Medea, Darkness At Noon, Camino Real and Death Of A Salesman. His worst — and most expensive? — O'Neill's Marco Millions.

"Salesman is a great play because it is a terrific theatrical experience and because people have perhaps been taught something when it is over."

Streetcar Named Desire he also described as great and very moving, but William's other hit, Cat On A Hot Tin Roof he termed "sensational for the sake of being sensational".

"My opinion of that play is best summed up by a comment I overheard after the New York production. 'There may be people like that in the South but I don't care to know about them'."

Of Williams as a playwright he comments: "A strong, vital theatrical sense. He can depict character and his plays flow. Some of them are great."

Gill's directing energies have carried him further than Hart House during his years here. He staged La Boheme for the Opera Festival in Toronto last year, and for the past three summers has taught acting at the University of British Columbia Opera School.

"For me, opera is like an intellectual boot, a totally different discipline and approach. The singing actor has none of the same freedom of the straight dramatic actor. His expression is often rigidly limited to a few bars and he must be taught to think and to observe what is externally happening. He must be able to convey emotion without hamming — and without spoiling the effects of his voice."

Gill grinned at the charge that he has sent more pupils into the happy realms of wedded domesticity than many another teacher. "I sometimes think of myself as Cupid Gill!"

"But the greatest thrill of my life is to see some of my students go on into professional theatre". He shrugged modestly. "I hope I'm around for another 50 productions."

LIZ BINKS

Varsity Features Editor

Thirteen years and 50 productions ago, Hart House Theatre did not exist. It was known to Toronto audiences only as the Playhouse Club — an amateur theatrical venture not limited to students — which had closed down, like many other institutions, during the war years.

Its governing body, the Board of Syndics, was looking for a new director to bring it back to life. Their first try was for a young director named Robert Gill, former holder of a Rockefeller Foundation Fellowship at Pittsburgh Institute of Technology and director of Pittsburgh Playhouse.

It was unsuccessful. Gill found nobody in Toronto who could tell him the exact function of Hart House; when he proposed an all-student theatre, his idea was rejected as impossible.

He was directing summer stock in New York the following year when the Board of Syndics caught up with him again and offered him a trial year.

"That was 13 years ago", recalls the man whose name has now become synonymous with Hart House productions. "I am now a Canadian citizen."

When Girardoux's Tiger At The Gates closes this Saturday, it will be Gill's 50th production — a far cry

Final Impression

The air is perfumed with the smooth powder
Of the year's cigarette — so long but soon
So short; with the raw breath much sooner,
With moisture of eyes clouding the feeling:
Only ash in the ashtray to mark the hour
And the mute budding movement of butting.

RUTA GINSBERG

The grass was green

The New Yorker's classic joke about Toronto the Good, "I spent a month in Toronto — last Sunday," has become meaningless for the musical world. Musical organizations enraged at the Lord's Day Act have devoted their efforts to contriving ways and means to thwart this legalized heresy. As a result Sunday has become by far the most musical day of the week, with four or five excellent free concerts to choose from: at the Art Gallery, Massey Hall, Hart House, and the CBC Parliament St. Studio.

The campus itself has been deluged with first-class concerts, so much so that the authorities at Hart House are considering a general re-organization of their musical set-up. As the situation now stands, more high-ranking artists appear at Hart House in the various programmes, than at Eaton Auditorium! The campus has not been able to absorb this growth, with the result that famous artists such as Jan Rubes, Ilona Kombrink and Ruggiero Ricci played to half-empty houses, (in a free series). The Hart House Music Committee, trying to find a scapegoat for these flops, raged at the HHOA, who present the only paying series at Hart House, and who also suffered from the expanded number of concerts.

The musical picture on campus for next year may change considerably. The TSO Pops are not definitely on for next year; the CBC Symphony may broadcast on Sunday afternoons; there may be fewer Hart House Music Committee concerts on Sundays; the new members of the Hart House Music Committee are going to fight to put jazz records in the Record Room (and, as usual, they are going to lose); HHOA prices may go up, and the concerts may go back to Sunday nights.

We may not see for many a year to come as wild a musical season as the one coming to an end. Off to a turbulent start because of CBC's fight with the Toronto Symphony, this season has been the most star-studded in history. Maria (Orphanini) Callas, fast running out of cities which have not pronounced her soprano non grata, finally got around to bewitching Toronto audiences with her calculated artistry. Her twin and bane, Renata Tebaldi, gave a sensational, but much more beautiful concert in the Turkish Bath on Shuter St., which is preferable to the hackey rink for a prima donna's recital. Appearing on the same series as Tebaldi, the Stuttgart Chamber Orchestra under Karl Munchinger came embarrassingly close to one of the Hart House Orchestra's concerts.

It is our conclusion that not enough students realize, especially those from other cities, what a magnificent wealth Toronto has in the world of music, and how high the standards are. A recent visit to New York in which we heard very sloppy performances by very famous orchestras convinced us again that the TSO is among the top ten on the Continent. The grass is as green here as in New York, London and Paris; let's take advantage of it, especially since so much of it is free.

Elmo Ciprietti

roundup

March 6, GRAND CONCERT given by the Ukrainian Students' Club at Convocation Hall at 8 p.m. The program includes an exciting selection of Ukrainian songs and music, which will be performed by three different choirs: The 'Prometei', the 'Aria', and the Ukrainian Students' Choir. Soloists will be violinist, Vera Tarnowski; bass Osyen Hoshuliak and soprano, June Kowalchuk. Guest speaker at the Concert will be U of T Chancellor, Samuel Beatty.

March 8, U of T Symphony Orchestra will present a concert at Convocation Hall at 9 p.m. Robert Rosevear will conduct the Orchestra and Chorus.

March 6 and 7, IOLANTHE by Gilbert and Sullivan will be presented by O.C.E. at O.C.E. Auditorium at 8:30 p.m. Tickets $1.00.

March 31 - April 4, Ryerson Institute will present RIOT '59 a musical comedy revue. The stage takes the form of a TV screen, and we should see some very unusual spectacles. Producer/director is Steve Stern, original lyrics are by Ted Ottley and Vivien Frost, and CBC Andy Bodie is the choreographer.

Two celebrated Russian films, PETER THE GREAT and THE CHILDHOOD OF MAXIM GORKI, will be presented in co-operation with the Department of Slavic Studies at the St. George Library auditorium on March 10 and 17 at 8:30 p.m. PETER THE GREAT is in color and stars the great Russian actor, Nikolai Cherkassov as well as members of the Moscow Arts Theatre. THE CHILDHOOD OF MAXIM GORKI is the first in the GORKI trilogy, and one of the most beautiful screen biographies ever filmed.

Tickets are obtainable at the University Bookstore, and are 75c each. These films are part of a programme designed to help Russian students with their studies, although their appeal is not strictly limited to those acquainted with Russian language and culture. If successful, they hope to present a fuller programme next fall.

Owing to the enthusiastic response to its showing of BATTLESHIP POTEMKIN, the University of Toronto Film Society has scheduled a special showing of the celebrated Eisenstein epic, ALEXANDER NEVSKY. The showing will be held in the Howard Ferguson Auditorium on Friday March 13 at 7 p.m. This showing is open to the whole university, and tickets at 50c apiece may be purchased at the S.A.C. Office from 1-2, from Film Society executive members, or at the door.

Film Society members are reminded that the showing of the Mussorgsky opera film, BORIS GODUNOV, will be held at the Capitol Theatre March 15 at 8:30 p.m. DAY OF WRATH will be shown at the Howard Ferguson Auditorium on Friday,

AND DRAMA

ART

Grant Macdonald's work has such a striking quality of its own that one can identify a Macdonald painting at once even if it happens to be hanging at the far end of a long gallery. "I want to convey a feeling of serenity," Mr. Macdonald says. "You could call it a predominant theme if you like, although I am not sure if it qualifies for the name 'theme' in the usual sense. I am concerned with removing all superfluous things to achieve complete simplicity. I want to paint the kind of stillness which is left when all movement is stripped away — the stillness abstracted from movement."

Grant Macdonald might be called a draftsman first and a painter second, although to make such a distinction might tend to cast some doubt on his abilities as a painter. If we do draw such a dividing line it is only in order to be able to understand where his particular genius lies. In fact, of course, it is impossible to separate the draftsman from the painter unless one is considering the problem from a specific angle. One might say that although Mr. Macdonald works with colour and form, there is a simplicity, a grace and beauty of line which is the dominating characteristic of his art. Were the colour to be taken away, the drawing would still remain. In this sense, his colour cannot be called organic. That is, it is not a vital component of the structure, although aesthetically, it is essential.

In Man With Banjo, for instance, the use of light and colour is designed to achieve a specific purpose. A unity of shapes and linear harmony is built up, the whole containing a kind of rhythmic stillness.

The feeling of serenity is produced even by the actual surfaces of the paintings themselves,

They are smooth and flat, and the paint looks as if it might have sprung from within, rather than having been applied externally.

Generally speaking, the trend in contemporary Canadian art seems to be toward "pure" non-representational painting, or to landscape painting. In this respect Mr. Macdonald differs from the majority. Nearly all his work is concerned with expression through the medium of the human figure. Looking at his superb draftsmanship one is reminded of the truth that feeling alone does not make an artist. He must be a craftsman as well.

Born in Canada, Grant Macdonald studied for a number of years in New York, and has painted both on this continent and in Europe. He is optimistic about the chances of success for new artists in Canada. Although the large galleries are unlikely to hang the work of an unknown, there are numbers of small galleries, and Picture Loan Societies (in Toronto, Hamilton, London, Regina, Victoria, Halifax and Kingston) provide an opportunity for the work of younger artists to be seen. Although more people are buying pictures (the Vancouver Gallery, for example, has sold eighty percent of its pictures over the last ten years) Mr. Macdonald doubts whether it is possible for a young artist to make a living by his art alone until he is fairly well established. This, however, is not a situation confined to Canada. Mr. Macdonald's own success is, perhaps, one of the most encouraging aspects of the problem faced by the Canadian artist.

Grant Macdonald's importance as a painter lies, I think, in one significant direction. His pictures possess that all too rarely found virtue — beauty.

Elizabeth Harrison

A Word On Plays

With the state of off-campus theatre just recovering from an unusually unhealthy season — examples: The Royal Alex was dark for over a month last term, the Crest Theatre has stooped to a new low in production since "Inherit The Wind" and cancelled its proposed production of O'Neill's "Moon For The Misbegotten"), the theatregoer is forced in desperation to look to campus theatre for relief. Alas, even here, with very few exceptions, the story has been the same.

The dramatic societies of the four arts colleges, far from making up for the deficiencies of their professional counterparts, have instead taken refuge behind the protective mantle of established commercial plays. Apparently, commercialism is not enough, as every show lost money.

Trinity presented perhaps the most intriguing of the three plays presented this year, William Saroyan's "The Cave Dwellers". It was directed by Pamela Terry, whose production of Samuel Beckett's "Waiting For Godot" came close to winning last year's Dominion Drama Festival. With "Cave Dwellers", production values apart, one cannot help feeling that watching a Saroyan play is just a waste of time, a feeling which arises from the frustration of trying to find hidden meanings in a play that simply are not there, or so cunningly inserted as to completely escape detection by an audience unattuned to Mr. Saroyan's baffling and self-proclaimed genius.

Victoria recently produced the Siegfried Geyer-P. G. Wodehouse comedy, "Candlelight". Again, the production was on a high level, but was unable to make a dated play meaningful for modern audiences.

Shock tactics in publicity were used by St. Mike's and University College to attract the public to their joint production of Lillian Hellman's "The Children's Hour". Unfortunately, about the most that can be said for the production is that, while not making up completely for the many faults of the play, it at least displayed the smooth finish we have come to expect from its director, Bill Davis. Indeed, it is a play "full of sound and fury, signifying nothing," or at least very little.

Some relief from the encircling gloom of the theatrical picture has been provided by the UTDC One-Act Play Festival, which this year presented one of its most exciting seasons, both in choice of play and in quality of production. And of course, Robert Gill's four all-campus productions, including a superb "Death Of A Salesman", an enjoyable "Late George Apley", an exciting "Children of Darkness" (by one of America's most gifted, though least prolific playwrights, Edwin Justus Mayer), and a brilliant "Tiger At The Gates".

But then, to expect a bad show from the amazing "Sun-God" of Hart House Theatre is like expecting the AVR, under its present set-up, to make money, to say nothing of providing a modicum of good taste in its productions.

If it has done nothing else this season, campus theatre has allowed armchair critics to smugly sit back, demolish cartoons of Du-Mouriers and unold highland flings, and snidely inform their captive audience exactly what is wrong with student productions in terms that leave nothing to the imagination. If only these self-same critics could offer suggestions as to how campus theatre can be improved! They cannot, alas, for critics are notoriously devoid of imagination.

It is far easier to leave this question up to the executives of the various college dramatic societies themselves. They, poor dears, will find no simple solution to the problem of clearing a profit. They have found that commercial successes on Broadway are not necessarily so in the university. Experimental plays seem to be unfeasible in the light of the colleges' present shaky financial condition. The executives are thus caught on the horns of a twentieth-century dilemma: whether to continue to produce well known plays and alienate the artsy-craftsy set (which is quite considerable), or to do off-beat shows that will only attract a comparatively small portion of the campus theatregoers. Whatever their decision, it will certainly be interesting to see what next year's productions will be like.

PS & JAZZ

LEGRAND JAZZ (CL 1250): Michael Legrand has successfully integrated jazz into many of his earlier pop albums, but is here given full scope to arrange a full-blown jazz record. The arrangements are new and highly imaginative, allowing great freedom for improvisation to an imposing list of brilliant musicians. Miles Davis, Herbie Mann, John Coltrane, Phil Woods, Ben Webster, Hank Jones, Art Farmer, Donald Byrd, etc. The repertoire is chosen from the works of eleven important jazz composers, including Monk ("Round Midnight") and John Lewis ("Django"). This is one of the most refreshing records of the past season, and highly recommended.

ERROLL GARNER (C219) PARIS IMPRESSIONS: A most thorough representation of Garner's range as a pianist, displaying more sides of his musical playground than any one previous album. Aside from the piano, Garner works some very massive and punishing harpsichord renditions into the collection. A slightly heavy handed result occurs occasionally, as "Don't Look".

BREAKING IT UP! PRIMA AND SMITH (COL. CL 1206): A musically questionable package, but certainly entertaining. Louis Prima and Keely Smith cannot surely intend anything more profound to result from their efforts than a few laughs, but I wonder what type of person will be amused by originals such as "Chili Sauce" and "The Bigger and The Figure"? Or, for that matter, from a risqué cabaret number, "It's As Good as New"? The enthusiasm relies heavily on variety effects from blues to cha-cha.

ONLY THE BLUES (VERVE MGV-8250): Sonny Stitt, who is basically a bop-educated modernist, is here playing four blues numbers with a badly mismatched group. Why should a swinger such as Roy Eldridge, and worse still an old-fashioned swinger such as Oscar Peterson be recorded together with Stitt? In comparison to the Dizzy Gillespie record, where Ray Bryant combed some modern rhythmic inventions, this is merely a good session that doesn't quite come off as a worthwhile record.

ANITA O'DAY SINGS THE WINNERS (VERVE MGV-8283): A most wonderful vocalist is here well recorded with appropriate opportunity to fully exploit the rich material of jazz. There are twelve jazz favorite "theme" songs identified with twelve jazz organizations. Miles Davis is here represented by a great arrangement and original lyrics, on "Four", similarly Woody Herman with "Four Brothers". Anita deserves mention especially for her ability to use her voice as a jazz solo instrument, including an ability to improvise. A highly recommended album.

NOTHING BUT THE BLUES (VERVE MGV 8252): Herb Ellis (guitar) features the main voice in this exploration of the basic blues pattern in jazz, aided by Getz and Eldridge (Brown and Levy on rhythm). Stan Getz is blowing some very non-cool sounds resulting in funk but easy listening. Roy Eldridge is right at home, completely integrated: as a matter of the fact, the whole group works as a unit. The album is a success, and waits with a flourish.

LADY IN SATIN (COL CL 1157): Here Billie Holiday is presented with lush pop arrangements, and tunes. The result is not very good pop nor very good Holiday. She is able by virtue of her jazz voice and phrasing to add considerable interest to the album but not quite enough to lift it out of pure background class.

SOUND IDEAS — LES AND LARRY ELGART (COL. CL 1123): One of the latest in their dance series, featuring the unmistakably Elgart sound. Elgart has been the band which has fully and successfully assumed a personal style of hip schmaltz into jazz-dance music. This record is certainly very danceable, but so is Lawrence Welk.

LOVE NEST (COL. CL 1121): is, as the title implies, devoted to the art of background music. Seductive voices are by the versatile Hi-Lo's; instrument encouragement is interpreted by Frank Comstock and orchestra in a lush manner. This falls outside the realm of jazz, although most of the tunes have been done by jazz musicians in more or less straight versions. The result, however, is very pleasant and musically tasteful, while meeting all requirements for background music. Dream to this one.

THE COSMIC SCENE (COL. CL 1198): This is a little swinger by a section of the Ellington Band. This nine-man combo is freed from the Ellington orchestra's consistent sound, and do justice to this opportunity. A very smoothly running recording from slowly rocking "St. Louis Blues" to a fast "Spaceman" or a mellow "Midnight Sun." This is one of the fine examples of good middle-of-the-road jazz, fairly modern, but not way out or self-consciously different for the sake of being different.

THE HI-LOS AND ALL THAT JAZZ (COL. CL 1259): By far the best album ever by this vocal group. If the Hi-Los don't swing in the groovy manner, they make up for it by their creative musicianship and serious experimentation. The balance of the album is excellent. Marty Paich offers the perfect foil and balanced accompaniment to the fine vocal efforts. Aside from the above mentioned goodies there are moments of musical humor and great solos by the instrumentalists. Highly recommended.

SOLITUDE (COL. CL 1085): This Duke collection is for dancers and dreamers. Numbers such as "Autumn Leaves" and "Tenderly" are treated with just the right amount of soul and invention to raise the music above mere commercialism. But even if it is commercial, it is highly musical and good listening (dig the ending of "Tenderly").

BLACK, BROWN AND BEIGE (COL. CL 1162): This is an extended version of one of Duke's greatest compositions, and certainly a very ambitious jazz work. It is here performed in six parts, including vocals by Mahalia Jackson. With its serious use of jazz, it is a sensitive and richly eloquent statement, proving Duke's musical genius. Peter Sepp

Weller Here To Talk Of Wells

A professional explorer for oil will discuss "The Story of Oil and Natural Gas Ownership in Canada" before the Royal Canadian Institute in Convocation Hall, Saturday at 8.15 p.m.

S.F. Weller, senior advisor on Exploration for Imperial Oil Limited, will show why an area such as Western Canada is of interest geologically to the oil industry, and what has happened there during the past half billion years to make it interesting for its natural gas and petroleum prospects.

The western prairies were not explored for oil until the development of the internal combustion engine. A preoccupation with land settlement during the early years led to inadvertent giving away of vast areas of oil-rich land.

Mr. Weller will show the means by which oil companies acquire leases for gas rights and tell the story of the last large freehold land acquisition program carried out in Manitoba.

Department of Physical Education -Women

First year women are reminded of Dr. Gordon Bell's lecture on Thursday, March 5th, at 5 o'clock, in the Household Science Building. Credit will be granted for attendance in this class.

SPECIAL ATTENTION - 25% DISCOUNT ON ALL JEWELLERY PURCHASES

Including: Watches, Diamonds, Silverware, Lighters, Wallets, Pens, and Pencils, Radios, Clocks, Costume Jewellery etc. etc. You must have your A.T.L. card when making a purchase.

SHEFFIELD JEWELLERS DIAMOND MERCHANTS

323 YONGE ST. (5 doors above Dundas) TEL. EM. 6-0977

MAUREEN FORRESTER

CONTRALTO

WEDNESDAY, 11th MARCH

IN THE

GREAT HALL, HART HOUSE

8.10 p.m.

Last Concert in the C.B.C. Celebrity Series

FREE TICKETS

Available to all members of the University community at the Hall Porter's desk from today.

Here and Now

FRIDAY

6.30 p.m. — The Student Christian Movement will hold its Annual Banquet in the Great Hall of Hart House. Pick up your ticket as soon as possible, or notify the SCM office, Hart House, if you are able to come.

7.30 p.m. — Our Lady of China Patricians will meet at St. Peter's Church (Bloor and Bathurst) to discuss "St. Vincent de Paul and Charity". All Chinese students are invited.

8 p.m. — The Victoria College French Club presents a comedy in one act, "L'Apollon de Bel-lac", by Jean Giraudoux. There will also be refreshments and songs, and everyone is invited. The place is Wymilwood, in the Music Room.

— The Ukrainian Students' Club presents a Grand Concert in Convocation Hall, featuring guest artists and 150 singers. There is no admission charge.

— A former provincial leader of the CCF will present a lecture "China Revisited". He is Mr. E. B. Jolliffe, Q.C. The place is the Unitarian Church, 175 St. Clair Ave. W. Admission is 50 cents.

9-1 p.m. — Alumni from the Universities of British Columbia, Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba are invited to a reunion dance in the Crystal Ballroom of the Royal York Hotel. Dress is optional, and tickets are available at the door.

SUNDAY

9.15 p.m. — There will be a Corporate Communion in the Trinity College Chapel.

MONDAY

4.45 p.m. — Graduate Students' Teas will be held in the Graduate Union, 44 Hoskins Ave., from now until Easter. Drop in for a pleasant break.

8 p.m. — The Graduate Students will also have badminton every Monday evening from now until Easter in the Drill Hall, 119 St. George St.

TUESDAY

1.20 p.m. — The Victoria College Noon Hour Concerts present Joyce Bullock, contralto. Miss Bullock was the lead in "The Pirates of Penzance". The place is Wymilwood, in the Music Room.

STUDENTS' ADMINISTRATIVE COUNCIL

Book Exchange Manager

Applications are invited for the above position for approximately a four week period commencing September 21, 1959. Applicant must have some business knowledge and experience in handling cash.

A. E. M. PARKES,
Associate Secretary,
Students' Administrative Council.

4TO HOBORO?

The Department of Slavic Studies and Maple Productions Limited present two evenings of Russian film

TUES., MARCH 10
at 8 p.m. TOLSTOY'S

PETER the FIRST
and MOSCOW UNIVERSITY "Palace of Science"

TUES., MARCH 17
at 8 p.m. — Doors open 7.45

The Childhood of Maxim GORKI
and NEW RUSSIAN "OUTER SPACE" FILM

Tickets 75 cents at the Book Store & Dept. of Slavic Studies.
Admission Limited
to students.

PUBLIC LIBRARY AUDITORIUM
20 St. George St. — 3rd Floor

HART HOUSE THEATRE

Robert Gill, Director

AUDITIONS

Auditions will begin on Tuesday, March 10th, for the first two productions of next season.

THE LITTLE FOXES by Lillian Hellman.

THE SIMPLETON OF THE UNEXPECTED ISLES by
George Bernard Shaw

For an appointment — Phone WA. 3-7193 or call at Theatre Offices

GOOD HAIRCUT RIGHT NEAR HERE

4 BARBERS—NO WAITING

600 University Avenue

Just below College
In the Basement

Open Monday through Friday

8 a.m. to 6 p.m.

ONLY $1.00

EXPORT "A"

FILTER TIP

CIGARETTES

THEN

and NOW

- Basketball was invented in 1891 by a Canadian, Dr. J. A. Naismith
- There were originally 9 players on each team
- The first uniforms were full-length gymnasium pants and long-sleeved jerseys

- There are now only 5 players per team
- The uniforms have been abbreviated for freer movement, faster action
- The original peach baskets have been replaced by steel hoops, the original soccer ball by a special lacetess ball

Student Leaders Meet PM As Quebec Magazine Agitates

Because a student is wealthy enough to pay fully for his university education, is he necessarily more intelligent?

This is the question which 22,000 university students of Quebec ask in a special edition of "The Quebec Student", published in conjunction with National Student Day March 5.

It demands federal and provincial cooperation in the matter

Lectureship Established

A lectureship in honor of Dr. Walter W. Wright, professor emeritus of ophthalmology at the U of T has been established in the Ophthalmology Department.

Funds were raised by staff, students and friends.

Dr. Wright was the first to establish and develop the post-graduate training of physicians in ophthalmology, the study of eye diseases, in Canada.

Since 1941, when he began this work at U of T, 65 specialists have been trained.

At present Dr. Wright is consultant to the Canadian Institute for the Blind, the Toronto General Hospital and the Hospital for Sick Children.

The first Walter W. Wright lecture was given last Friday night at the Academy of Medicine by Professor Norman Ashton.

of grants to Quebec universities. Premier Duplessis of Quebec claims federal grants to universities are illegal, and these grants are subsequently returned each year.

"The Quebec Student" reviews the financial problems which face the Quebec student because of this shortage of funds. Although students' tuition fees are the highest in Canada, their professors are the lowest paid in the country.

And yet, these universities face an annual deficit.

This is because grants to Quebec universities are meted out by the Duplessis provincial government, and are not fixed by law.

Through public agitation, "The Quebec Student" hopes the government of that province will be forced to accept federal educational aid.

National Student Day is this Thursday. Mortimer Bistrisky, Nficus President, and other student leaders will present the problems of the Canadian university student to Prime Minister Diefenbaker on that day.

Vince Kelly, President of the University of Toronto Students' Administrative Council will be a guest that evening of "Tabloid", a Canadian Broadcasting television show. Kelly and other student representatives will also discuss these educational problems.

Last Week for Torontonensis

There are only 14 days left to buy Torontonensis from faculty reps, sales officials reported last night. Booths are due to be set up in most faculties towards the end of the week. Engineers can order their copy of 'Nensis Thursday and Friday in the Skule' House from 12 until 2. Trinity students can order theirs from the booth in the front hall of the college, at the same time. In Victoria College, a booth will be set up in the main hall from 9.30 until 2.00 on Friday. St. Michael's will set up a booth in the Co-op starting today. After Friday, 'Nensis' can be ordered from S.A.C. Office.

Jargon Is Coming

The contents of "Jargon", the all-campus literary magazine, have been selected, editor John Robert Colombo said last night.

"All the successful contributors have been notified by phone," he said. "Unused manuscripts not accompanied with self-addressed envelopes may be claimed next week at the SAC office."

Colombo added that since many manuscripts were rejected on non-literary grounds, short editorial notes would accompany them.

"Jargon", now at the printers, is an $800 experiment by SAC, the arts colleges, some of the faculties and the four advertisers.

It will contain three short stories, one critical article and about twenty poems. Some of its 48 pages are printed in a second colour and Colombo described its typographical format as "striking."

"Proofs are expected early next week. The printing date has been set at March 20th," he said. "We hope to have copies in the hands of student editors and contributors for distribution a week later."

"In order to defray part of the cost of the printing," he said, "copies will be sold at fifty cents apiece at the University of Toronto Press."

Camp Kawagama

DORSET, ONTARIO

Male and Female staff required from June 27th to Aug. 25th, 1959. Cabin Counsellors, Dining Room Hostess (dietician), Registered Nurse, Music Counsellor.

Phone HU. 9-0395 or write to D. PALTER, 100 Old Forest Hill Rd., Toronto 10.

student travel

EUROPE

1959

Conducted Tour Sailings . . .

June 16, 19 and July 10

Ask for descriptive folder

UNIVERSITY TRAVEL LTD. UTC

president: G. H. LUCAS
57 Bloor St. W., Toronto, WAlnut 4-9291

GET

Opportunities for
OFFICER CAREERS IN THE ROYAL CANADIAN NAVY

Appointments to see the naval University Liaison officer may be made through your

UNIVERSITY PLACEMENT OFFICE

THE

INST. CDR. G. L. AMYOT

will be at

THE UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO

to provide full information and to give PERSONAL INTERVIEWS

FACTS

Interviews will be held at 5 Willcocks St. on Friday, March 6

Appointments may be made at the Placement Service now

Naval Cadetships in the regular force are now available to selected undergraduates, providing subsidized continuing university education and leading to commissions in the Royal Canadian Navy immediately on graduation.

ROYAL CANADIAN NAVY

There's Something Special
about du MAURIER

The Exclusive Medical Filter Tip, the most efficient filter yet developed, lets you draw free and easy, for full smoking satisfaction du MAURIER combines the finest Virginia tobaccos to give you perfect mildness and smoothness. Once you smoke du MAURIER you'll make the distinctive red and silver package your favorite always

du MAURIER

A Really Milder High Grade Virginia Cigarette with the EXCLUSIVE "Medical" FILTER TIP

Election Roundup: Campus Groups Polled

Hugh Endicott (IV UC) was named president of the campus CCF yesterday, and will head what publicity spokesman Mitro Makarchuk termed a "revitalized" executive.

Amid criticism of the Diefenbaker government for its "complete and callous disregard of human worth and dignity" in its dealing with the Arrow problem, the following were named to the 1959-60 executive:

Gerry Sperling (IV UC), first vice-president; Frank Benn (II UC), second vice-president; Harvey Schwartz (IV UC), treasurer; Marg Brewin (II Trin), secretary; Mitro Makarchuk (I UC), publicity.

In a record percentage vote, 1,048 Skulemen went to the polls to elect Frank Collins president of the Engineering Society for the 1959-60 year.

Competition was reportedly keen for senior positions, and an SPS representative said as many as three recounts were necessary in some cases.

Other members of the Executive include: Warren Beamish, first vice-president; Howie Maloney, second vice-president; John Brant, treasurer; and Nina Indich, secretary.

Jim Little and John Odell will serve as SAC representatives, with Mike Dorfman stepping in as EAC rep and John Lawrence as athletic association president.

Gary Baker was elected president of the 579 graduate executive, and Herb Brown as president of the 1959-60 graduating class.

Jim Fitzgerald (II Trin) has been named president of the United Nations club for the next academic session, Mitro Makarchuk (I UC) will serve as vice-president.

Other members of the executive are: Bill Ede (II SPS), treasurer; Marilyn Cook (I UC), secretary; Wayne Chatterton (II Trin), director of public relations; and Carole Murray (I OCA), and Ozzie Schmidt (II SPS), members-at-large.

Knox College went to the polls and elected Glen Thompson president of the 1959-60 executive. Harry Waite was named vice-president and Will Pottenger secretary.

The following were also elected: Peter Webb, treasurer; Jack McIntosh, athletic; Ted Ellis, house committee; Bob Fleming, social; Gord Fish, worship; and Walter McLean, SAC.

MASSEY HALL, MARCH 13

AMERICA'S MOST POPULAR FOLK SINGERS

THE WEAVERS

"FOLK SONGS AROUND THE WORLD"

TICKETS: $3.00, 2.50, 1.50
ON CAMPUS FROM:

Music MARILYN REYNOLDS
U.C. HARVEY SOKOLOFF
..... LARRY LEDERMAN
Nursing ROSALIE MEDNICK
Pharmacy JERRY BAIN
Medicine JONATHAN FEINBERG
or JERRY GRAY—RU. 1-9808

Ukrainian Students' Club

Presents A

Grand Concert

DATE: FRI., MARCH 6, 1959. TIME: 8 p.m.

PLACE: CONVOCATION HALL ADMISSION: FREE

Programme:

Guest Speaker: Dr. Samuel Beatty—Chancellor of U. of T.
Vocal Solo: June Kowalchuk (soprano)
Osyp Hoshuliak (bass)
Violin Solo: Vera Tarnowsky
Choir: "Prometei" "Arfa" U.S.C. Choir

Come and bring your friends for an enjoyable evening!!!

APPLICATIONS FOR
E.A.C. CHAIRMAN WILL BE ACCEPTED AT
S.A.C. OFFICE

TYPING

Theses, Essays, Notes, Charts,
French, German, Latin, English,
Prices Upon Request

Act 12

21 AVENUE RD.—WA 2-7624
MRS. M. D. STOTT, B.A.

PAUL
KILBURN

PIANIST

FRI., MARCH 20—8.30 p.m.

FIRST UNITARIAN CHURCH
175 St. Clair West

Tickets $1.50 Students $1.00

Mail orders and information
Miss Judy Breedon
29 Commodore Avenue
Toronto 9, Ont.
RO. 2-9850

THE LAST ADD

dition to make your year at Varsity complete. A permanent 156-page diary, describing every phase of campus life, complete with exciting photos. Order your Torontoensis 59 from your faculty rep. After today, order from the S.A.C. Office.

THE STUDENTS' ADMINISTRATIVE COUNCIL

INVITES YOU TO ATTEND

THE GRADUATION BALL

The Outstanding Event of the University Year

TO BE HELD IN

HART HOUSE

Thursday, the Twenty-Eighth of May

FROM 9 p.m.

The Best in Music, Beautiful Lighting Effects, Entertainment, Refreshments, Good Fellowship

You Will Always Remember Your Graduation Ball

TICKETS WILL BE ON SALE AT THE STUDENTS' ADMINISTRATIVE COUNCIL BUILDING FROM APRIL 1st

The Accommodation is Limited — Do Not be Disappointed, Get Your Tickets Early

Professors In West
Are Paid The Best

Western Canada has moved ahead of Ontario in salaries paid to full time university teachers, the Bureau of Statistics said Wednesday.

A survey shows that average levels to those of the University of Toronto. A recent fee increase of $100 a year at the University of British Columbia will go mainly for higher faculty salaries, university authorities said when announcing the increase last week.

The Quebec figure was $6,756, while Atlantic universities paid their staff an average $5,293 each.

Western universities are at present trying to raise their salary levels to those of the University of Toronto. A recent fee increase of $100 a year at the University of British Columbia will go mainly for higher faculty salaries, university authorities said when announcing the increase last week.

Salaries paid U of T staff during the coming academic session will range from a low of $5,500 for a lecturer to $12,000 "and up" for a full professor.

WOMEN'S ATHLETICS
NOMINATIONS
1959-60

Women's Athletic Directorate

Mary Ellen Anglin, Vic II
Nancy Lou Campbell, P.H.E. II
Lionida Lewis, Vic II
Sally Meredith, U.C. II
Meigot Nunn, Trin II

Lillian Bobson, Med II
Pamela Hill, Trin III
Sandy Macaulen, F.H.E. II
Lee Morley, P.O.T. II
Judy Smith, P.H.E. II

The meeting of the W.A.A. Electoral Body to elect six of the above by elimination will be held on Wednesday, March 11th at 5 p.m. sharp in the Sunroom, Falconer Hall.

Club Presidents

Archery — Vilu Kanep, P.H.E. I
Margaret Merritt, H. Sc. II

Badminton — Sue Marys, P.O.T. II
Margaret Racine, U.C. II

Basketball — Judy Smith, P.H.E. II
Mary Timmins, S.M.C. III
Elaine Atkinson, Nurs. II

Bowling — Kay Swahn, U.C. II (accl.)

Fencing — Still to be nominated

Hockey — R. slyn McIlroy, Trin. II
Mary Ann MacPherson, Vic II
Mary Silks, Nurs. II

Ski — Helen Welder, Vic I (accl.)

Softball — Zita Hertzmann, P.H.E. II
Joan Graber, Vic II

Swimming — Janet Medland, Trin III (accl.)

Tennis — Margot Nunn, Trin. II (accl.)

Volleyball — Judy Canfield, P.H.E. II
Carollea Clark, Trin. II
Joan Housberger, Vic III

VOTERS: Balloting on the above candidates where required will be held on Thursday March 12th from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. either in the Women's Office, S.A.C. Building, or the Department Office, Falconer Hall. All team members, managers, competitors who have attended 50 percent of team practices and members of the Club executive are eligible to vote for the respective clubs.

You! The Intelligentzia

Need a Steak-house like the

STEAK N' BURGER

Owing to the overwhelming success of our first steak-house at 772 Yonge St., we have been compelled to open another at 240 Bloor West, (just opposite Varsity Stadium at Bedford Rd.)

Perhaps we don't know higher calculus, but, boy! we certainly know how to cook and serve tempting cut-broiled steak; and most important, at prices unequalled anywhere in Canada.

If you haven't been down to the Steak N' Burger as yet, come and see us now... we'd really like to meet you.

STEAK N' BURGER MENU

APPETIZERS

Fresh Shrimp Cocktail Tangy sauce60

Chilled Tomato Juice10

ENTREES

CHAR BROILED

Choiceless New York Sirloin Steak 1.49

Red Brand Club Steak 1.79

Giant Burger Platter99

Above served with Baked Idaho Potato, Chef's Salad, French Dressing, Toasted Roll

CHAR BROILED

Junior Bon less New York Sirloin Steak89

Choice of Baked Idaho Potato and Toasted Roll, or Chef's Salad and Toasted Roll

CHAR BROILED

Junior Burger Platter69

Choice of Baked Idaho Potato and Toasted Roll, or Chef's Salad and Toasted Roll

Also Desserts and Beverages

STEAK N' BURGER

240 Bloor Street West (opposite Varsity Stadium at Bedford Rd.) and 772 Yonge Street (a few doors south of Bloor)

OPEN Mon. to Sat., 11.30 a.m. to 10 p.m. Sundays: 5 p.m. to 9 p.m.

ЧТО НОВОГО?*

What's cookin', Doc? (colloq.) occasionally rendered (archaic) "what's buzzin', cousin?" See Peter I, page 12

BILL YORZYK

DON HARPER

OLYMPIC

HART HOUSE
MARCH 6 & 7
8:00 p.m.

UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO
PRESENTS

MANUEL SANGUILY

JOHNNY COLLINS

A WATER CARNIVAL

Starry Show Yorzyk Idea

Late in January, Varsity swimming coach Bill Yorzyk revealed plans for a mammoth Water Carnival. With Yorzyk's expert guidance, the swim team plunged into the project with vigor. Tonight, the results of two months of toil are revealed in Hart House.

Studded with stars from the upper echelon of world swimming, the Carnival promises to be one of the most colorful sporting events on the campus in years. Yorzyk himself can think of no previous Carnival on this continent to equal the show tonight and tomorrow.

The visiting swimmers will try for a total of 25 Canadian and American records. Each swimmer will perform on both nights of the carnival. An extra feature tomorrow night is a Canadian water polo championship game between Toronto and Montreal.

CARIN CONE

Tickets Going Like Wildfire

With pool-side bleachers added to the undersized Hart House pool, seating capacity for the Carnival has been increased to over 600. Some 400 of these will be in the advantageous pool-level positions.

Tickets—costing $1.25 a night—are on sale in the SAC office, the Hart House ticket office and from members of the swimming team. Phone orders will be taken at WA. 3-6221 and WA. 3-1575 until 5 p.m. tonight.

Ticket sales soared over the 700 mark early this week, and officials are confidently predicting a packed house for both nights. Some standing room tickets will be available at the door in case all seats are sold. All proceeds will be used to send worth-while Varsity swimmers to Canadian and U.S. Pan-American and Olympic trials.

BILL YORZYK

Varsity swimming coach, Yorzyk will attempt Canadian and American records in four butterfly events, as well as joining Blues' medley relay team in a crack at the Dominion mark.

CARIN CONE

Carin, 18-year old beauty from University of Houston, will try for Canadian and American backstroke records. She is currently North American champ, and swam in the '56 Olympics.

JOHNNY COLLINS

A 13-year old age group champion from New York, Johnny will go after Canadian and American freestyle and butterfly marks. The youngster trains up to seven hours a day.

DON HARPER

Silver medalist in the 1956 Olympics, Harper has earned a reputation as a clown diver, and will perform both serious and stunt diving on each night. Coming from Columbus, Ohio.

SARA BARBER

Canadian backstroke champion, 18-year old Sara will swim against Carin Cone in invitational backstroke events tonight and tomorrow night. Sara is from Brantford.

MANUEL SANGUILY

An Ohio State medical student, Sanguily will aim for Canadian and American breaststroke records, swimming against Bill Vanderpool and John Deacon. Sanguily, a native Cuban, is 26.

GEORGE BREEN

The greatest distance swimmer ever to come from the U.S., Breen holds a world record in the 1500 metres, and won two thirds and one second at the '56 Olympics in Melbourne.

JOHN DEACON

Canadian breaststroke champion, 19-year old Deacon is a freshman at Varsity. He will swim against Manuel Sanguily and Bill Vanderpool in two events, one each Friday and Saturday.

DENES SZVETKO

A native Hungarian, now at Western, Savetko is a speedy freestyle performer. He will swim with Ken Williams, Dick Pound and Cameron Grout, chasing two freestyle records.

★ PLUS ★

JANET MEDLAND

Intercollegiate Synchronized Champion

OAKWOOD AQUATIC CLUB

Provincial Synchronized Champions

CLOWN & FANCY DIVING

AQUA-LUNG DEMONSTRATION

CANADIAN CHAMPIONSHIP

WATER POLO

TORONTO VS. MONTREAL

Hungaria Y.M.H.A.

(Saturday — 10 p.m.)

GEORGE BREEN

SARA BARBER

JOHN DEACON

DENES SZVETKO

SOLVING ENGINEERING PROBLEMS

From coast to coast, Dominion Bridge is solving engineering problems in every major industry. Fourteen self-contained plants enable it to meet the diversified and complex industrial needs of the times.

A leader in the field of research and technical development, the Company has always been a pioneer in new engineering techniques and manufacturing methods. Its long established system of training employees for advancement helps to maintain high standards of service as well as to provide rewarding careers for young engineers entering the Company.

DOMINION BRIDGE COMPANY LIMITED
PLANTS AND OFFICES THROUGHOUT CANADA

Top:

Twin lift bridges at Caughnawaga. This structure consisting of twin lift bridges, side by side, is designed to carry the two railroad tracks of the Canadian Pacific Railway over the Seaway channel. Each movable span weighs 1,000 tons, including counterweights, and can be raised or lowered in 75 seconds.

Centre:

This catenary ore bin for Consolidated Denison Mines Limited has a capacity of 15,000 tons. The steelwork weighs 1,000 tons.

Bottom:

Iroquois Lock, showing one of six pairs of steel sector gates built for the St. Lawrence Seaway. Resembling a huge wedge of cake, each gate is 43 ft. high and weighs 250 tons.

DOMINION BRIDGE

